Initially Mallory was promoted as a solo act, whilst also serving as an extra member of Ballroom, working on Tommy Roe tracks and being involved in wacky exploito album projects such as Friar Tuck (and his Psychedelic Guitar). Both of his Valiant singles were produced by Boettcher.

That's The Way It's Gonna Be, written by Bob Gibson and Phil Ochs, had been covered in 1965 by The Back Porch Majority. The Boettcher-ised version adds lush harmonies and various odd, backwards effects onto a busy arrangement of this catchy folk-popper (Boettcher would record an unreleased version which can be heard on his retrospective Misty Mirage (CD). The liners note that it made No. 86 nationally, peaking regionally at No. 2 in Seattle (which resulted in Mallory touring there with Tommy Roe), and unexpectedly hit the No. 1 spot in Amsterdam (yes, Holland)! Take My Hand is bouncey harmony-pop, written by the Addrisi Brothers; the flip by Mallory and Randy Naylor, of The Poor. Shortly after the follow-up release Our Productions got involved in Gary Usher's Sagittarius project which soon led to the Our Productions crew forming their own group, The Millennium.

The CD gathers together a score of Mallory's folk-pop, harmony-pop, flower-pop, and fuzz-pop recordings. It kicks off with the original versions of the four Valiant tracks and concludes with one of his compositions used for the Millennium album, I'm With You.

You'll also find That's The Way It's Gonna Be on Nuggets: Hallucinations (CD); and Take My Hand has resurfaced on Nuggets: Come To The Sunshine (CD). (MW/SR/VJ)

The daughter of the actor and poet McDonald Carey, Lynn Carey grew up in Beverly Hills. A sculptural blonde beauty, in 1966 she played in the George Axelrod's comedy 'Lord Love A Duck' with Roddy McDowell and Tuesday Weld, and in 1969 formed her first rock group, C.K. Strong. After working on the soundtracks of two Russ Meyer movies, as part of Carrie Nations in 'Beyond The Valley Of The Dolls' and performing with a group the song Midnight Tricks in the film 'The Seven Minutes', she met Neil Merryweather and began recording with him, first as Vacuum Cleaner and Ivar Avenue Reunion, and in 1972 as Mama Lion.

This group was clearly destined to show off the Joplinesque voice and the very impressive figure of Lynn Carey, and is maybe better remembered for the front cover of their first album, with Lynn Carey breastfeeding a lion cub. As often with Merryweather, the music was a rather loose mix of blues, pop, soul and rock. However it contains some decent tracks like Be Bad With Me, Wildcat, Mr. Invitation and a cover of Bill Withers Ain't No Sunshine.

The second album is in the same style, with Crazy Place, Love Is Just A Four Letter Word and a more 'classic' cover art. The group also recorded as Heavy Cruiser... they were basically Mama Lion sans Lynn Carey, even if she co-wrote some songs and sang background vocals. Circa 1973, Lynn Carey also appeared in Penthouse! She also appeared on some albums of Charlie Musselwhite and sang on an album by Eric Burdon.

For various reasons, after this busy period, her career went downhill. She disappeared from the scene for several years and got married. She came back in the eighties as a member of the L.A. Jazz Choir and did a lot of session work in the Californian and French studios, generally recording with mainstream pop artists. As part of the Flat Foot Floozies (!), Lynn Carey also spent three years on the Queen Mary, doing Andrew Sisters' style songs. In the nineties, she moved for a while to Russia where she recorded and wrote songs with several local groups. A video 'Lynn Carey In Moscow' was released and circa 1995 a CD titled Good Times offered a choice of jazzy pop, miles away from the Mama Lion days.

In 2001 Lynn Carey issued a new CD, Mama Lion Roars Back. (SR)

The Mamas & The Papas have been described as America's first hippies. The quartet had originally formed in New York City back in 1963. John Phillips, who was to become their main songwriter, was born in Parris Island, South Carolina on 30 August 1935. By the age of 15 he was playing in jazz outfits and he was later a member of the folk outfit, The Journeymen. Holly Michelle Gilliam Phillips, born in Long Beach, California on 4th June 1945, had abandoned a promising modelling career to sing alongside him in The Journeymen and married him back in 1962. The Journeymen, incidentally, had also included Scott McKenzie, who would later join the reformed The Mamas & The Papas in 1985. Cass Elliot, born on 19 September 1943 in Alexandria, Virginia had earlier been in The Mugwumps with the fourth member of the quartet, Dennis Doherty, (who'd been born on 29 November 1941 in Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada), and future Lovin' Spoonful member Zal Yanovsky. After perfecting their vocal style in the Virgin Isles they settled in Los Angeles in 1964 and signed to Lou Adler's Dunhill label. They preferred the name The Mamas & The Papas to The Magic Circle (the other possibility they were considering at the time), 'Mamas' being what Hell's Angels called their girls.

They soon developed a very distinctive vocal style which was well suited to their hippie image - their songs tended to be about peace, love and doing one's own thing.

Their first single, Go Where You Wanna Go only appeared as a promotional release and was quickly replaced by California Dreamin' which had been written by John Phillips back in 1963. Capturing the warmth and security of life on the U.S. West Coast with the lyrics, they achieved exquisite vocal harmonies with Michelle's soft, sweet voice contrasting with Cass's harsher, high-pitched voice. Meanwhile the two males provided the background harmonies. The result was a Top 10 hit in the U.S. and a No. 23 in the UK. The song was also recorded by Barry McGuire on his first album. The follow-up Monday Monday did even better earning them a Grammy. The single went to No. 1 in the USA and reached No. 3 in the UK. When they made a short tour in June 1966 to promote the single Gillian Gibson filled in for Michelle Phillips who had temporarily broken up with her husband John. The split did not last for long and once the couple were reconciled Gibson was ousted. Meanwhile I Saw Her Again maintained their chart success with another Top 10 hit in the US. It also reached No. 11 in Britain.

1966 ended with the release of their second album, which is generally considered to have been a marked improvement on their first. It provided them with another Top 10 U.S. hit, Words Of Love, which was also a minor No. 47 hit in the UK. 1967 was another good year for the band. They were undoubtedly one of the best acts at the Monterey Pop Festival, which John Phillips had actually organised. Their vocal harmonies reached near perfection at times. Dedicated To The One I Love, an old Shirelles song had given them a No. 2 hit on both sides of the Atlantic. Again it was characterised by simply delightful vocal harmonies. It was included on their third album, Deliver, which was by far their best to date, despite the fact that its recording was disrupted by Mama Cass's pregnancy. Deliver also included their autobiographical single Creeque Alley another Top 10 U.S. hit, it also achieved No. 9 in the UK, where it was their last hit. Creeque Alley was a real place, in St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands. The song was their first single in a more rock'n'roll format. It succinctly tells their story, of how from varied folk backgrounds these four unique talents gravitated to sunny California. The second half of the year was less successful for them commercially. Their next single, Twelve-Thirty (Young Girls Are Coming To The Canyon), could only manage No. 20 in the U.S. and missed out completely in the UK. What was interesting about it was that it was really two songs in one. John Phillips had written the first part whilst the band were living in the East Village in New York, which was grim and dirty, and there was a clock across the road from his apartment with its hands stuck on 12.30. He wrote the first part of the song then and abandoned it. He completed it six months later when they were in California, which was so idyllic, spring-like, fresh and free in comparison. So he contrasted the two songs by putting them together. For their next single, they used Glad To Be Unhappy from the 1936 Rodgers and Hart musical 'On Your Toes', but both this and follow-up, Dancing Bear, marked a downwards trend commercially.

During the summer of 1967 John Phillips wrote If You're Going To San Francisco for Scott McKenzie. In October they visited Britain to play at the Royal Albert Hall on 30 October and 1 November, although they pulled out of the concerts after Cass Elliot was arrested for stealing two blankets and keys from a Kensington hotel. The charges were later dismissed.

By now the band was past their prime and they actually split up during the recording of The Papas & The Mamas album but came back together to complete it. Overall it wasn't a bad effort but by 1968 their simple vocal harmonies were sounding rather dated - the rate of musical progression in the mid-sixties was very rapid indeed - with arrangements and instrumentation becoming even more elaborate, The Mamas & The Papas found themselves one of countless bands whom progress had left behind. The album spawned three further minor U.S. hits of which Safe In My Garden was perhaps the best. This was really John Phillips' anti-Vietnam song. A song about marijuana being safe in your garden and doing the normal things you would do rather than going to far off foreign countries to kill complete strangers. This was one of their more under-rated songs.

When they split in 1968 Michelle Phillips embarked on quite a successful acting career. Her film credits included 'Dillinger' and 'Valentine' and she was part of the TV cast of 'Knots Landing'. She was also married to actor Dennis Hopper for eight days in 1970. Mama Cass Elliot went on to launch a pretty successful solo career. She put out seven albums and several singles, of which Dream A Little Dream Of Me was the best known and most successful, until her death in London from heart failure in July 1974. She even teamed up with Dave Mason from Traffic for one album in 1971. John Phillips and Denny Doherty also embarked on solo careers but with less success. John Phillips' Wolfking of L.A (Dunhill DX 50077) is extremely mellow and better avoided.

The Mamas & The Papas reformed briefly in the early seventies to fulfil their contract with Dunhill making one final album, People Like Us. Step Out gave them another minor hit off the album but the inter-group dynamics weren't at all good and it wasn't a terribly successful reunion. All the other albums listed in the discography are compilations or repackages.

There was another (permanent) reunion in 1981. The initial line-up was John Phillips, Denny Doherty, McKenzie Phillips (John's daughter) and Spanky McFarlane (formally lead singer with the successful sixties group Spanky and Our Gang). Scott McKenzie was added to the line-up in 1985 and Denny Doherty left in 1987. They toured and recorded an album in 1988, but it wasn't released for legal reasons.

John Phillips died of heart failure in Los Angeles on 18th March 2001. Canadian Denny Doherty died in Mississauga, Ontario on 19 January 2007, after suffering kidney problems following surgery. He was 66.

If you're into vocal harmonies The Mamas & The Papas are a must for you. All their original albums are now available on CD and perhaps the best of the compilations is Connoisseur Collection's double album, Elliot, Phillips, Gilliam and Doherty, which concentrates on John Phillips' songs rather than the many cover versions they also recorded.

Anthology is a 4-CD digibook set that features all their studio albums - If You Can Believe Your Eyes And Ears, The Mamas & The Papas, Deliver, The Papas & The Mamas, Monterey International Pop Festival (live), and People Like Us, alongside the corresponding single releases, rare tracks and studio/rehearsal takes. Disc four is comprised of rarities and previously unissued recordings, including live performances from US television, solo tracks from each of the band and tracks from the Barry McGuire with The Mamas & Papas album, which features many early versions of tracks that would later be hits for the group in their own right. The set is accompanied by a 72-page full colour booklet.

Compilation appearances include: California Dreamin', Monday Monday, Look Through My Window and Creeque Alley on Dunhill Folk Rock Vol. 1:Is It Any Wonder (LP); Strange Young Girls and No Salt On Her Tail on

Penny Arcade - Dunhill Folk Rock Vol. 2 (LP); Dedicated To The One I Love on Undersound Uppersoul (LP); and Somebody Groovy on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book). (VJ/MW/SR)

Born in Detroit in 1945, Harvey "The Snake" Mandel is an excellent guitar player who began his career in 1964 on the Chicago Blues scene, playing on records and performing with Charlie Musselwhite, Barry Goldberg (he played on his first five albums) and Neil Merryweather. Playing in a very recognisable fluid style and specialised in sustain and controlled feedback, Mandel began his solo career in 1968 with Cristo Redentor. Housed in a stunning sleeve signed by Alton Kelley (of Mouse & Kelley), this largely instrumental album was produced by Abe "Voco" Kesh and contains a good cover of Wade In The Water (also recorded by Clover).

Having relocated in Los Angeles, Mandel began to do some session work, notably with Graham Bond on his Pulsar albums produced by Wayne Talbert and with Jimmy Witherspoon.

After Righteous, Mandel teamed up with Russell DaShiell (Crowfoot) to release Games Guitars Play, which is probably his best album with strong guitars on Dry Your Eyes or Leavin Trunk. Mandel then replaced Henry Vestine in Canned Heat and played on Future Blues, Hooker 'N' Heat, and Canned Heat Concert - Recorded Live In Europe. He also performed with them at Woodstock. Mandel then joined John Mayall for three albums (from Back To The Roots to The Turning Point).

He moved to Janus for whom he recorded four further albums, which are not as good as his Philips period but which still contain some interesting guitar parts (notably on Shangrenade). In 1972, he also produced and organised the bluesy project Get Off In Chicago with Ken Little and Freddy Fox. He then formed Pure Food and Drug Act with Sugarcane Harris, Paul Lagos and Larry Taylor. They released Choice Cuts in 1972 on Epic but the same line-up also worked on two Sugarcane Harris albums. Mandel was also briefly part of The Ventures and even recorded an album with them!

In 1973, Harvey Mandel produced both Ken Little's Solo album and a Freddy Roulette album. He played on the Music From Free Creek project and on Dewey Terry's Chief album. 1974 saw him playing with the Rolling Stones on Black And Blue (he was one of the possible substitutes for Mick Taylor). In the mid-seventies, he vanished from the music scene, but returned in the nineties and is still recording with Howard Wales (ex-A.B. Skhy, Barry Goldberg and Gary Sloan (Proof)). (SR)

45: Something In The Air/Musical Man (PS) (Poppy 90103) 1968

The Mandrake Memorial began life with an unknown New York City band called The Novae Police, featuring Kevin Lally and Randy Monaco. They played in Greenwich Village for a while, opening for bands like The Flying Machine (featuring James Taylor), whilst Randy was also doing a lot of demo work, singing on the first demo of "Happy Together" which The Turtles later recorded.

Meanwhile, guitarist Craig Anderton was playing in a college band from the University of Pennsylvania called The Flowers of Evil, who played shows with Woody's Truck Stop (Todd Rundgren's first band). Keyboardist Michael Kac was also in Philadelphia's Cat's Cradle.

The Mandrake's came together through promoter Larry Schriver, who was working in conjunction with club owner Manny Rubin. Manny was looking for a house band for his club, The Trauma in Philadelphia. The band started playing the Philadelphia, New York, Boston and college circuits, even appearing with Pink Floyd on TV and through Manny obtained a deal with MGM subsidiary Poppy (their first two albums were issued by RCA in the UK). They based themselves in Philadelphia.

Their debut album was released in the fall of 1968 and is made up of short commercial rock compositions like Bird Journey, Rainy May and Dark Lady with Randy Monaco's pleasing, laid-back vocals and Michael Kac's keyboards usually to the fore. The strongest track on the album is possibly the haunting Strange, but a consistent standard is maintained throughout.

The simple pop format is dropped on the Medium album which is the group's first real excursion into the world of psychedelia. By the time of its release Michael Kac had left the band due to musical differences. Overall, it is less consistent but possibly more interesting than their earlier effort. Of particular interest is the opening track on side two, the haunting After Pascal, which has an unusual psychedelic intro, and the fuzztone guitar work on Smokescreen. Another track Barnaby Plum also has an unusual psychedelic intro and a pleasant autoharp piece in the middle. However, some of the other music on the album is frankly tedious.

POPPY RECORDS

THE MANDRAKE MEMORIAL

As a three piece, the band came to England to record an album with Shel Talmy producing. However the resultant "intimate acoustic guitar" album was deemed too un-commercial and shelved. An acetate of the album still exists and many of the songs were later re-recorded for Puzzle.

Their third and final album, Puzzle, was their most ambitious. It had a most interesting cover. The mysterious opening track Earthfriend Prelude sets the tenor for the remainder of the album, which is their rarest and something of a collectors' item. But other tracks like Just A Blur were more in the style of their first album, while Kyrie finds the group playing quasi-religious material, as does A Children's Prayer on side two. Volcano Prelude, the opening track on side two commences with a slow orchestrated drum crescendo, while Whisper Play is possibly the strangest track on the album, based around the idea of quasi-religious music, superimposed with whispers. Overall, this amounted to an early concept album and, with a total playing time of almost 49 minutes, was excellent value when first released.

After Puzzle the group recorded a cover of Thunderclap Newman's Something In The Air, which was released as a single with picture sleeve, but this didn't "happen" and Kevin Lally left afterwards.

Randy Monaco later played with The 1910 Fruitgum Co. but sadly died in the late seventies from cirrhosis.

Craig Anderton went on to form Anomaly with musicians Charles Cohen and Jeff Kane. They backed Linda Cohen on her Poppy label albums in the early seventies. Anderton became well-known beginning in the seventies as an author, writing the do-it-yourself books "Electronic Projects For Musicians" and "Home Recording For Musicians", as well as contributing a regular column to 'Guitar Player' magazine called "Electronic Guitar". He also participated in a newsletter available to musicians by mail-order called "Device" that provided tips on modifying guitars, amps and special effects boxes. In retrospect, while he might garner a footnote in rock history for his recordings, his contribution to rock music in general through his writing is phenomenal, certainly without measure.

Dark Lady from their debut album has been compiled on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 2 (CD).

Herbie Mann (?)

ALBUMS: 1 IMPRESSIONS OF THE MIDDLE EAST
selective) 2 THE WAILING DERVISHES (Atlantic 1497) 1967

Based on the East Coast and born in 1930, the jazz flutist Herbie Mann deserves a mention here for his late sixties material, as he worked with several rock musicians and some of his albums are inspired by the Middle East sounds.

Mann also produced the Floating Opera album. His later releases are in a soul/jazz/pop vein and consequently outside the scope of this book.

Two of his songs: Dance Of The Semites and Theoud and The Pussycat have been compiled on The In Sound: Eastern & Hip. (LP). (SR)

ALBUM: 1 HOME SWEET HOME (Enterprise ENS-1008) 1970 SC-R1

A multi-talented man in the Memphis scene, Terry Manning was equally at ease with guitars and keyboards and had previously briefly been in the Bobby Fuller Four, Lawson and Four More and The Avengers. His only solo album contains lots of heavy guitar with various effects and a crazed version of Savoy Truffle with psyched vocals. Manning later became an engineer and producer for soul and rock acts (notably Isaac Hayes, ZZ Top, George Thorogood and Jason & The Scorchers).

He has three cuts; Guess Things Happen That Way, and the previously unreleased Not At All and Rocks on Thank You Friends: The Ardent Story (2-CD). (SR/VJ)

(1) reissued on CD (Grey Matter GM 05CD) 199?, with 14 demo tracks recorded in Van Nuys on the 9th of August, 1968, and 12 tracks of "The Manson Family Sings The Songs Of Charles Manson" recorded in 1970.

Yes, this is the notorious Charles Manson who lived in California. The album was legitimately reissued on vinyl on ESP for East Coast distribution. The recordings on this album were made prior to the Tate-LaBianca murders. It contains 14 original songs in an acid hippie-folk vein. The music mainly consists of Manson singing and playing guitar. On some tracks he's accompanied by sitar, tamboura, violin, strange percussion, electric guitar and voices. The sleevenotes to this now rare album give no indication of who the other musicians were. (VJ/SR)

Formed in 1963 in La Crosse, Wisconsin this quartet marauded all over the Midwest. For their second single a name change was imposed by producer Dave Garrett, against the band's will. The reasoning behind it was that the Stones' (I Can't Get No) Satisfaction was riding high in the charts at the time. Both sides reappeared soon after on the Bud-Jet series of compilations released in 1965/6 - Girl Don't Tell Me on Top Teen Bands, Vol. 2 (LP) and Bad Times on Top Teen Bands, Vol. 3 (LP).

The band split around the end of 1966. Rick Miller went on to achieve success and kudos as the owner of Harley Davidson Apparel.

45: Fire/There's A Girl (Derrick 8568) 1968

This now rare and sought-after album was the work of a band from Tulsa in north-eastern Oklahoma. Although entirely embellished with cover versions collectors will pay hundreds of bucks for an original copy, the attraction being that many of the covers are as good, maybe even better than the originals. First off is I'm So Glad with some tasty fuzz guitar; next up is Love Me Again with more superb guitar work; this is evident too on Mars Bonfire's Born To Be Wild - every bit as good as the Steppenwolf version. There's a fine rendition of The Byrds' I Feel A Whole Lot Better, a very psychedelic treatment of Ingle-De Loach's Fields Of Sun with some excellent guitarwork and drumming and a fine Hendrix impersonation on Fire. Side two isn't quite as good but it includes a rehash of Jagger/Richard's Connection, a very fuzzy cover of Strange Brew and impressive reworks of Donovan's Season Of The Witch and Eric Burdon's Sky Pilot. Certainly any collector of psychedelia should snap up the repress. It has an interesting back cover too!

Love Me Again, Connection and Born To Be Wild can all be heard on Kicks & Chicks (LP). (VJ)

MARCUS - From The House Of Trax CD.

A different Marcus, this one dealt in heavily phased, cosmic psych along the lines of Terry Brooks and Strange. The 'A' side in particular is strongly psychedelic with multi-layered keyboards and dreamy female harmonies. The band was based on the Kentucky/Indiana border.

He returned with an album, The Return in the nineties.

NB: (1) has been reissued on CD (Water Music 120) 2003 with a 16-page booklet with new liner notes and photos.

Originally released on Atlantic's Vortex label in 1968, Tomorrow Never Knows was produced by Herbie Mann and featured Larry Coryell on guitar. What was essentially a jazz band contrives to play psychedelic rock versions of songs like Eight Miles High (The Byrds), Mellow Yellow (Donovan), and the 11-minute freak-out of Tomorrow Never Knows and a seven-minute version of Rain (both originally by The Beatles). Modern jazz fans should appreciate the Coltrane-like freak-out of Marcus' sax work and rock fans will admire some of Coryell's more distorted guitar work. Marcus issued further albums with many of the same players, including Count's Rock Band (Vortex 2009) 1969 and The Lord's Prayer (Vortex 2013) 1969. He passed away in 2005. (VJ)

		Re-Birth Day/ Memories Lost And Found	(Sonobeat R-S 118) 1970

NB: α shown as by Vince Mariani.

From Austin, Texas Mariani is now known more as a springboard for guitarist Eric Johnson, than for their collective efforts as a band. Perpetuum Mobile was pressed for demo purposes in 1970 and shopped to major labels. Sonobeat had used this rather innovative means (presenting a finished album master to an established label for release) to place Johnny Winter with Imperial Records.

Musically they were very heavy with plenty of good guitar work but perhaps too much instrumentation. They won a good 'live' reputation, but sadly broke up before Sonobeat concluded their negotiations with United Artists. The reissue of their album is obviously welcome because copies of the promotional-only release are extremely rare indeed.

Their first single was an electronic piece, with a drum solo on the flip.

Memories and Re-Birth Day have also been compiled on Filling The Gap (4-LP box). (VJ/RB/CF)

45s:	Tuff Stuff/Get Your Baby	(GNP Crescendo 350) 1965
	Dance With Me/Silly Putty	(GNP Crescendo 358) 1965

Formed in 1963 in East Los Angeles and originally as The Escorts, Mark and The Escorts released two singles on GNP Crescendo in 1965.

They remained active into the mid-seventies under a succession of identities: - in 1966 they became The Men From S.O.U.N.D.; around '68/69 they became Nineteen Eighty-Four and released one single on Kapp; by the seventies they were The Mudd Brothers; their final incarnation was Tango, with an album on A&M.

Retrospective compilation appearances have included: Get Your Baby on Mindrocker, Vol. 1 (LP), East Side Revue (LP) and The Magic Cube (CD); Get Your Baby and Dance With Me on Psychotic Reaction Plus Ten (CD); Get Your Baby on The West Coast East Side Sound, Vol. 2 (CD); and Tuff Stuff, Get Your Baby, Dance With Me, Silly Putty and Get Your Baby on The East Side Sound Vol. 2 Featuring Mark And The Escorts (LP & CD). 45:	Pay/The Leader	(JCP C-102) 1966

From Raleigh, North Carolina Marke V was a bunch of 9th, 10th and 11th graders. Both sides of the single can also be heard on Tobacco A-Go-Go, Vol. II (LP).

Steve Kelburg later went into the military, retired and became a policeman, Bill Muffet works at a music store and Donnie Wofford has been involved in radio business. Ed Truman now owns a garage and has recently got back into playing music again.

Ed Truman (drms) and Lee Caplin (keyb'ds) later played as The Castaways, with original Castaways member Bob Folschow, who been drafted into service. At the time, Bob was using the surname Bob Leroy and was stationed in Fayetteville, North Carolina. This outfit played for two years, in and around Durham, Chapel Hill and points North and South, including schools, bars, public venues and a gig at Duke University. (MW/EDT)

The Marketts (CA)

ALBUM: (selected)	1	SUNPOWER	(World Pacific WPS 21870) 1967

From California, The Marketts were an instrumental group formed in the early sixties, playing a mix of surf music, rock and covers of current hits, in the same style as The Ventures or The Challengers. Like the other two groups, they kept on recording during the mid-sixties and tried to adapt their style to the flower-power era, as evidenced on this 1967 album. Their line-up often changed and included some ace session musicians like Ben Benay (Goldenrod). (SR)

A Spokane, Washington act. When Mark Five's original drummer Wayne Freeman was killed in an auto accident in 1963, he was replaced by Mike Buono. Ned Neltner later played in Gas Company and produced Locksley Hall's album. Both he and Les Clinking Beard later played in the long-lasting outfit Junior Cadillac.

This, together with the lead vocalist's intriguing voice, is the main point of interest on the record. Better Than That has also re-emerged on Quagmire Volume 7 (CD). (MW/GGI)

A quartet from Poughkeepsie, New York Mark IV's debut single was a folk-pop outing. Their second came with a photo insert autographed by band members and is highly prized amongst collectors; even more so because Don't Want Your Lovin' is a primitive I'm A Man-style garage rave-up.

Don't Want Your Lovin' has been compiled on Pebbles, Vol. 2 (CD), Psychotic Reactions (LP), Best of Pebbles, Vol. 3 (LP & CD) and Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 1 (CD). (VJ/MW/MM)

	Goin' Back To Marlboro Country/ I Don't Need You	(RCA 8992) 1966

This Florida outfit's single got picked up by a major label despite its off key piano and guitars. Both sides are country-influenced punkers; the flip has lots of mouth harp and organ. Not bad.

Mark Markham is still a local legend around the Fort Lauderdale area, getting a name-check on Charlie Pickett and The Eggs first two albums and providing them with a track If This Is Love, Can I Have My Money Back?!

This is in fact the last West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band album, produced by Bob Markley and Michael Lloyd. All the tracks are composed by the above personnel. Musically, it's not as good as the WCPAEB but contains some good tracks: Next Plane To the Sun, Sweet Lady Eleven and Magic Cat. Quite surprisingly, there are also several bubblegum-influenced tracks (Zoom, Zoom, Zoom being the worst). (SR)

Marks' first album (recorded in New York) is in the jazzy folk mode and some compare the style to Tim Buckley, although it's also reputed to contain some soul. Sold by mail order it probably had a limited pressing. He relocated to the Bay Area in the mid-seventies and issued further albums of jazzy folk. He is still recording. (VJ)

NB: Vocal on In This State... by Pat West, vocal on Broken Mirror by Chuck Balboni.

A garage band from Boston, In This State Of Mind is a garage-style ballad, whilst the flip is a cool teen-beat garage shuffler with a guitar and organ riff. Mark Whitworth recalls: - "We were high school students in Canton, Massachusetts when we recorded our single at Ace Recording Studios ('Ace is the place ... to make recordings') in Boston. The single became a staple at the soda shop, The Family Treat (aka 'The Beat')." (AH/MM/MWt)

The members of The Marsadees all attended Lexington High School in Lexington, South Carolina. Aside from the group's original instrumental Palisade, their lone album contains the band's interpretations of songs that were staples of many of the bands on the Justice Records roster, including Louie Louie, Walk, Don't Run, Little Latin Lupe Lu, Pipeline and Wipe Out. This is reckoned to be the rarest album on this label and eluded collectors for years. It's usually considered one of the label's better releases.

Wipe Out and Lonely Sea have both resurfaced on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 10 (CD). (MDo)

Billy Carlucci (aka Billy Carl) was from Philadelphia. He'd been putting out singles since 1962, fronting Billy and The Essentials and The Heatwaves. By the late sixties Carlucci had teamed up with Reid Whitelaw, and the duo was writing pop songs for the Kasenetz-Katz production team in New York, including Goody Goody Gumdrops for the 1910 Fruitgum Company. Shortly after, they formed a bubblegum act of their own, Marshmallow Way.

Sainte Anthony's Fyre bass player Tomm Nardi reportedly played with the band.

ALBUM: 1(A) HARD JOB BEING GOD (GWP Records GWP ST 2036) 1971

Slightly more than your run of the mill God rock, Tom Martel's Hard Job Being God does indeed borrow heavily from "Jesus Christ Superstar" but has its moments. Martel's songwriting takes less from Broadway and adds a bit more genuine rock, with at least one stunning fuzz guitar solo. Housed in a beautiful purple and pink gatefold sleeve, the album is well worth acquiring if cheap. The play apparently had a Broadway run that closed after only six performances. The stage presentation featured a slightly revised cast, including Stu Freeman who had previously played in the Magic Mushrooms and toured with Jesus Christ Superstar. (MMs)

Bill Martin (CA)

ALBUM: 1 CONCERTO FOR HEADPHONES AND
(Warner Bros WS-1586) 1970

Based in California, Bill Martin was a composer and arranger who worked with the Modern Folk Quartet and Fred Neil. Known mostly as William E. Martin, Bill wrote songs for The Monkees, penned a few tunes with Nilsson, and he then released this solo album. It is an extremely weird release (and one of the rarest Warner Bros albums), mixing spoken word and strange sound effects. After this album Martin turned to writing (Elephant Parts, Harry & the Hendersons, 3rd Rock from the Sun, etc.), acting (Hey, Hey We're the Monkees, An Evening with Sir William Martin), and doing cartoon voices. (SR/VJ)

ALBUM: 1 MIDWEST FARM DISASTER (RCA LSP-4470) 1972

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Riversong) 2007.

Bob Martin, a talented singer/songwriter from Massachusetts released this acknowledged rural album in 1972. He has an appealing gravelly voice and strong lyrics that deal with issues like hard times, local drunks, small town farm life, prison convicts, and working on the mill. Blind Marie is probably the album's most commercial track, whilst Mill Town has an intensity and along the title track relate stories about his early life on a farm and Frog Dick, South Dakota adds humour. The album's finale, Deer Island Prison, is another highlight. (VJ/SR)

PAUL MARTIN - Self Titled LP.

Dewey Martin (born Walter Milton Dwayne Midkiff in Ontario, Canada) had been with Buffalo Springfield and New Buffalo before forming Medicine Ball in November 1969. Basically a country-soul aggregation, Kagen was ex-Sir Douglas Quintet; Darnell ex-Albert King's backing band and Bradstreet ex-Rock City Band (a Dayton, Ohio group). Line-up 'A' was probably responsible for their debut single, although it was credited just to Dewey Martin. Issued as a promo only, it comprised the country favourite Jambalaya (On The Bayou) and Martin's Ala-Bam.

As sessions for the album commenced during April-May 1970, ex-Danny Cox bass player Stephen Lefever helped out until Terry Gregg joined full-time. Darnell left towards the end of the sessions and ex-Blue Mountain Eagle member Randy Fuller helped finish it, as did Bruce Palmer, who appeared uncredited on his own composition Recital Palmer.

Their album, which was produced by Dewey Martin with the help of Dave Hassinger, was released in a superb gatefold sleeve decorated with native American sand paintings. It offered an energetic mix of psych, rock (an unusual version of Yesterday), country and raga. There's even a pedal steel fuzz solo on one track, Race Me On Down. The album also featured some excellent covers, particularly two Ron Davies' songs Change and Silent Song Through The Land. One track, It Ain't Easy, was also recorded by David Bowie.

Steel guitarist Jay Dee Maness has also been reported at various times as a member of Medicine Ball, but he only rehearsed with them on a couple of occasions and never played a gig with them. After Buddy Emmons left for session work, another steel player helped fulfil their live dates.

In early '71, Bradstreet rejoined Darnell (who had played with Doug Kershaw in the interim) and his songwriting partner John Alden (co-author of I Do Believe) in Starbuck. Martin produced Truk and later became a mechanic. In the late seventies he played on a Hoyt Axton album. Buddy Emmons kept on recording hundreds of country sessions; Harvey Kagen rejoined Doug Sahm and Augie Meyer and Steve Lefever became a session man, notably with Alexander Harvey. Darnell, Bradstreet and Alden are currently playing in country-rock outfit The Electric Range.

The material on One Buffalo Heard is Sir Raleigh and Sir Raleigh & The Cupons singles, recorded in 1964-1965.

Dewey passed away on 31 January 2009. (VJ/JO/SR/NW/MW)

	The Last Remains Of Our Love/ The Fairy Princess (PS)	(Rodin RO 1303) 1967

Paul Martin (real name Myerberg) started off in New York influenced by the vibrant folk scene happening during the early sixties. By the mid-sixties he had diverted his attention to the British groups and emerging folk-rock scene in the U.S. It was around this time that he started to record some demos, some of which were released as singles in 1966/1967. They are included on this album along with some material recorded later after he became a recording engineer at Bell Sound from 1968 to 1970. Some these recordings are heavily influenced by The Left Banke, and have an overall different flavour than the single tracks. He turns in a stunning vocal and lyrical performance that must surely rank as one of the great, unsung confessionals. (SR)

From South Gate, California (a suburb of Los Angeles), Mary Butterworth's album contains some fine progressive rock which maintains a good standard throughout. Featuring lashings of good keyboards and drums, Phase II and It's A Hard Road are perhaps the pick of the bunch, but really every track's a winner and the album is recommended. Originals are very rare as the album was only sold at gigs to friends but the official CD reissue will be easier to track down. Two of its finer moments, Phase II and Week In 8 Days (a bluesy number), can also be heard on Valley Of The Son Of The Gathering Of The Tribe (LP). The record has recently seen a revival of sorts, as one of its tracks Feeling I Get was featured in a major motion picture 'Lost In Translation' (2003). (VJ)

Masada (?MA)

45: A Hundred Days And Nights/? (Sadbird SA-2059) 196?

Recorded in New Bedford, Massachusetts this mystery outfit laid down a dreamy late sixties psych opus, composed by Paul Brissetts. After the appearance of the first rock bootleg, Dylan's Great White Wonder rock critic Greil Marcus wrote a tongue-in-cheek review in 'Rolling Stone

THE MASKED MARAUDERS

THE MASKED MARAUDERS - Self Titled LP.

Magazine' of a non-existent bootleg album featuring a band comprised of Lennon, Jagger and Dylan. The review actually fooled some readers into believing that this mythical album actually existed and record stores across the U.S. were flooded with requests. On reaction, Reprise quickly had the Masked Marauders album recorded and it soon appeared on the "Deity" label (as the review had described).

Musically, it mixes some rock numbers with vocals similar to Jagger or Dylan, another cover of Donovan's Season Of The Witch and doo-wop classics (Duke Of Earl, The Book Of Love) and it cannot be recommended. The musicians were probably members of The Cleanliness and Godliness Skiffle Band. (SR)

(2) has a B&W printed cover showing an illustration of the band; this version has the sides reversed, and is remixed. A booklet was included with most copies. (2) also issued in New Zealand (Columbia SCX-5047) 1971, although no booklet is known to be included with this pressing. (2) reissued officially on CD (Gear Fab GF-137) 1999 and vinyl (Akarma AK 105) 2000.

Formed in Virginia in 1969, this power-trio shared the same stomping grounds as Short Cross in the Richmond-Norfolk-Virginia Beach area. This heavy rock album has now become a minor collectable. With strong vocals and lots of excellent instrumentation (lots of rich organ, and jazzy sax) it's easy to see why. One track, Golden Sails, sounds uncannily like Jethro Tull, but all eight cuts are originals, six of them Jim Galyon compositions, the other two co-written with Steve Arcese. It's a must for heavy rock fans but worth a twirl for most collectors. They lasted until the mid-seventies and their legacy has been secured with the CD on Gear Fab.

Bonnie Jo Mason (CA)

Girls In The Garage, Vol. 4 (LP) includes a song called Ringo, I Love You, which was written by Phil Spector, Anders and Poncia and released on Spector's Annette subsidiary circa '64. According to the compilers, Sonny Bono worked for Phil Spector in the early sixties and had Cher sing back-up on records whenever they needed an extra voice. Sonny really wanted to record Cher as a solo, but either Spector didn't like Cher or didn't think she was talented enough for a solo disc. As a joke, Spector gave this song to Sonny for Cher to record; the joke being that Cher's voice was so low, people would think it was a guy singing about being in love with Ringo. So Sonny recorded Cher singing I Love You Ringo under the name Bonnie Jo Mason. It wasn't a hit, but it was the beginning of Cher's singing career. (ME)

Here's a rare private press folk album. There are no credits on the cover or labels. The band seems to be made up of two guys that play guitar and hand drums and they both sing in a wasted style. It kinda fits in the same bag as the Carr/Kahl Communication 1 album but this is certainly more primitive. Judging by the crude thick pressing and the handmade cover, I would date this circa 1970. (CF)

Recording in Chicago, Mason Profitt was formed out of Sounds Unlimited which included at various times Tim Ayres, Art Nash and the Talbot brothers. Their first three albums were produced by Bill Traut, the manager of the Dunwich label/production company. With their long-haired outlaw look and clothes, Mason Proffit was essentially a folk and country-rock group with vocal harmonies but some of their songs may interest readers, especially on the first album (also known as "Two Hangmen" because of its stunning cover) with Voice Of Change and A Rectangle Picture about a soldier sent to Vietnam:

"Janie is my lady, she walks my mind at night
I'm lying in this rice field, I know that it ain't right
Everything has turned around, I think I'll close my eyes
To shut out those machine gun sounds that muffle all the cries
Ever since they called me, my life ain't been the same

Led by John and Terry Talbot, Mason Proffit toured intensively and sometimes shared the bill with the Grateful Dead. After two more country-rock albums for Warner Bros in 1972 and 1973, Mason Proffit disbanded and The Talbot Brothers turned to Christian music, recording several albums for Myrrh and Sparrow.

In 1999, Swedish acid-rock band Spacious Mind covered Walk On Down The Road on their The Mind Of A Brother CD. (SR/MW)

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl Vanguard/Comet VSD-6522) 2000.

This album may interest fans of acid psychedelia with its strong jazzy haze. The group originated from Indiana but recorded in New York, it is thought that they were based there for a while. They were fronted by Tom Hensley, an excellent keyboard player who would become a sought-after studio musician during the seventies, working with Leonard Cohen, Hall & Oates and David Blue to name but a few.

Their sole record features some fine guitar work, particularly on Boxes and Long Hard Journey but suffers somewhat from rather weak vocals. Hensley was aware of this problem, as he mentioned in the long, rather intellectual and often funny liner notes that "I was never able to work out the trick of singing as if I were black. So I compromised. I try to sound like a Jewish singer. I haven't done too well on that one either. So we like to think of ourselves as primarily a playing group."

45: Need You/Rainbow (Columbia 4-43977) 1966

In December 1965, after a few years playing together on the folk-circuit, Mastin and Brewer arrived in L.A.. Here they stayed with producer Barry Friedman and New Christy Minstrel, Randy Sparks, recording a three-song demo, comprising originals Need You, Sideswiped and Bound To Fall. The latter track was later covered by Stephen Stills's Manassas.

In early 1966, they formed a group with ex-Skip Battin Group drummer Billy Mundi and Tim Buckley sideman Jim Fielder. Rehearsing in the same house as Buffalo Springfield, they joined The Byrds and Buffalo Springfield on a tour of southern California and also played at L.A.'s Whisky A Go Go and Ash Grove clubs.

In mid-1966 they changed name to the Elesian Senate and began work on an album. Mastin however, left during the sessions and the band subsequently fragmented. Mundi joined The Lamp of Childhood for a few months and then The Mothers of Invention, Fielder too joined The Mothers at the suggestion of Mundi, whilst Mastin moved to San Francisco to work in bars and later committed suicide.

Left without a band, Mike Brewer brought in his brother Keith to overdub his voice over Mastin's on the duo's lone single. The two brothers then began work on new material; Mike's Truly Right, written about Mastin was covered by The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band and the brothers' collaboration, Love, Love and Mike's Truly Right were later rerecorded by Brewer and Shipley on their debut album.

In the summer, Mike took up a songwriting post at Good Sam Music, which ultimately led to the formation of Brewer and Shipley. (NW)

ALBUM: 1 (A) OLD HICKORY & THE PIRATE (Hakim HR 1001) 1977 SC

From California, Michael Mathis (born 1948) was the son of Bud Mathis, a boxer-turned-music-entrepreneur based on the Sunset Strip in the sixties. Bud managed several groups including the Brain Train, the Joint Effort and the Fairviews. Michael started singing with his brother Mark and recorded a single on the Blue River label in 1962. A voice change ruined his hopes of teen career and he had to wait until 1977 to release an album. Produced by his Dad, Old Hickory & The Pirate is in fact a very patchy compilation of songs recorded over a 12 year period. It includes some sixties pop songs recorded by Paul Buff at Original Sound Studios and a version of Discomboomber also recorded by the Fairviews. The real highlights of the album are a superb track The Third Eye, which approaches Merrell Fankhauser's best moments, and two excellent sitar psych cuts with Ashish Khan (of Shanti). The overall result is extremely interesting, but the album is very hard to find. (SR)

Trivia time of the rich and famous - this quintet were based in Gainesville, Florida and included two gents who'd both go onto global success in the seventies.

Don Henley moved on to a band called Flow (who put out a jazz-rock album on the CTI label) before going to California and joining Linda Ronstadt's band, where he was reunited with Leadon and encountered other members of her band with whom he'd form The Eagles. Bernie Leadon had already been around in various outfits like the Scotsville Squirrel Barkers before his tenure in The Maundy Quintet. Leadon's route to the Eagles was less direct - via Hearts and Flowers, Dillard and Clark, The Corvettes, Linda Ronstadt's band and The Flying Burrito Brothers.

The Byrds-inspired 2's Better Than 3 can also be heard on Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 1 (CD) and the breezy harmony-beat flip, I'm Not Alone is also on Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 3 (CD). (MW/JLh)

ALBUM: 1(A) MAXIMILLIAN (ABC ABCS-696) 1969 R1

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Akarma AK 382) 2009, remastered and elegantly digi-packaged.

From New York, produced and arranged by Teddy Vann, this is an album which gets a mixed response from collectors. Some like it, claiming that it's Hendrix inspired psych-soul-rock here, on tracks like Rat Race or Kickin' 9 to 5, and deserves to be heard. Others hate it, citing awful vocals and weak material.

Featuring a trio plus anonymous drums and occasional organ and violin, the album came housed in a gatefold sleeve with pictures of the trio being crucified on flower crosses and various religious symbols. The liner notes explained that "Golgotha music was one of the few surviving vestiges of truth. Its prophets of love and truth such as BB King, Bob Dylan, Donovan, Aretha Franklin, Arlo Guthrie and Joan Baez sang the psalms of time. The crucifixion of the social heroes of the day, Martin Luther King, John and Robert Kennedy, has made even bigger demands on the importance and value of music, thus creating new prophets of love and truth".

Alicia May Cory was a folk singer in southern California in the seventies. This charming private press album is popular with collectors, fetching well into three figures at auction. It has a very professional sound with great playing and vocals. Alicia was married to the actor Timothy Bottoms when this album was issued, which may explain why her full name does not appear on the record. (VJ/CF)

ALBUM: 1 MOMENTS (Atco SD33-319) 1970

Judy Mayhan began her career in the early sixties as a traditional folk singer playing dulcimer. After several albums which are out of the scope of this book, she signed to Atco and turned electric. Her Moments album is mainly notable for Walk Right In with Mike Pinera (Iron Butterfly, Ramatam) on guitar, and three former members of The Factory: Lowell George on guitar and flute, Ritchie Hayward on drums and Warren Klein on sitar, plus Williama Charlton on bass and Aumashananda on aum drum. All the other tracks were recorded in Muscle Shoals with Duane Allman and Eddie Hinton, but are not as interesting. They include covers of Jimmy Webb's Old Man At The Fair, Jimmy Davis's You Are My Sunshine and Dylan's I Shall Be Released plus four other Mayhan originals. (SR)

45: Show Me The Way/Johnny (Colossus CS 131) 1970

This outfit's album merges psychedelia and heavy rock, with some excellent Hendrix-inspired lead guitar work on Johnny and Glance At The Past. The album is recommended to fans of these genres. All their material was original and it was produced by Pat Perticone at New York's A&R studios. The long liner notes, written by Paul Welsh, state that their name came from the Maypole erected by the people of Merrymount in New England in the 17th Century to break most of the Puritan laws, stating that "Maypole intends to combine the techniques of literature in lyrics and structure with the feeling generated by our music to communicate the "real" to an unlimited audience".

The band came from Baltimore and was founded by Paul Welsh and Dennis Tobell. Dennis was the mainstay of the band, writing or co-writing the bulk of their material. He is still playing professionally as Demian Bell and has played in Los Bravos amongst others. Prior to Maypole he was also a member of The Barbarians. Lutzy was previously with The Progressions (on Scepter) and would be involved again with later incarnations of that band. Another member was in a group called A Taste (on Gazette). Paul Welsh committed suicide in 1988.

The previously unreleased second album, Falling Angels is mostly filled with AOR material, part of which sounds like it's from the eighties. (VJ/SR/JV)

The Maze was from the north Bay Area, having members from Napa and Fairfield. Their album was produced by Larry Goldberg and Leo (De Gar) Kulka at Golden State Recorders in San Francisco. With lots of doomy heavy guitar and organ, instrumentally they had a sound comparable to Iron Butterfly or Freeborne. The album starts out with the melodramatic Armageddon, a long track full of dark imagery and an effective forboding atmosphere, while the remainder is taken up with the more melodic and laid-back I'm So Sad. The second side begins with the rather lightweight good-time Happiness, but Whispering Shadows opens with some great discordant eastern lead guitar work which gives way to some good group harmonies. Dejected Soul, with its sleepy vocals and fine fuzz guitar work, is among the album's finer moments. The final track, As For Now, seems to return to the more melodic, laid-back style of I'm So Sad. This album is well worth investigation.

Just after the recording sessions, drummer Kit Boyd was called up for the Vietnam draft. He was replaced by Joel McKinney from Davis but the new line-up broke up during 1968.

The Sundazed CD bonus tracks include two unreleased cuts by Eittreim's pre-Maze band Stone Henge recorded in April, 1967. The Beat Rocket vinyl reissue is intriguing for appearing in the previously unheard mono mix.

NB: There are also four rare French EPs with picture sleeves on Barclay, Atlantic and Bang, including Dansez Le Monkiss with The McCoys and The Strangeloves (Atlantic 850 010) 1966. Their French label tried to promote their records to dance "Le Monkiss", one of the forgotten sixties dances!

The McCoys formed as a trio in 1962 while the Zehringer brothers and Dennis Kelly were at high school in Fort Recovery, Indiana. They took their name from the Ventures 1960 rock instrumental 'B' side, The McCoy. However, in those early days they were also known as Rick and The Raiders and The Rick Z Combo. One single, You Know That I Love You/What Can I Do (Sonic 76234) was released under the Rick and The Raiders name. Soon after keyboardist Ronnie Brandon was added to the original trio while Kelly left to go to college and was replaced by 17-year-old Randy Hobbs.

In July 1965, they signed to New York's Bang Records after opening for The Strangeloves at a gig in Dayton, Ohio. The Strangeloves (aka New York City record producers Feldman, Gottehrer, and Goldstein) had just cut a version of a little-known Bert Berns song My Girl Sloopy, which had been originally recorded by The Vibrations and were performing it on tour to extremely positive audience response. Concerned however that former tour-mates, The Dave Clark Five, were planning to record their own version of the song, and hesitant to release an immediate follow-up to their present hit, I Want Candy, they decided to get Rick and The Raiders (now renamed The Real McCoys and then The McCoys) to record the number. Using the original Strangelove tracks, they overdubbed vocals from the McCoys and a guitar solo by Rick and rush-released the single to immediate success and the No. 1 spot on the U.S. charts.

In September, they recorded their first album and their second single, a revival of Peggy Lee's 1958 hit Fever, made No. 7 in the U.S. and No. 44 in the U.K. Their debut album Hang On Sloopy also made No. 44 in the U.S. Album Charts. Meanwhile Bobby Petersen took over keyboard duties from Ronnie Brandon. Further minor hit singles followed in the US, although they enjoyed no further chart success in the UK. Initially they were still at school in Indiana because their parents forbade them to tour despite numerous offers. Finally they were persuaded by the Strangeloves to go on tour in the late spring of 1966 with ex-Token (of Lion Sleeps Tonight fame) Eddie Rabkin (who was a teacher) hired as their tutor. A few months later they toured with The Rolling Stones and began to jettison their image of youthful naiveté with the psychedelic single Don't Worry Mother (Your Son's Heart Is Pure) in which they gave a tongue in cheek reassurance to their parents. However it fared disappointingly in terms of sales and the band returned briefly to their previous R&B style with their follow-up I Got To Go Back. A further psychedelic single Beat The Clock was issued to only minor success and the McCoys ended their association with Feldman, Gottehrer, and Goldstein and the ailing Bang records.

In 1968, in search of more recording freedom they signed to Mercury Records and produced Infinite McCoys which was really their psychedelic album and the prime reason for their inclusion in this book. Their Jesse Brady single briefly entered the U.S. Charts at No. 98 but their next album, Human Ball failed to chart. Both albums contain an eclectic (and beautifully played) mix of rock, jazz, blues, and psychedelia and are a far cry from the pure pop of their early releases.

In 1969, they became the house-band at Steve Paul's Scene Club in New York. Steve Paul became their manager and linked them with albino guitarist Johnny Winter who he also managed. By now Bobby Peterson had left the group, Rick Zehringer had changed his surname to Derringer and produced the album Johnny Winter And... on which the remaining McCoys were the backing group. It made No. 154 in the U.S. and No. 29 in the U.K. This was effectively The McCoys' last venture. Rick then joined Edgar Winter's White Trash and went on to record eight solo albums. He was also an in-demand session guitarist.

Anyone interested in investigating their work might like to check out some of the compilations: One Way have issued a CD titled The Psychedelic Years (30642). Hang On Sloopy is a 22-track CD (with rarities) on Rock Artifacts in 1995. There's also a 'Best Of' CD compilation of their material, Hang On Sloopy: The Best Of The McCoys (Columbia Legacy CK 480951 2) 1995.

Their compilation appearances to date have been:- Don't Worry Mother on Mindrocker, Vol. 3 (LP); Fever and Sorrow on Roots Of S. O. B., Vol. 2; and Hang On Sloopy on the Battle Of The Bands (CD) and Frat Rock! The Greatest Rock N Roll Party Tunes Of All Time (LP). (VJ/SR/LP)

This Rochester, New York artist's live album is mostly hard-rock and soul-funk cover versions. The guitar playing gives it a garage edge and the highlight is the 18-minute funk-rock instrumental Shop Talk.

The second album is a studio effort, but like the first, is a mix of originals and covers. The second one is predominantly hard-rock. (VJ)

The MC5 met in school, forming back in 1964 in Detroit and by 1966 they were local favourites. Just 500 copies were pressed of their first single; a driving version of Them's I Can Only Give You Everything which was backed by a group original, One Of The Guys. The following year they formed an association with John Sinclair, a Detroit DJ, who soon became their manager and agent and was very influential indeed in setting the agenda for the rest of their career. A second single was recorded in January 1968 and came out on A2 Records in a picture-collage sleeve. Like their first effort this is now extremely rare, although it was bootlegged by Skydog in 1977 with the 'A' side misspelt Bordeline and catalogue numbers on the sleeve and cover which didn't correspond. The original sold out quickly and they were signed by Elektra in mid-1968.

The resultant album Kick Out The Jams was probably one of the most significant high-energy rock albums of all time and was also notable for the band's revolutionary political stance, which had been tailored under Sinclair's influence. Tracks like Ramblin' Rose, Come Together, I Want You and Borderline represented the loudest, most powerful music of its time. Original U.S. pressings contained an uncensored version of Kick Out The Jams containing the lyric Kick Out The Jams, motherfuckers!, which was later amended to Kick Out The Jams, brothers and sisters!, as well as a political manifesto from Sinclair printed on the inside gatefold which was removed from subsequent pressings (R1). The title track was issued as a single in the U.S. and the U.K. and a follow-up Ramblin' Rose/Borderline was only released in the UK, where their album was better received. Outside Michigan much reaction in America was unfavourable. The situation worsened when Hudson's, an Ann Arbor store refused to stock the album on the grounds it was obscene. In response the band took out an advert in the 'Ann Arbor Argus' which ran.. 'kick in the door if the store won't sell you the (MC5) album ... fuck Hudsons!' and included the Elektra logo on the bottom right hand corner. This resulted in the store withdrawing the entire label's product and the band finding themselves without a contract with immediate effect. However, they were quickly snapped up by Atlantic. Meanwhile AMG had repackaged the group's first single but replaced One Of The Guys with I Just Don't Know.

Their first effort for Atlantic, Back In The USA was another classic, but its sound was cleaner, less frantic and more controlled than their work hitherto. With their manager jailed on a cannabis charge the group were now coaxed away from their left wing political stance with The Human Being Lawnmower being the only acknowledgement of this on the new release. The album was well-received by the critics and contained a number of fine hard-rock tracks like Tutti-Frutti, Looking At You, Call Me Animal, The American Ruse and Shakin' Street. Its sales, though, were relatively disappointing. Collectors might be interested to know that a withdrawn version of this album also exists: near the end of Teenage Lust, Rob Tyner can be heard to say "C'mon bitch - You got to get down" on the rare uncensored pressing (R1). Apparently, this version of the song also appears on the pre-recorded tape releases as well.

The follow-up High Time was an attempted compromise between the wild, arrogant style of Kick Out The Jams and the more controlled sound of Back In The USA. As such it failed, although some individual songs like Poison and Over and Over stood out. It did not sell well and the band planned to move to Europe. They embarked on a European tour and played some successful dates. They recorded a couple more tracks which appeared on a Soundtrack album called Gold, only released in the UK (Mother Records MO 4001) 1971 (R1). The album is now very rare but mostly comprised of naff material. During and after the European tour the band disintegrated marking the end of an all-too-short career.

Wayne Kramer later formed a group with Mitch Ryder (of Detroit Wheels fame) called Kramer's Kreemers, which also used the MC5 name. This ended when the band's guitarist was busted and imprisoned for five years. Later Kramer projects included Wayne Kramer's Gang War (1980) and Air Raid (1982). He also played on The Deviants live album Human Garbage recorded at a one-off reunion gig in 1984. The album included some songs, including Ramblin' Rose, that Kramer had written in his days with the MC5. Since then he has played with U.S. bands Das Damen and G.G. Allin.

HIGH
TIME

MC5 - High Time LP.

After the MC5 split, Thompson, Smith and Davis formed Ascension, which didn't make it onto vinyl. Later Thompson worked for New Order, Motor City Bad Boys and, in 1981; he was involved with Ron Asheton (once guitarist with The Stooges) and three members of Radio Birdman in an outfit called New Race.

Fred Smith and Michael Davis were both involved in the Scott Morgan Group, which later became Sonic's Rendezvous Band, although by then Davis had left to join Destroy All Monsters. Fred 'Sonic' Smith sadly died of a heart attack on 4th November 1994, although Sonic's Rendezvous have subsequently had a posthumous CD entitled Sweet Nothing (Mack Aborn Rhythmic Arts) 199?.

Rob Tyner spent some time in the UK in the late seventies, writing and recording. He released one single: Till The Night Is Gone (Let's Rock)/Flip-Side Rock (Island) 1977, shown as by Robin Tyner and The Hot Rods. He also issued a CD in 1990, Bloodbrothers (this time backed by Cub Koda's band). Tyner died in September 1991.

MC5 material continues to appear on the market. 1983 saw the release of a ROIR cassette Babes In Arms which includes the five pre-Elektra tracks, the uncensored version of Kick Out The Jams, four tracks from Back In The USA, five from High Time and a previously unreleased cut, Gold, from the film soundtrack. This cassette was reissued on vinyl and CD in 1990 in France by Danceteria Records.

The Wayne Kramer compiled and annotated '66 Breakout is guaranteed to appeal to garage-niks, even those not into their later stuff. This collects their earliest live, studio and demo sounds, 1965-1966. 11 tracks including Looking At You, Black To Comm, Baby Please Don't Go, I'm A Man and I Can Only Give You Everything.

Human Being Lawnmower/The Baddest And Maddest Of The MC5 collects the best of their semi-legitimate releases, which are a mixture of lo-fi live recordings and studio out-takes. The live material stems mostly from a dry-run for the recording of Kick Out The Jams. More interesting is the studio material, including the unedited take of Skunk (Sonically Speaking) (from High Time), the January '68 session for the Looking At You/Borderline single and Fred Smith's sparse acoustic demo of Over And Over (from High Time).

I Can Only Give You Everything compiles live material including several rare performances in the clubs of Detroit.

Anthology 1965-1971 is a 2-CD selection of alternate mixes, obscurities and live material. Of particular interest will be Gold, which was recorded in 1971 for a movie directed by Radio Caroline's Ronan O'Rahilly; the garage assault of One Of The Guys; the original A2 single version of Looking At You; and the high energy Gotta Keep Moving from the High Time sessions. The set is presented with a Michael Davis white panther painting and badge, a sticker and new notes from Davis and Dennis Thompson.

Are You Ready To Testify? (3-CD) takes an earlier 2-CD live bootleg anthology that features sets from Sturgis Armoury, West Michigan on 27 June 1968 and Saginaw Civic Centre, Michigan on New Years's Day 1970. As a bonus this package includes a third disc that includes four tracks from First Unitarian Church gig in September 1968.

1965-1968 (2-LP) compiles basement rehearsals and early studio sessions. 66 Breakout (CD) is a collection of early demos and rehearsals. Highlights include an early instrumental version of Looking At You, a fine version of I Can Only Give You Everything and a cover of James Brown's I Don't Mind.

Live - Motor City Is Burning (CD), recorded at various US venues, includes classics from their Elektra albums like Ramblin' Rose, Starship and the anthemic Kick Out The Jams and is presented in a digipak. Live At The Grande Ballroom 1968 (CD) captures a seven-track live performance, including Motor City Is Burning, Ice Pick Slim and Brother and is presented in a digipak.

Purity Accuracy The Album (CD) features demos and rehearsals (including Gotta Keep Movin (demo), Baby Won't Ya (demo), Sister Ann (demo), Over And Over (rehearsal), two tracks from the UK-only Gold movie soundtrack, Pledge Song, which would eventually become Sister Anne), a few live performances and various single versions of familiar tracks. Rehearsals (2-LP) presents 22 tracks of rarities and out-takes, including Skunk (Sonically Speaking) Poison, Baby Won't Ya, Gotta Keep Moving and more.

Compilation appearances have so far included: Motor City Is Burning and Kick Out The Jams on Kings Of Pop Music, Vol. 1 (LP); Looking At You, Borderline, I Can Only Give You Everything, One Of The Guys and I Just Don't Know on Michigan Nuggets (CD) and Michigan Brand Nuggets (LP); Kick Out The Jams (uncensored version) on Michigan Rocks (LP); Come Together, Starship and Ramblin' Rose (all from their first LP), the single version of Kick Out The Jams, and Motor City Is Burning on Elektrock The Sixties (4-LP); I Just Don't Know and Looking At You on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD) and Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 (2-LP); Kick Out The Jams and I Want You Right Now on Hallucinations, Psychedelic Underground (LP); and Looking At You and Borderline on A-Square (Of Course) (CD).

MC5 was a significant part of the garage band phenomena in their early days and, of course, their recordings, especially the first album, were enormously influential on the punk rock revival which started in Britain in the mid-seventies. (VJ/CRn/MW)

All three albums are acoustic six and 12-string guitar efforts, very much influenced by other American guitarists of the time (John Fahey, Fred Gerlach, John Rosmini, Mark Spoelstra). But Suni differed from the guitarists that influenced him in that he managed to incoporate into his music other influences (English and Celtic folk, Bartok, and Bulgarian rhythms) with occasional percussion, electric guitar, vocals, or a second guitarist, creating music with a wider appeal. These records were quite popular with the college and hippie crowd of the time. He was also a big influence on other younger guitarists of the "pre-Leo Kottke" era. (HS/SR)

Born in Chicago, Illinois on 13 July 1942 as James Joseph McGuinn III, he has cited Elvis Presley as the inspiration behind the request for a guitar as a 14th birthday present. After being spotted playing in Chicago folk clubs in 1959, he was invited to join LA-based folk outfit, The Limelights as an accompanist in 1960. He stayed with them for six weeks, then after doing some solo gigs in San Francisco, flew to New York to join another folk group, The Chad Mitchell Trio, who he was with between 1960-1962.

After leaving them in 1962, he spent two years with Bobby Darin and did session work. In 1964 he did solo folk gigs in New York's Greenwich Village and in Los Angeles, which became his home base.

In 1964 he became a member of The Jet Set who later became The Beefeaters and eventually evolved into the enormously successful Byrds, for whom he was an enormously important songwriter changing his name to Roger McGuinn in 1968.

After The Byrds demise McGuinn did session work for Dylan in 1973 and embarked on a semi-successful solo career. The first two albums were OK. Roger McGuinn And His Band was only spattered with McGuinn originals and is appropriately titled as the players around him (organised by producer John Boylan) contribute songs and a solid backing to the album. After becoming friends on the Rolling Thunder Revue, McGuinn teamed up with former Spider from Mars Mick Ronson for Cardiff Rose, with the producing and playing. This unlikely partnership (alongside other Rolling thunder players Rob Stoner, Howie Wyeth, and David Mansfield) resulted in one of McGuinn's best solo releases. He recorded a further solo album Thunderbyrd in 1977. The nine-track album included his versions of songs by Bob Dylan and Peter Frampton as well as more McGuinn originals such as Dixie Highway, I'm Not Lonely Anymore and more.

He teamed up with two of his old colleagues again in 1979 as McGuinn, Hillman and Clark. (VJ/HMc)

Barry McGuire was born on 15th October 1937 in Oklahoma and first came to attention as the gruff lead vocalist with the New Christy Minstrels, who enjoyed some success in the early 1960s. Before going solo he released an album with another ex-new Christy Minstrels member, Barry Kane, Here And Now (Horizon 1608) circa 1964/65 as Barry and Barry. The bassist on this is Jimmy Bond who played on Tim Buckley's Goodbye And Hello album.

He met Lou Adler and P.F. Sloan at the Byrds' opening gig at Ciro's in L.A. and in autumn 1965 he recorded P.F. Sloan's Eve Of Destruction, which is rightly remembered as one of the greatest protest songs of all time, rising to No. 1 in the U.S. and No. 3 in the UK. Its lyrics were chillingly pertinent in the days of the Vietnam War. This arguably was his finest moment, although his albums are worth investigation, especially Barry McGuire And The Doctor. Thereafter he discovered Christianity and proceeded to record several religious albums, mostly on the Myrrh and Sparrow labels, which are not relevant to this book. McGuire also appeared in the seventies film 'The President's Analyst', which included him singing lead vocals on Clear Light's She's Ready To Be Free, which was originally the flip to Black Roses.

Compilation coverage has included: Eve Of Destruction on Nuggets, Vol. 10: Folk Rock (LP); Eve Of Destruction, Child Of Our Times and Let Me Be on Dunhill Folk Rock, Vol. 1: Is It Any Wonder (LP); This Precious Time and a version of California Dreamin' with McGuire on lead vocals on Penny Arcade: Dunhill Folk Rock, Vol. 2 (LP); and Inner-Manipulations on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book). (VJ/MW/SR/EW)

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (w/insert) (OR 001) 1993 in a limited numbered edition of 300. (1) reissued on CD as Into You? Plus (OR 007) 1996 with bonus tracks.

Into You, Take Two (OR 007) 1995 on vinyl compiles previously unreleased material from the later seventies.

Just 300 copies of this laid-back rural-rock Indianapolis album are reported to have been issued originally. Some copies came with a plain back cover, but a few had a sticker on the back containing personnel details. The CD reissue contains an album's worth of bonus tracks that were mostly demos and jams.

McKay also recorded a lot of unreleased material in this era which was eventually unearthed, remixed and released on vinyl by OR Records as Into You, Take Two in 1995. Unlike their album it contains some psychedelic material and it doesn't duplicate the bonus material on the CD reissues of Into You. Group leader Ray Pierle issued two further albums that may be of interest to readers, Time And Money (1980) and Rhythm Of The Highway (1981). OR Records has also issued a CD of 1997 recordings, Tomorrow's Tomorrow. (VJ/CF)

This Dallas-based artist's real name was Max Lipscomb and back in 1958 he had briefly been a member of Gene Vincent's Blue Caps. He released numerous singles throughout the 1960s and also sang vocals on The Gator Shades Blues Band single, a Kenny And The Kasuals-related venture.

His most relevant release to this book was his storming rendition of The Train Kept A Rollin'. This was strongly rumoured to have featured Jimmy Page on lead guitar, although it was actually Exotics guitarist Blair Smith who was responsible for the blistering fretwork. Nevertheless, the track has subsequently been heavily compiled including: Mindrocker, Vol. 4 (LP), Acid Visions (LP), Acid Visions - The Complete Collection Vol. 1 (3-CD), Texas Music, Vol. 3 (CD) and James Patrick Page: Session Man Vol. 2.

The compilers of Acid Visions also suggest that Scotty McKay came from Fort Worth rather than from Dallas. (MW/VJ)

Born on 1st October 1944 in Arlington, Virginia Scott McKenzie first came to public attention as a member of The Journeymen, which also included John Phillips. When Phillips relocated to California to start The Mamas & The Papas, McKenzie remained in New York where he recorded a few ballads for Capitol. Later in 1967 he did relocate to L.A. to join the booming folk-rock movement. Indeed John Phillips produced his first single for Epic. However, it is for the next single, San Francisco (Be Sure To Wear Some Flowers In Your Hair), which John Phillips wrote, that McKenzie is best remembered. Arguably the hippie anthem, it became an international hit in 1967 when it appeared on Lou Adler's new Ode Records label and it inspired thousands of youngsters to head for San Francisco.

McKenzie was very closely associated with the flower-power philosophy and, save for one disappointing country-rock album in 1970 which also spawned a single, did not record when the 'Summer Of Love' ended. San Francisco (Be Sure To Wear Some Flowers In Your Hair) can also be heard on Nuggets, Vol. 10: Folk Rock (LP) and many other sixties collections.

In the late sixties he worked hard to make young people aware of the dangers of drug use. More recently he has participated in various reformations of The Mamas & The Papas. (VJ)

45:	I Need Your Lovin' Trouble's Commin' On	(International Artists 116) 1967

45:	You're Doin' Me Wrong/Time Wasted	(Custom 127) 1966

A punk outfit from Tyler, Texas, You're Doin' Me Wrong was a sneering punker, the flip was much slower.

This obscure album was the work of a Santa Barbara artist. The music is essentially introspective, world weary folk wth decent vocals and nice guitar. The title 'Golden Juice' was a brand of bourbon popular with men in the forces and it seems McMahon recorded this album shortly after leaving the air force. (VJ)

This outfit's name (and variants) was a play on the initials of the two Michaels ... and Einstein. Clough, Crawley, and Carey had previously served with Los Angeles folk-comedy act The Back Porch Majority. In this new guise, their harmony-pop singles moved towards rock and caressed the softer fringes of psychedelia.

The CD is not a retrospective collection and does not include any of their single tracks, with the exception of Everybody's Talkin'. It presents their unreleased 1968 album, shelved for being too uncommercial, which precipitated the group's demise. It's a marked progression from their singles to a more mature brand of sophisticated harmony-pop with jazzy night-club vibe. It should appeal to fans of sixties soft-pop but is not for rock, garage or psych specialists.

An otherwise unavailable song, Sweet Love In The Beginning, appears in the 1969 Jacqueline Bisset movie 'The First Time' (also known as 'Anna') although it was reported (on Imdb) that this song did NOT feature on the movie soundtrack album.

You can also hear My Mind Goes High on Nuggets: Hallucinations (CD); and Smiling has been compiled on The Electric Coffee House Volume 2 (CD). (MW)

Jim Krist and The Delrays from central Florida (maybe Madeira Beach) evolved into Me And The Other Guys, joined by Bill Aerts from The Mark V along the way. Vocalist Dutch Walton (confusingly not from Holland, but Germany) kept the band going well into the seventies and recorded an album in Largo, Florida in 1974.

The others had moved on - notably Kent Lavioe. He was in The Sugar Beats and U.S. Male before finding major solo success in the seventies as 'Lobo', still accompanied by Aerts.

Everybody Knew But Me sounds somewhat dated for 1967. A fine tribute to the Searchers' school of sultry jingle-jangle, it can be heard anew on Psychedelic States - Florida Vol. 2 (CD). (MW/JLh/MM/RM)

This seminal Ohio outfit was formed by Kent State University students. The original line-up 'A' above recorded several songs, but only three have subsequently been released: One unfinished track was issued under the title of Maybe as the flip to the Ohio Express' hit single Beg Borrow Or Steal and the remaining two (And It's True and I Think Of You) were released on the Ohio Express album on Cameo! When Larry and Bobby were drafted, the band broke up circa mid-67 so Bobby Sepulveda first learned about their release when he heard the Ohio Express album playing in his army barracks!

Joe Walsh briefly played in a couple other local bands. Amazingly, The Measles were not the most popular band in Kent, with The Counterpoints and the Turnkeys getting bigger followings. Joe was a very short-lived member of the Turnkeys, before hitting the road to success with the James Gang. After many personnel changes The Measles became Lacewing but later reverted to The Measles again. Buddy Bennett is the only member who stayed with the band.

Bobby Sepulveda did, in fact, rejoin The Measles after his stint in the military, and the band went on successfully for many years thereafter. They finally called it quits in 1978. He and Rik Williger later played with Magna and Badge. Today Rik is playing in Jonah Koslen and The Gentlemen Rockers. (GGI/MW/RWr)

45: Everything Is Red/Spongeman (PS) (Bag One Way 906) 1969

Thought to have originated from St. Louis, Missouri Mechanical Switch was later based in Houston, Texas. Their sole vinyl output was an excellent psychedelic punk single. Both sides can also be heard on Texas Psychedelia From The Sixties (LP), Sixties Archive, Vol. 6 (CD) and Human Expression And Other Psychedelic Groups: Your Mind Works In Reverse (CD). Spongeman, in particular, is very catchy with immediate appeal.

Spongeman was covered in the eighties by U.S. psych power trio Wig Tortüre on their Just Say Flow album. (VJ/MW)

45: Love Feeling/Sweet Movin' (Limelight 3083) 1968

Originally from Sweden, these guys spent time in the USA and were pretty high on psychedelics when they recorded these two albums. Leader Mecki Bodemark was a former art student, who had also worked with several pop groups and as a studio musician. The other musicians on the first album had their musical roots in jazz and this was reflected in the music which was mostly rather avant-garde, jazzy and with lots of experimental keyboards. The vocals are ineffective and much of the material on their first album is rather disjointed.

Their second effort was a slight improvement with the title cut undoubtedly its finest moment. Other tracks of some note were The Life Cycle and Help Me Somebody, but I can't recommend either of these albums with much enthusiasm.

Some of their cuts have been compiled: Free on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 4 (CD) and We Can Fly (CD); Midnight Land on Who Will Buy These Wonderful Evils (2-CD); and Sweet Movin' on Cherrystone's Rocks (CD). (VJ)

45:	Teacher/Teacher	(Nasty Records X-1) 1973 R2

When Country Joe and The Fish disintegrated, their guitarist, Barry Melton, went solo. His first album Bright Sun Is Shining is not recommended, the songs being rather uninspired. Melton then signed with Columbia and formed the short-lived Melton, Levy and The Dey Brothers.

In 1970, he also recorded the soundtrack to an obscure Roger Corman movie 'GAS-S-S-S', with the help of Country Joe and Robert Corff (ex-Purple Gang); the album is quite scarce. In 1971/72 Melton played on Mickey Hart's Rolling Thunder and also did some sessions with Otis Spann, the blues pianist.

His 1973 single is very rare. As the lyrics are X-rated and an identical version of the song appears on both sides, it's a total mystery just who this record was made for, or even why it was pressed at all! If it only existed on tape, it could be surmised that Teacher (like The Rolling Stones' Cocksucker Blues) was recorded to fulfil a contractual obligation; but the fact that it exists on vinyl suggests a plan to market it somehow. The music is a 12-bar blues-rock improvisation of no particular distinction. No sleeve is known to exist for this item, and although no artist is listed on the label, the personnel is known to Bay Area collectors as line-up 'X' above. Hart's wife is said to have provided the female "vocals" on the track.

His first really interesting album is The Fish, recorded in Wales with members of Help Yourself and Man. After that, Melton kept on recording on various labels and in the eighties formed the Dinosaurs with other Bay Veterans:- Spencer Dryden (Jefferson Airplane), John Cipollina (Quicksilver), Merl Saunders (Jerry Garcia's jamming friend) and Peter Albin (Big Brother).

Barry Melton still lives and performs in San Francisco. A recent CD The Saloon Years illustrates his work in the local clubs. Quite surprisingly, he is also known as a lawyer. (SR/CF)

This is Barry Melton's second effort outside of Country Joe and The Fish. This is a good album with a loose West Coast feel, and will appeal to anyone who has an appreciation for Melton's later solo efforts. Many of the songs were written or co-written by Rick Dey who had penned Just Like Me for Paul Revere and The Raiders. Rick, who later died of a laughing gas overdose at a party, previously played with The Vejtables, The Wilde Knights and The Giant Sunflower. Brother John Dey drummed with late versions of The Daily Flash and The Stone Poneys and would eventually join Van Morrison's band. (HS/SR)

TINA & DAVID MELTZER - Poet Song LP.

Produced by Sam Charters, the first album features six poems by David Meltzer plus nine melancholic songs sung by Tina or David. Like its predecessor, Serpent Power, it is worth investigating. The second album was recorded for Capitol Records circa 1970 with session musicians and remained unreleased until the RD Records release. It too is an interesting album with a distinctly period feel. It was produced by Vic Briggs in Hollywood and San Francisco.

Another album, Faces, was released in 1984 on Folkways. (VJ/SR/CF)

Based in Los Angeles, keyboard maestro and arranger Mike Melvoin was a busy session man who can be found on many albums relevant to this book (Hourglass, Brewer and Shipley, Gabor Szabo, Tongue and Groove, Michele). Not limiting his activities to rock, he also played on hundreds of albums of pop, jazz, soundtracks and easy listening records. His solo albums contain only covers of hits, notably from Dylan and the Beatles. The second one was recorded with Beaver and Krause and is one of the first synthesiser exploito albums. (SR)

A St.Petersburg, Florida band which included Jay Lee Angelo. Angelo was a co-founder of The Impacs who'd been on the Tampa scene since the start of the sixties and released at least two albums and 10 singles between 1961 and 1968. Their second single Come On Everybody features a tame but faithful cover of the Eddie Cochran classic. I'll Get By Without You is an enchanting Neiman original, with an honours degree from the Searchers/Beau Brummels/Byrds academy of yearning jangle; check it out on Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 1 (CD) and Destination Frantic Volume 2 (CD). 45: Try So Hard/
Can't Be So Bad (Smack Records, Ltd. J-6963) 1969

Originally from the Madison area of Wisconsin where their single was released, the band moved to the Bay Area in 1969 and gigged regularly at the San Francisco ballrooms and concert halls. Archive tapes included on the recent Shadoks release reveal that live, Mendelbaum was a high-energy blues band with Chris Michie's stunning lead playing to the fore. However, the first disc of the double album is all unreleased studio recordings from 1970, and this paints quite a different picture of the band as careful craftsmen with melodic sensibilities. This is the high point of the record for me, with tracks like the up-tempo All My Life, the soaring vocal harmonies of Walk With Me, and the ethereal waltz-like Blood Of The Nation (all on side two) warranting repeat plays.

Prior to Mendelbaum, Michie was in a Madison, Wisconsin garage band called The Grapes Of Wrath. Whether this is the same outfit that appears on the Badger A Go Go (LP) sampler is unconfirmed.

Keith Knudsen's name will be familiar to most readers as the long-time drummer of The Doobie Brothers. Both Chris Michie and Tom LaVarda went on to play with Lamb, and Michie continued with The Pointer Sisters, Boz Scaggs, Link Wray, Jerry Garcia, Van Morrison and others. He penned a book about his musical exploits, 'Name Droppings', which is a fun read. There are also currently four CDs of his work available, Guitars And Oranges (1993); Tough Love (1998); Seven Rivers (2000); and The Goyer Golf Suite (2001). Sadly, Michie passed away on 27th March 2003 after battling melanoma. (CF)

	Things To Come/What Ever Happened To	(Mod 1013) 1967

An obscure combo, from Orange County, California whose single on Mod is worthy of note. Things To Come kicks off with a chiming fuzz intro then goes into a jangley '64/'65 Beau Brummels mode. Just when expectations are starting to shrink, comes a shout of 'hey' and glorious raving fuzz break. Then back to the beat-pop again and a short snarling fuzz coda to end. Strange, a split personality - check it out on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 2 (2-LP & CD) or on Garage Beat '66 2 (CD).

What Ever is a sultry beat ballad and both are published by Wickwire, whose label issued singles by San Bernardino's Emperors and Dave Myers and The Disciples. One further single featuring one side by the Menn and one by Sunday, may or may not be connected - Happy Happy Birthday/You Cheated (Sidewalk 922) 1967. (MW/RM)

This melodic soft-rock album is good background listening but lacks anything to differentiate it from the 'also rans'. Many of the tracks, including the two which were selected for the single, have quite an immediate appeal. Recorded at The Sound Factory, Hollywood and produced by Dave Hassinger it is pleasant but not essential.

Fred Tackett later became a renowned session musician and played with the second formation of Little Feat. (VJ/SR)

From the East Bay of San Francisco, this band made other singles for Frantic. This early to mid-sixties R&B outfit is of interest to fans of psychedelia only because Gary Grubb (nee Duncan) was a short time band member prior to his tenure in The Brogues. He does not appear on any Merced Blue Notes recordings and they were never known as The Merced Blues Band.

In the eighties, a private label anthology of the bands' recordings was issued with extensive liner notes and old photos; there is no mention of Gary Grubb or Gary Duncan anywhere on that album.

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Merkin MERK 1001) 1994 in the UK in a limited edition of 350 copies. (1) reissued on vinyl (Akarma AK-049) 1998. (1) reissued on CD (Gear Fab GF-109) 1997, with three bonus tracks.

Only 200 copies of this album were pressed so it's now a rare collectable. There's some good guitar work on a few of the tracks, most notably Walkin, Todaze, Watching Man and The Right One, but much of material is light-weight. It's worth a listen if you ever get the opportunity but don't fork out megabucks for an original copy.

The band was formed in 1967 in the small town of Orem, Utah by Rocky Baum and Ralph Hemingway. By 1969, they'd recruited a full line-up and began playing local gigs. In 1970, with new guitar, drums and the addition of keyboardist Richard Leavitt, they cut two demos, Maybe Someday and Cry On My Shoulder at a Brigham Young University. Both of these have now resurfaced on the Gear Fab CD and are arguably better than the later album cuts.

The following year the band sent out a number of live tapes, in the hope of getting a deal, and sure-enough found themselves recording the album at an L.A. studio, although they were only given four days to complete the task! After a short tour of Colorado, the album was finally released in February 1973, but a dispute over the song-writing credits caused Rocky Baum to be ousted, and by 1974 the band had gone their separate ways.

Today Al & Ralph are now steelworkers, Robert plays in a band called Head First, Rocky is a chief organic chemist and Rod a business development manager.

You'll also find Maybe Someday on Gear Fab's Psychedelic Sampler (CD). (VJ/SR)

Created by Merrell Fankhauser in 1964 after he arrived in Lancaster and the Antelope Valley area, Merrell and The Exiles are probably more interesting historically than for purely musical reasons. Born in Louisville, Kentucky on the 23rd December 1943, Fankhauser had previously lived on the California Coast, in Pismo Beach. There he began playing surf music, even winning the 'Arroyo Grande Battle Of The Bands' in March 1962 and being part of the Sentinals and the Impacts (one instrumental album Wipe Out! (Del-Fi 1234) 1963).

In Lancaster, Fankauser met Jeff Cotton, John French and Larry Willey and they became Merrell and The Exiles. Their first recordings took place in a small studio in Palmdale, California, Glenn Recording Studios, which were owned and directed by Glenn MacArthur. All the songs were recorded live on two track tape. In April 1964, Please Be Mine was No. 9 in the local Palmdale station KUTY charts! In all, three singles were recorded for Glenn Records and pressed in very limited quantities.

More Merrell and The Exiles sessions took place in Hollywood in 1966 at the Gary Paxton Studio and in 1967 at the Gold Star Studio with a changing line-up. Some of their songs (Too Many Heartbreaks, Suzy Cryin) were in fact released on the Fapardokly album, another Fankhauser creation. The other songs however, had to wait until the eighties before they were released in various forms.

Bill Dodd also played with Fankhauser in Fapardokly and H.M.S. Bounty. John French and Jeff Cotton left to join Captain Beefheart's Magic Band, another group from the High Desert area, but in 1970 Cotton rejoined with Merrell to form Mu (also with Larry Willey). Greg Hampton also later played with Denny King.

The retrospective Early Years album consists largely of surf and garage rock tracks. Aside from the few single tracks, the majority were previously unreleased. Don't Call On Me is notable for featuring the first guitar solo ever recorded by then fledgling guitarist Jeff Cotton. Yes I Love You, another cut on this album was originally intended for inclusion on the Fapardokly album but wasn't used in the end. This album is primarily of archival interest, however. (SR/VJ/MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) FOLLOW (Mercury SR-61208) 1969

Although Jerry looks quite rural on the front cover, his record is hitherto unnoticed downer folk (including some efficient rock implants) with a few rather moving melodies to the front. Tasteful orchestrations and a fairly subdued atmosphere make for unobtrusive, but agreeable listening. A track like The Pond crosses Tim Buckley with Donovan, but without the compelling force of the first or the fairy mood of the latter. It's an uneven album, but worth a spin. (MK)

	That Was The Time/ Silver Bells And Toy Balloons	(unknown) 196?

This pop-psych group from Olivet, Michigan utilised male/female vocals.

The female-led folk-rocker Walking Down This Road had no writer credit on the Scott single and was retitled on the Decca single, where it's credited to Al Shackman. Perhaps it was an old 'trad' song but, regardless of the subterfuge, it should be hauntingly familiar to anyone who has listened to Walking Down The Road by The Other Side (on a 1966 Brent single, but better known from the 1967 sampler (LP) With Love - A Pot Of Flowers) where composer credits are completely different. The flip, a Pete Fullenwider song, is slower, with nice guitar. (SR/DRt/MW)

NB: (1) was initially issued in plain white jacket, later sleeves were decorated with a simple woodblock-print design, in various colours. Some of these were printed on both sides, some only on the front. Some were also decorated with glitter. (1) reissued on vinyl (Shadoks Music 002) 1999 in a limited edition of 450. (1) reissued on CD (Shadoks/Normal ST06) 2002.

Merry Airbrakes is a collection of works by Bill Homans, with some assistance from his brother Peter. Homans recorded this album after his tour of duty in Vietnam, and subsequently joined up with an organisation called 'Vietnam Veterans Against The War' that travelled across the USA during the seventies. Most of the copies of this album were distributed by hand during his travels. Musically, the album is steeped in traditional American folk and blues that feature Homan's gritty vocals, harmonica and slide guitar prominently. The record is decidedly un-commercial lyrically, revealing its underground intent through the course of its 10 tracks which read like snapshots of an unusual life.

St. George International was an East Coast label and the Merry Airbrakes album is a local Massachusetts release. (CF)

You're A Very Lovely Woman/ 'Till The Day After	(A&M 1254) 1971 -

This Hawthorne, California soft-rock outfit contained some very talented musicians. Rhodes had played drums for The Palace Guard, an early to mid-sixties L.A. outfit, when he was just 15. Larson joined from The Turtles and Rinehart from the Gene Clark Group. All three went on to either solo careers or, in Larson's case, session work.

Their style was clearly influenced by British beat outfits like The Beatles and The Zombies but it did not suffer from this. Time Will Show The Wiser, in particular, was one of the lost pop masterpieces of the sixties with its backwards guitar intro, brilliant harmonies and catchy melody. Most of the later singles weren't on the album but many are included on the Rhino compilation which is the most accessible source to their music.

Emitt Rhodes continued into the seventies as a solo artist issuing four albums and several singles. If your bag is finely crafted pop then look no further.

Time Will Show The Wiser was also a keystone of Fairport Convention's early repertoire and you'll find a great version of the track on their eponymous debut album.

Listen Listen - The Definitive Collection (CD) features tracks like Time Will Show The Wiser and others which were not released until after the group had disbanded and Rhodes had become a successful solo artist, and few have ever appeared on CD before. The package is digitally remastered, presented with plenty of psychedelic artwork and accompanied by interviews and photos.

Compilation appearances include: Live and You're A Very Lovely Woman on Nuggets, Vol. 3: Pop (LP), More Nuggets (CD), Excerpts From Nuggets (CD) and Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette); Live on Nuggets, Vol. 4 - Pop Part Two (LP) and Nuggets Box (4-CD); and Listen, Listen on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD box). (VJ/JFr)

	Does She Or Doesn't She/ Stop, Look And Listen	(Top Dog 2318) 1966
	30 Second Lover/ Nobody Loves Me That Way	(Top Dog 2322) 1967

Formed in Shively, Kentucky circa 1963 as The Squires, the group Anglicised their name in 1965 to The Mersey Beats U.S.A. and adopted the English Invasion sounds. You'll Come Back and 30 Second Lover did well on the local charts.

In late 1966, Ferguson and Adams left and joined The Seven Of Us, a group of New Yorkers who'd relocated to Miami; a couple of years later they'd evolved into NRBQ. The Mersey Beats U.S.A. continued until the end of the decade, going through a long succession of line-ups with Bob Yates the constant factor.

Compilation appearances include Nobody Loves Me That Way on Bad Vibrations, Vol. 1 (LP & CD) and Fuzz, Flaykes And Shakes, Vol. 3 (LP & CD). (MW/JLh)

45:	What'cha Gonna Do/Jonny No Love	(MGM K 13481) 1965

This great garage-pop single was produced by Tom Wilson and written by Kooper/Levine. Originally from Liverpool, the band relocated to Queens, New York City and included Bugs Pemberton from The Undertakers. The band featured Dave Heenan, a U.K. ex-pat from Newcastle, who'd later form The Dave Heenan Set.

You can also check out What'cha Gonna Do Baby on The Lost Generation, Vol. 2 (LP). (VJ/MW)

45s:	I Can Tell/Miss Ann	(Wildwoods 2001) 1965
	Take A Heart/Hey Little One	(Wildwoods 2002) 1965

This group was from Salem, Ohio. Their manager moved from Salem to Lawton, Oklahoma and got the group on an extended tour through Oklahoma and Texas. The two records, which are fine singles in garage-beat style, were recorded in Robin Hood Brians' studio in Tyler, Texas.

In addition to the two records, lead guitarist Al Catlos played in an earlier band called The Renegades who recorded a good instrumental single. The group also backed a Canton, Ohio singer named Glen Jester on a record (credited as Glen Jester and The Mersey Men).

Probably their best effort I Can Tell has also resurfaced on Boulders, Vol. 11 (LP), Ya Gotta Have Moxie, Vol. 2 (2-CD) and Psychedelic States: Ohio Vol. 3 (CD). (VJ/GGI/MW)

	The Train/Young Lovers	(Mon-Art MM-992) 1967
Acetate:	Down Home Girl/The Train	(Audiodisc no #) 196?

A Baton Rouge, Louisiana combo Mersey Sounds' debut was in a surf/hot-rod mode. Their cover of The Five Americans' The Train is in dramatic 'big ballad' style but retains a garagy aura with cheesy keyboards and a neat fuzz solo - you can also find it on Basementsville! U.S.A. (LP).

Trainspotters will have noticed that The Train had already reappeared, on the Eva compilation Louisiana Punk Groups From The Sixties (repackaged on CD as Sixties Archives Vol. 3) where it was credited to "unknown band". The composer credit of "Magic Ball" led to speculation about the band's identity. Whatever, it was this bunch and was taken from the Audiodisc acetate along with the other side, a cover of Lieber-Stoller's Down Home Girl. (MW)

The Mesmerizing Eye (CA)

ALBUM:	1	PSYCHEDELIA - A MUSICAL LIGHT SHOW	(Smash MGS-27090) 1967 R1

Another, obscure studio band whose only recording known to the author was the above mentioned album. A low budget cash-in on 'psychedelia', more wacky than weird sometimes, with effects like bagpipes (!?) cropping up. Some tracks stand out, notably Requiem For Suzy Creamcheese (a popular subject then), Rain Of Terror and Dear Mom, Send Money, which predates Pink Floyd's Money with the same cash register sounds. It makes The Unfolding's album sound brilliant!

All the tracks on the album were written and produced by Hank Levine and Larry Goldberg, making it almost certainly some relation to the other phantom group Fire Escape. The remaining members are unknown, but the band was from Hollywood. Levine and Goldberg also produced The Other Half and Neighb'rood Childr'n. (VJ/SR)

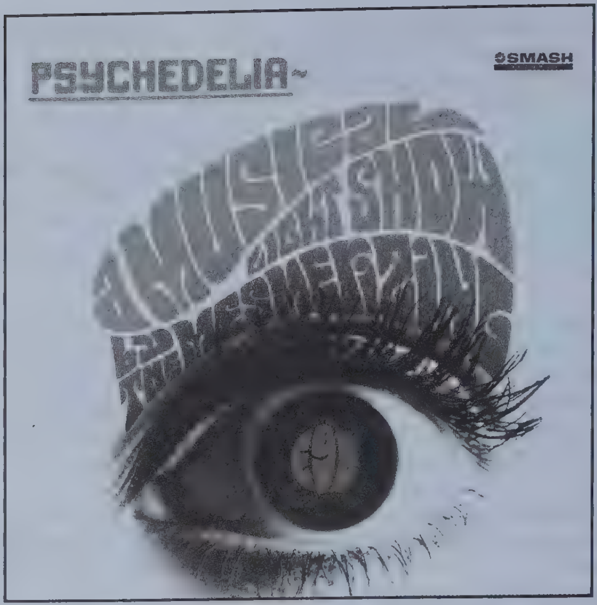
		I Gotta Dance / Right On	(Home Made 01) 1969	-
		That's The Way A Woman Is/ In The Jungle	(Rare Earth 5032) 1971	62

NB: β was a second pressing of α shown as by Michael and The Messengers.

Originally from Milwaukee, they cut Midnight Hour/Hard Hard Year (U.S.A. 866) at Chicago's U.S.A. Studios in 1967. Almost immediately afterwards they signed to Motown records, becoming the first white group to do so. However, with the U.S.A. 866 release doing pretty well, the record company needed someone to promote it, so they signed Michael and The Messengers from Boston and re-recorded Midnight Hour with a different flip side. The Messengers had a lean spell at Motown, but eventually re-emerged with further recordings on its Rare Earth label.

The personnel listed comprise the "Milwaukee Messengers" who were responsible for the recordings above but who are also inextricably tangled up with the other Messengers/Michael and The Messengers groups, originating from Minnesota and Massachusetts. Gary Myers had made a comprehensive attempt to unravel this Gordian knot in his excellent book on Wisconsin fifties and sixties bands 'Do You Hear That Beat' (Hummingbird Pub. 1994, ISBN 0-9643073-9-1) and with whose permission the personnel and discography above has been clarified.



THE MESMERIZING EYE - Psychedelia... LP.

Both sides of their privately-pressed single on Home Made can also be heard on A Journey To Tyme, Vol. 5 (LP); and both sides of their debut single have resurfaced on 2131 South Michigan Avenue (2-CD). (VJ/MW/GM)

45:	My Baby/I've Seen You Around	(Soma 1427) 1965

This crew formed in Winona, in south-eastern Minnesota near the Wisconsin border in 1963. They took their name from a C.B. radio called the Viking Messenger. Predating The Ferraris by a few months they were actually Winona's first rock'n'roll band and were quite a spectacle at the time as they wore olive green woollen blazers on stage.

Early in 1965 they signed to the Minneapolis-based Soma Records. Just 1,000 copies of their single were pressed so it's now quite hard to find. Greg Bambenek left the band in June 1965 to attend college to train as a psychologist and John Carter replaced him on guitar for the twilight days of the band.

Greg Jeresek started another band called The Messengers in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. They released an upbeat cover version of Wilson Pickett's In The Midnight Hour on a single and an album on Motown (becoming the first white act to record on the label). Roy Berger later played in New World Congregation and went on to manage another Winona band, The Ferraris.

Compilation appearances have included: I've Seen You Around on Root '66 Vol. 1 (LP), Soma Records Story, Vol. 2 (LP) and Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 2: You Treated Me Bad (LP & CD); My Baby on Soma Records Story, Vol. 3 (LP); and I've Seen You Around and My Baby on The Big Hits Of Mid-America - The Soma Records Story (2-CD). 45s:	Tomorrow's Dead/She's Gone Forever	(ABC 10907) 1967
	Old Town/Now She's Crying	(ABC 10957) 1967

This bunch hailed from around Chicago and shared the same publishers (Pamco Music) and producer (Johnny Pate) as that of The Trolls (aka Troll). These are two fine singles - the first is pleasant garage-beat but both sides of the second are excellent mid-tempo punkers with a ferocious fuzz solo in Old Town, a song about the city's club district.

Ernie LeBeau himself writes: "Thanks for listing my band from the sixties. I am quite busy performing and recording with my current band Ernie LeBeau & The Beach Blasters, and have a few records out including one called Everybody's Shaggin' which is sort of instrumental in bringing back a R&B style of music called Beach Music which was popular in the East from the forties - seventies. I'm also in the process of releasing a remake of Sinatra's It Had To Be You. Producer Johnny Pate was also producer for The Impressions during their heyday with B.B. King on guitar, and was last heard of living in the U.K. working with old R&B acts." (MW/EB)

45:	I'm Only One Man/ So You Can See	(Sterling Award ST-103) c1969

Micah was from New York City. The album features bluesy psychedelic guitar with organ jams. The single is interesting keyboard-dominated prog-rock 'psych' with many shifts and the occasional good solo. It is also on the album. (VJ/MW)

I Wanna Talk To You is cool jangley beat - the Bragg single version is on Leaving It All Behind, the Apollo take is on Eva's Louisiana Punk Groups From The Sixties, Vol. 2 (LP). Their compilers still disagree as to which is the better version.

Confusion reigned as to their origins too: - Eva's placement in Louisiana is probably due to this Apollo label being distributed by Dover Records out of New Orleans, it turns out the band was based in Greenville, South Carolina. (MW)

NB: α recorded by the Wisconsin-based The Messengers, the other 45s recorded by the Massachusetts group Michael and The Messengers whose personnel is listed above. The label for β misspells the 'B' side as Lifs - presumably intended to be Lies!

The Messengers, a Milwaukee band cut Midnight Hour/Hard Hard Year at Chicago's U.S.A. Studios in 1967. Almost immediately afterwards they signed to Motown records, becoming the first white group to do so. However, with the U.S.A. 866 single doing pretty well, the record company needed someone to promote it, so they signed another group. Gary Myers' book 'Do You Hear That Beat' reveals that this was the Del Mars (line-up 'A' above), who were originally from Leominster, Massachusetts. They were a club band on the New England/New York circuit who were heavily influenced by The Rascals and The Vagrants. Signed up by Premier Talent they re-recorded Midnight Hour with a different flip side and were responsible for the later singles on USA listed above. To get an idea of the tangled web surrounding the various (Michael and The) Messengers groups, look no further than the aforementioned 'Do You Hear That Beat'.

Their final single featured Gotta Take It Easy which was written by Bob Stanley of The Bryds.

Compilation appearances have included: (Just Like) Romeo And Juliet on Nuggets - Original Artyfacts From The First Psychedelic Era 1965-1968 (2-LP) and Nuggets Box (4-CD); and Life (Don't Mean Nothin') on Vile Vinyl, Vol. 2 (LP) and Vile Vinyl (CD). (MW/JSa/GM)

This album has delicate and melodic baroque soft-rock with a mellow hippie aura. Vocally it's not unlike the softer moments of the Peanut Butter Conspiracy or Comfortable Chair, but there are a number of instrumental tracks too. Where they came from is unknown, although the album was recorded in New York City and produced by Wendy Carlos collaborator Rachel Elkind. To be taken in the drawing-room with perfumed tea. (MW/VJ)

NB: (1) has been counterfeited on vinyl (Guinn 1050) 199? in a limited numbered edition of 450. (1) reissued again on vinyl (Void 036) 2005 with one bonus track. (1) reissued on CD (Big Pink/Beatball BIGPIN008) 2009.

There's also an album of previously unreleased material, Sorcerer's Dream (Void 106638/9) 1999.

Just 500 copies of this highly-rated privately-pressed album were made originally. On offer is psych-tainted folk-prog and Anglophile pop in the Donovan circa 1967 mode. The material is strong, he has a great voice and in places it is quite good, but the lyrics are poor. This has only recently seen a CD release. He came from Kansas City, Missouri. (VJ)

However, note that this Tomorrow release substitutes Gunfighter (which is listed on the cover of the Tomorrow release but excluded from the record) for Naked Circumstances.

Many consider this artist's album to be the best on the label. The jewel in the crown is Mystic Rider which has some superb dreamy lead guitar. Most of the material is in a rural-rock mode and Van Morrison seems to have been an influence. (VJ)

ALBUM:	1(A)	SATURN RINGS	(ABC ABCS-684) 1969 SC

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Fallout FOLP2003) 2006.

Michele had previously been in Ballroom along with Curt Boettcher. Produced by Mike Deasy, the album also benefited from heavy Curt Boettcher involvement, as he wrote or co-wrote nine of the 11 songs (Lament Of The Astro Cowboy, Musty Dusty, Misty Mirage). Musically it's in a West-Coast psych-folk style with dreamy vocals, strange lyrics (Song To Magic Frog) and interesting instrumental parts. In particular, there are some Eastern trappings with tabla and electric violin on Fallen Angel and the 8'05" Lament Of The Astro Cowboy.

Three of the songs Would You Like To Go (B. Jameson), Song To A Magic Frog (M. O'Malley) and Musty Dusty (C. Boettcher and T. Almer) were also included on the Usher and Boettcher produced Sagittarius Present Tense album. Strangely enough Would You Like To Go was here credited to Boettcher and Gordon Alexander (of Association fame). Another track Spin, Spin, Spin was resurrected from their earlier Ballroom single and Believe You (Boettcher) also deserves a listen for its dreamy psych-vibed melody.

The album comes housed in a nice "astral" picture sleeve designed by Dean Torrence (ex Jan and Dean) of Kittyhawk Graphics.

Reputedly Michele was also a witch of sorts, said by some witnesses to have flown over L.A. in company with Boettcher on one occasion. This story apparently scared the shit out of Sandy Salisbury at the time. Despite the writing credits, Bobby Jameson didn't compose Would You Like To Go but was involved with this album somehow, probably along with the Millennium crew, with un-credited vocal backings.

Lowell George was previously in the Factory and the Mothers Of Invention, Elliot Ingber in the Mothers Of Invention, Captain Beefheart and Fraternity Of Man, and Bobby Notkoff was in the Rockets. Mike Melvoin, apart from being a busy and talented session keyboardist, was also the man behind the exotica classic The Plastic Cow Goes Moog!

45s: Baby My Heart/More Than I Can Say (Key 1003) 1961
Charlena/Flower Of Love (Paragon 814) 1962

Hailing from Milwaukee in northern Wisconsin, this outfit was one of several to cover Charlena, an early sixties greasy R&B tune originally recorded by The Sevilles from the San Francisco area. The song was a minor hit in Canada for Richie Knight and The Mid-Knights and this crew probably thought they'd profit by putting out their own version and using a slightly modified version of the Canadian outfit's name.

Verbraken was later in (Ray Allen and) The Trendells who were based in the Racine/Kenosha area. Dreher moved on to (Big Louie and) The Renegades and then The Walking Sticks.

You'll also find their version of Charlena on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 15 (LP). (VJ/MW/GM)

Draft Time Blues/??same as above?? (Jerden ?) 1966

The Mid-Night Sons evolved out of The Jackasses in Vancouver, Washington. They opened concerts for many top sixties acts and did a three month tour with Gary Lewis and The Playboys. The single was a rework of Eddie Cochran's Summertime Blues and got quite liberal airplay in the Northwest. The group ended when three of its members were drafted. Chuck Effinger was last reported playing for Vancouver band 10K Gold. (VJ)

Midknights (IA)

45s: Mamie Lou/I Don't Have To Wait (Style # unkn) 1965
Pain/Why (Style 2001) 1966

This high school band won their way into a regional tour and got themselves signed by Style Records of Chattanooga, Tennessee, although they were originally from Broken Pump, Iowa. This explains why their teen-rocker Pain has resurfaced on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 8 - The South (LP) and Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 2: You Treated Me Bad (LP & CD). Also Why I Don't Have To Wait (credited to Mid-Knights) can also be found on One Hand In The Darkness and Trip In Tyme Volume 4 (CD). (VJ/MW/MM)

45: Mister Time/Jenny Adaire (Corby CR-220) 1967

According to Fuzz Flaykes & Shakes, Vol. 1 (LP & CD), this band hailed from Hawthorne, California (Beach Boys-ville). It compiles Mister Time, a decent pop-punker with Doors' keyboard vibes. Jenny Adaire is a disjointed pop novelty with Vaudeville moves. Both sides were composed by Tom Sack. (MW)

This Mexican-American band operated out of Los Angeles. They enjoyed some minor chart success early on with Land Of A Thousand Dances (Part 1) and Whittier Boulevard, before switching to their own Whittier label. All four albums are now minor collectors' items with Bring Your Love Special Delivery the most likely to interest readers of this book.

Both sides of their final single were penned by Kent Morill of The Wailers.

Compilation coverage has so far included: Dragon-Fly on Diana's Rootin' Tootin' Wild Teenage Rock 'N' Roll Party! (LP); Never Knew I Had It So Bad on A Journey To Tyme, Vol. 2 (LP); House Of Wax on East Side Revue (LP); I Found A Peanut on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 3: Things Been Bad (LP & CD); and Jump, Jive, And Harmonize on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 1: Jump, Jive, And Harmonize (CD), Urban Spacemen and Wayfaring Strangers Book (CD) and *Where The Action Is! 45:	Heaviness/Alibis	(Metrobeat 4460) 1970

Midwest was a Minneapolis-based project, essentially for Holien's benefit. They were essentially a power-rock trio and Heaviness, which you'll find on the The Best Of Metrobeat! Vol. 1 (LP) is a fine sample of the genre.

Holien had previously fronted another Minneapolis outfit, The Shades, in the mid-sixties. In 1971, he also recorded a solo album for Tumbleweed. (VJ/SR)

ALBUM:	1(A)	WITH SKINS AND STEEL	(World Library WLSM-36-SM) 196?
	2(A)	SOME YOUNG CARPENTER	(World Library FR-2242 SM) 1970

Although this Cincinnati, Ohio artist's name is listed as Jack Miffleton (who wrote the songs), these two albums are group efforts and feature singers Nancy Barnes, Dennis Cooney, Skipp Sanders and a range of backing musicains including Jack on guitar. The first album opens with Well, It's A New Day, whilst I Am The Bread has an appealing drumbeat. Tracks like I'm Ready To Follow and Alle Alle have good rhythmns and Cry Alice is more poignant. The musical menu is religious up-tempo folk with a good beat, male/female vocals, acoustic guitars, bass and drums. Most of the band members also appear on an album shown as by The Group No Time Like The Present which has a similar sound.

Some Young Carpenter contains several protest songs, like the anti-war Revolutionary Peace with guitar, machine gun shots and air raid sirens in the background whilst an anti-war poem is recited in the foreground. The album is more electric than its predecessor and features electric rhythm and lead guitar along with organ giving it a sixites beat-rock-folk-pop feel. God Made The World and the title track have lost of jangly guitar and Bring On, I Trust In You and Glory To God all rock. ALBUM:	1(A)	COLOR BY THE NUMBER	(ESP-Disk 1098) 1969 R1

NB: (1) has been reissued on CD (ZYX) 199?

Well, it's E.S.P. time and again strange doesn't begin to describe this. Basically a record of a man (Jim Holberg) and his guitar, this album manages with the simple means of vocals, guitar playing, whistling and some studio effects (loads of echo everywhere) to create a compelling listening experience. Unlike any other release on this label that I know of, the music is quite straightforward in itself. The opening Two Stars sounds common enough, but the seven-minutes plus Grok (martian love call), evidently partly sung in Martian too, sees the singer diving through inner space with dexterity and courage. At times vaguely reminiscent of the British songwriter Simon Finn, Jim journeys along through a set of disconcerting songs that all sound like far-out space-rock played on acoustic guitar only. Extremely soft passages turn up unexpectedly and odd dissonances occur. Little Boy has a slightly untuned guitar and jarring stops. Never Be Free has disquieting repetitive phrases and the long Look Into The (K)Night has a spectral and disjointed way of playing. Balancing precariously between terror and bliss, this is one of the still undiscovered psychedelic records that must be pigeon-holed like that on the strength of the uncompromisingly psychedelic inner attitude of the player. Practically incomparable to anything else, this comes recommended for adventurous listeners. (MK/SR)

	MIKE WHITE	gtr	A

45:	I've Been You/Reflections	(Zatop 2208) 1972

The two Mikes hailed from the suburbs of Detroit, Michigan. Mike Mijal was well known on the local scene, especially around Livonia and Westland, having played keyboards in The Unveiled and The Coming Generation. On leaving school he worked as an intern engineer at WYNZ radio station in Ypsilanti before joining Westland's ATA Studios, run by the Lombardi family as a co-op for local bands. There he honed his engineering and mixing skills and in early 1972 he wrote and recorded the Mijal & White single, which climbed to No. 3 on the local charts. He continued to play keyboards in a group called Earthbound, eventually setting up his own recording studios (Triple M) in Garden City. Bands he produced and engineered in the seventies included Salem Witchcraft (formed by Coming Generation guitarist Arlen Viecelli), Sweet Crystal, and Toby Red.

I've Been You is a catchy "seventies psych" rocker awash with wah-wah and pulsing electronics - popular with compilers, including Echoes In Time Vol. 2 (LP), Turds On A Bum Ride Vol. 2 (2-LP), Turds On A Bum Ride Vols 1 & 2 (2-CD), Echoes In Time Vol's 1 & 2 (CD), Lycergic Soap (LP) and A Deadly Dose Of Wylde Psych (CD). As for the odd label name, Zatop was "a planet we visited one night". (MW)

This outfit was from Northfield, Vermont. Blodgett & Brassard may have been in Fire & Brimstone. Members went on to Thunderbolts, Camel's Hump, Stephen Sargent & The Pride, Front Burner and Texas Driver.

They also have four cuts: I've Taken All I Can, Biggest Fool Around ,Goodbye To Mary Jane, and Oobie Doobie Do on Heart So Cold! (CD). (MW)

Mike's Messengers (MD)

45:	Gone And Left Me/ Cause Of All Mankind	(EL-EZ-DE 122579) 1966

This band was based in Quantico, Maryland. Gone And Left Me deals with the singer's indifference to his woman's departure. You can also hear it on Back From The Grave, Vol. 7 (LP). Cause Of All Mankind is a more sensitive folk-punk exploration of society's troubles that has also resurfaced on Teenage Shutdown: Nobody To Love (LP & CD). 	I'm A Leather Boy/Shadows	(MGM 13724) 1967
	On The Go/Soulin'	(MGM 13790) 1967

Real name reportedly Rick Rondell; Milan was an interesting late-fifties/early-sixties style greaserocker whose singles are sought-after. The later biker-rock singles adopted some appealing garage sounds but purists should note that the earlier Milan and World of Milan singles (prior to the Flower label singles) are best avoided, though the One Track Mind single has its moments.

Based in New York City he also produced many other acts, e.g. Downtown Collection and The Head Shop.

The 2009 retrospective Hell Bent For Leather album gathers together his best single sides and adds a selection that he wrote for side-projects and acts he produced - The Chanters, Lou Christie, The Downtown Collection, The Head Shop, Ice Cream, Licorice Schtick, and The Unclaimed.

Compilation appearances have included: I'm A Leather Boy on Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 1 (LP); Mayhem And Psychosis, Vol. 1 (CD) and Pebbles, Vol. 3 (ESD) (CD); I'm A Leather Boy and On The Go on Pebbles, Vol. 10 (CD); Shadows, You Gotta Have Soul and I'm A Leather Boy on Pebbles, Vol. 11 (LP); On The Go on Wavy Gravy, Vol. 1 (CD) and Wavy Gravy, Vol. 2 (LP & CD); On The Go and Soulin' on A Journey To Tyme, Vol. 5 (LP), Garagelands, Vol. 1 (LP) and Garagelands, Vol. 1 (CD); and Shadows on Pebbles Box (5-LP) and Trash Box (5-CD). EP: 1 MILE ENDS (Sundazed SEP 151) 2000

Ferris Wheel (one-sided demo) (no label) 1967

From Phoenix, Arizona this band landed regular gigs in 1966 at The Fifth Estate (in Tempe, near Arizona State University), run by Jim Musil Jr. who became their manager. They also got a slot at nearby JD's, run by Jim Musil Sr.. Primarily a Stones cover band they opened for many national acts who played The Fifth Estate including the Doors, Leaves, Association, Music Machine, Count Five, Them, and (Young) Rascals. In the summer they released their own single and got to play The Hullabaloo in L.A. after manager Jim arranged a weekend band swap (they played with the Yellow Payges, whilst The Palace Guard played at the Fifth Estate).

Late in '66 Fresener was replaced by Ed Black and the band's impetus was flagging. In December they started work on their first psychedelic effort, Ferris Wheel. Flute and strings were added in early '67 and Mike Condello was brought in by McFadden to help out on piano and vocals, but the rest of the band had faded away by then. 100 copies of a one-sided blank demo were pressed by Jim Musil.

It was the end of the Mile Ends but the beginning of Superfine Dandelion.

The R&B infused Candy Man has resurfaced on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 14: The Basement (LP & CD). The Stones-like and immensely catchy Bottle Up And Go is on Ear-Piercing Punk (LP & CD), Best of Pebbles, Vol. 2 (LP & CD), Trash Box (5-CD), The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 1 (2-CD) and Garage Beat '66 3 (CD); Bottle Up And Go, Candy Man, and the previously unreleased I Can Never Say and Bring 'Em On In have all been compiled on Superfine Dandelion (CD).

Both sides of the debut single plus the unreleased I Can Never Say (a Pretty Things cover) and Bring 'Em On In (a Them cover) are gathered together on the Sundazed EP. These also appear on Sundazed's Superfine Dandelion CD (Sundazed SC 11057) 2000 with two versions of Ferris Wheel. (MW)

Born in August 1968 out of the Electric Flag, the Buddy Miles Express tried to pursue the direction started by the 'Flag, with a mix of rock, blues, soul and jazz, clearly built around Buddy Miles' personality. Their records were commercially successful and they managed to release six albums in four years, although the management of the group was quite erratic. Them Changes is reputedly their best effort. Miles often used talented musicians like Jim McCarty (ex-Mitch Ryder, pre-Cactus), Duane Hitchings (pre-Cactus) or Bob Parkins (Bob Island) and Walter Rossi (ex-Influence).

Buddy Miles also played with Jimi Hendrix on Band Of Gypsys and with Carlos Santana on a live album in 1972. He spent part of the late seventies in jail and subsequently tried to make a comeback several times. Miles passed away on 26th February 2008 in Austin, Texas. (SR/NW)

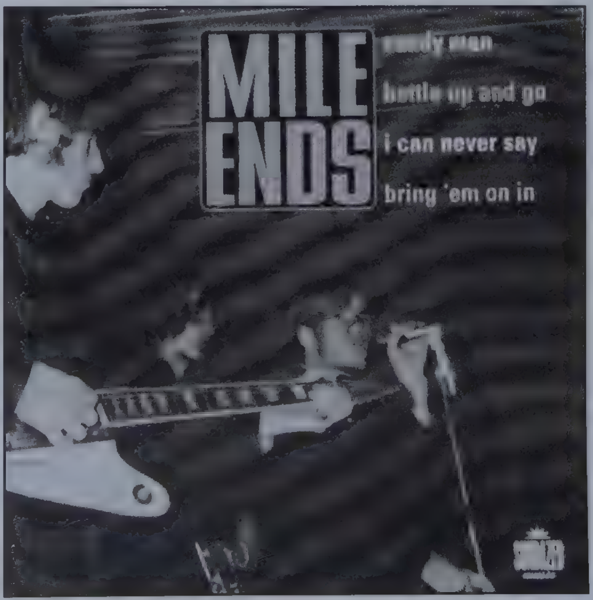
ALBUM: 1(A) MILKWOOD TAPESTRY (Metromedia MD-1007) 1969

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Excalibur XCALM0404) 2002. (1) reissued on CD (Gear Fab GF-179) 2001 with seven bonus tracks.

This album is an intriguing and above-par acid-folk-rock odyssey by this New York duo. They journey from the manic (Beyond The Twelve Mile Zone) etched by some excellent acid-guitar, to minstrel-like folk and baroque ballads, and back into heavy rock territory (The Purple Side Of Sunset). An acquired taste for the adventurous palate, this certainly deserves wider appreciation.

And it came to pass in 2001 that Roger Maglio at Gear Fab answered the call, tracked down Joe Ransohoff, and presented the duo's legacy on CD. The liner notes reveal that Milkwood Tapestry wove their idiosyncratic sounds from 1968 to 1972. Multi-instrumentalist Joe Ransohoff had studied music since the age of 14. He'd finished college, quit law school soon after and placed an ad in the Village Voice for a folk-rock songwriter. Roland Antonelli responded from Poughkeepsie and the two hit it off; Antonelli relocated to New York City the following year.



MILE ENDS - Self Titled 7" EP.

Starting on the New York club and coffee house circuit, they were spotted by Donovan's manager, who helped get them a contract with Metromedia. Tours on the college circuit across New York and New England followed, where they opened for the likes of Country Joe McDonald, Four Seasons, Phil Ochs, Ten Wheel Drive, NRBQ, Tim Hardin, Johnny Winter, Rhinoceros and The Velvet Underground. They also got to perform live on FM radio several times on the Alex Bennett Show.

Their material took on a more mediaeval vibe with the use of cello, tambourine and recorder, examples of which are to be found amongst the seven unreleased cuts dusted off by Joe Ransohoff for the CD reissue on songs like We Are Together, Two and The Bell Of Juniper. (MW/VJ)

Millard and Dyce, who came from Baltimore, Maryland recorded this privately pressed acoustic folk album. Kaymar seems to have been a subsidiary of Century, a vanity label. Utilising three guitars it successfully blends electric and acoustic folk-blues with decent vocals and songs that deal with social and environmental issues as well as some love songs. This is recommended. (VJ)

Curt Boettcher was a prodigious talent (sadly he died in 1987 at age 43) whose studio wizardry produced sounds and arrangements way ahead of any at the time and The Millennium album was the culmination of this period. He'd started out with the folk group The Goldebriars (two albums on Epic in 1964) then formed a vocal duo, Summer's Children, before getting into production which included The Association's first album And Then Along Comes and their million-selling Along Comes Mary single. From then until Millennium he was involved in a plethora of groups and studio projects: - Ballroom (with Sandy Salisbury and Lee Mallory), Your Gang and Friar Tuck (both with Mike Deasy), culminating in Sagittarius (with Gary Usher) which put out a lot of unreleased Ballroom material. In the seventies Curt would issue a solo album and form California but it's for his creative outburst in the mid-late sixties and those heavenly multi-layered vocal arrangements that he will be remembered.

Millennium then, were put together as a vehicle for Boettcher's ideas with the intention to weld Fennelly and Stec's rock background with the avant-garde pop of Mallory and Salisbury. Boettcher was to 'Lead the way'... and there was a kind of evangelical fervour about it, best heard on their first single It's You. Goldenrod who are thought to have acted as a backing group to Lee Mallory, formed the basis of the remaining personnel, originally becoming involved as part of the "Our Productions" house band led by Mike Deasy.

Boettcher wrote almost half of the tracks on their pleasant pop-rock album, Salisbury, Fennelly, and Mallory providing most of the remainder, with Jerry Scheff from Goldenrod contributing Dandelion (not on the album) to their repertoire. The album took a year to record and was only the second album ever done on 16-track (Simon and Garfunkel's Bookends being the first). Columbia Engineer Roy Halee had pioneered the technique by jerryrigging two eight-track recorders with a third machine feeding the two.

Stylistically, the album is in the mould of Sagittarius, with the stand-out cut being the astonishing Karmic Dream Sequence #1. A true voyage into the infinite and six of the most magical minutes that sixties music has to offer. Group member Sandy Salisbury describes the song: "This piece still evokes everything I felt in those days, from ecstacy to amazement to downright fear. Though I never used drugs, I always felt somehow out of touch when I heard this song - still do. The only explanation for that feeling is that Karmic Dream Sequence somehow tells me that Life is far, far deeper and more fascinating than my limited human mind can comprehend - it makes me want to explore, to experience, to feel, no matter how scary it gets".

The Millennium
Again

THE MILLENNIUM - Again LP.

When it looked like Millennium might become a full-time band, the Goldenrod members departed due to session commitments, and Edgar, Rhodes and Keith Olsen all previously with The Music Machine came into the frame.

The Music Machine personnel had early ties with Curt Boettcher as Edgar had been the Goldebriars drummer, Olsen an old friend of Boettcher had played with Gale Garnett and Jimmie Rodgers, and briefly with The Wayfarers, at whose club in Charleston the Goldebriars often played. Olsen also married Goldebriar' Sheri Holmberg, whilst Sean Bonniwell was the Goldebriars tour manager, and migrated to L.A. with them adopting their all-in-black, dyed black beatlecut look lock, stock, and barrel for The Music Machine.

Though Millennium never toured, 'The Lee Mallory Group', which consisted basically of Goldenrod, Mallory, Salisbury, Rhodes, Fennelly and Stec debuted much of the Begin material at the Pasadena Icehouse on a couple of occasions in late 1967, as a dry run for the projected live Millennium shows.

After being dropped by Columbia, The Millennium stayed together as a songwriting/production team, with Boettcher, Olsen, Salisbury, and Mallory joining the re-launched Sagittarius.

The protracted sessions for Sagittarius' Blue Marble in fact included sessions for a solo album by Salisbury and various other projects which were recorded back to back, including tracks for "Midnight Cowboy" written by Millennium members (primarily Stec and Salisbury) and Harry Nilsson, which were scrapped when their publisher fell out with the film producers (an album by 'The Groop' Sing Songs From Midnight Cowboy includes covers of the songs). Nilsson of course sang Fred Neil's Everybody's Talking as the theme, because Neil ironically refused to speed the song up.

Another project concurrent with Sagittarius' Blue Marble was an attempt to launch another offshoot named "Big Shot" fronted by Fennelly and including former Goldebriar guitarist Murray Planta. This petered out fairly quickly... Stec took up an offer from old friends The Blues Magoos to join full-time. He later worked as a writer with Stephen Stills/Crosby Stills Nash and Young, and made a solo album with Jimmy Miller. Fennelly started Crabby Appleton, who signed to Elektra and enjoyed some success. He also later made a solo album, Lane Changer, which was produced by Rod Argent and Chris White. Salisbury was a jobbing arranger before becoming a best selling children's author.

As an aside readers might note that Mike Deasy of Your Gang recorded the creepy live tapes of Charles Manson at Spahn Ranch which did the rounds in Hollywood and cut a couple of studio sessions too. Oddly, the Millennium guys were part of Frank Zappa's clique rather than the folk-rock crowd.

At long last Curt Boettcher and The Millennium have begun to garner long-overdue praise and attention. The Begin album has been reissued at least twice to astound and entrance new generations. In 1998, a retrospective of Ballroom appeared, aptly titled Preparing For The Millennium (Rev-Ola CRREV058 CD). At the dawn of the new millennium Poptones put together the Again CD, a collection of unreleased demos and live performances, and three accompanying CDs of solo ventures: Curt Boettcher - Misty Mirage (MC5007CD), a collection of demos and outtakes; Sandy Salisbury's unreleased solo album (MC5008CD); and a self-titled Joey Stec CD comprising 1976 recordings (MC5005CD).

THE STEVE MILLER BAND - Children Of The Future LP.

Also in 2001 Sundazed put together the almost-complete 3-CD package Magic Time: The Millennium/Ballroom Sessions. This includes much of the Ballroom's Rev-Ola material plus unreleased Ballroom versions of Millennium tracks, the entire Begin album plus singles and outtakes, a couple of Summer's Children and Sagittarius tracks, and a handful of Curt Boettcher demos (avoiding overlaps with the Poptones CD). Finally, Pieces (CD) is a collection of rarities and demos that date from 1967 and 1968. Some of these may have found their way onto Begin, but Boettcher opted instead to include quite a lot of material recorded by his previous band, Ballroom and then add overdubs by Millennium. ALBUM: 1 STEPHEN MILLER (Philips PHS 600-335) 1970

Stephen Miller was formerly the leader of Linn County. A gifted keyboard player, he is sometimes credited as Steve Miller but is totally unrelated to the "Gangster Of Love". He went on to play with the southern rock group Grinderswitch (formed by the former roadies of the Allman Brothers Band) and is also featured on many Bay Area records.

His first solo album is reputedly a good blues-rock effort and is becoming sought-after. (SR)

There are numerous compilation albums and CDs, the early vinyl ones are listed in the above discography. Best Of '68-'73 (CD) (Capitol CDP7952712) 1977 is a good compilation of his early career. Greatest Hits (Capitol 11822) 1978, despite its title, is a compilation of tracks from their three albums made between 1973-77; Living In The USA (Cema Special Markets 57288) 1992 is a budget compilation of tracks from their late sixites and early seventies albums. The compilation has been reissued at least twice on the Platinum and Excelsior imprints; Steve Miller Band Box Set (3-CD) (Capitol 89826) 1994 mostly featured music from 1968 to 1993, but also included some recordings of Miller as a child; Greatest Hits (Eagle/Polygram LC 7341) 1999 is compilation of tracks from albums released between 1973 and 1993; Steve Miller Band On Tour: 1973-76 (2-CD) (King Biscuit Hour) 2002 compiles live recordings from their King Biscuit Hour recordings; Young Hearts: Complete Greatest Hits (Capitol CDP 7243 5 90509 2 8) 2003 is a compilation of remastered tracks by the band; Extended Versions (BMG BMGS145962.2) 2003 is a collection of live material; Rock Breakout Years (Madacy 51114) 2005 compiles tracks from their early albums and Sessions (2-CD) (Snapper SMDCD589) 2007 perfectly captures the two distinct phases of their career. Disc 1 was recorded just after the release of The Joker in 1973, strongly echoes the blues roots of the band while the second disc was recorded in 1976 when with the release of Fly Like An Eagle they were at the zenith of their career.

THE STEVE MILLER BAND - Sailor LP.

The Steve Miller Band Brave New World

THE STEVE MILLER BAND - Brave New World LP.

A child music prodigy, Steve Miller was born in Milwaukee, Wisconsin but raised in Texas. Coming from a musical family - his mother was a singer and his father a country fiddler - Miller was learning to play guitar at the age of five. At 12 he played with Boz Scaggs in a local band The Marksmen. His music hero at this time was T-Bone Walker and Miller developed a strong interest in black music. Whilst Scaggs and he were both attending Wisconsin University, they formed a soul and Motown group - The Ardells. In 1963 Miller quit Wisconsin University for Copenhagen University in Denmark, where he studied Literature. Upon returning to the States in 1964, he headed for Chicago where be became involved in the white blues scene. There he played in bands which featured Junior Wells, Muddy Waters and Buddy Guy. Eventually, he met up with Barry Goldberg (of The Electric Flag) and formed a group called The Goldberg-Miller Blues Band which recorded a single, The Mother Song. They were beginning work on an album when Miller quit because of managerial troubles. He headed back to Texas but in 1966, like Janis Joplin and so many others, he was attracted by the exciting music developments taking place in San Francisco. There with Tim Davis (drms), Lonnie Turner (bs) and Curley Cooke (rhythm gtr) he formed the first Steve Miller Band. This line-up contributed three tracks to the soundtrack (LP) of Revolution, a cult film at that time. They developed the raw, driving sound which characterised the early 'acid' bands, yet the blues remained a strong influence in their music. This was particularly evident on one of the tracks, Mercury Blues (which reappears in more sophisticated form on the band's 1975 Fly Like An Eagle album), whilst the instrumental Superbyrd and Your Old Lady captured that driving guitar and organ sound.

The band made a successful appearance at the Monterey Pop Festival in June 1967 and was soon offered a recording contract by Capitol. By now, old pal Boz Scaggs had replaced Curly Cooke in the band and organist Jim Peterman was included in the new five-some. Surprisingly, Miller decided to go to London to record their excellent debut album Children of the Future. This was produced by Glyn Johns, who had helped engineer The Beatles' Sergeant Pepper album. His influence is evident throughout the album, which entirely lacked the 'live' atmosphere of so many of the early West Coast acid-rock albums, but attained an unequalled standard of production at that time among San Francisco bands. Of particular significance is the early use of psychedelic sound effects throughout side one, with Peterman's fine organ work to the fore. The band had temporarily dropped its driving, bluesy rock in favour of a series of beautiful 'acid' ballad type numbers such as In My First Mind and Children of the Future. The use of sound effects is particularly prominent in the side's closing track The Beauty of Time Is That It Is Showing. The material on side two is similar to what they were playing before they left San Francisco, with each track merging into the following one. Junior Saw It Happen and two bluesy numbers - the fast Fanny Mae and the slow Key To The Highway - are the stronger tracks in this side. Over all, the album was extremely varied.

The group was busted while in London and returned to San Francisco to work on the follow-up, Sailor. This was more consistent than their earlier effort and, possibly, the group's finest album. The opening track Song For Our Ancestors was an instrumental which commenced with the sound of San Francisco bay's fog horns. Dear Mary featured Miller's high-pitched vocals which came to characterise their more sensitive numbers. However, the album's most popular tracks proved to be dance number Living in the USA, a song, as its title suggests, about American life, and the self-descriptive Gangster Of Love. Its most melodic was the beautiful Quicksilver Girl, which opens side two, while Overdrive was a Stones-like R&B number.

Boz Scaggs and Jim Peterman left the band in 1968 with Ben Sidran (keyb'ds) and Glyn Johns (gtr, perc, vcls) coming in for the third album, Brave New World. Johns also co-produced the album with Steve Miller. The title track featured the sound effects of both a rain and a sandstorm, but overall the album lacked the imagination and consistency of the band's two earlier efforts. Most of the songs were up-tempo boogies, but two notable exceptions were the beautifully laid-back number Seasons and Space Cowboy, later to become something of a classic.

The band's fourth album Your Saving Grace was also released in 1969. Ben Sidran and Nicky Hopkins assisted with its production. This was the last album the band recorded in San Francisco. Just A Passing Fancy In A Midnite Dream and Don't Let Nobody Turn You Around were up-tempo country-influenced numbers. Another track, Feel So Glad, featured Nicky Hopkins' dynamic keyboard-playing. But it is really the slower tracks that stand out on this album - the title song and two other sensitive numbers Baby's House and Motherless Children. Although more consistent than their previous effort, this album did not attain the heights of the first two albums and Lonnie Turner left the band, being replaced by Bobby Winkelman (ex-Frumious Bandersnatch). Ben Sidran also quit to go into producing and Nicky Hopkins joined The Quicksilver Messenger Service.

Miller left San Francisco with this new line-up and Number Five was recorded in Nashville, Tennessee and released in July 1970. Various Nashville session-men assisted on this album. However, at the turn of the sixties the music scene was beginning to change and this album shows the band struggling to keep apace with developments. The opening track Good Morning is noteworthy for its psychedelic intro and unusual ending - a variation on the Christmas Carol God Rest You Merry Gentlemen. Inevitably, others like Going To The Country and the excellent Hot Chilli echoed the influence of the Nashville music scene. The other stand-out number on the album was Jackson-Kent Blues featuring Miller on echoplex guitars and culminating in an interesting ending. Two other slower numbers are of note, Steve Miller's Midnight Tango and closing track Never Kill Another Man. The remaining material was dispensable, though, and overall this album was on a par with the previous two.

Further personnel changes took place, with Winkelman and Davis leaving, the latter to start a solo career. Their replacements Ross Valory (bs) and Jack King (drms), (both of whom had earlier been with Frumious Bandersnatch) recorded the disappointing Rock Love, but Valory then departed with Dick Thompson (keyb'ds), Roger Allen Clark (drms) and Gerald Johnson (bs), playing on their 1972 release Recall The Beginning and Ben Sidran returning to help in its production. By the end of the 1972 the band was at its lowest ebb, with possibly its best work to come.

The title track of their next album The Joker became a U.S. No.1 elevating the band to new heights of popularity and made Miller a household name in the States.

After a three year recording lay off (during which Miller purchased a farm in Oregon and built his own recording studio in which he recorded his next two albums pretty much simultaneously and a plethora of compilation albums of the band's material were issued) they returned with the excellent Fly Like An Eagle. The title track with an atmospheric production is one of the band's finest moments, but it also spawned some extremely hooky riffy Take The Money And Run and Rock'N Me, which were both successful singles. The equally successful Book Of Dreams followed in 1977. Later, the band acquired considerable popularity in the discos with the title track in their 1982 album Abracadabra.

Retrospective compilation appearances have included: Dime-A-Change Romance and Living In The U.S.A. on Rock A Delics (LP); Mercury Blues on Texas Music, Vol. 3 (CD); Living In The U.S.A. on In The Beginning (LP); The Beauty Of Time Is? It's Snowing on Ah Feel Like Ahcid (CD); Miller's Blues on California Christmas Vol. 1 (LP); and Roll With It and Quicksilver Girl both figure on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD book). A 'psychedelic' cash-in album recorded at Regent Sound Studios, New York City, by faceless musicians. Using such exotic instruments as "Panther Combo Organ, ondoline, chromatic tom-toms, Hohner melodica, Chinese bell tree, harpsichord, autoharp, kazoos, 'electric guitar with squawk box'... and two ashtrays". What they achieve is sometimes akin to cinema organ intermission muzak or laughably 'groovy' soundtrack sounds.

An O.K. version of Pictures At An Exhibition and "Downtown" Trip (a 'psych' version of Petula Clark's hit with fuzz guitar and traffic noises!) are amusing - titles like Sensory Overload, Pulsation, Love Syndrome and Euphoria add to the mirth. (MW)

From Morgantown, West Virginia came Mind Garage. Although some of their material is psychedelic rock-pop, much is 1969 class-of-brass too. The Electric Liturgy is reportedly along the same lines as the Electric Prunes' Mass In F Minor although Mind Garage were not aware of Mass In F Minor and had been performing their Electric Liturgy in churches for several years before they released the above album.

Larry McClurg: "My own contributions were original, and I assumed the others were also. Mind Garage collaborated on the Electric Liturgy at the suggestion of Reverend Michael Paine and his wife Tori. The idea was to bring the contemporary music into the church while attracting the young people who might not otherwise ever visit a church. We started as "garage" musicians and were not into ministry. In fact we were very much a part of the 'street'. As I remember, Reverend Paine explained the church seemed too far away from real life... "you shouldn't leave your humanity at the door" when you enter church."

"I believe we made a difference. At the time of our recording there was no Christian rock music industry. We played Electric Liturgy as a real Mass, live in churches in New York, D.C., even in the Princeton University Chapel, New Jersey and in numerous other cities. Communion was given. Reverend Paine presided, and travelled with us, and convinced churches to allow us inside. There were also guest ministers.... As far as I know we were the only rock band doing that. It was unique. I have always felt we were the first. If there were any others we were not aware of them. If that is not true, we were certainly instrumental in the creation of Christian rock and roll, and hopefully examples to some of the Christian Rock musicians who followed. We were called communists, devils, and many other names by our detractors, which included many people in the church, but we were also very much appreciated by a large following."

Their heaviest and finest moment, Asphalt Mother, has been re-aired on A Lethal Dose Of Hard Psych (CD).

Jack Bonasso continues his musical career and in recent years provides the entertainment on the Caribbean cruise ships. Ted Smith spent years as tour drummer with The Spinners and still performs occasionally. John Vaughn finished college and still gigs. (MW/LM)

Mind's Eye was an excellent, but sadly too short-lived, psychedelic outfit from San Antonio, Texas. Perron, Cabaza and Holzhaus had all played with the band when they were earlier known as The Argyles. Bill Ash of The Stoics was also with the band for about eight months in 1967, although Chris Holzhaus played on their single. Help I'm Lost was a psychedelic gem with swirling guitar/organ/violin crescendos and melodramatic vocals. Steve Perron co-wrote ZZ Top's hit Francine before his death in the early 1970s.

MIND GARAGE - Again - The Electric Liturgy LP.

Their cover of the Beau Brummels' Still In Love With You Baby was taken from their previous release as The Argyles (Jox 055). Help I'm Lost also appears on the 2002 CD reissue of Rebirth by The Children (Gear Fab GF-187) which gathers together all the band's associated material - nine additional Children cuts, both Argyles singles and the Stoics single. This release is recommended for fans and completists.

Gaylen Niles, who helped out on the single, was a member of The Outcasts and Homer.

Towards the end of 1967 the band became The Children.

Help I'm Lost has been heavily compiled, including on Acid Dreams, Vol. 1 (LP), Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), Acid Dreams Testament (CD), Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 3 (LP & CD), Flashback, Vol. 3 (LP) and Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 12 (LP). (VJ//MW)

The Mind's Eye (FL)

45: Mind's Eye Theme/
Donna, Where Can You Be (Arlingwood 9567) 1967

All that has come to light so far is that this Jacksonville, Florida outfit released just one single produced by J. Atkins. The groovy fuzz-a-go-go Mind's Eye Theme with its hip exhortations and hyena-like laughter can be heard on Psychedelic States - Florida Vol. 2 (CD). It'd fit well on one of those Tower/Sidewalk exploito movie soundtrack albums. (MW/JLh/RM)

British invasion garage-beat from the Boston area, the band's first single features a pair of tame ballads, but things pick up on the second single with the up-tempo hand-clappin' Wake Up. They go back to sleep again with a sombre ballad on the flip. (MW)

Minette (NY)

ALBUM: 1 COME TO ME AT TEA TIME
(Collector's Choice CCR VOL 1) 1968 R2

Here's a hopelessly rare recording by the New York-based female impersonator Jacques Minette. Backed only by piano Minette sings songs about drugs, revolution and anti-Vietnam protests in a female voice. On the cover Minette is surrounded by drawings of marijuana leaves. The album's magnum opus is On A Psychedelic Astro-Flight. (VJ)

Mike Mingo (OH)

ALBUM: 1 TO ALL MY FRIENDS (Min-Gro Records 1001) 1976 SC

This is reportedly the work of an army veteran from Ohio. It's housed in a very basic paste-on cover and the musical menu is offbeat folk-rock and rock with lots of wah-wah and organ. (VJ)

The Minimum Daily Requirements (?)

45: I'm Grounded/

The Minitmen

45: Smokin' In The Boys Room/Rollin' In Money (Rust 5103) 1965

This was a short-lived New York outfit. Smokin' In The Boys Room is a little unusual with percussion work and humming guitar, indeed it features some quite elaborate solo trade-offs between the lead guitar and drummer, but it doesn't really come off overall. You'll also find it on Mindrocker, Vol. 8 (LP). Rollin' In Money has also resurfaced on Wyld Sydes Volume 5 (CD). Rust was a subsidiary of Laurie Records. (MW)

Minnesoda (MN)

ALBUM: 1 MINNESODA (Capitol ST-11102) 1972

This album was recorded by a Minnesota group called Copperhead, but before its release, they learnt of the ex-Quicksilver Messenger Service Copperhead and changed names to Minnesoda.

Trombonist Don Lehnhoff had settled in Minnesota after being auditioned by Mitch Ryder. Ryder first came to Baltimore in 1966 to put together a replacement for The Detroit Wheels. He auditioned several well-known Towson (a North Baltimore suburb) blue-eyed soul bands to form a new group which he called the Mitch Ryder Show. Eventually they all disbanded, but the trombonist Don Lehnhoff made his home in Minnesota. (SR/JV)

Minnie and The Kneebones (CA)

Me and My Miniskirt, which has resurfaced on Girls In The Garage, Vol. 4 (LP), was written by Bill Martin and Phil Coulter, who wrote hits for The Troggs and other English groups. It was released on a small L.A. label in July 1966. To further confuse matters, there's a French EP by Karen Young and the Kneecaps which includes the same two titles on the single. A fairly well-known Karen Young was recording in England around this time, and although her other stuff sounds nothing like this, I suspect a connection. (VJ)

The Minority (FL)

45: Where Was My Mind?/High Flyer (Hyperbolic 105) 1969

Nothing has come to light so far about The Minority. The Hyperbolic ("presents Underground") label was run by Mike Archer, formerly of Fort Lauderdale's Busy Signals so the band may have hailed from there.

Where Was My Mind? is also on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 5 (LP & CD). The chaotic fuzz freakout High Flyer, composed by Luther Robinson, resurfaced on Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 3 (CD). (VJ/MW)

45: Talking About You/Mark Of The Beast (Dot 17242) 1969

The album was produced by James William Guercio and recorded at A&R Studios, New York. The two single cuts are taken from the album, which I've never rated highly. It's a blues-influenced offering with occasionally good guitar work but it rarely ascends above mediocrity. During 1969 Kellogg and Stephens departed for Blue Cheer and Gregg Thomas later played with The Fabulous Rhinestones. (VJ)

The Minutemen (MA)

45: Yes I Will/Lat-In-Da (Minutemen 200,741/2) 1966

From Acton, Massachusetts these Minutemen released their single in January 1966 but almost immediately changed their name (doubtless due to a "cease and desist" strop by any one of goodness-knows-how-many-other Minutemen/Minute Men). The result is that later copies have small paste-over labels bearing their new monicker "The Grenadiers". The single has some moody organ complete with girl gone bad lyrics. (BB/MW/AH)

MINT TATTOO - Self Titled LP.

The Minute Men (TX)

45: Good Things Must End/Disillusion (TMM no. #) 1968

A Houston outfit whose Disillusion doesn't quite gel and lives up to its name. Some great fuzz but after a great intro of crashin' chords that promises a ravin' fuzz-rocker it immediately drops down a couple of gears to a mid-tempo pace with tweeting 96 Tears keyboards. Reprises of the intro break in again but the clumsy time changes can't recover the initial impetus. Good but it could have been great. The flip is a more accomplished minor-mood garage ballad. Both sides sound more they're from '66 rather than '68.

Disillusion can also be found on Punk Classics (CD) and Flashback, Vol. 6 (LP). (MW/AB)

Art Guy had previously been in The Dimensions; he released a solo single in 1967 - Where You Gonna Go/Teenage Millionaire (Valiant V-762) - before joining Smokestack Lightnin'. 45s: This Little Piggy/Lost Love (Imperial 66054) 1964
α The Uncle Willie/Big Bad Wolf (Troy 222-101) 1965

NB: α shown as by The San Diego Misfits.

This seminal San Diego, California band is best known for containing Moby Grape founding member Bob Mosley. Initially called The Hooters, the band changed their name when they secured a residency at the prestigious Red Coat Inn - significant in that they were the first rock group to break into San Diego's upscale nightclub scene, in the summer of 1964.

Closely tied to local contemporaries Joel Scott Hill and The Invaders (their drummer Willie Kellogg was the inspiration for the second Misfits single!), it was the inevitable merging of these two groups, along with Hill's friend Peter Lewis, that created the first pre-Moby Grape line-up in Los Angeles and came to the attention of Matthew Katz. The Misfits and The Invaders played together often in the mid-sixties, including a riotous show with The Rolling Stones in 1964.

The Misfits are remembered more for their wild performances than their singles, which (while competent) are somewhat burdened with overdubbed applause and do little to support their reputation as rowdy punks. The Misfits was an apt name for these guys - Dunn and Steely were known to start fights with each other just for entertainment (the "sandwich incident" got particularly ugly) and Mosley once leapt into the audience and choked a guy that wasn't paying attention when he was rendering a ballad! Apparently this was one wild band.

The Misfits played live extensively up and down the West Coast into 1966 and have no shortage of funny stories to tell of their adventures. For example, after Mosley made Armstrong the object of ridicule on stage one night, Armstrong hid a tape recorder under Mosley's bed and captured his tryst with a groupie... which he later played at a party for everybody to hear!

THE MISFITS (San Diego) and THE ROLLING STONES.

Ron Armstrong (diminutive and ordinarily mild-mannered but nicknamed "Knuckles" by Mosley after landing a rare punch directly to the mouth of a heckler, knocking him out cold) went on to the Jamul City Funk Band, later known simply as Jamul.

Frank Smith was previously with The Vejtables. Mike Lawson joined "Uncle Willie" Kellogg in The Five # Grin, and later still was a member of The Docker Hill Boys (see Joel Scott Hill entry).

The Uncle Willie has been compiled on California Acid Folk (2-LP). (CF)

Popular in the Midfield suburb of Birmingham, Alabama, The Mishaps' forte was reportedly "psychedelic" covers of hits. In reality, most are rather tame and not really psychedelic. However, their rendition of the Stones' Under My Thumb is an excellent fuzzed-up thrash, showcased on Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 2 (CD). (MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) AT THE 5 O'CLOCK LOUNGE (Fleetwood 3012) 1965 R2

A prep-rock style album of garage/soul covers including the obligatory Louie, Louie and For Your Love. The band was a five-piece from Salisbury Beach, Massachusetts and the album, which was produced by Bobby Herne, is now extremely rare. It wasn't however recorded live as the title suggests.

After the album, DeSantos went on to The Ones. He and MacPherson (also from The Ones) later formed Atlantis in 1970 with Bobby Herne. (MW/AH/JC)

45: You Hypnotize Me/
Makin' Up And Breakin' Up (Signett no #) 1966

Jim "Soul" Holvay, the main force behind The Mob and the composer of Kind Of A Drag for The Buckinghams, wrote and produced both sides of this single as a demo. Holvay has confirmed that this is not the Rockford, Illinois outfit (as reported in Tom Tourville's Chicago book) but was a local Chicago band and that at least three members went on to form Chicago (Transit Authority). The single is very rare - to the extent that Holvay was not even aware that it had been released. Thankfully, You Hypnotize Me can also be found on Arf! Arf!'s No No No (CD) compilation. (MW/GM)

Missing Links (IL, Rockford)

45s: I Told You I Loved You/When I See My Baby (Jowar 105) 1966
I Told You I Loved You/When I See My Baby (Amy 960) 1966

These Missing Links came from Brooklyn and Long Island. Al Vertucci went on to join The Naturals original line-up, which soon became Tea Company. He recalls that the 12-string on the Jowar single was a Danelectro, a "baseball bat - very, very thick neck"!

"The Jowar (single) was recorded at Ultra-Sonic in Hempstead, Long Island. Four tracks and the owner/engineer was Bill Stahl who did all of the 'Fudge and Shangri-Las stuff there. One of the great engineers ever!! He did with four tracks what people can't do today with 48. Tea Company and all The Naturals stuff (Maiden In The East was recorded on the first 8-track Scully SN 0001) was also done at Ultra-Sonic by Bill Stahl."

"On the Amy re-recorded version was a Rickenbacker 12, you could really hear the difference. It was recorded at Stea-Phillips in New York City right after a McCoys and right before a Four Seasons session. I guess they didn't rub off on us! "

He confirms that another Missing Links, reportedly from Brooklyn and who released a single in 1968 - Don't Hang Me Up/Show Me The Way (Sock-It 2003), were a different band. (MW/AV)

Missing Links (FL)

45: Run And Hide/I Really Ought To Go (Bamboo No #) 1966

Yet another Missing Links who remain true to their name - all that is known is that they hailed from Quincy, Florida. Their single on Bob Carson's Bamboo label was engineered by Glen M. Wetherington. A growling Stones-like riff (echoes of Last Time) permeates their cantering pop-punker Run And Hide, which can be reappraised on Psychedelic States - Florida Vol. 2 (CD). Louie Go Home is a swingin' cover of Paul Revere and The Raiders and has popped up on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 7: Get A Move On!!! (LP & CD), which reveals that the band was from Lawrenceburg, Tennessee and that a couple of members graduated to The Ravenz. (MW/MM)

(1) reissued again on CD together with White Light's White Light (Progressive Line PL 578) 200?.

This album was recorded by ex-White Light vocalist Gary 'Mississippi' Abrams. This album is a lot less garagy than the White Light recordings, it has a lounge feel on some tracks while others have a light prog feel and would be right at home on a Guinness or Tiger Lily tax loss release. Mr. Christian (LA)

45: Conquistador/You're A Better Man Than I (Tamm T-2019) c1967

Heavy vibes from Lafayette, Louisiana with two competent covers. Procol Harum's Conquistador is done faithfully but is less poppy and more moody than the original. Mike Hugg's Mister... is in a '67 or '68 heavy rock vein with some Blue Cheer style drumming, though the vocals and harmonies point towards Vanilla Fudge. Still it's pretty impressive all in all. (MW)

An unheralded psychedelic rock album, Mr Flood's Party is worth investigating. Its better tracks include: - The Liquid Invasion, Garden Of The Queen and The Mind Circus. Their second single was a Larry Douglas production, produced by Royce M. Hyatt, but is reputedly "soul".

This Greenwich Village, New York band started out as a trio (Corbett, Hirsch, Toscano) known as The Fourth Dimension. It was after they'd expanded to a sextet that they changed their name. The same trio produced their album and in 1971, Corbett and Hirsch released another in the same vein.

After the party, Fred Toscano formed an outfit called Frogs and adopted the persona of "Freddy Frogs". By the eighties his interests had turned to post-punk rock'n'roll, rockabilly and doo-wop. He did a stint with doo-wop band The Ribitones, formed The BMTs (of Crazy Little Mama fame), and was in several other revivalist bands (No Frills, City Lights, Four On The Floor); he passed away in 2009. This band started out in Newport, Oregon and was originally known as The Blazers. Bud Garrison persuaded Mike Parker to consider the merits of the name change in 1964. They decided on Mr. Lucky (a popular TV character at the time) because Mike being tall with dark hair looked like him. They performed locally and attracted the attention of local dee-jay Tom Mix and Hal Branson (who managed a local club called The Chase at that time). Chase and Branson decided to form their own record company to promote the act and the result was New Orleans, which became a local hit in Portland. In late 1965, Garrison and Parker changed The Gamblers line-up merging with a Portland group The Rogues for whom Graziano, Gunter and Maitland had all previously played. By now the band had perfected a harsh garage-punk sound and was one of the major dance circuit attractions in the Northwest (having relocated to Portland, Oregon). On New Years Day, 1966, they shared the bill with Don and The Goodtimes at Portland's Oriental Theatre and Don and the lads were so impressed they helped get Mr. Lucky and The Gamblers a record deal with Jerry Dennon's Panorama label. Two regional hits resulted:- Take A Look At Me (a really catchy punker, written and produced by Bob Holden and Don Gallucci (of Don and The Goodtimes)) and Alice Designs (LSD Signs), which was produced by Bob Holden and written by Tandyn Almer of Along Comes Mary fame. Alice Designs is Union Gap style commercial upbeat pop, whilst its brass-pop flip was also written by Bob Holden.

Early in 1967 Mike Parker left the band and Greg Perry joined on keyboards. Jim Dunlap (formerly of Gentleman Jim and The Horsemen) came in on vocals. However, in July 1967 the band split. Dunlap, Graziano, Maitland and Perry all went on to form a new band, The Sound Vendor. Mike Parker joined a local blues band, Carl Wilson joined Merrilee Rush and the Turnabouts and Jeff Hawks became a member of Don and The Goodtimes. In the late eighties, Norm Smith became the State Representative from Tigard, Oregon and Greg Perry later played for Johnny and The Distractions.

MR. FLOOD'S PARTY

MR. FLOOD'S PARTY - Self Titled LP.

Here's a great fuzz-garage double-sider single on a Washington, DC. label, although it was recorded in Philadelphia, according to the keyboard player. It's a Ray Vernon Production (aka Vernon Ray, Link Wray's brother). Much sought-after for the stunning fretwork, the single commands high prices especially since it has continued to elude compilers.

Guitarist Bob Ferry went on to study at Berklee; he still plays and teaches guitar (www.bobferrymusic.com). (MW/VJ)

45: About Love/Why Baby Why (Wide Art 101) 1967

The Knights 5 formed in high school in Syracuse, New York State in 1964 and served an apprenticeship playing schools and 'Battle Of The Bands'. Credno, Reale and Smith had the opportunity to join The Mistics who had a club residency in Baldwinsville, New York. They soon took over the band, replacing Jose with Carrino, who had been their lead guitarist in the Knights 5.

They performed a mixture of Top 40 covers, oldies, soul, and Motown classics and became very popular, especially when they were once mis-billed at a Syracuse University frat house as The Miracles.

In 1967, they recorded their sole single. They split in 1968 when Smith was drafted. On his return, Smith teamed up again with Carrino in a new band, called The Mystics.

The insistent refrain of Why Baby Why would have gone down well at frat parties - check it out on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 14: The Basement (LP & CD) and Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 1 (CD). (MW)

CD: 1(A) FREE FLYTE (TaXim) 2004

NB: New Ground (RD Records 17) 2005 contains previously unreleased material and comes with a gatefold colour insert.

This bluesy rural-rock band from the Bay Area evolved out of Country Weather, this time as a trio (featuring Greg Douglass and Bill Baron). Their first gig was on 15 June 1973 and their last gig was on 14 July 1974 and in between they gigged extensively around the Bay area. The group recorded material for an album but nothing was released whilst the band was together. Chuck Burgi replaced Baron on drums sometime in 1974. Mistress disbanded in the summer of 1974. In 1996, Taxim Records released their original album Free Flyte. New Ground contains material from early rehearsals, demos and radio broadcasts, as well as tracks from Wally Heiders famed San Francisco recording studios- in the final days with their new drummer Chuck Burgi (who had just replaced Bill Baron about a month before). 45: It's Love/Blue Law Sunday (Reprise 0616) 1967

It's Love is scintillating psychedelic pop - an ideal start to Erik Lindgren's top-drawer CD compilation A Heavy Dose Of Lyte Psych on Arf! Arf!, with its irresistible up-tempo swingin' rhythm, cool male - female vocals, topped with maelstroms of dizzying effects. Garage purists will hate it - psych heads will levitate, but come back to earth on hearing the comparatively dull flip.

The band was based in Detroit and included Ted Lucas and Richard Keelan who were also in the better known Spike Drivers.

You can also hear It's Love on The Arf! Arf! Blitzkrieg 32 Track Sampler (2-CD). (MW/PMz)

Billy Mitchel (NY)

ALBUM: 1 MIGHT BE HOPE (Mercury SR-61335) 1970

Billy Mitchel was a blues/country psychedelia singer/songwriter - he originally emerged as part of the Greenwich Village sixties scene; the Gaslight Cafe, Night Owl Cafe, and Cafe Au Go Go. He also opened for Hendrix, played guitar on Carly Simon's Summer Song and on Richie Havens' Portfolio. Housed in a nice cover, Might Be Hope captures this obscure hippie singer combining folk-rock and jazzy tracks. It features a fine version of Back Door Man, although the highlight is Electronic Dance, which clocks in at almost seven minutes and is a kind of freeform psychedelia with a long instrumental intro that features sitar, guitar, bass, flutes, drums and percussion. (SR/VJ)

Chad Mitchell (?)

ALBUM: 1 CHAD (Bell 6028) 1969 SC

Previously known as the leader of the Chad Mitchell Trio, a traditional folk group, Mitchell went solo in 1968 after his group had broken up. His only solo album contains a good selection of songs by Jake Holmes, Tim Buckley, Dino Valenti, H.P. Lovecraft or Joni Mitchell, sung in a dark and melancholic voice, with a large studio backing. (SR)

45: Can't You Stop It Now/I'll Fade Away (Kustum Kut 45-001) 1968

This single has enjoyed something of a revival in the last few years - never heard of until the mid-late nineties, it suddenly started appearing on several garage/psych specialists' lists. At around the same time their driving fuzz-rocker Can't You Stop It Now began to pop up on compilations - The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 1 (2-CD), Bad Vibrations, Vol. 1 (LP), Project Blue Vol. 5 (LP) and most recently Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 1 (CD). Hmmm, was this another bogus sixties garage record like The Huntsmen or Katz Kradle?

Not according to the Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 1 (CD) liners. The band had formed in 1965 in the small town of Coden, near Southern Mobile in Alabama, and operated under several names, eventually releasing their sole single in the summer of 1968. They sold only a handful of copies at the time but one member had the foresight (and perhaps a nose for investment) to store the remaining copies safely... until he was tracked down by a collector. Members have reportedly been in contact again thanks to the regenerated interest. (MW/RM)

45:	She Took The Rain Out Of My Mind/ You Better Watch Out For That Girl	(Yorkshire YR-1001) 1967

This garage rock quartet operated out of Wichita in southern Kansas. Their sole vinyl offering is highly-rated and you can also find She Took The Rain... on The Midwest Vs. Canada (LP) and on Tom Tourville's Midwest Garage Band Series - Kansas (CD). You Better Watch Out For That Girl can also be heard on Who Needs Tomorrow? (CD).

The Moanin' Glories formed out of another Wichita act, The Candelles. Formed in 1965 by Ritchie Kunkle and Andy Gore, The Candelles underwent several personnel changes and after Karl Berkebile and Marc Mourning joined in 1966, they changed names to The Moanin' Glories. Andy Gore: - "We actively toured throughout the Midwest U.S.A. and were later based in the Boston, Massachusetts area around 1970. We even toured Japan in late 1970 but then disbanded in early 1971".

After the group split, Kunkle and Mourning formed Crank and were active for several more years. Kunkle was on the verge of a career rebound in 1994 in Nashville when he sadly passed away. Mourning is active today in Christian Music, whilst Berkebile has a solo act in Dallas, Texas. Andy Gore is in business in Wichita and has written a book about his experiences with the band during those heady days. (VJ/MW/AGe)

One of San Francisco's best-loved bands, Moby Grape was formed in late 1966 by San Diego native Bob Mosley (ex-The Misfits) and Peter Lewis (ex-Peter and The Wolves, The Cornells) from Los Angeles. Mosley and Lewis had already made several trips to the Bay Area in hopes of putting a band together there, but it was not until Skip Spence (who had left Jefferson Airplane because he wanted to play guitar instead of the drums!) and the ex-Frantics Don Stevenson and Jerry Miller came aboard, that they relocated there permanently.

The pre-history of Moby Grape is very complex, involving a number of southern California musicians (Joel Scott Hill, John Barbata of The Leaves and The Turtles, Kent Dunbar and Bob Newkirk) each of whom played temporarily in pre-album line-ups but were not ultimately members of the group. Stevenson and Miller had migrated to the Bay Area from Seattle and Miller had also spent time in Texas where he played on the first version of The Bobby Fuller Four's I Fought The Law. Spence had moved to the East Bay with his family in 1959 but was born in Canada... so in actuality, none of the members of Moby Grape were originally from the Bay Area!

The band played its first concerts at the end of 1966 and soon attracted a large local following. Their all-original repertoire was made up of tightly-structured, short, high-energy songs - the very antithesis of the current trend in San Francisco. They were soon offered a record contract by Columbia and their debut album was issued in June 1967. To their credit, Columbia spared no expense in promoting Moby Grape, producing special press kits in fuzzy purple folders, issuing five singles in picture sleeves simultaneously, throwing elaborate press parties wherever the band played, and of course packaging the album in a full-colour sleeve with a huge poster. Despite their best intentions, all this shameless promotion served only to alienate the band from the hippie culture, who perceived it as arrogant commercialism. Columbia steadfastly continued to support the band, which was now trashing hotel rooms and conducting their affairs on the road in a very unprofessional manner. When several of the band members were busted partying late into the night with some teenage girls, the label finally took a big step back. The record did pretty well on its own, reaching the Top 30, but it surely deserved better. There are some great tracks on the album - hard-rockers like Hey Grandma and Omaha appear alongside laid-back tracks like Someday, 8:05 and Sitting By The Window. The group had three fabulous lead guitarists and all five members sang. The end result was a structured album with diverse vocal harmonies and some fine interweaving acid guitar work. It's as close to a masterpiece as any American band produced in the late sixties and its power and influence has not diminished over the years, unlike many records from the psychedelic era.

The next album Wow contained a number of short compositions with melodic guitar work, and the opening tracks on each side, The Place and the Time and He, both contained orchestral arrangements which was uncommon among San Francisco bands at that time (although in England groups like The Beatles and The Moody Blues were using them regularly). Three-Four was a sensitive, beautiful song:-

"Cause I love you all
Even though my heart is far away
It's here I'll stay
Until my life is through
When I'm dead and gone
And my life has passed beyond your view
There inside of you
My life goes on and on..."
(from Three-Four)

Rose Coloured Eyes and Bitter Wind are equally memorable, whilst Can't Be So Bad, a faster rockier number, demonstrated their musical diversity. One track, featuring Lou Waxman and his orchestra and starring Arthur Godfrey on banjo and ukelele has to be played at 78 rpm! A free bonus album Grape Jam was issued with Wow and this featured Mike Bloomfield and Al Kooper on keyboards. Commercially, Wow made little impact - the group could not recover from their earlier over-exposure. Towards the end of 1968 they split - but by 1969 they had reformed again as a foursome without Skip Spence. They released the competent Moby Grape '69 and did a series of live gigs, but generated little interest outside of California. So 1970 saw them split for the second time and Mosley left to join the Marines. Later that year, the remaining three reformed, adding Bob Moore (bs) to produce Truly Fine Citizen. Inevitably they split again, later reforming as a five-piece band to produce a disappointing album 20 Granite Creek.

Moby Grape's talented members spawned a number of solo projects. The first and rarest of these is Skip Spence's Oar (Columbia CS 9831) 1969, which was also released in Holland (CBS S-63919). This is an expensive item nowadays but has been reissued on vinyl (Columbia LP 5030) and CD (Sundazed SC 11075) (with 10 bonus tracks) and (Sony WK 75031) with five bonus tracks. There's also a 7" All My Life/Land Of The Sun (Sundazed S 153) recorded in 1966/1972. Bob Mosley had a solo album Bob Mosley (Reprise MS 2068) and a single, Gypsy Wedding/Gone Fishin' (Reprise 1096), both in 1972. Mosley and Jerry Miller teamed up in a short-lived mid-seventies band called Fine Wine that issued an album in Germany. There's also an acoustic mini-album, Wine And Roses (Nightshift) 1987 on which he is assisted by percussionist Willie Kellogg (Joel Scott Hill's bands, The Time Machine, The Five # Grin, Pale Fire; Willie was also the drummer of Moby Grape in the late seventies), and Bob Mosley and Mosley Grape: Live At Indigo Ranch (San Francisco Sound SFS-04880) 1989. Peter Lewis also issued a good solo album in 1995 Peter Lewis (Taxim TX-2008-2), featuring Stu Cook (Creedence), John McFee (Clover, Doobie Brothers), Cornelius Bumpus (Moby Grape, Doobie Brothers) and Keith Knudsen (Mendelbaum, Doobie Brothers, Lee Michaels). Finally Jerry Miller has issued Life Is Like That (Messaround Records MRSCD004) 1995, a bluesy album with John Oxendine (Moby Grape, Sir Douglas Quintet) and Tiran Porter (Doobie Brothers), Merl Saunders and Michael Carabello (Santana, Elvin Bishop, Boz Scaggs).

Ultimately Moby Grape never attained their true potential on record, but their first two albums are recommended as offering a glimpse of their real ability. There are also a number of 'Best of' compilations, including the excellent Vintage - The Very Best Of Moby Grape (Sony 53041) 1993, a 2-CD compilation of album tracks, live recordings and alternate takes. There's also an interesting bootleg CD, Dark Magic, with live cuts, though the Peter and The Wolves tracks it contains are not by Peter Lewis' pre-Moby Grape outfit, but another band with the same name. Lewis had also been in The Cornells, a surf band that issued a hideously rare album in 1963 on the Garex label that was reissued by Sundazed with bonus tracks.

Moby Grape issued a cassette-only album in 1990 The Legendary Grape (Herman Records), but this was quickly withdrawn when their former manager took legal action, and the tape was repackaged shown as by The Melvilles. A vinyl version of this release appeared in the nineties, Legendary Grape (Del Val 006). This was followed by Legendary Grape (CD) (Dig Music 108) 2003, which takes the 11-track vinyl version and adds seven more bonus tracks.

Skip Spence sadly passed away on April 16th 1999.

2007's Listen My Friends! is a 20-track overview of their career. It draws material from their first four albums such as the energetic Hey Grandma, the laid-back 8.05, the churning Murder In My Heart For The Judge and the sound-effects enhanced Motorcycle Irene. The selection confirms their latter albums not to be as strong but the harmony-rich ballad Ain't That A Shame and Changes, Circles Spinning still shine through from this era. A couple of rarities have also been added; the previously unreleased dynamic guitar-led and psychedelic Sweet Ride (Never Again) and Bitter Wind, a Byrds-like song that previously appeared on the 1993 Moby Grape collection Vintage.

Cross Talk: The Best Of... (CD) is a superb round-up of some of their finest moments. The Place & The Time (CD) compiles outtakes from their studio output, with demos and two live tracks; including Miller's Blues from 1968. Demos include Sweet Ride (Never Again) that was recorded for the film 'Sweet Ride'.

Live features more than an hour of dynamite performances from soundboard and broadcast tapes, including tracks from the Avalon Ballroom in 1967 and the band's complete long-lost set at the Monterey Pop Festival. There are live versions of the great rare Grape songs Rounder and Looper and five tracks from a famous Dutch radio show featuring the '69 line-up of Miller, Mosley, Lewis and Stevenson. Live climaxes with the historic first-ever release of Skip Spence's acid-guitar masterpiece Dark Magic, it was never recorded in the studio by the original band but presented here in an epic 17-minute performance at the Avalon, on New Year's Eve 1966. The set is lavishly packaged and comes with rare photos.

Compilation appearances have included: Hoochie on Pop Revolution From The Underground (LP); War In Peace and Omaha on Psychedelic Frequencies (CD); Omaha and Hey Grandma on Sixties Years, Vol. 2 - French 60's EP Collection (CD); Dark Magic on California Christmas Vol. 1 (LP); Om-Aha, Mr. Blues, a 1983 recording Hard Road To Follow and Say You Want To Leave Me on Then And Now, Vol. 1 (CD); Hey Grandma, a 1983 recording Silver Wheels and a 1988 recording Lonesome Highway on Then And Now, Vol. 2 (CD); and Omaha and Murder In My Heart For The Judge on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD book). 45: You Got Me Hummin'/Always By My Side (Kay Mar 1001) c1969

NB: shown as by Joy.

Here's one of the better albums on the Justice label by a Winchester, Virginia outfit. Although they stray into cabaret/lounge territory with their choice of material (It's Not Unusual, Walk On By, Goin' Out Of My Head) and the soulful (Love Is A Beautiful Thing, Ninety-Nine And A Half), strong raucous vocals and an aggressive vitality shine through.

Their glorious swingin' fuzz-punker Gonna Love You Every Day, a faithful version of Gloria, and savage assaults on Come On Up and the Beau Brummels' Just A Little, are worth the price of admission alone. Apparently members went on to become Joy, with the single listed above.

In 1968 Phil Zuckerman replaced Oates and they changed their name to Joy (line-up 'B').

Zuckerman went through numerous bands and was still playing and teaching in 2005. The band came together again for a reunion concert in November 2009. (MW)

45: Don't Be Late/So In Love (Dukoff Studios no#) 1965

NB: acetate-only, no commercial issue.

After Miami's Deltonas split at the end of 1964, John Mascaro and Don Ricketts formed The Modds with vocalist Dean Liapis, lead guitarist Bob Nimer and drummer Dewey Bond. They built a repertoire of 30 covers and two originals and honed their sound at teen hall dances and frat parties, before they entered Dukoff Studios and captured the originals on acetate. One was presented to WFUN radio where Don't Be Late was spun by Morton "Doc" Downey Jr. and received positive responses. The group's manager contacted Columbia, who were keen, but insisted that the tracks be re-recorded. In the interim they were impressed enough to ask The Modds to perform at their upcoming convention at the Americana Hotel in Miami Beach where attendees would include The Byrds, Paul Revere and The Raiders and other nationally known acts.

All seemed to be set for a promising future, then Uncle Sam delivered an untimely draft notice to John Mascaro ... and that was that.

Thankfully copies of the acetate survived. Their resounding beat-punker Don't Be Late can be enjoyed again, on Project Blue Vol. 5 (LP) and Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 3 (CD), the latter providing the band's story which is summarised above.

One member is thought to have gone onto another outfit called Asbury Park. (MW/JLh)

45:	Bend Me Shape Me/ In A World Of Pretty Faces	(MGM 13775) 1966

This all girl band seem to have recorded the original version of Bend Me, Shape Me, pre-dating The American Breed by about four months. It's notable also for some pretty psychedelic guitar effects.

The band comprised some leggy Vogue models (hence the name) and may have had some connection with The Vogues who recorded a single a little later on the same label: - Brighter Days/Lovers Of The World Unite (MGM 13813) or (MGM 13831).

This was a seminal folk-rock group from Los Angeles. Faryar had been in the Whiskeyhill Singers and Yester had been in the Inn Group. Both quit their respective bands and formed the Modern Folk Quartet with Hatelid and Diltz. Night Time Girl was produced by Jack Nitzsche and written by Al Kooper and Irwin Lewine. A pop raga with oriental instruments, it is quite interesting. Another single, Don't You Wonder was composed by Hatelid and Bill Martin. Night Time Girl was covered a couple of months later by Skip Battyn (& The Group); written by Al Kooper and Irwin Levine in 1965, it appears to have been performed first by the Everly Brothers.

When the group broke up, Douglas Hatelid, who was then known as Chip Douglas, joined The Turtles and Gene Clark for a short spell, before becoming a producer (Monkees, Turtles etc.). He also played with Fred Neil. Henry Diltz became a photographer and Eddie Hoh a session drummer (Barry Goldberg, Lee Michaels, Kim Fowley etc.). Jerry Yester joined the Lovin' Spoonful, replacing Zal Yanovsky. He also cut two solo singles and two albums with his wife, Judy Henske, before becoming a renowned producer and engineer (notably for Tim Buckley and Tom Waits). Cyrus Faryar became a session musician, notably with Fred Neil and Stone Poneys and was also the voice of the Cosmic Sounds. In 1972 he cut a solo album on Elektra before moving to Hawaii where he produced local acts.

In the mid-eighties a reformed band had quite a successful run in Japan with several further albums.

Compilation appearances have included: Night Time Girl on Nuggets, Vol. 10 (LP); and Don't You Wonder and Night Time Girl on Penny Arcade, Dunhill Folk Rock, Vol. 2 (LP). (SR/MW)

ALBUM:	1	FAMOUS SONGS OF HANK WILLIAMS, A RETURN TRIP	(Alshire S-5136) 1969 SC

Another 'exploito' album from the budget label that was also responsible for The Animated Egg etc. This effort consists of cover versions of Hank Williams' classics (Jambalaya, Kaw-Liga, Cold Cold Heart, Hey Good Lookin...) with loads of fuzz guitar and organ, and delivered 'in Modern Rock-Acid Sound and with exciting vocals'. For curious listeners! (SR)

Just 500 copies of this Indiana duo's album were pressed and the sound is somewhere between country-rock and laid-back West Coast rock with fine guitar and banjo interplay and some keyboard elements. It's supposed to be a concept album about hobos and drifters, although this can easily pass you by. Some collectors rate this album, which is on the same label as Zerfas, highly. (VJ)

45:	It's For You/Days Mind The Time	(Cee Three 1000,01) 1966

This band hailed from Fort Worth. It's For You, a folk-rock ballad, was originally written by Lennon-McCartney for Cilla Black, whilst the flip had similarities to The Beatles' If I Needed Someone. Scott Fraser, incidentally, was a multi-instrumentalist who taught the rest of the band to play. In 1969, he would form Whistler, Chaucer, Detroit and Greenhill with Eddie Lively and in 1969 he was in Space Opera.

Compilation appearances include: It's For You on Acid Visions - Complete Collection, Vol. 3 (3-CD) and Texas Punk, Vol. 9 (LP); Days Mind The Time on The Cicadelic 60's, Vol. 5 (LP), The Cicadelic 60's, Vol. 3 (CD), Quagmire Volume 7 (CD) and *Fort Worth Teen Scene! Acetate: Lost Again/
Till The End Of The Day (Welhaven Recording Co.) 1965

Formed in 1964 in the Plainview area of Minnesota, this Mods was originally known as The Impalas and their musical repertoire initially consisted of Beatles, Rolling Stones and Kinks covers. They recorded a Sue Petit/Steve Kath composition, Lost Again along with a cover of The Kinks' 'Till The End Of The Day to which they added a frantic garage style climax, in the summer of 1965, but it didn't get beyond the acetate stage. In the fall of 1965, Bill White left to go to Mankato State University and Tom McNeil came in as a replacement. Dave Franzen, a talented lead guitar player, was drafted in too. The group finally fell apart when Sue Petit left to become female vocalist with a R&B group, The Happy Go Luckies. Later still she joined a Miami, Florida, band called The Faculty. (VJ)

Lovin's Gonna Be (Emerald EM-121-R7) c1968
It's Not The Same/Long Tall Sally (Poe MS-1221) 196?

A sextet from Aiken, South Carolina who, according to a 1967 newspaper article, were into the Byrds, Chocolate Watch Band, Raiders and Seeds. At that point they'd not released any records, but expected to in 1968 (and it's not certain that the second single above is by the same band).

What Can I Do features some blistering fuzz guitar and an unusual 'circus' ending. On the flip, the fuzz is knocked down a notch, but there's a promising lead near the end.

	Ski Bum/Try Me	(Panorama 27) 1966
	Another Day/Round Randy	(Tork 1095) 1966

Hailing from Eugene, Oregon this outfit were originally known as The Centurians but they changed their name to The Moguls in December 1964. Their manager was convinced that after 'surf' music, 'ski' music would be the next big thing. So he hired two go-go dancers in ski-bunny outfits and clad the group in ski pants, turtlenecks and ski boots.

Their first single was a double-sided instrumental with snow sound effects. They performed it at a local 'Battle Of The Bands' competition and won, getting to record their next single free!

Their second single, Ski Bum, which was produced by a member of Don and The Goodtimes is quite a pounder. Their third, Another Day, came out on the Tork label named after the Tork Club where they were regulars. This was a faster number with lots of mouth harp - probably their finest moment. They later became known as Music Prism but only lasted for about a year under that moniker.

Compilation appearances include: Ski Bum on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 - Flash And Crash (LP & CD) and Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 3 (CD); Try Me on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 - Knock You Flat! (LP & CD) and Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 (CD); Another Day and Ski Burn on Back From The Grave, Vol. 7 (2-LP); and Round Randy on Ho-Dad Hootenanny (LP). 45:	α	The Boy With The Way/Memory Of Your Voice	(Liberty) 1964

NB: α shown as by Jaime Carter.

Essra Mohawk was born and grew up in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania as Sandra Elayne Hurvitz. She was just 16 when she recorded her first single The Boy With The Way on Liberty Records. It was produced by Hutch Davie who produced Shirley Ellis's Name Game. She declined the offer of a position as a staff writer for United Artists, but Shadow Morton discovered her and two years later The Shangri-La's recorded one of Essra's songs, I'll Never Learn. Shortly after, another of her songs, The Spell That Comes After was recorded by Vanilla Fudge on their Renaissance album. When she was 19, Essra was discovered again by Frank Zappa who, after hearing her play, invited her to join his band, The Mothers of Invention. A year later he released her first solo album on Verve. She was scheduled to play at the Woodstock festival in 1969, but her manager took a wrong turn driving there and they arrived too late!

Essra's second album was recorded in L.A. and San Francisco (Essra was living in Mendocino, California at the time) after Reprise Vice - President Mo Ostin saw her singing at a New York club. Primordial Lovers received rave reviews at the time and Rolling Stone magazine at the time described it as "one of the best 25 albums ever made". Unfortunately, Reprise was sold following its release and the album suffered from poor distribution. Focused around piano and her vocals this is one of the very best albums of the singer/songwriter genre. Its reissue by Rhino Handmade has brought it to a wider audience. While recording the album, Essra married her producer, Frazier Mohawk, and from that time on was known as Essra Mohawk. She also sang in a background vocal trio with Carole King.

Her third album was released on Elektra/Asylum, again to critical acclaim. Indeed, Melody Maker declared it, "the richest and most unheralded event in American music" that year.

She returned to Philadelphia in the seventies, worked as a session vocalist and sung on 'Schoolhouse Rock', a popular TV educational and musical cartoon series. Her fourth album was released on Private Stock records in 1976, but again it suffered from poor distribution and she headed back to California in 1977. When Grace Slick dropped out of Jefferson Starship for a while Paul Kantner tried to recruit Essra Mohawk to be the lead singer in Jefferson Starship, but he couldn't convince the rest of the band to use another female vocalist so they chose a male, Mickey Thomas, instead. Since then, she has continued to record and work as a background vocalist and songwriter. By 2006 she had recorded 10 solo albums and there's a compilation that was released in 2003. Although this band was based in San Francisco some members originated from Florida. The original band formed in Coral Gables, Florida as The Valiants. Singer Jim Alaimo (cousin of singer Steve Alaimo) had early releases under the names Jimmy Sumers and The Slicks and Jimmy Paris. The Valiants also back Steve Alaimo on his 1961 album Twist With Steve Alaimo. It was pretty much the same line-up that moved to San Francisco in 1964 and became The Mojo Men. For much more information see the liner notes of the Sundazed compilation Whys Ain't Supposed To Be.

Sly Stone had left the band (to form Sly and The Family Stone) by the time the band signed to Reprise and achieved some success with Steve Stills' Sit Down I Think I Love You. Their diminutive female vocalist Jan Errico had earlier achieved much popularity on the West Coast as drummer and lead vocalist for The Vejtables.

In late 1967 the band became known as Mojo because Jan Errico got tired of being known as a Mojo Man. They also changed labels to GRT so that they could record an album. Released in 1968 it was produced by Dave Hassinger. It contained their New York City single, which suffered from sounding too much like The Mamas & The Papas and overall contained a number of mildly psychedelic, post-Sgt. Pepper pop-rock songs. The band finally split in 1969 when they realised their era had ended.

There remains a lot of unissued material from both eras of The Mojo Men. From their time with Autumn 15 tracks remained unissued although some of these later appeared on Eva's Dance With Me compilation and the superior Sundazed retrospective Whys Ain't Supposed To Be. A further 19 tracks were recorded but not released during their spell with Reprise. These include the long and experimental What Kind Of Man, which was reputed to be a latter-day venture into psychedelia by the band.

Not Too Old To Start Cryin': The Lost 1966 Masters CD presents 24 previously unreleased folk-rock tracks recorded just after their spell with Autumn records. The title track and the gentle Another World are the best although many lack immediate appeal. The compilation wins through from bringing many rare cuts on one disc, although their fans may prefer their better-known material.

Compilation coverage has so far included: Sit Down, I Think I Love You and She's My Baby on Nuggets Box (4-CD); Sit Down I Think I Love You on Nuggets Vol. 5: Pop Part 111 (LP), Nuggets - Original Artyfacts From The First Psychedelic Era 1965-1968 (2-LP) and Sundazed Sampler, Vol. 2 (CD); Off The Hook on Sounds Of The Sixties San Francisco, Vol. 1 (LP); Dance With Me on Sound Of The Sixties (2-LP), Sixties Archive, Vol. 1 (CD) and We Have Come For Your Children (LP & cassette); Dance With Me and She's My Baby on San Francisco Roots (LP), The Autumn Records Story (LP) and Nuggets, Vol. 7 (LP). All three of their Autumn singles also figure on the Autumn Single Box. More recently much of their material has featured on Big Beat's Nuggets From The Golden State series:- the Dance With Me CD contains Dance With Me plus a demo and six unreleased cuts from 1965 (She Goes With Me, Off The Hook, Something Bad, My Woman's Head, Can't You See That She's Mine, Why and As I Get Older); Someone To Love (CD) features four 1966 cuts - She's My Baby, Fire In My Heart and the unreleased Why Can't You Stay and Girl Won't You Go; a second mix of She's My Baby (from June 1966) also figures on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD plus book); and Candle To Burn adorns Soft Sounds For Gentle People 3 (CD). This Cleveland, Ohio band was around for quite a while. They began rehearsals in Tim and Pat Cole's parents' garage. Paul Pope was just 15 when the band formed. They performed in nine different states in less than seven years and were double-billed with the likes of Kansas, Ted Nugent, Meatloaf and Cheap Trick. Tim Cole recalls "One of the coordination 'things' we always needed was dry ice for each show. The dry ice was used to produce the 'English fog', as I like to call it. The promoter of the "gig" was responsible for supplying 200 pounds of dry ice. Here's how it worked. Behind the backdrop were two 50 gallon metal drums of heated water. The dry ice was in a basket above the heated water. When the dry ice was dropped into the water a lid was immediately put on the barrel and the fog shot out the long hose to the stage. Great Effect?"

Their Demo album was a four cut prog-rock effort with some synthesiser and lots of guitar. (VJ/Molkie Cole)

45:	Cocaine Katy/Terrorization Of Miss Nancy	(Booger 1001) 1972

Formed in Memphis in 1968 by Lee Baker, who'd fronted local faves The Blazers, the initial line-up evolved to include drummer Phillip Durham, who'd been with The Group and The Rapscallions. Produced, written and arranged by Don Nix (ex-Mar-Keys and Paris Pilot) in Memphis, Moloch is an excellent blues-rock album with some sound effects, noises and superb acid guitar solos by Lee Baker. The album contains the original version of Goin' Down, which was covered by many other acts. Their single was recorded after the album with a later line-up and is extremely rare. Cocaine Katy has been compiled on It Came From Memphis (Upstart 022) 1995.

A close friend of Jim Dickinson, Lee Baker would later work with Big Star and Alex Chilton and various other Memphis acts before forming Mud Boy and The Neutrons. He was tragically murdered in the late nineties.

Their last bassist, Busta Jones, would later front White Lightnin'. (SR/MW/RHI)

ALBUM:	1	WAY PAST TIME (w/lyric insert)	(Pepperhead 22377) 1977 R1

From Chicago, Illinois this was a melancholic and introspective loner folk album. The cover has a real homemade feel and sports a creepy pen and ink design that is both simple and striking. (VJ)

Moms Boys (CA)

The totally demented 1967 fuzz-punker Up And Down has resurfaced on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 2 (2-LP), Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD) and Pebbles, Vol. 9 (CD). Thought to have been a California-based act, both this track and Yellow Pill were on the Freakout U.S.A.! (LP) soundtrack album. Another track, Children In The Night is also featured on the Riot On Sunset Strip (LP) soundtrack album. You can also check out Yellow Pill on Come Fly With Us (LP). (VJ/MW)

Marlow Stewart and The (Frantic) Illusions
45: Earthquake/Ooh Poo Pah Doo (PS) (Variety Prod. VP-201) 1964

Orange County in California was home to this teen-beat quartet whose ages ranged from 11 to 16. They started life as The Masters and were later known as The Laurels before they finally settled on The Monacles as their name. I Can't Win, is a typical teen punk number written by Jim Newby. Marlow Hendrix had previously fronted a surf instrumental combo that recorded two singles on the same label, under the name Marlow Stewart.

The Arcania Int'l album presents: three different takes of both sides of The Monacles debut, which are their strongest brat-pack punky-poppers; both sides of the follow-up; one cut each from the last two singles; two unreleased 1966 cuts; and the top sides from the earlier 'Marlow Stewart' singles.

Compilation appearances have included: Heartaches and I Can't Win on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 6: The Biker (LP & CD); I Can't Win on Back From The Grave, Vol. 3 (LP) and Everywhere Chainsaw Sound (LP); and Everybody Thinks I'm Lonely on Bad Vibrations, Vol. 1 (LP). (MW)

		Gonna Build Me A World/ You Didn't Mean To Make It Rain	(Jamie 1404) 1972

NB: α also issued in the UK (London HLR 10145) 1967.

Although sometimes described as a mix of Donovan and Darius by imaginative dealers, this album is in fact composed of universally weak orchestrated pop tunes, written by Monahan and T. Lazoros.

The album was recorded at the Gold Star Studios in Hollywood, arranged by Don Peake and produced for their York/Pala company by Charles Greene and Brian Stone, the managers of Buffalo Springfield and Iron Butterfly.

The first two (and maybe the third) Kapp singles are from the album.

The Flying Machine single was a "Trip Universal" production and might have appeared originally on that Miami label. Trip Universal had also placed the Heroes of Cranberry Farm and later co-owner Bill Stith with Jamie.

Monahan also recorded (in a Roy Orbison style) for Vee Jay in the early sixties. His whereabouts are now unknown. (SR/JLh)

This was an early sixties garage rock'n'roll outfit from Woonsocket, Rhode Island. They recorded under at least three different names. On the Monday's Mondos single they sounded very much like The Kingsmen.

I'm Crying was a cover of The Animals track.

Compilation appearances have included: I'm Cryin' on New England Teen Scene, Vol. 2 (LP) and Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 2: You Treated Me Bad (LP & CD); Mondo on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 6 (LP); and Rip It Up on Hipsville, Vol. 2 (LP). (VJ/MW)

45: It's All Too Much/I Gotta Get Back To You (A&M 1107) 1969

Their cover of the Fab Four's It's All Too Much is heavy pop with a 'White Album' - period - Beatles feel, and a withering guitar break - unexpectedly good for this label. The flip reverts to laid-back folk-pop, more the A&M norm. (MW)

THE BIRDS, THE BEES & THE MONKEES

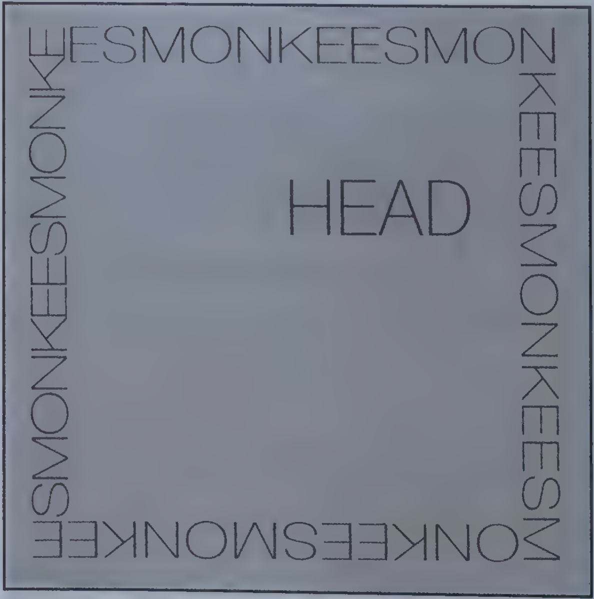
THE MONKEES - The Birds, The Bees & The Monkees CD.

NB: α also released in France with a picture sleeve (RCA 49952). There are also four French EPs with picture sleeves on RCA.

In 1966, Bob Rafelson (writer, director and producer) teamed up with Bert Schneider to produce for Screen Gems a new TV comedy series about the life of a mythical pop group using the Beatles' film A Hard Days Night as its framework. An ad was placed in L.A.'s 'Daily Variety' for 'four insane boys' between the ages of 17-21 and 437 hopefuls were auditioned. The chosen four were Davy Jones, a British child TV star who'd been born in Manchester on 30 December 1945 and had released a solo album and single in the US; Michael Nesmith, who'd been born in Houston, Texas on 30 December 1942, he was a member of L.A.'s folk circuit and using the name Michael Blessing had released singles on the Colpix label; Mickey Dolenz, who'd been born in L.A. on 8 March 1946 and was a child star of the American TV show 'Circus Boy' and Peter Tork, born in Washington, D.C. on 13 February 1945 and also involved in the L.A. folk circuit as a member of the Au Go Go Singers. Among those rejected were Stephen Stills (allegedly because of bad teeth) and future Three Dog Night leader, Danny Hutton. Charles Manson too is often said to have been rejected, but he is also said to have been in jail at the time.

Once recruited the acting and grooming lessons began and the group's development was very carefully managed. They were told what to sing, how to sing, weren't allowed to play their own instruments on recording sessions and the head of Screen-Gems Music, Don Kirshner, who was responsible for the musical supervision of the series, signed seasoned songwriters like Gerry Goffin, Carole King, Neil Diamond and Neil Sedaka to write their songs.

Over the next two to three years The Monkees were extremely successful in commercial terms - almost a match for The Beatles. Their debut single hit the No. 1 spot in the USA and later in 1967 made No. 23 in the UK. Their first album went gold in the USA where it topped the charts for 13 weeks. Their next single I'm A Believer also hit No. 1 in the USA and the U.K. and Monkeemania was now equalling Beatlemania. Their next album More Of The Monkees also topped the U.S. charts for 18 months and later reached the zenith of the U.K. Charts too. Strengthened by all this success and with the band gaining confidence as musicians following a successful U.S. tour, The Monkees insisted that they should be permitted to play on their own records and write more of their own songs and eventually they won the day on this with Don Kirshner resigning as Chief Executive of Screen Gems Music. He went on to manufacture another TV pop group, The Archies, who existed only in cartoon form. After The Monkees' next single A Little Bit Me, A Little Bit You had made No. 2 in the US, they themselves recorded their next album Headquarters assisted by just three outsiders. It topped the U.S. Album Charts for just one week before being displaced by The Beatles' Sgt. Pepper. It reached No. 2 in the U.K. where it was kept from the top by Sgt. Pepper. They continued to enjoy further singles chart success with Alternate Title (No. 2 in the UK - not issued in the USA), Daydream Believer (No. 3 in the U.S. and No. 1 in the UK), Words (the B side to Daydream Believer (No. 1 in the US) and Valleri (No. 3 in the U.S. and No. 12 in the UK). Many regard Pisces, Aquarius, Capricorn & Jones, also released in 1967, as their finest album. It included



THE MONKEES - Head CD.

Words, Pleasant Valley Sunday and Percival Patterson's Pet Pig Porky among others.

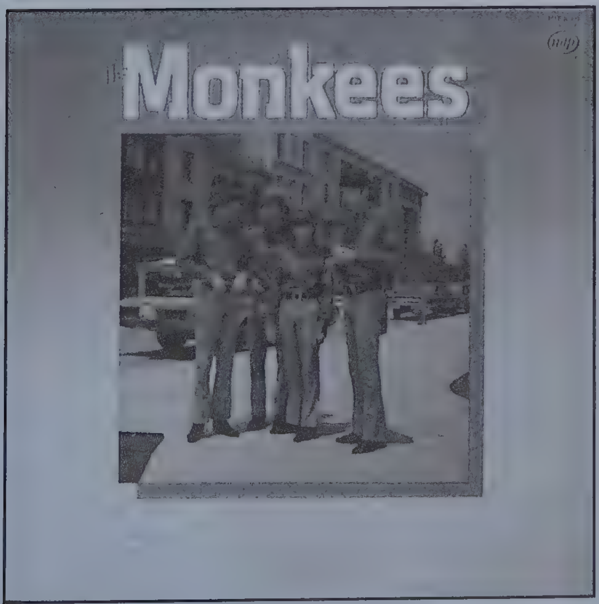
The Monkees continued to press for more artistic freedom and on their next album The Birds, The Bees and The Monkees each group member contributed individual tracks. This didn't seem to undermine the project's commercial success because it still made No. 3 in the U.S. Album Charts and they were now enthusiastically working on a feature film 'Head'. This was directed by Bob Rafelson assisted by Jack Nicholson for Columbia Pictures. Whilst all this was going on there were signs of a downturn in their popularity. In June 1968 their TV series, which had run successfully since its inception was scrapped, and the following month their revival of The Coasters' D.W. Washburn made only No. 19 in the U.S. Charts and No. 17 in the UK. The follow-up Porpoise Song peaked at just 62 in the U.S. and didn't chart in the U.K. at all. Head was the most relevant of their projects in terms of this book but in box office terms it was a disaster. Far from the standard teen film they had expected Columbia found themselves presented with an imaginative, bizarre and disjointed mixture including scenes of the band committing suicide by jumping from a bridge and a concert intercut with Vietnam War atrocities. The album only managed No. 45 in the Album Charts; despite its relatively disappointing commercial showing the album was by far the group's most creative and interesting venture. After this the band began to slowly disintegrate. Peter Tork bought out his contract at considerable cost ($160,000 to be precise) in December 1968 and later in March 1970 Mike Nesmith, having stayed on to fulfil his contractual obligations, left to start his own group, The First National Band.

Instant Replay, released after Tork had left included Through The Looking Glass, but the best tracks were Mike Nesmith's Don't Wait For Me and While I Cry. Whilst in 1969 the group had continued to enjoy some chart success as a trio, the Changes album recorded by Dolenz and Jones (after the departure of the other two) in 1970 chalked up very disappointing sales. By June that year Dolenz and Jones had also decided to call it a day.

There was a reformation in 1975 involving Jones and Dolenz (Tork and Nesmith weren't interested) who revived the band with Tommy Boyce and Bobby Hart, who'd written many of their early songs. They began a two year tour "The Golden Great Hits Of The Monkees Show - The Guys Who Wrote 'Em And The Guys Who Sang 'Em", signed a new deal with Capitol who issued an album Dolenz, Jones, Boyce And Hart, whilst the compilation The Monkees Greatest Hits made No. 58 in the U.S. Charts. Since then there have been various (often successful) attempts to revive the band, most notably in 1986 when to celebrate the group's 20th anniversary MTV in the U.S. showed a 22.5 hour 'Pleasant Valley Sunday' marathon of every Monkees TV programme. This prompted Dolenz, Jones and Tork to reform the group in February of that year for a summer tour and during a Monkees convention in August that year in Philadelphia they enjoyed no fewer than seven albums in the U.S. Top 200 Album Charts.

The Head project did receive more acclaim in retrospect. In March 1977, in response to cult demand, the U.K. National Film Theatre imported a copy of the film and it ran for a season in London's Electric Cinema.



THE MONKEES - The Best Of... LP.

A further reunion of the four original Monkees occurred during 1996. An album was recorded and released, followed by a tour.

There's a CD series called Missing Links that will interest their fans. On these CDs classic tracks figure alongside rarely heard songs. For example, Vol 2 includes All The Kings Horses, Circle Sky (the live version from Head) and Valleri. Whilst Vol 3 includes an alternate mix of Circle Sky and the TV and an Italian version of The Monkees' Theme.

Real fans of the band should check out a 4-CD set Music Box. It contains 99 tracks in all with many unissued mixes. The set is presented in a hard-back bound book containing a full history of the band.

The recent 3-CD reissue of The Birds, The Bees And The Monkees is very lavish. It's presented in a 7" box with a lenticular version of the album sleeve. The three paper-sleeve discs inside are pulled out by a ribbon. There's also a 7" x 7" booklet, a replica button badge and a 1968 advert card. The three discs comprise mono and stereo versions of the album and a rarities disc. This features alternate versions, stereo mixes and an eight-track cartridge advert narrated by Davy Jones. This is one of Rhino's very best re-packages.

You'll also find Porpoise Song on Nuggets, Vol. 9: Acid Rock (LP); Pleasant Valley Sunday and Valleri both appear on the Nuggets (CD); the mono 45 version of Porpoise Song can also be heard on Nuggets: Hallucinations (CD); and Daily Nightly gets an airing on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-1968 (4-CD plus book). (VJ/CB/SR)

This U.S. band was stationed in Europe. They consisted of five serving soldiers in the U.S. army in Frankfurt who formed a band and hit the German beer club halls. Far from singing twee songs about love and cars The Monks used a riffing style and lyrics concerned with war, death and hate. This highly unusual image got them lots of bookings, a tour with The Easybeats and, after they'd quit the army in early 1966, a record deal with Polydor. They got to appear on German pop TV shows like "Beat Club" to promote their records but they didn't sell, probably because the public didn't know how to react to a punkish band ahead of their time. They shaved the tops of their heads and wore monks clothing. Their album now commands a small fortune on the collectors' market but the various CD reissues are now a cheaper way to get to hear it.

Eddie Shaw has also published a book entitled 'Black Monk Time' about the band's exploits.

With continued interest in The Monks, the band reformed for a couple of appearances at the New York 'Cavestomp' festival (5-7th November 1999), performing alongside luminaries such as The Chocolate Watch Band and The Standells. This performance was captured and later released on the Let's Start A Beat album.

The vinyl album Demo Tapes 1965 compiles studio outtakes which predate their Black Monk Time album. The demos include early versions of Love Came Tumbling Down, Space Age, Boys Are Boys and Monk Time. Also featured are two tracks from the band's previous moniker The Torquays.

Compilation appearances have included: Cuckoo on Magic Carpet Ride (LP); Complication (Oh How Not To Do Now) on Nuggets Box (4-CD), Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD), Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 (2-LP) and Twisted Teenage Screaming Fuzzbust (CD). ALBUM:	1	REALITY	(Vanguard VSD 79291) 1969

Jeff Monn was in fact Jeffrey Neufeld, the former singer of the Third Bardo. He probably had some kind of identity problems, as he would also record as Chris Moon! He was based in New York.

This album is rather disconcerting as Monn/Neufeld sang and played guitar in front of a classical orchestra conducted by Peter Shickele, of P.D.Q. Bach "fame". The concept would be used by several groups in the following decades, and you'll either be enthusiastic about it or hate it completely. The songs were written by Neufeld who also selected two Rolling Stones covers I'm Free and Back Street Girl plus Think I Care, written by Skip Prokop and Adam Mitchell of The Paupers and a Jimmy Reed song. 45s:	Psychedelic (That's Where It's At)/ Boogie Man	(Denco 926) 1966
	The Spider And The Fly/ The Other Side of Happiness	(Chicory 407) 1966

NB: The Monocles & The Higher Elevation: The Spider, The Fly & The Boogie Man (Gear Fab GF-231) 2008 is a 31-track compilation.

This band operated out of Greeley, Colorado whose Chicory label apparently issued a number of mutated psychedelic punk singles circa 1966-67. Their Spider And The Fly, is a re-creation of someone's nightmare. Falsetto shrieks of Help Me, Help Me, are superimposed upon a booming bass, mysterious organ and echo effects. The end result is a most unusual single. Prior to this they'd recorded an earlier single, Psychedelic (That's Where It's At) that has some effective percussion and guitar backing which gives way to an instrumental freak-out. Both sides of the single featured an unusual instrument - the jawbone of an ass! Struck with the palm of a hand the teeth would rattle.

The band actually formed in 1964 and Kevin McIlhenny was killed in a car crash on his way to a band practice from his home town of Denver in early 1966 before they started recording. Their repertoire consisted of the popular hits of the day as well as their own more demented originals and they used to drive around Boulder in a hearse! Having just got going they received a further blow on 31 October 1966 when Robb Casseday and Don Hirshfield both received draft notices. With Tom Behn having been recruited to replace Kevin McIlhenny on drums and Peter Johnson brought in on piano, they continued as a four-piece and this was the line-up that recorded The Spider And The Fly.

In 1967, the band changed name to The Higher Elevation, backing Dave Diamond on his amazing "bubbly-fudge" Diamond Mine (a reworking of the instrumental track to their Spider And The Fly) before releasing three singles on Liberty.

The Gear Fab compilation includes all their singles, plus unreleased material and detailed sleevenotes which tell their story including their later incarnation The Higher Elevation and their liaison with Dave Diamond.

Compilation appearances have included: The Spider And The Fly on Pebbles, Vol. 3: The Acid Gallery (LP), Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 1 (LP), Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 1 (CD), Pebbles, Vol. 3 (CD), Pebbles Box (5-LP), Pebbles, Vol. 2 (ESD) (CD), Trash Box (5-CD) and Only In America Volume 2 (CD); Psychedelic (That's Where It's At) on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 18 (LP), Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 2 (LP/CD) and Only In America Volume 2 (CD); and a previously unreleased cut Let Your Lovin' Grow from Deceember 1965 can be found on Now Hear This! (CD). 45s:	I Shall Call Her Mary/ An Audience With Miss Priscilla Gray	(Laurie 3438) 1968
	Wake Up Jimmy/Tinsel and Ivy	(Laurie 3453) 1968

Michael Brown, who had previously played with New York-based Left Banke, wrote nine of the 10 tracks on the above album by this New York band, arranged them and played all the keyboards. The album, which is characterised by melodic vocal harmonies and either stringed or keyboard accompaniment, had considerable commercial potential and it's surprising that Montage did not enjoy greater success. The album included a ghostly version of Desiree, which had earlier been an unsuccessful single for The Left Banke, and I Shall Call Her Mary, an absolute gem that was also released as a single. A second, equally strong single, Wake Up Jimmy was also released. Later, after Brown had signed for Kama Sutra, he played on and wrote both cuts on Steve Martin's only solo single (he'd played with Martin in Left Banke), Two By Two/Love Songs In The Night. This was released on Buddah (219) in 1971. The two tracks later reappeared, along with three cuts from the Montage album and a few other items on the Soundtrack to Hot Parts, which starred Ultra Violet, famed for her movie work with Andy Warhol. Brown later formed Stories, but he left after their second album.

I Shall Call Her Mary has resurfaced on Nuggets, Vol. 11: Pop Part Four (LP); and you'll also find Tinsel and Ivy on Illusions From The Cracking Void. (VJ)

NB: There's also a split 45, I'm Movin' On/You Can't Make Me (Norton 826) 1999, with the 'A' side by Evil.

Hailing from Miami in Florida, this youthful five-piece began life as The Impalas before changing name to the Montells. Between 1965 and 1968 they were arguably the premier garage outfit to play in Florida and South Georgia, at venues like the Surf Club in Daytona Beach, headlining over acts like the pre-Allman Brothers, Allman Joys. Unashamedly influenced by The Pretty Things and The Kinks, their drummer Jeff Allen regularly travelled to London to see the Pretty Things play and hung out with Viv Prince. Changing name again to H.M. Subjects they went on to record a good cover of The Pretties' Don't Bring Me Down which was a local hit, although they reverted back to The Montells moniker again later.

You Can't Make Me, which is one of the finest primal R'n'B blasts you could ever wish for, has also appeared on Back From The Grave, Vol. 3 (LP), Back From The Grave, Vol. 2 (CD) and Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 3 (CD). The track was written by Danny Murphy and The Hustlers' Bob Leavitt. It was recorded at Criteria Studios with Bill Lachmiller guesting at the last minute on guitar (for an unavailable George Walden) and laying down that blistering solo.

Jeff Allen later went on to play with Evil, and a compilation featuring both bands has been released on Corduroy. It features the single sides, both versions of Don't Bring Me Down (as by H.M. Subjects) plus two tracks from May 1965, Can't Explain and Watch Out For That Guy. (VJ/MW/JLh)

The Monuments from Ada, Oklahoma had formed in 1964 and their line-up stabilised the following year. African Diamonds is a swingin' keyboard punker with a couple of neat fuzz solos. First compiled in the eighties on Monsters Of The Midwest Vol III (LP), it reappeared in 2004 on Just For Kicks Vol. 1 (CD) alongside four unreleased cuts - Don't Blame Me, Where Bad Boys Go, You Always Hurt The Ones You Love, and a cover of the Hollies' Bus Stop - and their story, courtesy of Mike Dugo. The B & G single has been attributed to a quintet from Hollywood or Santa Barbara, California. The GSR single is said to be by a bunch from Palo Alto while the third single on Cove is from goodness-knows-where, maybe even Canada? that single appears to be the source for two tracks on the bogus acetate compilation Thee Unheard Of (LP), where both Train's Late and Who Do You Love are credited to "The Aces".

Moogie Woogie is an attempt at using the moog to create some psychedelic blues and boogie with titles like Angel Dust Boogie, Moogie Boogie or Boogie Loo. Paul Beaver (from Beaver and Krause) was one of the first American specialists of the synthesizer. Bloomfield and Naftalin were previously in the Paul Butterfield Blues Band.

Moolah was the mysterious recording alias of Walter Burns and Maurice Roberson. Woe Ye Demons Possessed is a very strange album that was apparently recorded in a basement of spaced-out psychedelic electronics with trippy effects, which may interest fans of the German group Faust. It features six instrumental tracks: Crystal Waters, Terror Is Real, Courage, The Hard Hit, Mirrors and Redemption. They contain no guitars or bass and very little melody or structure to speak of but for some collectors and punters it works. On Crystal Waters drums provide a backbeat to some cosmic keyboards and psychedelic trickery. Mirrors is built upon a strange backwards tape loop, with some forward-playing organ improvised on top. Terror Is Real features some insane rambling, that add to the overall vibe. An official reissue of this would be welcome - there are rumors. (SR/VJ)

Moon was a late sixties pop-rock supergroup from Los Angeles. David Marks had been with The Beach Boys and The Band Without A Name; Matthew Moore was with Matthew Moore Plus Four and did solo work before joining the Mad Dogs; David Jackson came from Hearts and Flowers and was later with Dillard and Clark; Larry Brown had drummed with Davie Allan and The Arrows (and no doubt on many other combos behind film soundtracks and those Sidewalk/Tower releases produced by Mike Curb) and would later turn up in Gunhill Road.

Their albums are rated highly by some - not really psychedelic but with psychy touches and imagery, and more pop than rock - their sound has been compared to the Beatles and the Bee Gees from that period. They are certainly well-crafted, dare one say, progressive-pop. Almost all their material was written by the band.

I Should Be Dreaming got a further airing on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box); Brother Lou's Love Colony resurfaced on Realistic Patterns (CD); and Mothers and Fathers has recently got more exposure on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book). (MW/VJ/HM/BCr/SR)

45s:	Baby As Time Goes By/You're No Good	(Bofuz BF-1115) 1966
	Keep On Pushing/Devil's Season	(Round 69) 1968/9

The Moon-Dawgs formed in summer 1965 in New Orleans after the arrival of the Spencer brothers from Key West, Florida. The first single is a moody mid-tempo punker with strong raw vocals and screams from Genovese but a rather wimpy guitar break, where some biting fuzz would have been more suitable. You're No Good is a great Kinks-inspired punker with strong drumming, good yearning vocal style and a short frantic break - ideal for one of those 'desperate garage punker' compilations.

The band split up in 1967 but a year or so later got together again to record the totally awesome Keep On Pushing. Kicking off with some evil distortion, Genovese's vocals are in superb form for this aggressive testosterone-fuelled punker with vicious outbursts of distorted fuzz, driving beat, a psychotic break, and the climax-of-rage that has Genovese shouting incoherently. In my humble opinion this is an all-time top acid-punk classic and certainly No.1 on the shivers-down-the-spine and hairs-standing-on-the-neck scale, even beating out the Calico Wall's Living Sickness - yeah, it's that incredible!

Compilation appearances have included: You're No Good on The Lost Generation, Vol. 2 (LP) and Let's Dig 'Em Up, Vol. 2 (LP); Keep On Pushing on Louisiana Punk Groups From The Sixties, Vol. 2 (LP), Punk Classics, Vol. 3 (7" EP), Sixties Archive, Vol. 3 (CD) and A Deadly Dose Of Wylde Psych (CD); and Baby As Time Goes By on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 13 (LP) and Gravel Volume 1 (CD). NB: (1) and (2) reissued on one CD (Columbia) 1992. (1) and (2) reissued on CD (B.G.O. Records BGOCD 510) 2000 remastered and with additional sleevenotes.

Moondog was the pseudonym for Louis Thomas Hardin who was born on 26 May 1916. This guy was a strange blind character who lived rough on the streets of New York. He looked like Gandalf the Wizard and all his clothes were based on his interpretation of the Norse god Thor. He was consequentially known as The Viking of 6th Avenue.

He was blinded by a farming accident when he was 16 - he had grown up in Maryville, Kansas. He wrote eerie orchestral recordings that are worth checking out.

He partially supported himself by selling copies of his poetry and his musical philosophy. Because of his street post's proximity to the famed '52nd Street' nightclub strip, he was well-known to many jazz musicians and fans. He released a number of 78s, 45s and EPs in the fifties and several albums on various jazz labels.

In 1969, producer James William Guericio recorded an album for Columbia, The opening track, Stamping Ground, with its odd preamble of Moondog saying an epigram was featured on the 2-LP sampler Fill Your Head With Rock (CBS) in 1970.

A second album produced with Guercio featured Moondog's daughter on vocals, but it didn't attract the same attention as the first. These two albums have been released on a single CD on a couple of occasions now. In 1974, he moved to Germany, although he returned to the US briefly in 1989 for a tribute.

He died on 8 September 1999. (VJ)

	Not Hidin' Anymore/ Seventh Star (B Side non-LP)	(Shamley 44021) 1969

This Denver, Colorado outfit started out as a fine punk band releasing four singles for Tower. Amongst these are the frantic garage-punker You'll Come Back, plus excellent covers of I'm All Right and Baby, Please Don't Go. The flip to their fourth single was also a cover of The Guilloteens' folk-rocker.

The Moonrakers evolved out of surf act The Surfin' Classics, when vocalist/guitarist Doug Dolph was replaced by Denny Flanagan. As The Surfin' Classics, they'd performed a lot of Beach Boys/Ventures material, but their name change came about when they got matched in a 'Battle Of The Bands' with Colorado's Astronauts and needed a more 'with-it' name. Bob MacVittie thus renamed them after the book he was reading at the time, Ian Fleming's novel "Moonraker".

The band obtained their deal with Tower through their manager Roger Christian, a well-known L.A. disc jockey. Christian (who co-wrote Little Deuce Coupe and Don't Worry Baby with Brian Wilson), had 'connections'...

The Moonrakers thus got to open for many major groups in Denver, including The Dave Clark Five, the Righteous Brothers and Sonny and Cher. They even got to meet The Beatles and Bill Haley and The Comets when they played for 50,000 screaming fans at Red Rocks Amphitheatre, in the foothills of the Rocky Mountains.

The band also helped promote a Denver concert with The Byrds around the time of Mr. Tambourine Man in the Ballroom at Lakeside Gardens Amusement Park, home of one of the greatest old-time rollercoasters in the world. Veeder Van Dorn: - "The Byrds parked their tour bus at the Moonrakers' bass player's parents house for a few hours while they prepared for the concert, but when they all arrived at the Amusement Park, Joel's hair was dyed orange and he was mumbling 'the colours are flowing.... can you see them... can you see them?' about all the rainbow colours flowing around the Concert Hall!"

With the onset of the psychedelic era came a dramatic charge of style in The Moonrakers music which is apparent on their album. Full of psychedelia with religious overtones, the cover shows the group below an altar and there is some good psychedelic guitar work plus great lyrics on The Pot Starts To Boil.

During the recording of the album, Webber (ex-The Soul Survivors) and MacVittie left being replaced by Randy Walrath and Bob Sauner. Van Dorn also quit joining The Poor, where he got to know Bruce Palmer at a gig with Buffalo Springfield at Hollywood's 'Whisky A-Go-Go'. Shortly afterwards, Van Dorn, MacVittie, Corbetta and Webber formed Sugarloaf, although Van Dorn left after a few months (he wrote one song Things Gonna Change Some on their debut album Spaceship Earth). He then formed Mescalero Space Kit with Sam Fuller and Kip Gilbert (both ex-Rainy Daze), and Mark Kincaid (ex-Electric Prunes). Van Dorn: - "Kip Gilbert's brother Tim, who'd had a songwriting hit with Incense And Peppermints, arranged a demo session with Saul Zaentz at Fantasy Records in Berkeley. At the time Fantasy was having a huge success with Creedence Clearwater Revival. One of the original songs we recorded Earth Ain't A Jail was soon translated into I'm Just A Singer In A Rock And Roll Band by the Moody Blues...".

Joel Brandes later went on to manage Eric Burdon and War.

Compilation appearances have included: Baby Please Don't Go on Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 3 (LP), Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 2 (CD), Psychotic Moose And The Soul Searchers (LP), Victims Of Circumstances, Vol. 1 (LP), Victims Of Circumstance, Vol. 2 (CD); You'll Come Back on Pebbles, Vol. 10 (LP); I'm All Right on Everywhere Interferences (LP) and Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box); I Don't Believe and Baby Please Don't Go on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 18 (LP); and the previously unreleased Ode To Miss Representation appears on Psychedelic States: Colorado (2-CD). Another ESP oddity, this one combines folk psych and spacey jazz. Guitarist and organist Jerry Moore was discovered performing folk songs in the Basket Houses of New York's Greenwich Village by musician Randy Burns who got him signed to the cult label. On Life Is A Constant Journey Home, Moore's self-penned songs incorporated aspects of folk, gospel, and R&B. The album also featured Detroit poet Dudley Randall's Ballad Of Birmingham, which captures the KKK's devastating bombing of the 16th Street Baptist Church in Birmingham, Alabama. Moore later became a street preacher before vanishing into obscurity. Les Moore (LA)

ALBUM: 1 YESTERDAY (Natural 2154) 1973 R1

Les Moore hitchhiked from his home in southern California to San Francisco when he was just 14. He worked the coffee houses and parks by day and stayed in communea at night. By 1967 disillusioned with the mayhem of San Francisco he headed east, and eventually settled in New Orleans. There he became a regular at clubs such as Andy's and The Warehouse, and he eventually linked up with Terry Kane of Capricorn Records after a gig in support of The Allman Brothers. They recorded an album but it was scrapped when Duane Allman was killed. The pair secured a release from their contracts, and then established their own label, Natural Records to release their album Yesterday, which was recorded at home on a two-track machine. It featured a long version of The Beatles' A Day In The Life amongst some pretty dark material. When it flopped they headed west in search of a new deal. None was forthcoming but Moore did record an album in Austin, Texas. He eventually ended up in Matthews, North Carolina. (VJ)

NB: α shown as by Matthew Moore Plus Four. β Matthew Moore solo.

This excellent outfit featured Matthew Moore prior to his formation of Moon. The GNP single kicks off with a vibrant beat-punker with strong vocals and wailing harp, whilst the flip is a brooding menacing affair. An accomplished first outing... and it gets better. Their version of Codyne is quite frankly, difficult to top, with forceful vocals and powerful backing in a beat-punk setting. The flip is back to cool folk-beat but the standard remains very high. If this outfit has more (unreleased) material, it certainly merits a retrospective collection!

Codine has been compiled on Mindrocker, Vol. 5 (LP), Happy Together - The Very Best Of White Whale Records (CD) and Garage Beat '66 1 (CD). (MW)

Born in Nashville, Tennessee in 1952 R. Stevie Moore made hundreds of homemade recordings (mostly on cassette) that he sold to his fans. The albums are pretty oddball with spoken passages and sound effects within a guitar-pop format. He made several further albums in the late seventies, eighties and nineties.

Now he quietly resides in New Jersey as curator of his own museum. (VJ)

45: I Think I'll Just Go And Find Me A Flower/
Yesterday Holds On (Capitol 2115) 1968

Matt Hyde, Jim Kehn and Terry Johnson were original members of The Coachmen, a San Fernando Valley group formed around 1960. Jay Lewis (real name James Donnellan) joined The Coachmen soon after its inception replacing keyboard player Jim Hobson who left to join The Du Vals.

During the sixties, the band members also played with other groups in the area; in Johnson and Lewis' case, Bobby Bond & The Agents where they met Barry Brown (later a founding member of Morning). Kehn meanwhile worked with Richie Podolor doing session work for the likes of Iron Butterfly, Blues Image and Duane Eddy.

MORE PSYCHEDELIC GUITARS - Self Titled CD.

The above line-up got together during 1967 and through jazz guitarist Howard Roberts got signed to Capitol Records, working with Axelrod (Electric Prunes producer, Pride, solo concept albums) as producer. I Think I'll Just Go And Find Me A Flower was infectious flower-pop. The flip is more in the Axelrod - Prunes 'Mass' mould - monastic chanting, muffled lines of twisting psychy guitar, oblique lyrics (albeit not in Latin) - unusual and strangely atmospheric. After this single, the band changed name to Wind, with the addition of Mike Dean, but split up in early 1968.

Kehn did session work on Donovan's Barabajagal album while Lewis worked in a bar band with Snoopy Pfisterer from Love. When the Forever Changes line-up imploded, Snoopy recommended Lewis to Arthur Lee as a replacement for John Echols and he joined Love, reverting to his real name James Donnellan.

Matt Hyde meanwhile began building recording consoles around town with former Coachmen Jim Hobson who was also doing session work on the side. They ended up building their own studio called The Recording Studio in Tarzana, California with financial partner, Joe Long. Kehn attended one of Love's sessions and suggested to Lewis that he take Love to record there, which they did with Hobson guesting on piano.

When Donnellan (now reverting back to Jay Lewis) was dropped by Love in late 1969, he reunited with Barry Brown from Bobby Bond & The Agents in the deathroes of his latest group, East Lynne and the pair began talking about forming a new group. Hobson was approached and the trio formed the core of Morning. Kehn and Johnson were also recruited as side musicians and Hyde worked as an engineer on the group's albums.

You'll also find I Think I'll Just Go And Find Me A Flower on Soft Sounds For Gentle People (CD) and Yesterday Holds On can be heard on Vol 2 of the same series. (James Kehn/MW/VJ/NW/)

The follow-up to Psychedellic Guitars (Custom CS-1078) 196?, this is another of those 'exploito' cash-in albums that was the work of studio session musicians. Guitarist Jerry Cole was the man behind most of the Crown and Custom label titles, which were produced in Los Angeles. The instrumentals on this one aren't even psychedelic. (VJ)

45: (I've Got) Nowhere To Run/
(I've Got) Nowhere To Run (instr.) (Peak P-4453) 1967

This was a rock quintet from Stillwater in Minnesota. (I've Got) Nowhere To Run is completely unconnected to the Martha and The Vandellas song. In fact it was the only song the band had ready to record, so the record company put an instrumental version of it on the flip side. It was the first release on the Peak label.

Compilation appearances include: (I've Got) Nowhere To Run (unreleased stereo version) on Psychedelic Microdots Of The Sixties, Vol. 1 (CD); and (I've Got) Nowhere To Run on Root '66 (LP), The Best Of Metrobeat! Vol. 1 (LP) and Garage Beat '66 2 (CD). (VJ)

45: There She Goes/
Would You Believe (Love Is Dead) (Challenge 59330) 1966

From California, Chris Morgan and The Togas' single is an excellent slice of 1966. There She Goes is an excellent stomper with a little fuzzy guitar. The flip is a powerful folk-rock ballad. A previous single was released as by The Togas - Hurry To Me/Baby, I'm In The Mood For You (Challenge 59309) in August 1965, but is unfortunately inferior beat-folk-pop.

Compilation appearances have included: - There She Goes on Mindrocker, Vol. 1 (LP); Would You Believe (Love Is Dead) on Boulders, Vol. 11 (LP), Ya Gotta Have Moxie, Vol. 1 (2-CD) and Psychedelic Archives, Vol. 7 (double cassette box set); and Babe I'm In The Mood For You on Every Groovy Day (LP). 45: Of Dreams/She's The Nitetime (ABC Probe 474) 1969

NB: 'A' side is an edited version of an LP track.

This rare album from Long Island, New York contains some superb psychedelic guitar work and powerful drumming on tracks like Of Dreams, Purple and Love. All the material was written by Steve Morgen and he also co-produced the album with Murray Shiffrin. It's definitely worth obtaining and is now a solid collectable. Indeed, some collectors rate this as one of the very best heavy psych albums. The songs are strong and strange (check out tracks like Welcome To The Void, Of Dreams and Purple with its strange drum pattern) and the lyrics are intriguing.

Scheduled for release in early December 1968 the album didn't appear until December 1969. By this time the psychedelic era was in its death throes and Rizzo and Ratti had left the band, being replaced by Ronnie Genosa and Bob Maiman (who are listed on the sleeve although they didn't play on the album).

Morgen split soon after the album was released. Shiffrin joined The Joffret Ballet (a US ballet company) as a touring guitarist and Steve Morgen headed for L.A. In the early seventies they reunited in New York for some jams and resolved to form a new band but Shiffrin tragically died at the age of just 27 before anything was recorded. Steve Morgen then decided to focus on acting.

The single version of Of Dreams has resurfaced on 30 Seconds Before The Calico Wall (CD) and the album version can also be found on The Arf! Arf! (El Cheapo) Sampler (2-CD). (VJ/MW)

From Fort Lauderdale, Florida and previously known as the Impressions (V). They followed their local debut with an excellent up-tempo fuzz-punker, backed by an impressive beat-punker. Johnny Hartigan would turn up in a seventies outfit called Truth.

Sammy Hall wrote a song called A Little Bit of Lovin' which was a candidate for the follow-up to There Goes Life, but he left and was with The Trolls briefly before joining The Birdwatchers; the latter got to record the song.

	α	I'll Space You/Be Your King (PS)	(Starshine 7061) 199?

NB: α an early nineties reissue (500 copies) of two unreleased 1971 tracks.

The highlight of this Alliance, Ohio band's otherwise over-rated album is the 17-minute title track which is full of acid guitar work and incorporates the group's own arrangement of When Johnny Comes Marching Home. A free poster came with the album which was convincingly counterfeited in 1986.

Curiously, on the label of the first single it says both of these songs are "from the L.P. The Last Supper". This was the working title for the album during the recording sessions.

Original drummer Paul Cassidy was replaced by Bob LaNave, and a new side was recorded containing the 17-minute The Only Truth.

Compilation coverage appears to have been limited to The Only Truth on Reverberation IV (CD). (MMy/VJ/GGI/MRr/MW)

2(B)	STRUCK LIKE SILVER	(Fantasy 9402) 1972

45:	Tell Me A Story/Easy Keeper	(Vault 972) 1972

This fine Los Angeles-based group was thought by some to originally be known as The Morning and The Evening. This is not the case. Jim Hobson has recently confirmed to Nick Warburton that the group was always known as Morning. Prior to his involvement with Morning Hobson was in a surf band The DuVals and The Coachmen. The group was formed after Jay Lewis, also known as Jay Donnellan, had been fired from Love by Arthur Lee. Jim Hobson also appeared on Love's Out Here. When the band signed a recording contract with Vault they retained complete control of the writing, engineering, arranging and producing of their first album, which is an underrated folk-influenced gem. It has a crisp, yet often sleepy sound, which is at its best on And I'm Gone and Sleepy Eyes. The album closes with a 90-second country gem Dirt Roads (the only track written by Jim Kehn) which is worthy of comparison with the title track of Quicksilver's Happy Trails.

The line-up then changed; Bruce Wallace being replaced by the former Kaleidoscope member Stuart Brotman and Terry Johnson only playing on one track. Vault was bought by Fantasy and the follow-up Struck Like Silver continues in similar vein, though the drug-influenced sleepiness has made way for a more acoustic sound epitomised by Only To Say Goodnight and Now I Lay Me Down. Understand My Ways on side two particularly highlights Jay Lewis' harmonious vocals and Jim Hobson's melodic piano work, whilst Comin' In Love features Chris Darrow (another ex-Kaleidoscope) on fiddle. Jay's Movie Song is a beautiful instrumental while Now I Lay Me Down and Hoyt Axton's Never Been To Spain merge more sensitive guitar work with artistic piano playing.

When the group broke up, Jim Hobson and Jay Lewis became session musicians and worked with Delaney Bramlett, Country Joe, Danny O'Keefe and Rabindra Danks. (VJ/SR/NW)

From Braintree, Massachusetts Enos and Grandmont were originally with The Vandels who played the South Shore from 1963. After they split Grandmont formed The Bourbons with other Vandells but would team up with Enos again, when the latter formed Morning After whilst at Dean Junior College in Franklin.

Things You Do, a punk-pop gem, can also be heard on Psychotic Moose And The Soul Searchers (LP) and New England Teen Scene, Vol. 3 (LP). More recently, it has reappeared on the New England Teen Scene (CD), whose detailed story of this band provided the member details above, alongside an unreleased version. 	No More/Look At Me Now	(Fairyland 1001) 1967
	Go Away/Be A Friend	(Fairyland 1003) 1967

This outfit came from Topeka, Kansas. Their Roulette album is well worth obtaining particularly for the superb opening cut Crusader's Smile although many of the other cuts like Cherry Street feature good guitar work. Their singles were made prior to the album and are much more punkish. Go Away has a good catchy guitar riff.

They had a good live reputation and performed great cover versions of many of the punk classics of the era, which were full of fuzz and feedback.

Cut The Chatter is a compilation of their singles and previously unreleased material. The Collectable CD releases featured that album with bonus tracks comprised of singles and previously unreleased material.

Compilation coverage has so far included: Sing Out on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 1 (2-LP & CD) and Crusader's Smile on Ah Feel Like Ahcid (CD); No More on Monsters of The Midwest, Vol. 1 (cassette), Pebbles, Vol. 14 (LP) and Garage Beat '66 5 (CD); and Go Away on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. 11 (LP); an unreleased 1966 stereo demo of Winter Dreams is also on The Cicadelic 60's, Vol. 5 (CD); A Touch Of Magic and No More on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 5 (CD); Someday and Flying Above Myself on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 6 (CD); Sycamore Dreamer and Our Last Song on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 9 (CD); and eight more tracks (No More, Look At Me Now, Be A Friend, Go Away, Sycamore Dreamer, Then Came The Light, Sing Out and This Sportin' Life) including some demos appear on The Thingies Have Arrived!! (CD), which also features The Thingies and The Exotics. Hippie-rock outfit Morning Glory formed in San Francisco in 1967. This probably helps explain their The Mamas & The Papas/Jefferson Airplane West Coast harmony vocal sound. Their album comprises 10 originals, mostly penned by Bob Bohanna. The standard of the material is inconsistent to say the least making a positive recommendation difficult but one cut Jelly Gas Flame is a superb piece of acid-rock with layered vocals, sound effects and catchy guitar - a pity it isn't all this good. I See The Light and Hey Little Girl also catch the ear. Side two wins out over side one which is more in a hard-rock vein. The album was produced by Abe "Voco" Kesh.

Bob Bohanna later played with Pure Love and Pleasure.

Need Someone and So Glad Being Here also featured on the 1968 compilation Electric Food (LP). (VJ/GG)

His early Columbia singles ranged from soppy big-production ballads to dramatic, garagy pop-beat. The best examples of the latter are Hey Puppet Man and I Looked In The Mirror.

Recorded in California, Friends Of Mine is a decent album of folk-rock and rural-rock songs with the backing of ace studio musicians.

He got into acting and moved to the West Coast but continued to write and record. In the seventies he moved to Nashville, has written numerous hits for country artists, and received several awards including a Grammy.

45:	It's Gonna Take A While/Another Guy	(Palmer 5027) 1967

It's Gonna Take A While, a sultry garage outing with a great fuzz break, has been popular with the compilers - Sixties Rebellion 7: Backyard Patio (LP), Acid And Flowers (CD), and Teenage Shutdown Vol. 2 (LP & CD). These Morticians were from River Rouge, Michigan and there are more unreleased cuts preserved on tape, earmarked for future exposure. (MW/MM)

45s:	Dedicated Music Man/ To Understand Someone (PS)	(Philips 40524) 1968
	Slicker Beauty Hints/Ingenue's Theme	(Philips 40567) 1968

Formed in 1965 as a foursome, with guitarist Bobby Ronga, they were originally known as The Teddy Boys, from the Hudson Valley region of upstate New York. They were also behind an amazing single credited to Pinocchio & The Puppets. In 1967 they changed their name to Mortimer. Ronga departed during the recording of the album and they carried on as a trio. Their poppy-rock mix comes from a folk-rock direction, with some psychy moves reminiscent of the Beatles and the Hollies. Their album contains one good psychedelic track Where Dragons Guard The Doors, but the remainder (including tracks like Singing To The Sunshine and Life's Sweet Magic) is more in the soft-rock/Bee Gees vein.

All the songs were written and arranged by Smith/Masson/Van Benschoten/ Conga and their album was produced by Daniel Secunda for B. B. & D. Productions.

The CD reissue of the album adds both singles and two unreleased demos from 1967-8.

Where Dragons Guard The Doors and a previously unreleased cut Second Floor have both appeared on The Revola Rock Machine Turns You On (CD); and another unreleased song People Who Are Different has got some exposure on An Apple A Day (CD). (SR/VZ/MW)

ALBUM:	1	SEA CARAVAN	(TAL Enterprises D-12977) 1972 R1

Mosiac hailed from Kansas. Their album has a classical influence and is instrumental with lots of moody acoustic guitar strumming. (VJ)

J Moser & The Hots (AZ)

ALBUM:	1	FOR LIFE	(Moco Records FIT-003) 1975 SC

This Arizona band is a marginal case for inclusion as their album has white soulful vocals, funky rock arrangements and lots of piano and rhythm guitars. The extended title track has lots of electronic, sound effects and phased drumming. The rest of the album is less innovative but still solid. Overall, it's interesting and worth a listen if you can track down a copy. (VJ)

45:	Oobleck/Moses	(Together T-113) 1969

From Moses Lake, Washington and originally known as The Bards, they moved to L.A. in 1969 and teamed up with Curt Boettcher and Keith Olsen. Under this auspicious production team they recorded an unreleased album and the above single. After the album's completion however Curt Boettcher wanted to go back to the Northwest to sing with the band which delighted Mike and Mardi but not Bob and Chuck who wanted to get back on their old gig circuit and preserve their autonomy. They split and Mike and Mardi left, ultimately heading back to L.A. to pursue writing and recording careers.

The Boettcher/Olsen produced material has finally been released on the Gear Fab CD above and includes both sides of the single. For more information see The Bards entry. (MW)

45: Way She Walks/What Can I Say? (20th Century 6645) 1966

Long Island was home to this mob. They put out just one teenbeat raver with Way She Walks having pounding drums, a neat guitar outburst, and a vocalist intent on telling us how he likes the way his girlfriends' hips swivel... The flip also features a good guitar break but is most notable for the gong that ends the song.

Compilation appearances include: The Way She Walks on Destination Frantic! (CD); and What Can I Say on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 4 (LP). (VJ/MW)

45: α Gypsy Wedding/Gone Fishin' (Reprise REP 1096) 1972

NB: α double sided promos also exist.

Born in December 1942 at Paradise Valley in California, James Robert "Bob" Mosley played bass with the Misfits and The Joel Scott Hill Trio before founding Moby Grape in 1966. In 1969, Mosley left the group to join the US Marines (one of the very few San Francisco musicians to do this!) but after nine months and a fight with an officer, he had to return to civil life. He rejoined Moby Grape in 1971 for their fifth album and, when the group disbanded again, he went solo and co-produced his first album with Michael O'Connor (a friend of Chris Darrow). The sessions were held in November 1971 in Hollywood with a backing group including Allen Wehr, the former drummer of Morning Glory, and Ed Black (ex-Superfine Dandelion). The Memphis Horns also played on three tracks. The album is interesting overall, with good vocals and strong instrumental parts displayed on various styles: rock, West Coast, country-rock and white soul. The best moments are probably The Joker and Gone Fishin. The album included a new version of Gypsy Wedding also recorded on Moby Grape's 20 Granite Creek.

After this, Mosley played for a while with Chris Darrow but nothing was released. In October 1973, he teamed again with the Moby Grape guitarist Jerry Miller to play the Californian bars and clubs circuit under various names (Maby Grope, Original Grape...). The group finally managed to get a contract with Polydor and released a decent album as Fine Wine in 1976. For obscure reasons, the album was only released in Germany. Miller then left Mosley to play with the other ex-Grape members Lewis and Spence.

In 1977/78, Mosley returned playing the clubs circuit with John Craviotto and Jeff Blackburn (ex-Blackburn and Snow) as The Ducks. For several weeks, they were joined by Neil Young (some tapes and bootlegs exist). Between various Moby Grape reformations, Mosley would later have severe personal problems (he spent several years homeless) and had to wait until the late eighties to release some other solo records: Wine And Roses (Niteshift) 1986, Mosley Grape, Live at Indigo Ranch (San Francisco Sound) 1989 and Never Dreamed (Taxim) 1999. In recent years, he has played several live dates with Moby Grape. (SR)

The Sacramento band was originally known as The Jaguars, changing their name to Moss and The Rocks in 1965. The same line-up became known as Public Nuisance in 1966, recording two albums in 1968-1969 that only recently have been made available (Gotta Survive LP/CD, see Public Nuisance entry for details). Both formats include the four Moss and The Rocks sides as bonus material.

Both sides of their single figure on The Ikon Records Story (2-CD) and the Chattahoochee version of There She Goes also got an airing on Garage Beat '66 3 (CD). (CF/JD)

	I'll Be Long Gone/Bring Me Home	(Reprise 1041) 1971

Mother Earth originated in Texas, (Andrews, Rains and Arthur had earlier played with Wigs), but were one of a number of bands who were attracted by the San Francisco music scene and it was there they made their home. They first came to attention nationally in the film 'Revolution' and the associated soundtrack featured them singing three tracks Without Love, Stranger In My Own Home Town and the title track.

With their roots in the blues, Tracy Nelson's harsh voice was Mother Earth's prime strength. Powell St. John too was a talented songwriter and friend of Janis Joplin. He also wrote some songs for The 13th Floor Elevators and both his Monkey Island and Living With The Animals (Down In Jungle Land) share common themes - the latter commenting on the thick-headed redneck Texans who would regularly chase the local artsy types and pound their heads for their drunken amusement.

Their debut album demonstrated how they blended soul, rock, soul, blues, country and psychedelia into their sound. One of the songs Powell St. John wrote for The 13th Floor Elevators, The Kingdom Of Heaven Is Within You is included here. Mike Bloomfield, Mark Naftalin and Barry Goldberg all made guest appearances on this album.

Make A Joyful Noise also blended soul, rock, blues, country and psychedelia. This album featured guest appearances by Boz Scaggs and Peter Drake and was their best-selling album.

The band ended their career in Nashville and their later albums were very much in a country vein.

Naftalin, who had joined from The Butterfield Blues Band went on to play with Electric Flag and The Wizards From Kansas. Fiero played with the Sir Douglas Quintet. McMahon later played for Commander Cody.

A track from their first album Sorry Heidi Neldi, The Telephone Company's Cut Us Off was also featured on the Blues Package (LP) compilation. They contributed to: Zig-Zag Festival (1970) (LP), Hot Platters (1971) (LP), Together (1971) (LP), Warner/Reprise Display Case Vol 3 (1972) (LP) and Love Is The Song We Sing: San Francisco Nuggets 1965-70 (2007) (4-CD plus book). 45s:	Flim Flam Man/ Where Do We Go From Here	(20th Century 6687) 1967
	Goodbye Mary/Sidewalks Of My Mind	(Epic 10379) 1968

A Los Angeles based studio-project of sunshine/soft-pop, with creative wunderkind Curt Boettcher at the controls, aided by the likes of Wrecking Crew's Larry Knechtel (arranger on the Epic single).

Danny Janssen was a pop writer/producer for the likes of Bobby Sherman and TV products like The Partridge Family, Scooby-Doo Where Are You, and HBR-manufactured girl-group Josie & The Pussycats (featuring future Charlie's Angel Cheryl Ladd). (SR/MW)

The Motifs (NJ)

45:	Molly/If I Gave You Love (PS)	(Selsom 107) 1966

Open Up Yer Door, Vol. 2 (LP) features If I Gave You Love by this New Jersey band and both sides of the single can also be found on Storm In The Garage (3-CD box). Other Motifs also popped up in Minneapolis and the Pacific Northwest. (VJ)

The Motion

45:	The Thief/Granny Goose	(Dore 781) 1967

A little known band, The Thief has resurfaced on Moxie Punk EP Box Set, 60's Punk E.P., Vol. 4 (7" EP) and Gravel Volume 2 (CD). (VJ)

The Motions (OH)

45s:	Big Chief/Where Is Your Heart	(ABC-Paramount 10529) 1964
	Beatle Drums/Long Hair	(Mercury 72297) 1964
	I Can Dance/Land Beyond The Moon	(Mercury 72368) 1964
	Bumble Bee 65/Motions	(Mercury 72413) 1965

In those crazed early days of Beatlemania when anything that wasn't English didn't seem to matter, The Motions still held sway as a top band in the Cleveland area. They had the local scene sewn up in '64, playing Beatles rallies to thousands of screaming teens, and going on to open for every top act of the day. Land Beyond The Moon, their third of four releases, was a torrid chunk of reverb insanity. Wilder still is the fact that the oldest guy in the band was 14!

Compilation appearances have included: Bumble Bee '65 on Wavy Gravy, Vol. 2 (LP); Land Beyond The Moon on Hipsville 29 B.C. (LP); and Long Hair on Swinging At The Go Go Club! (LP). (VJ)

The Motivations (CA)

45:	The Birds/Motivate	(Pride 301) 1964?

You can also hear The Birds on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 6 (LP), Scum Of The Earth, Vol. 1 (LP) and Scum Of The Earth (2-CD). Glendale, California was their home turf. (VJ)

The Motleys (CA)

45s:	I'll See Your Light/Louisiana	(Valiant V-724) 1965
	You/My Race Is Run	(Valiant V 739) 1966

Energetic beat/pop sounds from Los Angeles. Louisiana is a dynamic sixties rocker which doffs its cap to the previous decade via a Diddleyesque shuffle and Chuck Berry-style guitar solo.

Compilation appearances include: You on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 5 (CD); and My Race Is Run on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 6 (CD). (MW)

Motor City Bonnevilles (MI)

45s:	Up Your Mind/That Lonely Feeling	(Patlow 7009) 1966
	Make High School Sally/Wrong Side	(Red Rooster 310) c1967

This outfit was from Detroit as the name suggests. Make Up Your Mind, a fairly typical garage-punker with a Kinks-influenced guitar riff, can also be heard on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 3 (LP). (VJ)

The Mott's Men (VT)

45: She Is So Mean/Comin' Or Goin' (Loren 105) 1966

An obscure band The Mott's Men came from St. Johnsbury, Vermont. She Is So Mean, a primal rocker, has also resurfaced on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 3: The Auditorium (LP & CD), Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 15 (LP & CD) and Cry Of Atlantis: North Country Scene 2 (CD). (IT)

Formed in 1969 by Felix Pappalardi after the demise of Cream (he was their producer) and Leslie West (ex-Vagrants), Mountain was one of the first successful hard-rock acts, in the same style, not surprisingly, as Cream.

Although their apparent leader was the huge Leslie West, Pappalardi was in fact the band's musical director, producer and main songwriter. A respected musician, he began working in the mid-sixties on the New York folk scene and played with Fred Neil, Tom Rush, Richard Farina and Richie Havens. He was also a producer and worked with The Youngbloods, Apple Pie Motherhood Band, Bo Grumpus, Hot Tuna, Devil's Anvil and Canada's Kensington Market.

One of their first appearances was the Woodstock Festival and two songs: Blood Of The Sun and Jack Bruce/Pete Brown's Theme For an Imaginary Western appeared on the Woodstock compilations.

Their first album Climbing was "made to be played loud" and sold well. The opening cut Mississippi Queen (also released as a single) had a southern rock feel. Theme For An Imaginary Western came with Procol Harum-style keyboards, Silver Paper is a credible blues-rocker and the finale Boys In The Band ensures the album finishes on a high. It's probably their most interesting effort, the songs being well-structured and penned by West, Laing, Pappalardi and his wife Gail Collins.

MOUNTAIN
NANTUCKET SLEIGHRIDE

MOUNTAIN - Nantucket Sleighride CD.

Mountain toured constantly and three more albums were released in two years, still in the same vein: loud guitar, bass in the style of Jack Bruce, plus heavy percussion and keyboards, with occasional "lighter" cuts. The vocals were shared between Pappalardi and West.

The group first broke up in 1972. West and Corky Laing attempted to revive Cream with Jack Bruce forming West, Bruce and Laing for three albums. In 1974, Mountain reformed without Steve Knight for two best avoided efforts. Leslie West then went solo and released two uninspired albums for Phantom in 1975: Leslie West Band and The Great Fatsby, the latter with Mick Jagger.

Corky Laing later released Makin' It On The Streets (Elektra 7E-1097) 1977 with Clapton and played with various Canadian hard-rock groups. Pappalardi recorded two solo records; Felix Pappalardi & Creation in 1976 and Don't Worry Mum in 1979. He was shot to death in 1983 by his second wife (Gail Collins - designer of Mountain's album covers).

Over The Top is a 35-track 2-CD compilation presented in a digipak that includes two previously unissued numbers with Noel Redding. There's a strong Cream influence on tracks like Blood Of The Sun, Dreams Of Milk And Honey, the breezy Silver Paper and Theme From An Imaginary Western, which was co-written by Jack Bruce. The keyboard-oriented Travellin' In The Dark was in the Procol Harum mould. Also check out the classic 'World In Action' TV theme Nantucket Sleighride, the bluesy Blind Man, and Sittin' On A Rainbow, which gives a nod in the direction of Creedence Clearwater Revival.

Bootleg Series Volume 1: Live At San Bernadino 1971 CD is the first in a series of recordings which aims to present previously unreleased performances from the long career of Leslie West and Felix Pappalardi's Mountain. Remastered it includes superb versions of Nantucket Sleighride, Crossroader, Never In My Life, Mississippi Queen, and more. Bootleg Series Volume 2: Live At The Shepherds Bush Empire (CD) presents a gig from 17th September 1997 featuring a guest appearance from The Who's John Entwhistle. It too includes favourites like Crossroader, Nantucket Sleighride and Mississippi Queen. Bootleg Series Volume 3: Capitol Theatre 1973 (CD) features a performance from the Capitol Theatre in Passaic, New Jersey on New Years Eve 1973 and features a newly reformed Mountain. Bootleg Series Volume 6: Live in NJ Capitol Theatre 1974 (CD) captures the trio after they had reformed for a series of successful gigs. Canadian Festival Express 1970 captures a show from 1970 and has been specially mastered for this release. Live Fillmore East New York 1970 (CD) features some of their finest songs from a December 1970 concert. Live: The Road Goes On Forever (CD) draws from a 1972 show and includes an 18-minute version of Nantucket Sleighride. This album contains a lot of extended jamming on cuts like: Long Red, Waiting To Take You Away, Crossroader and Nantucket Sleighride. Olympic Auditorium 1970 commits a live 1970 concert to CD. Roll Over Beethoven (CD) captures a live performance from the Capitol Theatre in Passaic, New Jersey on November 3, 1974. This CD is notable for a high-powered version of Jingle Bells as well as versions of Theme For An Imaginary Western, Never In My Life, Mississippi Queen, Nantucket Sleighride and more.

This Chicago-based outfit was sued by Mountain for stealing the name. In actual fact they had the name first but never really recovered from the law suit which required them to state on their album cover that they were in no way connected with Mountain. If you like The Grateful Dead you should like this album because it's very similar in style. The title cut, in particular, includes some beautiful ringing guitar work but almost all the tracks are good with their long cover of the traditional arrangement I Know You Rider and the psychedelic Apache Canyon other highlights. The album, which is now rare, is recommended listening.

Ed Mooney recalls that "Our plan, when we recorded, was to have a seamless transition between the last three songs - I Know You Rider - Apache Canyon - Hexahedron. That idea never made it onto the album but we often did this for live shows, with the three songs often ending up being 45 minutes to an hour long, depending on the quality and quantity of substances we ingested!" Incidentally, the new Gear Fab CD features these final three tracks run together as originally intended. The bonus cuts are live versions of The Bus Keeps Rollin', Earle Greene/Carl Montgomery's Six Days On The Road and Willie Dixon's (Meet Me) Down In The Bottom (the quality of these is not great) and two tracks (Ticket In My Pocket and Young Man's Blues) recorded at Plynth Studios in 1970 with lots of fans present. The five additions are only really of archival interest.

The band's origins can be traced back to 1962, when Ed Mooney, Tom Jurkens and Steve Krater were students at Loyola University on the north side of Chicago. Mooney was in Moons and The Stars from 1962-1964. Jurkens was in Jurk & The Bushman back in 1965. When they split, Mooney and Jurkens formed a rock and blues band called Rhythms Children, which also featured Steve Titra, Joe Wilderson, and Steve Krater. This outfit dissolved in 1967 when Wilderson opted to leave for Canada to avoid the increasingly unpopular Vietnam War draft.

MOUNTAIN BUS - Sundance LP.

HIGH ON MOUNT RUSHMORE

MOUNT RUSHMORE - High On... LP.

Bill Kees, formerly of Fantasy and Hearts Of Soul then joined the band and they re-named it as Mountain Bus. This incarnation of the band lasted until April 1970 when Krater left for a two week honeymoon. While he was gone Les Sims filled in for him; upon Krater's return, the decision was made to go with both drummers. The band never made much money and some of the members worked at local record stores, one of which, Round Records, was owned by David Solomon. The store eventually ended up becoming the band's headquarters and Solomon assumed the role as manager/ bookings agent. One of his colleagues, Al Krockey, also owned a record store. At this time, record companies were driving up prices to maximise their profits. Al, however, saw an opportunity to start a record label which would sponsor local bands and put out records at much lower prices than the major labels. So Good Records was formed and Sundance was its first release.

After the demise of Mountain Bus, several members put together a new band called Sky Farmer.

Compilation appearances have included: Sundance on Gear Fab's Psychedelic Sampler (CD); and I Know You Rider on Reverberation IV (CD). (VJ/EM/Gear Fab)

45: Fly My Paper Airplane/
Sad Man's Dayze (Kiderian K-45115) 1967

Formed initially as The Coachmen in Whitewater, Wisconsin they soon changed their name when they found out about the many other Coachmen. Over the next few years they travelled far and wide, often opening for successful national acts, including The Lemon Pipers, Ohio Express, The Trashmen, The Music Explosion and The New Colony Six. They were popular in the Midwest, not just for their music but also for their light show. Indeed it is thought they were the first Wisconsin band to utilise a travelling strobe light.

Personnel came and went and several future notables passed through their ranks (Cook, Oakley and Warner). In 1967 their sole single appeared on the Chicago-based Kiderian label and resulted in their swirling psychedelic track Fly My Paper Airplane being included erroneously on Psychedelic States: Illinois Vol. 1 (CD). Another eight cuts from that period were preserved by founder members Henry and Pfeifer and presented to Gear Fab for the retrospective, which also features a previously unreleased alternate version of their single. These are an interesting listen with Sad Man's Madness and Man With A Thin Mind in a similar style to Fly My Paper Airplane. Mourning Dayze was still going strong at the time of the CD release, more than 41 years down the line! THE MOURNING REIGN - Mourning Reign LP.

Mourning Reign was a mid to late sixties five-piece band from San Jose, California. Both of their singles are sought-after, containing good pop efforts with great Byrds-style guitar work. More recently there's been a retrospective compilation, on Sundazed subsidiary Beat Rocket, which includes all of their singles, unreleased tracks and mono/stereo versions.

Steve Canali left the group when it was still known as The English and later played with a house band call The Housepets.

Compilation coverage has included: Satisfaction Guaranteed and Our Fate on Finest Hours Of U.S. Sixties Punk (LP), Sixties Archive, Vol. 5 (CD) and Nuggets From The Golden State: Good Things Are Happening (CD); Satisfaction Guaranteed on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD book) and Garage Beat '66 3 (CD); and Our Fate on Garage Beat '66 6 (CD). The unreleased Light Switch and Cut Back also appear on Crystalize Your Mind (CD). (VJ/SG)

MOUSE and the TRAPS

MOUSE AND THE TRAPS - Public Execution LP.

Jacksonville, Florida group Mouse and The Boys rose from the ashes of The Deep Six (aka Florida Deep Six) and The Boys. Their first two singles were issued as Mouse and The Boys and Brass, with the brass portion provided by Moore and Crumpler. Their finest moment is the acid-punker Xcedrin Headache #69, which can be enjoyed once more on Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 1 (CD), Just For Kicks Vol. 1 (CD) and Mouse & The Boys 'Mousetracks' (CD), which also features Love Is Free, Dancing To The Beat and Tears In My Eyes (the last two tracks being credited to Mouse and The Boys and Brass). Xcedrin Headache #69 is actually a rip-off of Ellie Greenwich's I Want You To Be My Baby but they add Vanilla Fudge harmonies, Creamy riffs, wah-wah and phasing. It works well - indeed it hit the No. 1 spot in Jacksonville in October 1968.

Maurice "Mouse" Samples later released two solo singles as "M.O.U.S.E.". (JLh/MW)

This band played in Tyler, Texas between 1965-69. Their founders Ronnie Weiss and Dave Stanley and Jeff Howell had all previously played together in an outfit called Jerry Vee and The Catalinas. Weiss had also done studio work for Robin Hood Brians studio. Lead guitarist Bugs Henderson joined from an instrumental combo called The Sensors and played on some of The Cast of Thousand's singles. Their first single, a Dylan soundalike, actually made the Billboard charts climbing to No. 121. The follow-up was as good, if not better, but poorly marketed and failed to repeat their early chart success. A later single Sometimes You Just Can't Win did spend one week at No 125 and was also a regional hit in Tyler and Louisville, Kentucky.

The band also recorded a couple of singles under pseudonyms:- I've Got Her Love/As Far As The Sea (Fraternity 983) 1967 was issued as Chris St. John and in the same year they issued Psychotic Reaction/13 O'Clock Theme For Psychotics (HBR 500) 1967 with the singer Jimmy Rabbit as Positively Thirteen O'Clock. Their two Bell singles were produced by Dale Hawkins and the band was included on two of his singles and his album, L.A., Memphis and Tyler, Texas (Bell 6036).

The Eva compilation includes all of their singles except Satisfy/Good Times and has also been issued on CD, but even better is the legitimate

MOUSE AND THE TRAPS - The Fraternity Years CD.

Fraternity Years CD, which includes 25 tracks, including seven unreleased cuts and detailed analysis from Alec Palao and Robin Hood Brians.

The band split late in 1969. There was a very brief reformation in 1972 (line-up 'D') and Weiss, Stanley and Murray then went on to play together in another Texas band, Rio Grande.

Buddy 'Bugs' Henderson now has a pretty fair reputation in Texas as a blues guitarist. He currently records for a Colorado indie label named Flat Canyon Records, and has solo album releases that fall outside the scope of this book.

Compilation appearances have included: A Public Execution on Nuggets - Original Artyfacts From The First Psychedelic Era 1965-1968 (2-LP), Nuggets, Vol. 6: Punk Part 11 (LP), More Nuggets (CD), Texas Music, Vol. 3 (CD) and Excerpts From Nuggets (CD); A Public Execution and Maid Of Sugar - Maid Of Spice on Nuggets Box (4-CD); Maid Of Sugar, Maid Of Spice on Nuggets, Vol. 12: Punk Part Three (LP), Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), Acid Dreams Testament (CD), Glimpses, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD), Glimpses, Vol. 1 (LP) and Uptight Tonight (CD); I Satisfy on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 4 (LP & CD); and I Satisfy and Good Times on Sixties Archive, Vol. 2 (CD) and Texas Punk Groups From The Sixties (LP). 	Lady/Hey, Hey, Hey	(British Main 101472) 1972

From Delaware, this rare private press album is the work of a garage psych group. It has a rather poor recorded sound, but the quality of musicianship is high with extended instrumental passages. Somewhat bizarrely, alongside seven originals, is a cover of Rock Around The Clock!

The band, which stayed together under various names for 13 years, was built around the nucleus of Eddie Stevenson and Fred Dawson. 23 guitarists passed through their ranks over the years and the group played support slots for Poco, Seatrain, Redbone, Dr. Hook, Chicago, Stylistics, Jo Jo Gunne and many others. They also got to appear on several TV shows including Kirby Scott in Baltimore, Jerry Blavatt in Philadelphia (the day after Martin Luther King was assassinated), and Pat Boone in Hollywood.

Prior to becoming Mouzakis, Eddie and Fred played as The Fabulous Pharaohs, and as such recorded many singles. After Mouzakis, they ended up using the name Capone and using make-up and stage customes like Kiss!

Of Mouzakis, Fred Dawson says: - "After trying to get 4-5 people to agree on 'stuff to play' we ended up as a three-piece band. What we lacked in personnel, we made up for in amplification! There are many fond memories and happenings. It was fun, but Peter Pan finally went away and I am now a successful financial planner in Wilmington, Delaware. In the past few years I have performed with my sax hero "yakety sax-man" Boots Randolph, and play occasionally from time to time."

Magic Tube + 14 was a reissue of the Magic Tube album supplemented by all the recorded output of The Fabulous Pharaohs (an earlier sixties garage band format of Mouzakis).

Today, Sam Stipo is teaching guitar in Wilmington, Delaware and not playing or performing with any band. Eddie Stevenson's whereabouts are unknown. Fred Dawson became a financial advisor but also has his own band Club Phred. (SR/MW/FD/VJ)

The Movement (AL)

45s:	Green Knight/ Stinking Peanut Butter Love	(Tinker no#) 1968
	Just-A-Driftin'/Dear Abby	(Hemphill no #) 1968

Here's an obscure group from Midfield, Alabama. After a stop-start intro, Green Knight swings into a keyboard-led groove, with Jaggeresque vocals and a short harmonica break, culminating in a fuzz solo. Just-A-Driftin', is a sultry ballad telling the tale of a vagrant, well-evoked by whiskey-roughened vocals and whistled break.

Compilation appearances have included: Green Knight on Open Up Yer Door! Vol. 1 (LP) and Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 1 (CD); Stinking Peanut Butter Love on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 12: Demented (LP & CD); and Just A Driftin' on Psychedelic Crown Jewels Vol. 3 (CD) and Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 2 (CD). The Movers version of Birmingham is solid and bouncy in a Paul Revere style (shame about the horns) with meaner flip - raucous vocals, wicked guitar and NO horns - a definite improvement. Hello L.A.... returns to bounce and brass but the rampant fuzz-rock flip rules again and is the pick of these tracks. It did get to No. 116 in the national charts. The band hailed from New Port Richey, Florida and was known previously as The Intruders.

Leave Me Loose has been compiled on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 16 (LP & CD); while you can also check out Hey You, Hey Me on Who Needs Tomorrow Vol. 2 (CD). (MW/VJ)

	I Want To Hold Your Hand/Joe Blues	(Tantara 3108) 1968
	Flashback/No Good To Cry	(Tantara 3113) 1968

Hailing from Houston this was one of Texas' premier psychedelic bands. Their first single topped the Texas charts for five weeks and was selected for national distribution by Wand. It was not a national hit and nor were any of their subsequent efforts, but all are now sought-after collectors' items.

The album was also full of excellent psychedelic rock cuts like Flashback, Scoun da Be, You Make Me Shake and Pluto-Sept 31st. With Gibbons' Hendrix-like guitar work and freaky lyrics some of these are very trippy indeed. Others like Eclipse and Reclipse on the end of side two were very experimental. The album remains rare although there were pirate repressings a few years back. The Eva compilation included all the album, and non-album single sides, but does have the disadvantage of poor sound quality. The Akarma edition is vastly more palatable.

The band lasted until 1970 when Moore and later Summers were drafted. Lanier Greig came in from Neal Ford and The Fanatics to fill the keyboard slot but by the end of 1970 the three remaining members had become the first ZZ Top line-up - Gibbons and Mitchell having enrolled at the University of Texas to avoid the draft. Gibbons' earlier bands had been Billy and The Ten Blue Flames, The Saints and The Coachmen.

Five-piece pop outfit with a punky edge Movin' Morfomen came from Espanola, New Mexico. After the first two singles the line-up underwent constant changes, apparently breaking up and reforming at frequent intervals - the end finally came officially in 1969 although Dave Rarick did record several songs in 1971 (featured on the Collectables CD) with a new band using the same name. Three original members - Rarick, Gavurnik and Valdez - are back together performing in the nineties as the Flashbacks and contribute the final five tracks, and the title, to the retrospective CD.

Run Girl Run, written by Dave Rarick, is compiled on Pebbles, Vol. 8 (LP), New Mexico Punk From The Sixties (LP) and Sixties Archive, Vol. 4 (CD). We Tried, Try It - made famous by The Standells - can also be found on Diana's Rootin' Tootin' Wild Teenage Rock 'N' Roll Party! (LP) and Garage Music For Psych Heads, Vol. 1 (cassette). What's Happened To Me?, one of the unreleased 1971 tracks with backwards guitar effects and lyrics about a bad trip, has also resurfaced on the Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 1 (2-LP & CD); Try It and What's Happened To Me on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 5 (CD); Don't Go Baby on I Wanna Come Back From The World Of LSD (CD); both sides of the Goldust single (Thinking Of You and What I'm Going Through) appear on Collectables' The Goldust Records Story (CD); and finally you'll also find Write Me A Letter on Now Hear This (CD). ALBUM: 1(A) SIGNING OUR LIVES AWAY (Missouri Woodlands 1553) 197?

Signing Our Lives Away is a rare album of hippie-folk from Missouri, with a full band playing acoustic and electric instruments on a selection of original material. Only 500 copies were pressed of this album, which is thought to date from the early seventies. (SR)

EP: 1 FOUR BY THE MOXIES (No label #20932) 1964

		I'm Gonna Stay/Drinkin' Wine (PS)	(Century 26070) 1966

NB: α flip is an edited version of the EP track.

From Paducah, Kentucky The Moxies first single, I Feel Happy is fine garage-beat backed by a charming but soppy garage-ballad. The 'A' side of the third, I'm Gonna Stay, is their fuzz garage peak.

Compilation appearances have included: Get A Move On on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 2: You Treated Me Bad (LP & CD); I'm Gonna Stay on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 13 (LP & CD) and Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 8 (LP); and Please Don't Go on Diggin' For Gold, Vol. 7 (LP). (MW)

Later retrospective releases include:- (D) The Last Album (Appaloosa AP 017) 1981, an Italian release; (D) Children Of The Rainbow (Blue Form BF1) 1985; (D) End Of An Era (Reckless RECK 7) 1989, which was recorded in Maui in 1974; and (-) The Band From The Lost Continent (Xotic Mind XMCD-1) 1995, a 2-CD set which includes the first album, three singles tracks from 1971 and another 20 songs which were recorded in 1974. There's also an 18-track CD, Best Of Mu (Reckless CDRECK4) 1988.

45s:	Ballad of Brother Lew/ Nobody Wants To Shine	(Mantra 101) 1971
	Too Naked For Demetrius/ On Our Way To Hana	(Mu 103/4) 1973

Fankhauser formed this band after the demise of H.M.S. Bounty. Cotton and Willey had earlier played with Fankhauser in The Exiles.

Mu initially lived on a half acre estate in Canoga Park, California and was heavily into meditation and vegetarianism. Their debut album, released on a small Beverly Hills label, was both inventive and imaginative. Mu's sound was a departure from all of Fankhauser's earlier projects, being an earthy blues and folk group centred on Cotton's fabulous slide guitar work.

After Willey's departure the remaining trio moved to the island of Maui in Hawaii in 1974, where they recorded two singles for their own Mu label and, with the addition of Mary Lee and Jeff Parker, a second album, which was shelved when they split up. In 1981 Fankhauser remixed it, added two singles and it was released in Italy.

Many other tapes of Mu exist and Children Of The Rainbow is an excellent album of material recorded live on Maui in 1974. It's full of well-structured, often mystical songs and also includes some tasty laid-back guitar work from Fankhauser and Jeff Cotton (who had earlier played with Captain Beefheart). It also features a brief interview with the band by Lew Irwin.

Fankhauser, one of the West Coast's most interesting musicians, went on to make several solo albums. Parker remained in Hawaii, where he purchased an orchid plantation and Wimer became a youth counsellor in Los Angeles.

Like all of Fankhauser's bands, Mu was interesting and worth investigation. (VJ/CF)

ALBUM:	1(A)	GINGERBREADD (w/insert)	(Capitol ST-644) 1970

Gingerbreadd (their spelling) is a set of original songs, carried by the fine voice of Maury with elegant and sympathetic backing and above par lyrics. The pace is quiet and almost all the songs radiate serenity and calm. What's missing is any real highlights. Apart from Winter Song, with its Left Banke echoes and parts of That's What I Like, which is tasteful folk-rock, the compositions are just a pinch too average to really excite. In the final analysis, this is a nice late evening record, but no lost masterpiece.

Muehleisen would later join Jim Croce's backing group. He died, along with Croce, in a plane crash in September 1973. (MK/SR)

		Dance, Dance, Dance/ Make It Alright	(Chelsea Ltd. C-2001/2) 1969

NB: α shown as by "A.G. Pygme and The Muffett Company".

Late sixties garage-pop from Hurricane, West Virginia by a band previously known as The Mojos. On a visit to Columbus, Ohio they were snapped up by a promoter who became their manager and renamed them The Muffetts in order to fulfill bookings for The Muffets (of Germantown, Ohio), who had just split. Lost features snaking leads and a simple fuzzy break - it can also be found on Lost Gems From The 60s Vol. 1 (EP), Acid Dreams Vol. 2 (LP) and Psychedelic Crown Jewels Vol. 3 (CD). The subdued flip is average pop enhanced by a fluid wah-wah solo. The single on Chelsea is a decent cover of the Day-Dischel pop number Dance, Dance, Dance yet the flip side is much stronger, a derivative Clatworthy-Farley original with biting fuzz solos. The band would evolve into Stone Jaw. (MW)

45s:	I'll Remember Tonight/I Don't Know	(Warner Bros. 5471) 1964
	Searchin'/Here It Is Another Day	(Warner Bros. 7018) 1967

Formed by the former Big Three members Cass Elliot and Denny Doherty, The Mugwumps were a folk-rock group who were completely unsuccessful during their time together, circa 1964/65. Their records were released when their members later found fame. Mama Cass and Denny Doherty went on to form the The Mamas & The Papas, James Hendricks (Cass' husband) the Lamp Of Childhood and Zal Yanovsky The Lovin' Spoonful with John Sebastian.

The Mugwumps blends pop, folk-rock and R&B, but has an unfinished feel. The Elliot/Hendricks original Here It Is Another Day gives a glimpse of the emerging folk-rock sound that would blossom over the next two years, but other tracks are an uneasy mix of New York pop and Merseybeat and there are disappointing Bo Diddley and Coasters covers on the album too.

For those wondering about their name, "Mugwump" is an Indian word meaning "a person who is neutral in a controversial issue"! (SR/VJ)

NB: α shown as by The Mugwump Establishment.

Unconnected to the earlier Mugwumps, this was almost certainly a L.A.-based studio group and they played a sort of jug-punk music. Mike Curb's Sidewalk label was most notably for producing Soundtracks for teen movies. They managed a pretty good cover of Bald Headed Woman, which can also be heard on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 20 (LP) and you can also find Sunset Sally on Riot On Sunset Strip (LP); Season Of The Witch on Freakout U.S.A.! (LP); Mondo Hollywood (City Of Dreams) and Mondo Hollywood Freakout on Mondo Hollywood (LP); and Mondo Hollywood Freakout on Buzz Buzz Buzzzzzz, Vol. 1 (CD). NB: (1) was a limited edition cassette. (1) reissued on CD (Guerssen GUESSCD 019) 2008. He also made a second album First Light (Parallax) in 1979, which has been reissued on CD (Guerssen GUESSCD 018) 2008.

This Californian singer released two albums, although the second is outside the book's time-span. His gentle, hippyish multi-layered vocals recall Merrell Fankhauser and Crosby Stills and Nash. All the songs were written by, and all the vocals/instruments were performed by Alan Munson. The album comprises nine original, acoustic-based songs with a mellow psych and folk-rock vibe and meaningful, intelligent lyrics. There are also background harmony vocals. The accompaniment includes 6-string acoustic guitars, 12-string acoustic guitars, electric bass and percussion.

He also recorded an earlier album In Depth as part of a duo Cooley-Munson. That too has been reissued by Guerssen. (VJ)

Produced by Kim Fowley, Why Can't You Go was written by David Gates (pre-Bread) and is average female pop. The flip, credited to The Murmaids Band, was written by Fowley/Harris (possibly one of the WCPAEB brothers) and is an early sixties instrumental track.

Both sides of their second single were also produced by Fowley.

It's believed that members Carol and Terry Fischer were the daughters of pianist Carl Fischer, who worked with Frankie Laine and co-wrote a couple of hits. (SR/GM/JW)

	3( )	THE LAST ILLUSION	(Columbia 32539) 1973

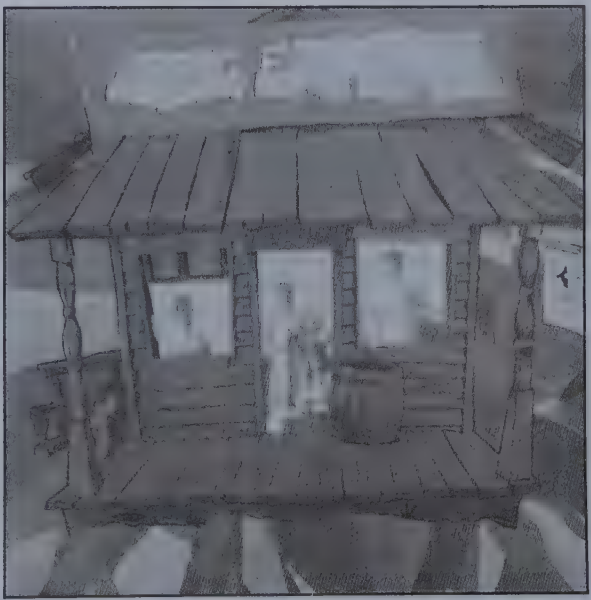
After a rarely seen first album on Verve Forecast, this New York band signed with MGM and released an album produced by Vinny Testa (who also worked with Group Image). They had quite a unique sound, veering from hard-rock (on Rock'n'Roll Band) to almost avant-garde jazz with its use of saxophone, piano and flute (on The First Born and Trilogy). All their material was original, penned by Murphy and the album definitely has its moments. It may interest some curious collectors, but be aware that they also used bagpipes on some tracks (not all of them fortunately!).

J.F. Murphy with Salt (a renewed line-up) also released one live album on Elektra in 1972; but the continuous use of bagpipes with sax and guitars is not an easy taste to acquire! (SR)

Murphy and The Mob (TX)

45:	Because You Love Me/Born Loser	(Talisman 1823) 1966

Murphy and The Mob was a garage-punk outfit from Tyler in Texas. Born Loser has a really catchy, simple riff and great vocals, making it a garage-punk classic.



MUSIC EMPORIUM - Self Titled LP.

Born Loser, included some catchy guitar work. It can also be found on Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), Acid Dreams Testament (CD), Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 3 (LP & CD), Back From The Grave, Vol. 3 (LP), Best of Pebbles, Vol. 1 (LP & CD), Back From The Grave, Vol. 2 (CD) and Flashback, Vol. 3 (LP). 45: Such A Lovely Child/Burned (Hideout H-1121) 1967

Obscure Detroit garage band The Mushrooms featured Glenn Frey, who would later move to California to form Longbranch Pennywhistle in 1970 and later The Eagles. After leaving The Mushrooms he was in a band called the Heavy Metal Kids, who were managed by Ed "Punch" Andrews. Other members of the Heavy Metal Kids included Lance Dickerson (later of Commander Cody), Jeff Alborell (bs ex-Four of Us), Steve Burrows (keyb'ds) and Paul Kelcourse (ex-Fugitives, also guitarist with Four of Us and bass with Billy C. and the Sunshine). Steve Burrows was the brother of Gary, of The Four Of Us, Frey's previous band.

In 1966, Gunch and Mintz teamed up with Don Henderson, who was putting together a second version of The Gang, following the split of the original line-up.

Compilation appearances have included: Burned on Realities In Life (LP); Such A Lovely Child on Sixties Archive, Vol. 7 (CD); and both Burned and Such A Lovely Child on Best of Hideout Records (CD). (SR/PK/MW)

From Rockford in Michigan, Brian Ingraham and Steve Rose spent the summer of 1971 in Denver, Colorado where they assembled line-up "B" above and wrote the songs that would appear on their album. Side one has six folk/folk-rock tracks, side two is more adventurous with some hard progressive rock on My Side Of The Mountain and the funky hard-rocker Icy Cold Blue (MMM) which sounds like The James Gang. They sold the albums at their High School shortly after it was pressed in 1972. (VJ)

45: Nam Myo Ho Renge Kyo/Times Like This (Sentinel 4-501) 1969

This group's leader, Casey Cosby, won the Frank Sinatra Award Competition at UCLA in 1967 and performed in both classical and jazz media prior to forming The Music Emporium. Padwin had previously played for several Midwest country-rock groups. In Dora Wahl the band had one of rock's few woman drummers at the time. All songs on their album were written by the band. The album is one of different moods, from the quasi-religious chants of Nam Myo Renge Kyo and Day Of Wrath to gentle ballads, such as Velvet Sunsets and Gentle Thursday, which are both noteworthy for Carolyn Lee's soft, smooth vocals, to the haunting introduction of Catatonic Variations. The album is a significant collectors' item and originals change hands for quite a considerable sum.

Of the various reissues, the Psycho version lost something in the process (like one of the two stereo channels!) and thus should be avoided. Later 'reissues' include a vinyl version on Action Records that reproduces the original die-cut sleeve and an official reissue on Sundazed which includes five bonus tracks.

Compilation appearances include: Nam Myo Renge Kyo on Love, Peace And Poetry Vol. 1 (LP & CD), Sixties Archive Vol. 8 (CD), Acid Trip From The Psychedelic Sixties (LP) and Gathering Of The Tribe (LP). (VJ/CF)

THE MUSIC MACHINE - Turn On LP.

This pop-soul quintet hailed from Mansfield, Ohio. Their records were produced by Jerry Kasenetz and Jeff Katz, who founded the short-lived but commercially successful bubblegum movement. Jamie Lyons also enjoyed a brief solo career and played for Capital-City Rockets and Bob Avery later went on to Crazy Elephant, a top bubblegum group. They enjoyed commercial success with Little Bit O' Soul which can also be heard on the Battle Of The Bands (CD), Nuggets Box (4-CD) and Wild Thing (2-LP) compilations. Their cover of Question Mark and The Mysterians' 96 Tears, which appeared on their album, has also resurfaced on Eva's Sound Of The Sixties (2-LP) and Sixties Archive, Vol. 1 (CD) compilations. Other compilation appearances include: - Road Runner and Sunshine Games on Mindrocker, Vol. 5 (LP) and Stay By My Side on Everywhere Chainsaw Sound (LP).

They were previously known as the Chosen Few but with no release under that name - thank heavens, there are too many Chosen Few's as it is.

Their album sold quite well, spending two weeks in the charts and peaking at No. 178. (VJ/MW/SR/KSI/SBn)

THE MUSIC MACHINE - The Bonniwell Music Machine LP.

REP 4154) 199? in a remastered/expanded set with mono and stereo versions alongside four non-album bonus tracks and authoritative and extensive sleevenotes by Chris Welch. (1) reissued on CD (AIRAC-1357) 2007. (2) also released in France (Warner CLPW 1545) 1968. (3) was a Sean Bonniwell solo album.

There's also a number of retrospective releases: - Best Of (Rhino RNLP 11 9) 1984; Turn On - The Very Best Of (CD) (Collectables COL-CD-6044) 1999; Beyond The Garage (CD) (Sundazed SC 11030) 1995, a reissue of the second album from 1967 with two previously unreleased and bonus tracks; and Ignition (LP/CD) (Sundazed SC 11038/LP 5038) 2000, which is a decent collection of rarities and unreleased material. Another retrospective is The Ultimate Turn On (2-CD) (Big Beat CDWIK2 227) 2006.

Centred around Bonniwell, who had earlier sung with sixties folk group The Wayfarers, this Los Angeles band developed out of a trio called the Ragamuffins, which had featured Bonniwell, Edgar and Olsen. Edgar had earlier drummed for The Goldebriars with Curt Boettcher, whilst Olsen who was an old friend of Boettcher, had played with Gale Garnett and Jimmie Rodgers and also briefly with the Wayfarers, at whose club in Charleston the Goldebriars often played. He later married Goldbriar Sheri Holmberg. Mark Landon was previously a member of The Purple Gang.

Bonniwell disillusioned with straight folk, became the Goldebriars tour manager and migrated to L.A. with them. Olsen meanwhile had run into another old friend, Doug Rhodes and Bonniwell grabbed them for his new band, The Music Machine, adopting The Goldebriars all-in-black, dyed black Beatlecut look in the process, lock, stock, and barrel.

BONNIWELL MUSIC MACHINE - Ignition CD.

The Music Machine's debut album contained the U.S. hit Talk Talk and a number of other strong original compositions, notably Masculine Intuition, Wrong and Trouble. Bonniwell's harsh voice was ideal for much of this material and for a while the group achieved some success. Their debut album also featured competent versions of Hey Joe, ? and The Mysterians' 96 Tears, the Beatles' Taxman and Neil Diamond's Cherry Cherry.

The People In Me/Masculine Intuition single was also taken from their debut album and Hey Joe was subsequently issued as a single. However, not everything was presumably going smoothly and the second album was issued after the band had split. Recorded in Muscle Shoals, Alabama and New Mexico it comprised three outtakes from the earlier album and some new material.

The band also made some other recordings, acetates of which have recently surfaced with the following tracks: Side One Everything Is Everything/You'll Love Me Again/This Should Make You Happy/Black Snow/Mother Nature, Father Earth/Dark White; Side Two No Girl Gonna Cry/King Mixer/Advise And Consent/Tell Me What Ya Got/Citizen Fear/Point Of No Return.

After the split Edgar, Rhodes and Olsen all reunited again with Boettcher in Millennium and appeared on the first Sagittarius album. Keith Olsen later became a studio engineer and producer.

Bonniwell went on to record a solo album Close, a moody, rather introverted effort. After that he dropped out and got religious, resurfacing in the eighties fronting Heaven Sent, a Christian band. In 1982, he re-recorded Talk Talk.

In 1984, Rhino issued a Best Of compilation, which comprised many of their best known cuts and some unissued masters. One interesting and rare spin off from the band was Nothin's Too Good For My Car/So Long Ago (Original Sound 95) which Bonniwell recorded with Paul Buff and Brian Ross under the name Friendly Torpedos shortly before leaving Original Sound. It was released in 1970. Warner Bros 7188 also from 1968 was withdrawn soon after being issued and is now highly sought-after.

A 1997 picture sleeve single from those fine folks at Sundazed features two more unreleased tracks from 1966 - Point Of No Return and King Mixer. Hopefully many more corpses from the moody men in black are still to be exhumed.

In 1998, Sean Bonniwell joined the Fuzztones on a single for an updated rendition of The People In Me (Misty Lane 046). More recently he has published an autobiography called Beyond The Garage.

Compilation appearances have included: Talk Talk on Nuggets, Vol. 1 (LP), Battle Of The Bands (CD), More Nuggets (CD), Nuggets From Nuggets

(CD), Excerpts From Nuggets (CD) and Uptight Tonight (CD); Talk Talk and Double Yellow Line on Nuggets Box (4-CD); Talk Talk and 96 Tears on 20 Great Hits Of The 60s (LP); the previously unreleased No Girl Gonna Cry on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD) and Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 (2-LP); You'll Love Me Again on Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), Acid Dreams Testament (CD) and Acid Dreams, Vol. 1 (LP); Double Yellow Line and The Eagle Never Hunts The Fly on Nuggets, Vol. 2 (LP); Double Yellow Line on Sundazed Sampler, Vol. 2 (CD) and Garage Music For Psych Heads, Vol. 1 (cassette); The People In Me on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book); Double Yellow Line, Absolutely Positively, The Eagle Never Hunts The Fly and I've Loved You on Mindrocker, Vol. 10 (LP); Advise and Consent on Garage Beat '66 6 (CD); and Mother Nature - Father Earth on Garage Beat '66 3 (CD).

In addition as Bonniwell Music Machine they have Discrepency on Nuggets: Come To The Sunshine (CD) and Astrologically Incompatible on Nuggets: Hallucinations (CD). (VJ/MW/JFr/SR)

45: Louie Go Home/12 O'Clock July (Fenton 2216) 1967

The above single was the sole vinyl offering from this obscure South Haven, Michigan group. The flip, 12 O'Clock, July, is an over-the-top psych-punk instrumental with lots of fuzz and feedback.

Mark Sheldon later issued a single as Smoke.

Compilation appearances have included: Louie Go Home on Let 'Em Have It! Vol. 1 (CD), Chosen Few, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Scream Loud!!! The Fenton Story (2-CD); Louie Go Home and 12 O'clock July on The Chosen Few, Vol. 2 (LP); and 12 O'Clock, July on Everything You Always Wanted To Know... (CD), Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 5 (LP) and Scream Loud!!! The Fenton Story (2-CD). (VJ/MW)

Mustache Wax (NY)

45: I'm Gonna Get You/On My Mind (Inner 501/2) 1965

Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 13 - Texas Part Three (LP) includes the rather uninspired effort, I'm Gonna Get You. Despite being on a 'Texas' compilation however, the band came from Queens/The Bronx, New York. You can also find On My Mind on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 5: The Cave (LP & CD). (VJ/MM/MW)

45: That's For Sure/Nova Blues (Nero VOC 45-1002) 1965

Hailing from Riverside, California The Mustangs were originally known as The Ressacs. That's For Sure is a snarling fuzz-punk effort which made little impression at the time. By the end of 1966 they were no more.

The Ugly Things CD features That's For Sure and 14 other cuts from 1966. The package is accompanied with a 16-page full colour booklet with a low-down on the band.

You can also find That's For Sure on Back From The Grave, Vol. 7 (2-LP), Boulders, Vol. 3 (LP) and Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book). (VJ/MW)

45: Another Day/I Lost My Baby (Raynard 10036) 1965

NB: 'A' side shown as by Don Grady, backed by The Mustard Men, flip shown as by The Mustard Men.

From the suburbs of Brookfield and New Berlin, Milwaukee, Wisconsin The Mustard Men formed at Brookfield Central high school and judging by I Lost My Baby had a primitive punk sound.

Warren Wiegratz: - "Another Day was written and sung by Don Grady with backing by The Mustard Men. I Lost My Baby was a collaboration between all the members of the band. We were popular in the south-eastern part of Wisconsin from 1964 to 1967, and won the WRIT Radio 'Battle Of The Bands' in 1965 and 1966."

I Lost My Baby has resurfaced on the Mind Blowers (LP) and Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 15 (LP). (VJ/MW/WW)

ALBUM: 1(A) SAIL ON SAILOR (Maranatha MM001 BA) 1975

Housed in a splendid Rick Griffin cover (it's in fact often sought-after for the cover alone!), this was a California Christian rock group produced by Tom Coomes, with some good guitars and harmony vocals. Lewis McVay later recorded a similar sounding album Spirit of St Lewis, also on this Christian label and Jay Truax worked with Richie Furay (from Buffalo Springfield/ Poco) on his first solo album. Mutha Goose (IN)

ALBUM: 1 MUTHA GOOSE 1 (Alpha Omega LP 264-01) 1975 R2/R3

This rare local Indiana privately-pressed hard-rock/guitar psych/progressive album is similar in style to Sweet Toothe. It features lots of organ and guitar leads. It's rather surprising that this one hasn't been reissued as of yet. (VJ)

ALBUM: 1(A) LIGHT OF YOUR SHADOW (Sussex 7001) 1970

A Detroit outfit who span heavy rock, jazz, blues, soul and psychedelic influences on their album, which was produced by Theo-Coff. There's also a promo-only 33rpm 7" LP Sampler (Sussex SP 24) 1970 clocking in at about 16 minutes. It features Highway (a blast of fuel-injected hard-rock with fluid intertwining leads), Because Of You (a rock ballad that starts off rather leadenly before picking up in mood and tempo), Cocaine Blues (a series of diverse styles from funky to fuzzy, then a drum solo and toy effects - strange) and finally Daily Cycles (back to guitar squealing hard-rock). The album is a good appetiser. (VJ/MW)

	Wind Chime Laughter/Don't Look Back	(Tomorrow T-912) 1967
	Don't Let Me Sleep Too Long/ I Happen To Love You	(Buddah 150) 1969

Starting out as a Summit, New Jersey prep-rock outfit, The Four Classics featuring Mansolino (vcls), Philp, Rosa and Kurt Gabrook (bs). By 1965 they'd become The King Bees, after adding Dave Palmer and Charlie Larkey, only to discover late that year than Danny Kortchmar's New York City group had already bagged that name. They adopted the moniker of Myddle Class. Already a popular draw around the Summit/New Providence/Berkeley Heights area they were put in touch with New Jerseyans Gerry Goffin and Carole King. This famous tin-pan alley team not only provided material and co-wrote (with Palmer/Philp) but also provided the means for the band to appear on vinyl via their Tomorrow label.

The results are three high quality releases of garagy folk-rock ballads that have stood the test of time remarkably well. Of these the second, I Happen To Love You, is regarded as their best. A superb punk ballad it was later recorded by The Electric Prunes and Them. Don't Let Me Sleep Too Long was also 'adapted' by the Blues Project as Wake Me Shake Me and covered by many others including Australia's Vacant Lot (Ugly Things, Vol. 1), Canada's Power of Beckett (Nightmares From The Underworld, Vol. 2) and the Wrongh Black Bag. The track also bears lyrical similarity to the Coasters Wake Me, Shake Me, but the roots of all these seem to be an old black church hymn Heaven's Door's Gonna Be Closed.

Still, success was elusive. A move to Buddah in 1969 resulted in a reissue of the second single and the recording of an album which sadly was never released, although Lovin' Season did make it onto the 1970 Rock And Roll With Buddah (LP) sampler. After this disappointment the band disintegrated. Fate dealt a further blow when Rick Philp was murdered by a college room-mate. The rest regrouped as the Quinaimes Band. Charlie Larkey would team up with rival King Bees' Danny Kortchmar in The City and was married to Carole King for several years. He now lives in Austin, Texas and recorded with two songs with Carole King on a recent album.

A sad demise for a band of undoubted talented - perhaps some adventurous spirit may see fit one day to put out the unreleased album and singles to redress the balance.

The band may also have helped Carole King record a single as Bachs Lunch, one side of which was written by Palmer/Philp.

Compilation appearances have included: I Happen To Love You on Mindrocker, Vol. 3 (LP); Lovin' Season on Psychotic Reactions (LP); I Happen To Love You and Don't Let Me Sleep Too Long on A Journey To Tyme, Vol. 3 (LP); and Don't Let Me Sleep Too Long on Boulders, Vol. 3 (LP). According to Tim Warren's Back From The Grave Vol. 8 sleeve-notes, California guitarist Dave Myers first started making music at the age of eight, in 1951. He spent a few years playing the folkie circuit and one night during a show at a pad called Cafe Frankenstein, Dave strolled along and was exposed to the insane rattle emerging from the nearby Rendezvous Ballroom, where Dick Dale was cutting loose with his insane reverbed frenzy. He then formed the Surf-Tones in 1961. By spring 1962, they issued their first single, Church Key/Passion on the Impact label and a bunch of cuts on various 'Battle Of The Bands' albums. In early 1963 their first album, Hangin' Twenty, was released on Del-Fi. The band had a very original sound due to the unique mix of surf, jazz and complex arrangements. Moment Of Truth, Aquavelva and Frog Walk Pt. II showcase this sound on the album. 1964 saw their sharp Let The Good Times Roll/Gear single and in 1965 C'Mon Love (with vocals) and a second album on Carole (Greatest Racing Themes) was released. The band kept at it, up the end of the decade, before calling it quits.

You can also check out C'mon Love on Back From The Grave, Vol. 8 (CD), Back From The Grave, Vol. 8 (2-LP) and Boulders, Vol. 3 (LP). (VJ/GG)

THE MYSTERY TREND

THE MYSTERY TREND - So Glad I Found You CD.

These Mysteries aren't. They were an Orlando, Florida trio who issued three interesting poppy singles between 1965 and 1968.

Their debut is very rare. My True Love is bouncy pop-beat and was included on a rare 1966 sampler album - 12 Groovy Hits, 12 Florida Bands (Tener 154). The second single is their best. Please Agree steams along at locomotive pace - catchy and well-produced pop with a unique sound and a few touches of fuzz. It ain't garage, but deserves its inclusion on Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 1 (CD). Its flip is slow harmonious pop.

I Can't Wait For Love kicks off their final single with some fine fuzzy guitar that promises so much but.... thereafter it's almost buried under a wash of sweet harmonies. The result is decent mid-tempo pop, but a big disappointment. Tom Bennett's Satisfaction Guaranteed is lightweight fluff with Everlys-style harmonies, sounding out-of-date for 1968. (MW/JLh)

Mysterious Minds (CA)

ALBUM: 1 MIND OVER MATTER (Smoa Productions SM-BFT-1) 1975 R3

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Mystic) 2002 in a limited pressing of 300.

This private pressing was by a funk/soul trio from northern California (apparently they were Korean War veterans). They utilized a homemade instrument called a 'Brass Orchestra Cabinet' which resembled a homemade pipe organ made of trumpets and other horns. This had strange lyrics and, as very few original copies are thought to exist, the limited 2002 reissue is worth investigating. (VJ)

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Shadoks Music 041) 2003 in a numbered limited edition of 350 copies. (1) reissued on CD (Shadoks Music 041) 2003.

This ultra-rare album was recorded at Blackburn College in Carlinville, Illinois in 1968. It contains original songs with swirling farfisa type keyboards, melancholic vocals and 12-string fuzz guitar. The 12 cuts were penned by O'Dell and/or Joplin. Most are minor-mood garagy beat-ballads and the stompin' garage-beat of Rung By Rung is the only more frenzied offering. (VJ)

45: Johnny Was A Good Boy/
House On The Hill (Verve VK 10499) 1967

This band was one of the first generation San Francisco sound groups, with only The Charlatans pre-dating them. Formed in 1965, and originally known as The Terrazzo Brothers (minus West), they soon became known as The Mystery Trend. The name was apparently taken from the line in Dylan's Like A Rolling Stone where he sings 'the mystery tramp', although the band apparently thought his words were 'the mystery trend'. They played at the very first Bill Graham Benefit for The San Francisco Mime Troupe on 6th November 1965. Later that month (27th Nov) they played a gig at Peter Voulkos' studio. Both were apparently very successful. They also played at some of the early Fillmore gigs. However, their music, which consisted of two-three minute tightly-structured songs, ran against the predominant tide of long, loose, free-flowing jams, which were so popular in the city in this era. They were managed by Mike Daly.

The band signed to Verve in mid-1966, which was around the time Larry West left. Originally an album was projected and seven tracks were recorded, (There It Happened Again, Carl Street, Words You Whisper, One Day For Two, Johnny Was A Good Boy, A House On The Hill and Carrots On A String). In the end only a single appeared. This came out in March 1967. Johnny Was A Good Boy is a fast, frantic number (which was originally mastered too fast) which included some vintage 'Frisco guitar work. House On The Hill is an interesting slower number written by Bob Cuff. Cuff left the band in June 1967, later joining Serpent Power. He was replaced by John Gregory, who later played with Seatrain.

FEATURING STEVE HOFFMAN

MYSTIC ASTROLOGIC CRYSTAL BAND - Self Titled (Reissue) LP.

The band struggled on to 1968, but then fizzled out largely because they could not secure enough live gigs to survive. Nagle, who later became one of the United States' top ceramicists, and put together a band called Marlow, before forming Fast Bucks in 1969. He also produced a solo album Bad Rice in 1970.

In 1979, Ron Nagle formed the duo Durocs with Scott Matthews. They made one album, Durocs (Capitol ST-11981) 1979.

The Big Beat CD collects together 21 tracks - all their known studio recordings plus five home-taped efforts. It confirms the hearsay evidence over the years - that this band produced a varied selection of intelligent and artful pop.

Johnny Was A Good Boy has also resurfaced on Nuggets Box (4-CD), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 5 (LP & CD), Sounds Of The Sixties San Francisco, Vol. 1 (LP), Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 4 (CD), California Acid Folk (2-LP) and Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box); Johnny Was A Good Boy and Carl Street can both be heard on Sing Me A Rainbow (2-CD); and Johnny Was A Good Boy and the previously unreleased Carrots On A String (from August 1966) and Mambo For Marion (from January 1967) have all been compiled on Sing Me A Rainbow (2-CD). A 22-track CD compilation of their two albums Flowers Never Cry (Dropout DO 1993) 1992, is worth checking out.

45: Flower Never Cry/Early Dawn (GNP Carole 1004) 1967

Musically their albums were Los Angeles psychedelic pop which has its moments. Both their albums are compiled on the CD compilation, Flowers Never Cry.

It turns out that two members on the single's line-up were from The Portraits. Gary Myers recalls: - "The MAC Band was being produced by Clancy B. Grass III, the same guy who was producing us (the Portraits) for Mike Curb's Sidewalk label. The Carole label was named after Curb's sister. "We had met Steve Hoffman a couple of times and, for whatever reason, two of his guys could not do this session. I think they might have been leaving the band, but I'm not sure. At any rate, Clancy had Phil Alagna (aka Phil Anthony) and me come in to do the session. The other musicians were Hoffman (guitar) and his organist (who coughed on the end of one take, requiring us to re-do it). The liner notes of the second album include The Portraits among those being thanked (although our help came before that album)."

Steve Hoffman and Ron Roman later went on to Proposition.

Quite recently compilers have shown an interest in this band. So you can also hear Flowers Never Cry on Microdelia (CD); Factory Endeavour on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 3 (CD); Yesterday Girl on Realistic Patterns (CD); and Sunbeams & Rainbows on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 3 (CD). Mystic Blue (RI)

45: Mr. McKenzie/Shelia (Planet No 80) 1969

Simple garage-pop from Rhode Island, Mystic Blue's single sounded like it was recorded in someone's living room circa 1965. For all that it has a certain charm. The flip is called Sheila but misprinted as 'Shelia' on the label. (MW)

I'm Gonna Love You Too (Go-Go's 26,000) 1966

This crew formed in Venetia, Pennsylvania in 1965 and put out the above single the following year. Are You For Real, Girl? is a rather routine crunching garage-punker and the flip was a Buddy Holly cover. The Go-Go's label was based in Wintersville, Ohio.

You'll also find Are You For Real, Girl? on Back From The Grave, Vol. 7 (2-LP), Chosen Few Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and The Chosen Few, Vol. 1 (LP). (VJ)

Snoopy/Ooh Poo Pah Doo (Black Cat 501) 1964

Snoopy, a punk-style reinterpretation of The Vibrations old R&B hit, was also a big hit for The McCoys in 1965. These singles were the work of a Tallahassee, Florida band and it's rumoured that their version, which is thought to have been recorded in September 1964, got played in Akron, Ohio where The McCoys heard it and recorded the tune, turning it into a big commercial success.

This Mystics later changed name to The Many Others recording one single, (Tell Me Why) I'm Alone/Can I Get A Witness? (Orchid 504) circa 1965, Snoopy is reputedly a Byrds-influenced folk-rocker.

Snoopy can also be heard on Back From The Grave, Vol. 2 (LP) and Garage Kings (2-LP); and Ooh Poo Pah Doo got a further airing on You're Playing With Fire (LP). (MW/GGI)

Under The Influence (CD) (World In Sound WIS-1017) 2003 compiles previously unreleased live material from 1969/70 and is also available on vinyl (World In Sound RFR-017) 2003.

This outfit from Detroit, Michigan produced an excellent psych-rock album, which comes in an amazing sleeve and is as rare as hell. Also of interest is Under The Influence which includes versions of I'm A Man, Come Together, Tobacco Road, and Black Sheep. Still there was a mixing error that brought up the wrong channel for solos and the album isn't universally acclaimed. The CD release came in a heavy duty triple-gatefold card cover.

The Gathering Of The Tribe, Vol. 4 (LP) compilation features three tracks, Supernatural Mind, Keeper The Keys and Spinning A Spell from their album, which demonstrate the band's superb guitar work. (VJ)

	Running Through The Night/ Psychedelic Journey Pt 2	(Solid Sound 158/9) 1967
	Mystery Ship/You Won't Look Back	(Solid Sound 321/2) 1967

Out of the Woodbury suburb of New York City, this band made some outstanding recordings. They started life combining their own compositions with Them, Searchers and Zombies originals. They went very much against the tide of most Long Island bands, which were heavily into soul. By early 1966 they were becoming more adventurous. For their second single, they covered a Them song, Mystic Eyes. Indeed, this slow punk ballad was party responsible for their name, as their leader Joe Docko liked it so much. Their third single was their magnum opus. Frustration was a haze of dementia with superb guitar leads from Docko. They played 10-minute versions of it live and each was different. The flip, Psychedelic Journey Pt 1 was a stunning psychedelic instrumental which once again contained some superb guitar playing from Docko. The song continued on the flip to their fourth single, which featured fine discordant clashing guitars and a striking ending. After this Jim Thomas left and they continued as a trio for one final effort: - Mystery Ship, another punk ballad - a tale of death and the futility of life, backed by the more optimistic, You Won't Look Back. This lacked the 'fullness' of sound of their previous two, now they were only a trio.

The band is well represented on compilations. You can also find Psychedelic Journey Pts 1 & 2 on Endless Journey - Phase One (LP) and Endless Journey - Phase I & II (2-CD); Frustration on Acid Dreams, Vol. 1 (LP), Psychedelic States Vol. 2 (CD) and Unknown Legends of Rock'N'Roll (book); Mystery Ship and Mystic Eyes on Sixties Archive, Vol. 5 (CD) and The Finest Hours of U.S. '60s Punk (LP); Psychedelic Journey, Part 1 on Son Of The Gathering Of The Tribe (LP); Mystery Ship on Glimpses, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Glimpses, Vol. 2 (LP); Runnin' Through The Night on Ear-Piercing Punk (LP) and Pebbles, Vol. 2 (ESD) (CD); You Won't Look Back on Boulders, Vol. 11 (LP); Stay Away on Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 1 (CD); and finally You Know It's True on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 1 (2-LP & CD). The band also appears on Eva's E-Types vs Mystic Tide 1984 retrospective with the following tracks: - Frustration, Psychedelic Journey (Pts 1 and 2), Running Through The Night, Search For A New Love, and You Won't Look Back. All tracks were written by Joe Docko.

The Distortions retrospectives include all their singles plus an early effort, I Wouldn't Care, a gentle Merseybeat-influenced song. The later CD release includes seven extra tracks. Forget all the compilations and get this excellent legitimate collection of their singles.

An absolute 'must' for connoisseurs of psychedelia, they were at the forefront of experimentation and ahead of their time. (VJ)

This teenage band (Joyce was just 12) from Ventura, California recorded on the same highly obscure label as Arthur and Hendrickson Road House. ALBUM: 1(A) BAD RICE (Warner Bros. WS 1902) 1970

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Edsel ED204) 1986.

Produced by Jack Nitzsche and Tom Donahue, this was the only solo album by the former Mystery Trend leader. Tracks like Marijuana Hell or 61 Clay are full of excellent guitar solos and the backing group is outstanding: Sal Valentino (Beau Brummels, Stoneground), John Blakeley (Stoneground), George Rains (Mother Earth, Sir Douglas Quintet), Mickey Waller (Pilot, Silver Metre)...

In the liner notes to the Edsel reissue, Nagle explains that his memories of the 1969/70 period are mostly vague, due to experimenting with "the combo plate", a mixture of drugs and alcohol. The songs are about repressed teenagers killing their moms, gypsy faith healers, astrology...

Nagle later continued writing songs for Leo Kottke, The Tubes and Stoneground. Together with Scott Matthews he formed the Durocs who recorded one album for Capitol in 1979 and became a renowned producer (working with John Hiatt, Non Fiction). A multi-talented artist, Nagle is also known as one of the top American ceramicists and has also written the score for "The Exorcist", "The Sorcerer" and "Cat People".

An unreleased demo version of 61 Clay from 1968 can be found on Sing Me A Rainbow (2-CD). (SR)

Em Ekat Ot Gnimoc Er'yeht (Warner Bros. 7726) 1973 -

They're Coming To Take Me Away, Ha-Haaa! was possibly one of the very best novelty songs, later recorded by Kim Fowley. When released on a single the flip side, !Aaahah, Yawa Em Ekat Ot Gnimoc Er'yeht was the title track played backwards, an idea also used by the Yellow Balloon on their Yellow Balloon single. The single raced up the charts when first released, but then plummeted when many stations stopped playing it in response to protests from mental health advocacy groups. Consequently it is quite unlike any other record!

The album contains all of the single tracks and several more, including I Live In A Split-Level Head and one of several "replies" by "Josephine XV" (I'm Happy They Took You Away, Ha Ha!). Essentially it continued the mental illness theme and I Live In A Split Level Head featured different vocal parts in each stereo speaker. Although !Aaahah, Yawa Em Ekat Ot Gnimoc Er'yeht is listed on the album cover it doesn't appear on either the original or reissued version of the album.

Samuels also wrote for other artists including Sammy Davis Jr's MOR hit The Shelter of Your Arms.

Nanette Natal (NY)

ALBUM: 1 THE BEGINNING (Evolution 3009) 1971

Nanette Natal started out in 1960 as a classical singer. In this period, she was also a member of the Helen Hayes Young People's Theater Guild and performed several concerts in New York with that group. Later Natal performed on the coffee house circuit and her material developed in a blues and rock direction. She gradually played at more and more universities and concert halls throughout the country. In the seventies, she recorded for Vanguard and made the above album for Evolution Records, which utilised some freaky arrangements, a song titled Iron Butterfly and some psychedelic guitar leads on some tracks. Overall the style of the material spans rock, blues and soft jazz. Natal also worked with several other artists in this period, including Odetta, Rick Nelson and Bonnie Raitt and appeared on TV, including on The Today Show.

Later during a demo session with Columbia (who wanted to sign her as a pop singer) in 1977 Natal dramatically changed the phrasing on Duke Ellington's Sophisticated Lady and was told by the engineer that she was a jazz singer not a pop singer. This proved a decisive moment and thereafter she refocused her career towards jazz and went on to release several further albums that are outside of the scope of this book. (SR/VJ)

The National Gallery (OH)

NB: (1) reissued on CD as Musical Interpretations Of Paul Klee (Fallout FOCD2023) 2006.

Literally an 'art-rock' concept album from Cleveland, Ohio inspired by the works of artist Paul Klee (1879-1940) and complete with a glossy leaflet with lyrics and pictures of some of his paintings.

Their album is a fusion of harmonious folk, pop and avant-garde with some psychy touches, culminating in its most memorable track Long Hair Soulful with stoned vocals and acid-etched guitar. This had been released on a single in 1967 in an abridged form and credited to Bhagavad Gita, backed by an instrumental version of the same (Philips 40485, with PS). The instrumental take can also be heard on Beyond The Calico Wall CD (not on the album version).

The musicians themselves don't get a name-check, just a picture - three guys and a gal.

Composers Roger Karshner and Charles Mangione were involved with several other Cleveland area acts and Karshner was manager of one of the city's more successful sixties bands, The Outsiders.

It's worth noting that several tracks on this album were also recorded, in jazzier versions, by the Gap Mangione Trio on the album Diana In The Autumn Wind (GRC 9001) 1968, with Charles "Chuck" Mangione, Steve Gadd and Tony Levin. Mangione kept on recording throughout the seventies, with at least three albums on A&M between 1976 and 1979. Finally, Diana In The Autumn Wind has been compiled on Fading Yellow Vol. 7 (CD). A garage band from Queens, New York The Naturals' singles were tinged with psychedelia. Shortly after Mike Lassandro and John Vancho joined in 1967, they became the Lip-Tin Tea Company and then Tea Company.

John and Mike had previously played in The Summa-Sets, who formed in 1965, whilst Al Vertucci had previously been with The Missing Links.

Al Vertucci recalls that the Missing Links' debut "was recorded at Ultra-Sonic in Hempstead, L.I. four tracks and the owner/engineer was Bill Stahl who did all of the Fudge and Shangri-Las stuff there. One of the great engineers ever!! He did with four tracks what people can't do today with 48. The Tea Company and all The Naturals stuff (Maiden In The East was recorded on the first eight-track Scully SN 0001) was also done at Ultra-Sonic by Bill Stahl".

With members from Talent and Phoenix, Oregon The Navarros were eventually based in Ashland. They began in 1960 playing in a Pacific Northwest style. Carter, Bolz and Morrison shared lead vocals, backing the others in turn for three-part harmonies. On the group's best known recording, Moses, all three sing and it is Morrison's high pitched scream that is heard on the chorus echo. The two voices heard at the end of the record are Morrison and Carter. The flip side, Ikie, features Bolz on lead vocal with Carter and Morrison providing harmony back-up.

The group began its metamorphosis into the psychedelic-sounding Neighb'rhood Childr'n when Morrison was drafted and sent to Vietnam. His replacement, Tom Ryan steered the group away from its original Pacific Northwest roots toward a mix of British Invasion/San Francisco sounds. It was at this time that the line-up of Bolz, Campbell, Carter (now married and using the name Hoffman), Gleim and Ryan changed their name to the Neighb'rhood Childr'n. After about a year, this line-up broke up with the departure of Campbell, Gleim and Ryan. Bolz and Hoffman then were joined by central California musicians W.A. Farrens on drums and Ron Raschdorf on lead guitar to form the quartet that recorded most of the group's psychedelic album, although Campbell, Gleim and Ryan can be heard on some of the early work.

There is also one unreleased recording (two songs) recorded by the original band in Portland, Oregon shortly before Morrison's departure for the army. Both show the group beginning to move away from its earlier party-rock sound roots. I'll Be Back, a slow blues number with some distinctive rhythm twists, was written and sung by Morrison as his farewell. The flip, Last Kiss Goodbye is a medium tempo somewhat haunting three-part harmony with Bolz singing lead and Morrison and Carter in support.

NAZZ - Self Titled LP.

The Corby label was based in Corvallis, Oregon.

Compilation appearances have included:- Moses on Mondo Frat Dance Bash A Go Go (CD); Tomorrow Is Another Day on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 16 (LP); and both Tomorrow Is Another Day and Sad Man on Nuggets From The Golden State: Good Things Are Happening (CD). (MW/DR)

Housed in a memorable sleeve with a warthog head, Rootin' is a decent album of bluesy hard-rock with rasping vocals and strong guitar parts. Some tracks have background vocals. It's now sought-after as it features two Steely Dan members, Don Fagen and Jeff Baxter. (SR/MW)

Nazz were not really Todd Rundgren's first band, both he and Van Osten had earlier played with Woody's Truck Stop, who were basically a white blues band and released their own album on Smash in early 1969.

Essentially a British-influenced mod band, the Philadelphia-based Nazz was quickly signed by Screen Gems Columbia that was looking for a replacement for The Monkees. They took their name from the Yardbirds' song The Nazz Are Blue that was included on their Roger The Engineer album. The Nazz Are Blue was itself influenced by Lord Buckley's comic monologue The Nazz, which re-tells the story of Jesus of Nazareth.

1968 saw the release of their debut album and a single Open My Eyes. Both were superb. The single was a high energy rocker with a compulsive beginning (which begged comparison to The Who's I Can't Explain), and beautifully blended harmonies. It received a lot of airplay in Britain, but inexplicably was not a hit. In the U.S. it was only a minor hit. It may well have been a much bigger hit, but many stations preferred to play its flip side Hello It's Me, which was also a minor hit when re-issued as the 'A' side to Crowded in 1969.

NAZZ - Nazz Nazz LP.

The album was full of variety - aside from the stunning Open My Eyes, it contained a number of fine rock ballads such as See What You Can Be, Hello It's Me, and If That's The Way You Feel and other dynamic hard-rock numbers such as Back Of Your Mind, When I Get My Plane and She's Goin' Down (the latter showing a distinct Hendrix influence). Despite its acclaim, in retrospect, as a superb album, Nazz did not sell, either in the U.S. or the UK. Released at the height of the American West Coast's heyday, perhaps it cut across the general musical tide that year. However, it became a sought-after collectors' item.

Nazz Nazz, recorded in Los Angeles, was a more consistent album and arguably the band's best. It was originally planned as a double album to be called Fungo Bat, but relationships within the group, particularly between Rundgren and Mooney were beginning to deteriorate to such an extent that only a single album was possible. The opening track Forget All About It was a cohesive, melodic number. Not Wrong Long was the band's third U.S. single - the final one to be released in the UK. Under The Ice and Rain Rider were further examples of their heavier brand of rock. Gonna Cry Today and Letters Don't Count were melodic ballads, whilst Meridian Leeward was a rather strange number about a piloting human-eating pig. The final track, an 11-minute extravaganza entitled A Beautiful Song, married together all of The Nazz's musical styles as well as many of the influences on them. The album was not released in the UK, although all three Nazz albums were reissued by Rhino in 1983, making original SGC copies much sought-after by collectors.

Nazz III is not as good as the first two albums, being a collection of the leftover tracks from the Fungo Bat sessions. Certainly it lacked the consistency of their second album, but had its moments. It contains quite a good version of Paul Revere's Kicks and a number of rock ballads, such as Only One Winner, Resolution, It's Not That Easy and You Are My Window, on which Todd sang lead vocals, but lacks any killer cuts. Indeed, the best of the harder-rock numbers Christopher Columbus was written by Van Osten rather than Rundgren.

When Todd Rundgren left in 1970 he was replaced by Rick Nielsen and Tom Petersson, who were later both members of Fuse and Cheap Trick.

The Nazz is certainly well worth listening to but their greatest significance is as an early musical songwriting venture for Todd Rundgren. Rhino have issued a Best Of Nazz compilation which is a good starting point for their material. Fans of the band will also be interested in the Sydney's Lunch Box single, which contains two studio outtakes by the band, and the Nazz From Philadelphia retrospective, which compiles unreleased and alternate versions of Nazz classics. Open Your Eyes: The Anthology is available as a 3-LP and 2-CD set and comprises their three albums and all their singles. Nazz From Philadelphia/Woody's Truck Stop (2-CD) comprises a selection

NAZZ FROM PHILADELPHIA

NAZZ - Nazz From Philadelphia LP.

Originally from Ranger, Texas Teddy Neeley first sang in a local rock band before recording with A 440. Graced with a pleasant face and a good voice, he moved to Hollywood where he signed contracts with Capitol and Mosrite and assembled the Teddie Neeley Five for two pop singles produced by Nik Venet and Ernie Freeman.

Aged 22, he recorded his first album with his group. Produced by Trade Martin and Lee Holdridge for Koppelman-Rubin Associates, with liner notes by Bobby Darin, Teddy Neeley was very pop-orientated and commercial. The material is, however, interesting with some good tracks: two songs by Bonner and Gordon (ex-Magicians), Look Here Comes The Sun and Bring The Whole Family written by John and Terence Boylan (of Appletree Theatre), two Dobyne/Jones compositions and a cover of David Blue's Grand Hotel. The drummer Paul Tabet would later play in White Duck.

Neeley then became an actor and specialised in rock operas and musicals, playing in the stage versions of 'Hair', 'Tommy', 'Sgt. Pepper', 'Ulysses: The Greek Suite' and 'Jesus Christ Superstar' and in several movies, notably Robert Altman's 'A Romance' in which he was the leader of a rock band.

In 1973/75, he recorded another album and four singles for RCA and United Artists and later worked with Meat Loaf and Bo Diddley.

Autumn Afternoon has been compiled on Mystic Males (CD). (SR)

Negative Space came from the New Jersey area. Their album may not be considered psychedelic, but the music is raw and unpolished, in a heavy garage rock vein. It was apparently sent out to local venues around 1971 for booking purposes and was issued in both a plain white jacket, and a white jacket with the group name stamped on it in blue ink. Some copies contained a biography and cover letter.

Acta is a psychedelic ‘gem’. But, alas, after its release they simply vanished from the scene. Back in 1968 with comparatively crude instrumentation available they created some very spacey sounds on tracks like Long Years In Space, while Chocolate Angel is something of a psychedelic jam. Feeling Zero appears to have been specially written to bring you down after another trip, while tracks like Happy Child and Patterns feature Dyan Hoffmann’s crystal clear vocals. Indeed on Long Years In Space she complements the other vocalists to give the band a Jefferson Airplane-type sound. They even perform a re-creation of Over The Rainbow from ‘Wizard of Oz’.

Neighb’rhood Childr’n recorded extensively at Leo (De Gar) Kulka’s Golden State Recorders in San Francisco during 1967-68, leaving behind quite a number of unreleased tracks. Several acetates have surfaced over the years but thankfully Sundazed raided the studio’s vaults in 1997 and compiled the excellent Long Years In Space retrospective. This set contains the entire Acta album alongside a plethora of outtakes and is strongly recommended to connoisseurs of psychedelia.

The band evolved out of Oregon’s Navarros, when their original drummer John Morrison was drafted. After about a year Campbell, Gleim and Ryan quit too and Bolz and Hoffman were then joined by central California musicians W.A. Farrens on drums and Ron Raschdorf on lead guitar.

Collectors should note that a DJ single, with Dancing In The Street on both sides (N.A.M.I. 2014) 1974, is actually by a different Neighborhood Children, and sounds similar to early Jackson brothers.

Changes Brought To Me has been compiled on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD) and Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 2 (2-LP); and you’ll also find Feeling Zero on Garage Beat ’66 3 (CD). (VJ/CF/DR/SR)

A folk, folk-jazz and blues singer, guitar player and songwriter, Fred Neil was a very important figure in the sixties music scene, although he never reached a high level of public awareness.

Born in Florida in 1937, Neil settled in New York the late fifties. He soon became a figure on the Greenwich Village folk scene where he began writing songs which have been popularised by many, many groups: Other Side Of This Life has been recorded by Jefferson Airplane, Lovin’ Spoonful, Eric Burdon, the Youngbloods and several other acts, Blues On The Ceiling by Tim Hardin, Everybody’s Talkin’ by Harry Nilsson and Dolphins by Tim Buckley to name but a few.

Managed by Herb Cohen (Frank Zappa business associate), Fred Neil began recording in 1964 and his first songs can be found on live folk compilations (Hootenanny Live At The Bitter End, World Of Folk Music). After a rare first album (Tear Down The Walls) with Vince Martin, Bleeker And MacDougal was recorded with John Sebastian, Felix Pappalardi and Pete Childs and produced by Paul Rothchild (Tim Buckley, Doors etc.). It contains an excellent mix of folk and folk-blues and his classic songs Blues On The Ceiling, Candy Man and Other Side Of This Life. Elektra reissued this album in 1970 under the new title of Little Bit Of Rain.

BLEECKER & MACDOUGAL

FRED NEIL - Bleecker & MacDougal CD.

In 1967, Neil left Elektra, signed a new contract with Capitol and released one of his best records, Fred Neil with Sweet Cocaine, The Dolphins, I've Got A Secret and the superb acid folk raga Cynicrustpetefredjohn Raga. Produced by Nick Venet, he is accompanied by Al Wilson (Canned Heat), Billy Mundi (Mothers Of Invention), Cyrus Faryar (Modern Folk Quartet, Cosmic Sounds) and Peter Childs. This album would be reissued under a new title after his song Everybody's Talkin' was chosen for the theme of 'Midnight Cowboy' and became a huge hit sung by Nilsson.

The next album Sessions is once again excellent and was recorded in October 1967 live in the studio: four acoustic guitars, one bass and Nick Venet producing.

Finally released in 1971 but probably recorded earlier, Other Side Of This Life is composed of one live side of his classics recorded with Monte Dunn at the Elephant Club in Woodstock and one studio with Gram Parsons on one track (You Don't Miss Your Water).

Jefferson Airplane wrote two songs about Neil: House At Pooneil Corners and Ballad Of You And Me And Pooneil.

Refusing to play the game of promotion, interviews and tours, Neil never had much commercial success and retreated by the late sixties to Coconut Grove, Florida, where he engaged himself in dolphin research. The recent CD reissues have helped to re-launch the interest in his music. 12 of the 17 tracks on the compilation Do You Ever Think Of Me? are culled from his 1966 eponymous album sessions and recorded with some highly-regarded folk musicians. Highlights in this collection include The Dolphins, the original version of Everybody's Talkin', That's The Bag I'm In and Sweet Cocaine.

Blues On The Ceiling features on the Follow The Music (CD) in the Elektra book.

Sadly, Fred Neil died of cancer in July 2001. (SR/GBi)

An obscure outfit Neon's output might interest readers. It was presented in a nice surrealist looking cover, and the music features some psych, with plenty of blues-rock jams and some hard-rockers as well. Their sole album was produced by Tommy James and Bob King of Tommy James and The Shondells fame. (VJ)

THE NEON PHILHARMONIC - The Moth Confesses CD.

Beware of opportunistic dealers, who describe this studio creation duo as psychedelic, they are more poppish really. The project consisted of Nashville Symphony Orchestra musicians and was headed by Gant and Saussy. Songwriter/arranger/keyboardist Tupper Saussy was the main creative force within the band that also featured singer Don Gant. The group had a long forgotten hit with, Morning Girl. Their debut album, The Moth Confesses, was full of ambitious orchestral arrangements and operatic lyrical reach, but sounds very dated now. Prior to this Saussy contributed to The Swinger's Guide To Mary Poppins, which featured jazz renditions of songs from the children's film. They recorded another eponymous album as well as several singles, and they remained active until 1975. They have their moments though, on tracks like Are You Old Enough To Remember Dresden? from their second album.

Grant later died on 6th March 1987, aged only 44. (VJ/GG)

45:	Good Morning Baby/Slow It Down	(Direction D-4003) 1970

Neither garage nor psych, this extremely obscure single from February 1970 falls firmly within the hippie camp. Uplifting harmonies and laid-back soft pop with gently strummed acoustics and a back-to-nature vibe, this band pitched their tent somewhere between Crosby Stills & Nash and America. Thought to have been from Monterey, California although the involvement of the Tommy Amato/Brent Maher song writing/production team indicates a Las Vegas connection - they were based there at the time. Slow It Down is by songwriter/performer Jeffrey Comanor, who set out from Florida to San Francisco and Hollywood in the sixties, and had success with Midnight Cowboy as well as many solo releases. (MW/VJ)

The Nervous Breakdowns (CA)

45:	I Dig Your Mind/Seeds Of Love	(Take 6 1001) 1967

This was a Rusty Evans project; he wrote and co-produced it (with the Vegas Bros.) while in Los Angeles. I Dig Your Mind, is quite a good effort where the vocals blend with the organ backing and moderate echoes are used to good effect. The flip is apparently nothing more than an instrumental version of the 'A' side.

You can also source I Dig Your Mind on Pebbles, Vol. 9 (CD), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol's 1 & 2 (LP), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 1 (2x7"), Pebbles, Vol. 1 (ESD) (CD), Sixties Choice, Vol. 2 (LP) and 60's Choice Collection, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD). (VJ/MW)

Both California and Chicago have been suggested as this band's origins. Make Love, Not War is waltzing harmony pop except for some acidic guitar in the last few bars. Oh! is brassy pop with keening guitar.

Make Love, Not War has been compiled on Psychedelic States: Illinois Vol. 1 (CD); and you'll also find Bones on Brain Shadows 11 (CD). (MW)

ALBUM: 1(B) NEUTRAL SPIRITS (Regency LP 101) 197? R3

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Gear Fab GF-198) 2003.

This band was from rural Decatur in Tennessee. The concept of the band started as early as 1970. Mike Gable wrote some songs and they got gigs at private parties and talent shows. They recorded the album at a studio near Atlanta, Georgia under the watchful eye of Johnny Carter (Papa John). Only 500 copies were pressed and a number of them were destroyed in a house fire in 1985, so it's no surprise how rare the remaining copies are. Six of the eight tracks on the album were penned by Mike Gable. Of the other two, Scenic Void, an instrumental which has some great reverb guitar, was written by high school friend Mickey Debusk and Can't Leave It This Way was co-written by Rex and Mike Henry. The album, with its basic garage-pop feel has a certain amateurish charm. The lyrics address some of the issues of the day like the Vietnam War and drug laws (Flying). Power City is a decent song with plenty of fuzz and Look What You've Done To Me is in a garage-pop vein with quite appealing vocals. The catchiest track is probably Mike Gable's finale I'm Calling Chicago, which had that three-minute hit single format. Note - the album has a short playing time, clocking in at less than 30 minutes. (VJ/RM)

	Just Outside My Window/ Let's Get With It	(Macy's 7-UP 104) 1967

This San Jose band started out as instrumental outfit The Preps. Even in 1966 when they'd become the New Arrivals, much of their material was instrumental or harked back to teener and pre-Invasion sounds; this was no garage band. The exception is their second single; recorded at Golden State Recorders, Scratch My Name is a stompin' fuzz-beater which concludes with a rave-up - think Dave Clark 5 meets the Yardbirds. It was written by Tom Talton - yes, he of We The People fame, as confirmed by Alec Palao: "the band's manager was a friend of We The People's producer Tony Moon, hence their access to the song". The flip is Searchers-style jangle-beat with a sunny Californian disposition.

After their singles on South Bay they reappeared as the 5th Street Exit on an EP - The Going Thing in 1967 - accompanied by Holly Penfield. The tracks are It's A Goin' Thing, The Uncola Song, The Days And The Hours and The Blue Bridge.

In 2002 the band produced an 11-track retrospective CD, Finally, which supposedly represented an unreleased album. Bookended by Scratch Your Name and Just Outside My Window are a selection of contemporary covers in a clean-cut pop style - Wake Me Shake Me, Time Won't Let Me, Goldfinger, Nazz Are Blue, and another Tom Talton composition When I Needed You.

The follow-up retrospective, Let's Get With It, Baby! tied up loose ends with a chronological selection of 15 cuts. It kicks off with a pair of Preps' instrumentals from 1964-5 (Night Theme and Moonracers), two 45 sides (Take Me For What I Am and Let's Get With It), then two from the Going Thing EP (It's A Goin' Thing and Blue Bridge). Thereafter it's a trawl through unreleased recordings from the mid-seventies and early eighties, mostly lightweight pop. This one's for completists only.

Let's Get With It has reappeared on Acid Dreams Vol. Three (LP). (MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) ALL AROUND (RD Records RD 20) 2007

Pat Kilroy and Susan Graubard had previously released Light Of Day in 1966, a progressive folk album which incorporated raga influences and featured experimental songwriting. All Around was recorded for Warner Bros in the summer of 1967. It picks up where Light Of Day left off, reaching further into avant-garde realms. The band proper (Kilroy, Graubard and Stewart) performed at The Human Be-In in Golden Gate Park in 1967 along with the leading lights of the San Francisco psychedelic music scene at the time, but sadly Kilroy died only a few months after the recording. With no artist to support the album, Warner Bros chose not to release it and remained unheard until the RD Records issue. (VJ/CF)

Sacramento, the State Capital of California, was home to this band and their finest moment Want Ad Reader is recommended to garage fans. After a few singles they changed name again beginning work on an album using the name Never Mind, although the album was later issued under the name Glad, who later evolved into Redwing. Tim Schmidt would go on to The Eagles and Poco amongst others.

The retrospective album on Cicadelic is worth checking out - it contains all their single tracks bar Fine With Me plus nine unreleased gems. There's also an anthology Wants You which contains 24 tracks from 1965-68, including all their singles, unreleased material from aborted single and album projects, and several cuts by the band's latter-day incarnation Glad. Also included are three video segments including footage of the band miming on an L.A. pop show in 1967! The package is accompanied by a 28-page booklet crammed with mostly unseen pictures, many in colour, and a definitive band history courtesy of Alec Palao.

Compilation appearances have included: - Want Ad Reader on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 7 (LP & CD), Of Hopes And Dreams & Tombstones (LP), Sounds Of The Sixties San Francisco, Vol. 1 (LP), Shadows Falling (CD) and Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD plus book); One More For The Good Guys on Buzz Buzz Buzzzzzz, Vol. 1 (CD); Woman and I'll Come Running on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 2 (CD); and Green Eyed Woman on All Cops In Delerium - Good Roots (LP) and Sound Of Young Sacramento (EP). After Buffalo Springfield disintegrated, Dewey Martin put together New Buffalo Springfield, with line-up 'A' including Gary Rowles (ex-Nooney Rickett and The Pure) in October 1968. The band made its debut in Hawaii in November 1968 and the following month played at San Francisco's Holiday Rock Festival alongside Canned Heat and Steppenwolf. Early in 1969 however, they were forced to shorten their name to New Buffalo, and shortly afterwards Apperson was replaced by ex-Randy Fuller Four leader Randy Fuller and Jim Price left to join Delaney & Bonnie.

Bob Jones then replaced Rowles, who later joined Love and a recording deal was obtained with Atco. Before they could fulfil this, however, Martin left for a solo deal with Uni in July and the group added Joey Newman (ex-Don and The Goodtimes/Touch) to become Blue Mountain Eagle.

Bob Apperson the bass player also worked with Jose Feliciano, the Cuban jazz guitarist who covered Light My Fire. Apparently he played on a lot of his early work. Bob also played with Wilson Pickett, Glenn Campbell and The Lettermen. (NW)

NB: α was originally released as (Centaur 1202) but after a threatened copyright lawsuit, it was reissued as (Sentaur 1202). This too resulted in a copyright problem and subsequent singles came out on "Sentar"! The 'A' side to β, (The Ballad of the) Wingbat Marmaduke is actually the same track as Elf Song from their Colonization album.

This Chicago band started out as The Patsmen in 1964 playing a British invasion sound. The travelled to California in 1965, but returned to Chicago forming their own Centaur (later Sentar) label. In 1966, they sounded very punkish with a strong Animals - Them influence. Their first album in particular is very much in this vein and originals are very rare and sought-after. The second is more poppy, but contains a fine cover of The Yardbirds' classic Mister You're A Better Man Than I. Later they signed to Mercury and developed into a successful harmony ballad/soft-rock act which continued recording well into the seventies. Over the years they enjoyed much minor chart success and one Top 20 hit, Things I'd Like To Say.

In 1967, Ray Graffia produced a single for The Prophets. In 1969, Graffia and Chic James left the New Colony Six and joined up with former member Craig Kemp to form the Raymond John Michael Band, which eventually released three singles. Patrick McBride later worked at Plynth Studios in the Chicago area. In 1975, the New Colony Six finally stopped rockin'.

Ray Graffia and Ronnie Rice re-formed The New Colony Six for a one-time reunion at Chicago's Park West in 1988. Subsequently Ray Graffia has also performed with a new line-up of the band, doing selected shows throughout the nineties. Ronnie Rice also now performs as a solo artist and still makes occasional appearances with New Colony Six. Anyone interested in Ronnie's solo material should check out Refried Rice ('61-'86) on Sunlight Records (SU-5007) 1997.

Sides is a collection of outtakes, rarities and demos by the band. The Farfisa-dominated 'B' side Sunshine is very good, but overall the standard is inconsistent and three of the first 10 tracks are repeated twice. The set does come with informative sleevenotes with input from vocalist Ray Graffia.

Les Kummel and Chuck Jobes had earlier been in The Revelles, whilst Billy Herman had been in Aorta. Sadly Les Kummel died in an auto accident on 19th December 1978.

In the eighties and nineties Ray Graffia has been busy running his company Arbortech, which deals with cleaning up environmental problems in industry, primarily focusing on wastewater.

45: Tears/Why Did You Go? (Garland 2020) 1970

Willamina, Oregon was home turf for this soft-rock quintet whose rare private pressed album that was originally released in a limited edition of 500 copies has been reissued a few times since. The opening cut New Dawn begins with an unusual spoken intro, but is essentially a pleasant soft-rock ballad; I See A Day has some good fuzz guitar and Its Rainin' couples this with sound effects; there's some upfront organ on Hear Me Cryin' and side one closes with Dark Thoughts, a more up-tempo song with lots of great fuzz guitar that blends nicely with the organ. Side two by comparison is very samey with a country-style rhythm section that never really excites, but You does have a nice organ intro and the final cut has a pleasant guitar/organ blend.

Other 'New Dawn' acts abound, including one on Imperial.

The band was active right through to the mid-nineties.

You can also find Dark Thoughts on Love, Peace And Poetry: American Psychedelic Music (LP & CD). (VJ/MW)

The New Dawn (?)

45s: If I Can't Have Your Love/Loser (Mainstream 652) 1967
Slave Of Desire/Funny Feeling (Mainstream 664) 1967

The first single is rather disappointing multi-voiced pop, a few intelligent harmonies notwithstanding. Still of unknown origins, both sides of the second single were composed by Michael Leonti and Anthony Supnet.

Slave Of Desire has been compiled on Sixties Choice, Vol. 2 (LP) and 60's Choice Collection, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD). (MK/MW)

The New Colony Six
Attacking a Straw Man

THE NEW COLONY SIX - Attacking A Straw Man LP.

This garage-pop song has lots of fuzz and "mind-expanding" lyrics. The flip is a ballad. The chances are this was from Nashville. Listen To The Music producer Danny Davis was based there during the sixties as was Someday producer Felton Jarvis, who worked for RCA from 1965-1970 and became best known for his work with Elvis Presley, from the mid-sixties until Elvis' death. (SR/MW)

New Delhi River Band (NDRB) (CA)

A Berkeley, California band who featured two former members of the East Bay garage band Bethlehem Exit (singer John Tomasi and guitarist Peter Schultbach), along with David Nelson, former bluegrass partner of Jerry Garcia, playing guitar in his first electric band. They did not release any records. Nelson and NDRB bassist Dave Torbert went on to New Riders of The Purple Sage, then Torbert and drummer Chris Herold formed Kingfish who would later include Bob Weir of The Grateful Dead. 45s: Springtime Lady/Swlabr (Nottingham Disc Co. 850) 1969
Lalena/Them Changes (Nottingham Disc Co. 50104) 1970

New Directions originally formed in Virginia Beach, Virginia circa 1965 as the Directions. In early 1969 they recorded their first single - a laid-back rock original backed by a Cream cover. An initial pressing of 500 copies was successful enough in the Petersburg charts to warrant a second helping. In 1970 they released a second single, where they tackled Donovan's Lalena and Buddy Miles' Them Changes.

Aliens, Psychos And Wild Things (CD) features two versions of Springtime Lady - the single version is above-par late sixties rock with a West Coast vibe in the vocal arrangements. The instrumental version is a different unreleased take, introduced as "Springtime Lady music track one", and highlights the soothing quality of the twin-guitar workout where wah-wah snakes in and out of fluid runs and sustains. It's the final "bonus track" on the CD and a great way to wind down. (BHr/ST/MW)

The New Expression (OH)

ALBUM: 1 GOOD CLEAN ROCK & ROLL (Jewel 544) 1975 R1

This Ohio album is presented in an unusual swirl cover design surrounding a small photo of a balding guy in his bathtub. Musically it mixes ballads and seventies rock with fuzz guitar, organ and harpsichord. (VJ)

New Folk (OK)

ALBUM: 1 BORN YESTERDAY - I CONQUERED DEATH!
(selected) (No label) 197?

This Christian band issued several albums of no interest to readers, but this one has its moments. Specifically, the blistering psych cut Love Comes Down and the fuzzed-out Let's Get Together.

The band came from Arrowhead Springs, Oklahoma. (MMs/SR)

The New Fugitives (CT)

45: She's My Baby/That's Queer (GLO 5241) 1966

The New Fugitives, from Meriden, Connecticut were formed in early 1965 by two high-school pals. According to Tim Warren's Back From The Grave liner notes, at the suggestion of The Rogues' label boss they hit Soyka Studios in the late summer of 1966 and cut four tunes. RCA then offered to sign them if they dropped their lead singer, but they declined. Their manager worked out a deal with the studio owner to press up 300 copies of the above 7" but they had to add New to their name because some New York City lawyers representing a group named The Fugitives threatened to sue if they used that name. The group split up in mid-1967 when the guitarist was drafted and the rest went off to college.

You'll also find That's Queer and She's My Baby on Back From The Grave, Vol. 8 (CD) and Back From The Grave, Vol. 8 (2-LP). (VJ/GG)

45s:	Come With Me/Waiting For Her	(Date 1576) 1967
	Fantasy Day/Too Many People	(Peace No.222) 1968

This band featured Phil Keaggy from Ohio, who was also in The Squires and, later, in Glass Harp. Previously known as Volume IV, the power-poppy Come With Me was written by Keaggy.

Their second single was recorded after Keaggy had left the band and suffers from poor production.

The band recorded additional material and several acetates are known to exist. (GGI/MW)

The New Invaders (CA)

45s:	α	It Won't Be Long/ I'll Forgive You Then Forget You	(Invader 401) 1965
		Don't Let Me Down/Baby, Where Y' Been?	(Invader 402) 1965

NB: α shown as by Lydia Pense with The New Invaders.

Given their epithet, it's no surprise that Don't Let Me Down is slick, driving Invasion-beat with Lennon-esque vocals and Fab Four harmonies - hear it on Destination Frantic (CD) and Fuzz, Flaykes, & Shakes Vol. 7 (LP/CD). Fuzz, Flaykes, & Shakes Vol. 7 speculates that they included some British ex-pats and were active in the Los Angeles area, but due to the involvement of Lydia Pense who was later with Cold Blood, the San Francisco Bay area has been suggested as their home turf too. ALBUM: 1 THE NEW LIFE SINGS THE SIDEHACKERS (Original Soundtrack) (Amaret ST 5004) 1969

45s:	Ha Lese (Le Di Khana)/Backwoods Annie	(Amaret 103) 1968
	Strollin' Sunday Mornin'/Only For Our Minds	(Amaret 107) 1969
	All Aboard/Sidehacker	(Amaret 115) 1969

When Fresno's Raik's Progress broke up in the spring of 1967, the band was living in Los Angeles. Steve Krikorian went home (only to return to Tinseltown a few years later and launch a solo career as Tonio K), while Van Maarth and Olson formed Admiral Strange. That left Alan Shapazian and Duane Scott - they formed New Life with Don Whaley (of the Cindermen), Phil Reed (of Elephant Book), and Steve Wood, recently arrived from Texas where he'd been in The Penthouse Five.

The band was used by Mike Curb on the 'Sidehackers' film, resulting in a soundtrack album produced by Larry Goldberg and Curb collaborator Jerry Styner, who also wrote many of the tracks. Three album cuts made it onto their singles - Sidehacker, Strollin' Sunday Mornin', and the excellent garage-psych rocker Ha Lese; the latter can be heard on Acid Dreams Vol. Three (LP) and Garagelands Vol. 2 (CD).

Of the other single sides, Only For Our Minds is a Raik's Progress leftover (written by Shapazian, Krikorian, Van Maarth) and All Aboard is credited to Whaley/Wood/Reed/Shapazian/Sinopoli which may indicate a later change in personnel. (MW/VJ/GG)

The New Life (?)

45s:		Canterbury Road/Up Grade	(Epic 10538) 1969
	α	I Think I'm Gonna Cry/Up Grade	(Epic 5-10592) 1970
	α	Canterbury Road/ Happy & Free (Out In The Country)	(Epic 5-10661) 1970

NB: α shown as by "Ferguson, Davis & Jones".

Probably the work of a different New Life to The New Life on Amaret, this single was the brainchild of Bob Goldstein, a showbiz/Broadway type who was involved in the Goldebriars management and also with Lou Christie's management. Canterbury Road is a re-write of There Is Nothing More To Say from The Millennium Begin album with an additional songwriting credit for Lou Christie. The track was intended as part of a Broadway show/rock opera based on Chaucer, but who is featured on the record is anyone's guess. The single was produced by Sandy Linzer, who also worked with the Bostonian Peter Ivers. Sadly this is not Millennium-like dreamy sunshine-pop - it's soul/funk-pop. Up Grade was written by W. Davis and J.Ferguson so, given their subsequent identity, they would appear to be a Three Dog Night-like trio (with backing musicians).

New Life (CA)

An unknown band assumed to be from San Francisco due to the appeareance of Why Now Girl? (composed by J. Fletcher & J. Casolary) on the rare sampler album San Francisco International Pop Festival, Vol. 1 (Colstar 5001) 1968. The track does not appear to have been released on single although it resurfaced in the eighties on Pebbles Vol.13 (LP). (MW)

Newluvs (PA)

45:	It's All Over/Be My Girl	(Barclay N 196713/4) 1967

Invasion-influenced reedy garage-beat band Newluvs may have sounded dated by 1967 in Reading, Pennsylvania. It still has a certain charm and

Barclay releases are becoming much harder to find. Both sides of the single are also featured on Arf!Arf!'s 1998 Barclay compilation CD Eastern Pa Rock Part Two (1966-'69). (MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) THE NEW MIX (United Artists UAS-6678) 1968

NB: (1) reissued on 10" (Akarma AK 2016) 2001.

This fresh-sounding psychedelic rock-pop album is well worth investigation. The opening cut, While We Waited, has a melodramatic intro and wailing guitar, but for the most part the album consists of pleasing vocal harmonies and nicely blended keyboards. The music is quite Beatle-ish at times, particularly on side two.

A quartet from Charlotte, North Carolina and previously known as The Eighteenth Edition. David Brown was later in Jeremiah with Pat Walters, formerly of The Paragons, with whom Johnny Pace had also played. Walters and drummer Rob Thorne teamed up again in 1980 to form the excellent Spongetones; highly-regarded purveyors of indie/psych/power-pop who were still going strong into the 21st century.

No singles can be found by this band on United Artists or elsewhere. It may explain why their album seems to have made little impact and remains obscure and unappreciated.

While We Waited has been compiled on Songs Of Faith And Inspiration (CD). (VJ/MW)

THE NEW MIX - Self Titled LP.

Combining U.S. and U.K. influences, New York's New Order belted out a healthy mix of raunchy Beatlesque beat with some Four Seasons-like harmonies on You've Got Me High, which can now be heard on Psychotic Reactions (LP). The flip is a slow moody ballad with a touch of Dylan about it but is more garage than folk-rock.

The second single is the killer, a glorious slice of moody garagy pop with ringing guitar chords and a neat solo - a bit like the early Ides Of March in style - great 'teenbeat'. Why Can't I has got a further airing on Quagmire Volume 5 (CD). Pucci Girl is a decent beat ballad.

Their third single, however is very different from its predecessors, having crossed the tracks into big production pop ballad territory - blue-eyed soul with a nod to the Four Seasons.

Joyce & Barberis were also behind a single by The Moon - Nothing Around Me But Love/You've Got Your Needs (Murbo M-1039) c1969. Dum Dum, a Joyce/Barberis bubblegum song, was released by Carrot Tree in 1970 though it is unknown if the duo were group members. (MW/SR/CF)

45: Tired Of Living/Love Is (AOK 1036) 1967

This West Texas outfit was put together by Simonetti who'd earlier made a single with Bob and His Agents and one as The Venturas. This quartet included Gary P. Nunn who was in many sixties bands and emerged as a solo artist during the eighties. Their semi-psychedelic single can also be heard on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 12 (LP) and both sides of the single are compiled on Collectables' The History Of Texas Garage Bands, Vol. 3 - The AOK Records Story (CD) (snappy title, eh?). (VJ/MW)

The New Rock Band (FL)

45:	Rock Steady/Little David	(Laurie LR 3480) 1968

This is inoffensive and catchy pop-rock with some smooth guitar - Little David is just an instrumental take of Rock Steady. Its main significant is that the band is actually Florida's Birdwatchers with Duane Allman.

Both sides of the single hence appear on Birdwatchers (CD). (MW)

Blue Shoes, by this obscure North Carolina band, has resurfaced on 30 Seconds Before The Calico Wall (CD). It's got some great fuzz guitar. The flip is bouncey harmony-pop. Both sides of this single were written by Dayv (note the spelling!) Butler, as was the previous MU single. The Boy Who Only Smiles is delicious, Pepperish garage-pop with autoharp. (MW/ELn)

New Haven, Connecticut hippie group The News played in a West Coast folk-rock style with fine vocal harmonies and pedal steel guitar. Indeed Loser has a superb pedal steel guitar solo. Their album was recorded between 1971 and 1974. The opening track of radio chatter is detrimental to an otherwise interesting listen for fans of melodic sixties music. (SR/VJ)

From Texas, this group included Michael Nesmith for a while before his incarnation as Michael Blessing and his fame with The Monkees. They played a mix of folk, folk-rock and novelty songs (like Buttermilk, recorded in 1964 and the only track with Nesmith). The line-up changed in 1965 and the band relocated to California, where they recorded their album. They were managed and produced by Randy Sparks, the man behind the New Christy Minstrels and the Back Porch Majority, two "straight" folk-pop groups.

Arranged by Lincoln Mayorga, their second single starts off with an Eastern vibe, and finishes with orchestrated folk.

Carol Stromme would later have a solo career. (SR)

1977)	3( )	WINDS OF BIRTH	(Lorian no #) 1974 SC

NB: (1) and (2) were cassette-only releases.

Formed by young Americans David Spangler and Lark Batteau in Scotland, this band originally performed as The Findhorn Folk Singers. Their debut concert was on 2 October 1971, and they subsequently performed at the Royal Air Force station at nearby Kinloss, and folk clubs and ceilidhs in surrounding Morayshire. They renamed themselves The New Troubadours in autumn 1972 when they crystallized into line-up (A) above. This line-up continued to perform in the community and also performed at the Westminster Theatre, London, in March 1973.

The New Troubadours recorded two albums on Findhorn, both released in 1973: Homeland and Love Is. These were issued only on cassette but were kept in catalogue for 30 years, selling many thousands of copies. The band also appeared on several contemporary television and radio programmes about the Findhorn community, including BBC's Mainly Magnus, in January 1973, on which several songs were broadcast.

In 1973 most of the New Troubadours relocated to the USA where they formed a spiritual education and publishing group, The Lorian Association. They recorded the album Winds Of Birth in San Francisco, released by Lorian in 1974. It features male/female vocals and some psychedelic touches. It was released in a white or a blue sleeve, and both are equally scarce.

A collection of Christmas songs, Festival Of Light, followed in 1980. The whole band has not gigged since, but Milenko and Kathi got married and continued to record and perform together for many years releasing several albums of their own.

They also contributed six cuts to Music From The Magic Garden (Findhorn) 1995. (SR/VJ)

This deluxe issue also included an insert of photographs and concert flyers. The band members supplied a master proof and original negatives to aid in the reproduction of this highly elaborate sleeve and the results were so impressive that additional covers were manufactured to house the bands' leftover vinyl discs from the original pressing. (1) reissued on vinyl (Akarma AD530) 2001. (1) reissued on CD (Afterglow 004) 1993 in a hexagonal CD digipak (1) reissued on CD (Shadoks Music 018) 2001 from the recently discovered master tapes. This CD has a triple gatefold hexagonal sleeve and three bonus tracks.

45: Good Time Car/Terms Of, You Love Me (Dot 16910) 1966

Originally based in Portland, Oregon this band began playing regularly in San Francisco by 1966. The single they recorded that year for Dot Records is in a good-timey Lovin' Spoonful style, bearing little resemblance to most of the material on their 1968 album.

Produced by omnipresent Northwest figure Rick Keefer, the album has long captured the interest of collectors world-wide. It is perhaps most notorious for its highly unusual oversized cover - too large to fit into a standard bin in the shops; many were damaged straight away and finding one now in pristine condition is close to impossible! It was a fantastically expensive item to produce, even back in the sixties. Although 1,000 covers were printed to match the 1,000 albums pressed, only 500 covers were picked up from the printer (these were delivered flat, incidentally - and the band members folded them and glued them up by hand), the plan being to distribute the initial batch and use the money to pay the printer for the balance of the order. Sadly, when they returned for the remainder of the jackets, the shop was out of business. The music, however, suffers from none of this trivia and is highly recommended, especially the recent legitimate CD on Shadoks which was made from the original master tapes! The album's highlights are many and include the opening track Somebody's Peepin', with its nice vocal harmonies; I Can See It, a folk-rocker with unusual raga-like segments; Wheels Of Fortune, which has a catchy chorus and winds down with a psychedelic guitar jam; I See You're Lookin' Fine, another mildly psychedelic number with interesting echoed vocals and the amazing Her Darkness In December (Drone Song), which is arguably the most psychedelic track on offer. The recent CD includes a slightly earlier but no less effective alternate take of this number that is not to be missed! Both sides of the Dot single are included as well. All connoisseurs of psychedelia should make it a point to hear this band's material now that it's readily available.

The New Tweedy Bros! left behind additional live and studio recordings and future releases are in the works.

Producer Rick Keefer was a very busy man during the sixties; his name can be found on records by The Wallflowers, The Phantoms, Wheels Of Fortune, The Sound Vendor, United Travel Service, The Easy Chair, The Bystanders, The Fire and many others.

Sadly, Steve Ekman lost his battle with cancer in May 2001.

Compilation coverage has been limited to: Danny's Song on Love, Peace And Poetry: American Psychedelic Music (LP & CD); three album cuts: - What's Wrong With That, Someone Just Passed By and Her Darkness In December on the bootleg compilation California Halloween (2-LP); Wheel Of Fortune on Electric Psychedelic Headswirlers 4 (CD) and two previously unreleased cuts: Letters and Time have appeared on Sing Me A Rainbow (2-CD). Little Dreams/Autre Fois (Canterbury C512) 1967

On the same Californian label as Yellow Balloon, this rare album was produced by Ken Handler. Reid King would later play with Papa John Creach. All 11 tracks are originals and in a soft-pop style. The best examples of their pleasant harmony pop are The Evening Mist, In A Lonely Towne and Shadows Of Goodbye. Some lists refer to this as psych and it isn't!

Little Dreams has been given another airing on Fading Yellow Vol. 7 (CD). (SR/VJ)

New Wine (CA)

ALBUM: 1 HOLY SPIRIT EXPRESS (Anodyne SW 1048) 197? R1

From San Diego, California this religious album has a strong West Coast flavour. The band (four long-haired guys and an older woman) features two guitars, bass, drums and vocals. The cover pictures them lying on the grass in a park or garden. This is a good album with strong female vocals, good guitar including some fuzz leads and it contains a decent cover of Spirit of Elijah. (VJ)

45s: The Thinking Animal/My Petite (Pentacle P-101) 1967
Brown Eyed Woman/I Need Love (Pentacle P-104) 1968

This band was previously reported as being an L.A.-based punk band, which had evolved out of The Sons of Adam, fronted by Davy Peters. That was not quite correct. Yes, they were fronted by Peters, they recorded the singles in L.A. and they had been known as The Sons Of Adam ?. HOWEVER this was a totally different Sons Of Adam, from Edmonton in Canada. They had journeyed to Los Angeles to record, only to find out that another band had already bagged that name.

I Need Love was rumoured to have appeared on the Take 6 label but that remains unconfirmed.

The first single sounds like it's from a third-rate musical or an exploitation movie and is not recommended.

I Need Love has been compiled on Ya Gotta Have Moxie, Vol. 2 (2-CD) and Boulders, Vol. 1 (LP). (MW/VJ)

From Winona, Minnesota - this lot blast through two covers in true '69 post-Vanilla Fudge bombastic style. Actually Day Tripper isn't all that bad but it's not one for garage purists so beware the garage or psych tags touted by none-too-discerning dealers. NEW YORK ROCK & ROLL ENSEMBLE
REFLECTIONS

NEW YORK ROCK & ROLL ENSEMBLE - Reflections CD.

The story goes that three members of this act were classically trained at Juilliard Music Conservatory (arguably the most prestigious American music school) and that at some point they "realised" that they could make more money being rock stars than classical musicians. The music on their first two albums is distinctive in that they used classical instruments (usually oboes and string quartets) in their rock songs and then might play a classical Bach piece using modern rock instruments. Their third album was a unique collaboration with Manos Hadjidakis, who is best known for composing the music for the movie "Never On Sunday". This album has a distinctive Greek flavour and is quite unique - very beautiful, relaxing. After their third album, they shortened their name to become The New York Rock Ensemble, switched record companies (from Atco to Columbia), and Brian Corrigan left.

The fourth album was less original, but was ironically their best selling album. I have a personal theory that this was related to a free or inexpensive sampler (LP), called Different Strokes, that Columbia distributed and which featured a cut from this album. In my humble opinion, their fourth and fifth albums were much less interesting and qualify only as average rock music.

Michael Kamen went on to have a successful career producing film scores, working with artists such as Pink Floyd, Roger Waters etc. In 1991, he won two Grammy's: "Best Pop Instrumental Performance" for the Robin Hood: Prince Of Thieves album conducting the Greater Los Angeles Orchestra and "Best Song Written Specifically For A Motion Picture Or For Television" for (Everything I Do) I Do It For You from Robin Hood: Prince Of Thieves.

They contributed Gravedigger to the Zachariah soundtrack (LP). (CO/LP)

NB: α City Girl was by The Fury Four. β shown as by Everyday Hudson, promo copies have Laugh, Funny Funny as the 'A' side.

Despite their name, this outfit came out of Portland, Oregon where they won some local 'Battle Of The Bands' contests early in 1967 when they were known as My Sirs. Based around the three Hudson brothers they changed name to The New Yorkers when asked to do a promotional tour by the Chrysler Company, who required them to use the name of one of the company's cars. Musically they were very influenced by The Beatles and they did enjoy some regional success with their early recordings. Later singles, especially those on Jerden, leaned towards an Anglophile pop-psych sound.

Mr. Kirby is a fine psychedelic raga style punker, with lots of fuzz.

Years later the three brothers signed to Elton John's Rocket label achieving some commercial success as The Hudson Brothers and even having their own TV show!

Compilation appearances have included: Again on Mindrocker, Vol. 8 (LP), History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 5 (cassette), Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 - Knock You Flat! (CD) and Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol.3 (CD); Mr. Kirby on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 - Flash And Crash (LP), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 4 (LP & CD), Garagelands, Vol. 1 & 2 (CD), Garagelands, Vol. 2 (LP), The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 4 (CD) and The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 2 (LP); Mr. Kirby and Seeds Of Spring on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 - Flash And Crash

New Zealand Trading Company (?)

ALBUM: 1 NEW ZEALAND TRADING COMPANY (Memphis 1001) 1970

A quintet of uncertain origin, New Zealand Trading Company's music is group-penned (except for an inventive cover of Hey Jude) in a soft psych-jazz vein, reminiscent of the Wake Up, It's Tomorrow era Strawberry Alarm Clock. The song Jam And Anti-freeze is particularly fine. There are also very nice harmonies on several cuts, most notably Winnifred Jellicoe, and one cut (Ruo Moko) which seems to be sung (as near as I can tell) in Portuguese. (RBn)

From Brookfield, Wisconsin Next Five's version of The Nightcrawlers' Little Black Egg is noteworthy for harmonious vocals and tasty organ chord changes. Another of their tracks, Talk To Me Girl, is more commercial power-pop than garage. After another label change and some personnel shuffles they released a final single as by The Toy Factory.

NB: (1) also issued in France on Roulette (R1). (1) reissued on CD (Sundazed SC 6150) 1999.

A black group based in Brooklyn, New York that played Hendrix-style heavy rock with great acid fuzz organ jams and wild fuzz bass on this album.

The band members actually came from Trinidad in the Caribbean and St. Croix in the Virgin Islands, according to Jud Cost's liner notes to the Sundazed CD, which is recommended. In the late sixties Trinidadian Scipio Sargeant and Bert Bailey discovered that they shared an interest in hard-rock and decided to form a band, which was completed by keyboardist Earl Arthur, brother/drummer Herb Bailey and singer Lou Phillips. Scipio switched to bass and the outfit began gigging on New York's club circuit. They were nearly signed by Columbia, but ended up on the Roulette Records subsidiary label Calla. Recorded at New York's Electric Lady Studios, their eponymous 1971 Hendrix-influenced debut album was produced by Dick Jacobs. Highlights include originals such as Life Is Love, Changes Of The Mind and Back To The Stone Age. Solid but not exceptional this could appeal to guitar rock lovers. (CF/MW/VJ)

CD: 1 SKIPPING THROUGH THE NIGHT (Tune In IN 003) 2010

45: Going Home/Skipping Through The Night (Smash S-2104) 1967

Formed in Storrs, Connecticut in 1967, they chose a truly astronomical moniker in their search for stardom (NGC-4594 being otherwise known as the 'Sombrero' galaxy). Their single features very pleasant psychy soft-rock with the odd jazzy feel. Going Home is the more commercial, slightly more upbeat. Skipping is the gem here with its mellowed-out aura and trilling flute - somewhere between Boston's Freeborne and UK's Caravan. It's delightful.

A further 11 tracks were recorded around the same time as the single, presumably for an album that never appeared. Their quality is equally stellar.

INCREDIBLE SOUND SHOW STORIES Vol. 8 (Comp LP) including NGC-4594.

The Tune In compilation comprises 14 tracks, 12 demos and both sides of their single. It comes with a booklet which tells the inside story of the band and features a foreword by Tim Page, Pullitzer award winning writer and NGC fan.

Incredible Sound Show Stories, Vol. 8 (LP) and Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 1 (CD) both include Skipping Through The Night. (MW/CW/SS)

'N' Group (OH)

45: Keep On Runnin'/Words Of Love (Wes Mar 1021) 1966

The titles may sound familiar but these are not covers of the Spencer Davis Group and Buddy Holly. From Akron, Ohio this bunch performs two originals - one upbeat and one ballad - in a competently soulful Young Rascals style. Not likely to get aired on any 'garage comp' but not at all bad for the much maligned 'soul-garage' sub-genre.

This was their only single and they were previously known as The Ingroup. (MW/GGI)

ALBUM: 1(A) TIME LOOP (Kama Sutra KSBS 2057) 1972 SC

A California folk singer/songwriter, whose album is beginning to interest collectors, most tracks were written between 1967 and 1970 and were produced by Steve Barncard and Nichols. The title track was produced by Nick Gravenites and is the only one with an electric backing (Sears, Hopkins, etc.).

Time Loop is a good album, but definitely more folk than psychedelic. (SR)

45: Look Around Rock/Farina (Buddah BDA-28) 1968

Folk singer Penny Nichols was raised in southern California and by the mid-sixties she was performing regularly at the Paradox Club in Orange County alongside other aspirants, such as Tim Buckley and Jackson Browne. She made an impressive appearance at the 1966 Big Sur Folk Festival, accompanied by Jim Fielder (bs) and Sandy Konikoff (drms). In 1966, she was in a short-lived band with Spencer Perskin (later in Shiva's Headband) and eventually she released a solo album in 1968, produced by Artie Ripp and Billy James. We haven't heard Penny's Arcade yet, but it may be an undiscovered gem if it contains more tracks like Look Around Rock, a superb song with a long instrumental intro like Eight Miles High and powerful echoed vocals, truly nice. Farina is more in a traditional folk vein, again with good vocals. In March 1968, she played the Fillmore with Traffic, Blue Cheer and H. P. Lovecraft.

During the seventies, she became a session singer in the Los Angeles studios (Arlo Guthrie, Jackson Browne, Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, Linda Ronstadt) as well as a producer and educator specialised on pitch perception (she has a doctoral degree from Harvard's School of Education). Nichols also recorded still unreleased material for Apple. She continued releasing records for children and educational videos.

Look Around Rock has been compiled on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box) and Justavibration (LP). (SR/VJ)

α I'll Be Back/Just Beyond Your Smile (A&M 849) 1968
Let's Ride/Love So Fine (A&M 946) 1968

NB: α shown as by Roger Nichols Trio.

A California soft-rock group with some "groovy" moments, this band's recordings are typical of the A&M sound. Roger Nichols was a friend of Paul Williams (Holy Mackerel) and together they wrote several songs recorded by other California pop and soft-psych acts.

Murray MacLeod and his sister Melinda assisted Nichols on this album. The three voices create a successful combination on ballads like Burt Bacharach's Don't Go Breakin' My Heart, up-tempo numbers like Don't Take Your Time and a fine version of Goffen & King's Snow Queen. Many names in California pop assisted on this project in various ways, including Randy Newman and Van Dyke Parks. The album didn't sell at the time but has stood the test of time well. (SR/VJ)

NB: α Flip is by Charles Vickers.

It's Daytona Beach, Florida in 1964. Wells, Thomason and Rouse were in band at school called The Group, whose guitarist George Brown had recently moved to the area from Louisville, Kentucky where he'd been in a band called the NightCrawlers. When they entered college in the fall, the trio decided to start another band and connected with Charles "Chuck" Conlon. Conlon had been playing folk in a group called The Craftsmen and was already writing and doing demos for Lee Hazen's National Songwriters Guild. He knew drummer Tommy Ruger and got him into the group.

So began The Nightcrawlers, who are best remembered for the haunting and cryptic folk-rocker Little Black Egg which personifies their sound - a sultry garage version of the Beau Brummels, with their plaintive Searchers-like melodies and a hint at the Stones' shake and rattle in the more upbeat material. Little Black Egg became a local hit and the band got plenty of gigs. Live most of the songs featured Rob Rouse on lead vocals and they performed more upbeat and soulful material, whereas Conlon sang lead on his compositions in the studio with Rouse or Thomason on harmonies. When Kapp picked up on the band they pushed to get more material out of a band that was raw but had obvious hit potential. Little Black Egg was re-released and started picking up in other regions; it would be pushed for a third time and eventually hit the Billboard charts in early 1967, long after the original band who recorded it had split.

In fact Conlon had been fired by the band in early 1966 - his heart was less with band rehearsals than with a young lady. He was replaced by Bob Keller from The Allman Joys. Kapp were still pushing for follow-ups but the band already knew that they'd be leaving for college in the fall of 1966 and were not willing to be pushed around by producer Brad Shapiro. In any event, they split in June 1966.

Shortly after Wells and Thomason decided they wanted to get another band together but Kapp insisted on them forming a new Nightcrawlers if they wanted to record again. Eventually, they were persuaded by their friend and "6th member" Mike Stone to reform (line-up 'C' above). This band went on tour and the album was released, despite the fact that the band's sound had moved on considerably since the material it showcased. Mike Stone would keep the band going through numerous personnel changes until 1970, when it became Orion.

Meantime, Conlon had enrolled at the University of Miami. In 1967, he signed up with Henry Stone and released two singles in 1967 as Conlon & The Crawlers. He went on to work with The Birdwatchers, producing Girl I Got News For You and had songs covered by the Proctor Amusement Co.

This is just the bare bones of a fascinating history recounted in person by all the major players in the Big Beat CD liner notes. The CD contains 24 cuts: all the original band's single cuts except Marie, from their debut; alternate versions of Washboard and If You Want My Love; four unreleased originals; and seven unreleased covers which include some cool Stones and Kinks covers. A mighty fine package that is unreservedly recommended - there may be no fuzz guitars but for fans of evocative sixties Invasion-inspired beat/garage sounds this is hard to top. It comes with extensive liner notes from the band and sixties expert Alec Palao.

The Little Black Egg has come to be regarded by many as a sixties classic and has been featured on More Nuggets (CD), Nuggets Box (4-CD), Nuggets, Vol. 6 (LP) and Excerpts From Nuggets (CD). It remains popular to this day and has been frequently covered by a variety of bands including Music Explosion, Margins (on the 1966 Columbus, Ohio Hillside Promotion LP), The Kommotions, Tonebenders (Northland Third Annual Battle Of The Bands, 1967 2-LP), Neighb'rhood Childr'n (Long Years In Space retrospective), Bourbons (House Party CD which also features a cover of A Basket Of Flowers), later still by The Cars and also nineties bands like The Others (from Italy) and Seattle's Minus 5 (with REM's Peter Buck). A Basket Of Flowers has also been covered by the Last Words (1968 soundtrack Atco LP), and by the Cynics (1988 LP, Twelve Flights Up). Finally, If You Want My Love was revived by The Lyres in 1986 on their Lyres Lyres LP.

Jimmy Pitman was also a briefly member at some point, prior to moving to L.A. and joining The Strawberry Alarm Clock. Drummer Tommy Ruger subsequently played with Duane and Gregg Allman. (VJ/MW/JZ/MMe/JLh/AP)

χ (I) Feel So Fine/Want Me (No label) 1966

NB: α first edition with green label. β second edition with black label. χ acetate, no commercial issue known.

Yet another band of this name, this one comprised students at Carlton College in Northfield, 30 miles south of Minneapolis in Minnesota. The You Say single was issued twice, with different colour labels. Both pressings are hard to find, the one with the green label was the earlier of the two. The topside is an engaging jangley folk-pop nugget; the flip, Night Crawlin' is a raw Stones-style recording.

Later in 1966, they travelled to the CBS Studios in Chicago for another recording session. Six songs in all were recorded: - Dandelions (a Marc Reigel original); (I) Feel So Fine (a cover of Johnny Preston's classic); Want Me (a fuzz guitar original); Chimes Of Freedom (a Byrds cover); Just Like Romeo and Juliet (a Reflections song) and Shoulder Of A Giant (a Prince and The Paupers cover). Acetates of (I) Feel So Fine/Want Me were cut, but no actual records materialised from the session and the group disbanded in the fall of 1967.

Their drummer Bill Redeker later became a TV journalist for ABC News and 20/20.

Compilation appearances have included: Night Crawlin' on Pebbles, Vol. 17 (LP); Want Me on Back From The Grave, Vol. 8 (CD) and Back From The Grave, Vol. 8 (2-LP); and You Say on Hipsville, Vol. 3 (LP). (VJ)

45: Last Night/Janie (MFT 4808) 1967

Recorded in Crosby, Tennessee and released in December 1967, this very rare garage single fetches silly sums 40-odd years on. Listen to Last Night on Teenage Shutdown Vol. 13 (LP/CD) or Grains Of Time (CD) to find out why. (MW)

45: We Got It/Erebian Borealis (Del-Nita 1002) 1967

This group was responsible for a superb two-sided garage-psych single. We Got It features an early theremin solo which is pretty unusual for a garage single. The flip side is a psychy instrumental. The entire band came from the West side of Cleveland, except for Ron Peitle who came from Parma, Ohio.

Compilation appearances have included: We Got It and Erebian-Borialis on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 6: The Biker (LP & CD); and We Got It on It's Finkin' Time! (LP). (MW/GP)

The Night People (?)

45: The Shadow Is My Soul/
They Don't See You (Nite Life 70,003) 1970

A different, unknown Night People. A reverberating slide down the frets (ala My Friend Jack by Smoke) kicks off The Shadow Is My Soul, a driving garage-rocker about alienation. The vibrant fuzz solo makes it sound more like 1966-7 than 1970. It's been showcased on Fuzz, Flaykes, & Shakes Vol. 6 (LP/CD). (MW)

Night Riders (MI)

45: Don't Say/All Night Long (Bublo 110) 1965

From Detroit, Michigan - Don't Say can also be heard on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 2 (LP).

Another Detroit outfit called Robert Walker & The Night Riders put out a single in 1967 - Keep On Runnin'/Everything's Alright (Detroit Sound 224) - and members included Dennis Wezalis and Tony Suhy. Were they connected at all? (VJ/MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) INTRODUCING THE NIGHT RIDERS

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Collectables COL-0603) 1995.

After finishing as second runner-up in a local high school 'Battle Of The Bands', The Night Riders were contacted by a correspondent for the Justice Records Company, whom they later recorded their sole album for in 1967. Typical Justice fare, the album includes cover versions of Double Shot Of My Baby's Love, Twist & Shout, Night Train, Little Latin Lupe Lu and Louie Louie, among others.

The band was from North Carolina and all members were 16 (except 15-year-old Mac Lewis) at the time of recording. The sole original on the album, a keyboard-led instrumental entitled Journey To The Stars has subsequently resurfaced on Oil Stains, Vol. 2 (LP), Relics, Vol. 2 (LP) and Relics, Vol's 1 & 2 (LP). This Nightrockers single also came in a rare colour picture-sleeve, reproduced on the front of the Yeah Yeah Yeah (CD) booklet and in black and white on the front cover of Midnight To Sixty-Six (LP). Both these compilations feature Junction No. 1, a fab garage stomper. (MW)

Night Shadow, who were also known as Little Phil And The Night Shadows, were one of the Old South's few acid-punk bands and something of a rock anomaly. They started playing in the late fifties and their 27 or so members apparently included Barry Bailey (later of The Atlanta Rhythm Section). The artists listed above were those who recorded their 1968 album which was pieced together from an assortment of tapes recorded on portable cassette machines. The band, who came from Atlanta, Georgia in the heart of Dixie, never achieved the recognition they might have because of the Vietnam War, which prevented them touring for fear of losing their draft deferments.

THE Square Root of Two NIGHT SHADOW

NIGHT SHADOW - The Square Root Of Two CD.

They recorded over a long period under various names and backed numerous other artists so the singles shown are highly selective and only cover their garage-psych period. The Legendary Night Shadows Vol 2: The Little Phil Era 1964-1967 contains tracks from their album and pre-album era and is accompanied by a detailed booklet with band history and photos.

The most sought-after of their recordings is the original release of The Square Root Of Two on Spectrum Stereo. Of particular note is the psychedelic intro to In The Air and The Hot Rod Song. Another track I Can't Believe has a Spoonful-type beat and others like Illusions sounded rather a racket. Overall, the album is interesting, but uneven. The 1979 Hottrax label reissue has added fuzz guitar on several tracks in an attempt to make it more palatable, so it's really a different album as opposed to a straight reissue. Most of the tracks with their original mixes appear on the 2003 CD The Legendary Night Shadows Vol 3: The Psychedelic Years 1967-1969, but again the original album does not appear in its entirety. To date, the original 1968 album has never been reissued on vinyl or CD.

100 copies of their live album Live At The Spot were released for demo purposes in 1969. Naturally they are as rare as hell now. The material came from November 1967 and March 1969 shows. It got a commercial release on Hottrax in 1981 (the label was owned by band leader Aleck Janoulis). It includes a couple of Cream covers and a 13-minute version of Season Of The Witch.

Invasion Of The Acid Eaters had been intended as a live album. In fact whilst one side comprised this, the other was taken up with the remaining tracks from the 1967 'Spot Club' performance. There are Cream and Hendrix covers, but original material is lacking on this one.

Compilation appearances have included: The Way It Used To Be on Pebbles Vol. 5 (CD) and Pebbles, Vol. 5 (LP); and So Much on Psychedelic States: Georgia Vol. 1 (CD). (VJ/MW)

45: Sticks And Stones/Give Me Love (Detroit 2648) 1965

This outfit formed in Longview, Washington when a bunch of high school kids came together for fun on the crest of the wave of Beatlemania that swept across America in 1963/64. They recorded their sole single, a garage-sounding recording, at Northwestern Studios in 1965. It was offered to major labels but rejected, so the group released it on their own label.

None of the band remained in the music business. Bob Kalal was last reported to be a pharmacist in Longview where Dave Hooper also works. Carasco works in construction and lives in Portland, Oregon and Springer owns a bowling alley in Kalama.

You can also check out Sticks and Stones on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 7 (LP) and Wyld Sydes Volume 5 (CD). (VJ/MW)

45s:	Three's A Crowd/Amber Waves	(Kapp 2003) 1969
	Ba Ba/No Matter How Long It Takes	(Kapp K-2047) 1970

Garage and psych collectors often discover that the flip side of a seemingly bland pop single can reveal a cool nugget that betrays a band's garage roots. This is more frequent on a national label where the producer's will and commercial considerations ruled on the plug side; in some cases the flip is where some bands were given leave to make their original statements. Here's another example - Three's A Crowd is a typical '69 brassy belter whereas Amber Waves is a harmonious folk-rock ballad punctuated by heavy acidic fuzz.

Formed in 1963, this East Los Angeles combo was originally Mark and The Escorts, releasing two fine singles on GNP Crescendo in 1965. They lasted until the mid-seventies via a succession of identities - The Men From S.O.U.N.D., Nineteen Eighty-Four, The Mudd Brothers, Tangos - the last of which released an album on A&M. This 'bubblegum' outfit came from Linden, New Jersey. Their records were produced by Jerry Kasenetz and Jeff Katz, who masterminded the 'bubblegum' movement and were behind other key acts like The Music Explosion and Ohio Express. Essentially a 'singles' band they made an immediate impact with Simon Says, which has become a classic party song and, in addition to being a Top 10 hit in America, it also made No. 2 in the U.K. (although it was their only major hit here). They enjoyed other success in the US, particularly with 1-2-3 Red Light and Indian Giver. Their Hard Ride album was by an entirely different line-up. There may come a time when collectors take an interest in their first four albums.

Bruce Shay was their bass player on their second, third and fourth albums and Chuck Trois (ex-Soul Survivors) was also in the band at some point.

Mark Gutkowski sang the lead vocal on the first two singles and plays organ, whilst his brother played rhythm guitar. The flip on the first, Reflections From The Looking Glass is an interesting foray into psychedelia. One interesting thing to note is that their hits Goody Goody Gumdrops and 1-2-3 Red Light were entirely sung by members of the Philly-based doo-wop group Billy and The Essentials, who had a few singles out in the early and mid-sixties. Eventually the band members were replaced by Super K producers and a completely different set of musicians appear on the Indian Giver and Hard Ride albums.

Some members were later in The Kasenetz-Katz Singing Orchestral Circus.

45:	I'm A Baby/You're Gone	(Fenton 2136) 196?

A scarce single by a Muskegon, Michigan band. I'm A Baby is passable garage, whilst You're Gone is the better track, with a repetitive guitar refrain bubbling throughout the song.

I'm A Baby and You're Gone can also be heard on Michigan Mayhem Vol. 1 (CD), Michigan Mixture, Vol. 11 (LP) and Scream Loud!!! The Fenton Story (2-CD). (MW)

45:	Lovin' Man/Rainy Day Stagedoor Mama	(Atlantic 45-2422) 1967

Lovin' Man is thumpin' good raucous pop-beat with that infectious choppy rhythm from the Beatles' She's A Woman and updated to a Monkees-styled belter. Rainy Day Stagedoor Mama is solid pop with gravely vocals. Lovin' Man was penned by 'Matt Moore - Dan Moore' - very likely the team from Matthew Moore Plus Four which should place this outfit in California. It was produced by Dan Moore and Jeff Thomas. (MW/CF)

	Come On Back/It's A Hassle	(Rembrandt 6461) 196?

Came out of South Illinois University, where they formed in 1965. Just 500 copies of the single were pressed making it the rarest on Rembrandt. On Boots Are Made For Talkin', the band simply substituted 'Talking' for 'Walking' on the old Nancy Sinatra hit! However, its lack of originality did not prevent it getting some airplay. Rembrandt's owner, Ronnie Weiss, later changed their name to Nickel Bag - not the band who recorded on Kama Sutra - but they remained in oblivion.

Compilation appearances have included: It's A Hassle and Boots Are Made For Talkin' on Chicago Garage Band Greats (CD); Boots Are Made For Talkin' and It's A Hassle (two versions) on Chicago Garage Band Greats (LP); It's A Hassle on Today's Just Tomorrow's Yesterday 4 (CD) and four unreleased cuts from 1966 - Something You Got, Ooh Poo Pa Doo, The Woods and The Hassle on The Cicadelic 60's Vol. 6 (CD). Their sound had matured and put on considerable weight on the March '69 follow-up. The stunning Mimic Jester is an acid haze where Cream-y riffs grapple with Blue Cheer thunder; check it out on A Deadly Dose Of Wylde Psych (CD). (MW)

Originating from Memphis, Don Nix is an important figure of this local scene, comparable to two other Memphis musicians, Steve Cropper and Jim Dickinson, as the three men produced, arranged and played on hundreds of records.

His presence here is justified by his participation on several rock albums.

Nix began his career in the late fifties with Cropper in the Mar-Keys, responsible for the instrumental hit Last Night. Nix was originally a sax player with this group but he soon developed an interest in songwriting, arrangements and production, and that led him to produce several groups and singers: Paris Pilot, Delaney and Bonnie, Charlie Musselwhite, as well as some blues artists (Albert King, Furry Lewis...). Most of these albums were co-written by Nix.

After some months spent in Tyler, Texas with Dale Hawkins and Robin Hood Brians (the producers of Mouse and The Traps and several other Texas groups), Nix moved to Los Angeles where he became friendly with Leon Russell and the "Oklahama Mafia" musicians. His first contract as a solo artist (he was also able to sing, with a good warm voice) was naturally with Shelter, the new label created by Russell but the sales of In God We Trust were extremely limited and the album is now hard to find.

NITZINGER - Self Titled LP.

Don Nix then moved to Elektra releasing three albums combining rock, country, blues and gospel influences, always with good musicians. After the success of Leon Russell's "Mad Dogs And Englishmen" troupe, he formed The Alabama State Troupers Road Show with Furry Lewis and Brenda Patterson and the resulting double live album has its moments.

In 1971, Nix was also the choir master for George Harrison's "Concert For Bangladesh".

In 1970/73, he kept on producing albums for Lonnie Mack (Hills Of Indiana), the French group the Variations, and Beck, Bogart and Appice, this trio also recording his song Goin' Down (also covered by Freddie King, Moloch, J.J. Cale, Chicken Shack...).

Don Nix was also by then one of the managers of Enterprise, the rock subsidiary label of Stax and his Memphis productions included Sid Selvidge, Dallas County, Moloch, Larry Raspberry and The Highsteppers (ex-Gentrys).

Nix also spent several months with John Mayall (the album Ten Years Are Gone) and in 1975, invited by Keef Hartley, he went to England to produce Michael Chapman's Savage Amusement.

Totally exhausted and suffering from serious drug problems, Nix then seriously reduced his activities, with only two albums in 1976 (Gone Too Long) and in 1979 (Skyrider).

In 1996, Nix released a new solo CD and published an interesting book "Road Stories And Recipes" with his adventures in the music business plus 60 pages of cooking recipes given by people like J.J. Cale, Sam The Sham, Jim Dickinson, Delbert McClinton and John Mayall! (SR)

ALBUM:	1	BRAIN SUCK	(Head 001) 2003 R1

This is a retrospective release of early seventies recordings from a Salem, Ohio band. Already it is not easy to find. The album is in the hard-rock/prog genre with extended tracks and lots of guitar/Hammond organ interplay. (VJ)

	α	Purple Heart/Stormy	(Liberty 56157) 1970

NB: α shown as by Noah's Ark featuring Rodney Justo.

Well, someone just had to make a record called Love-In. You'll find this likeable psychedelic ditty on 30 Seconds Before The Calico Wall (CD) and Boulders, Vol. 11 (LP). Strangely, Paper Man appears on Rubble, Vol. 15 (LP) where it's somehow surmised that the band was from the U.K. despite the single getting no U.K. release (huh?!). Paper Man has since appeared on Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 3 (CD), which sets the record straight.

The band was from Tampa, Florida and Elliott and Richardson had previously been in other local groups including the Raveons, Outsiders and Soul Trippers. Their first two singles are recommended. The Liberty single is totally different; augmented by ex-Candymen Rodney Justo and in a final attempt at commercial success they switched to the overblown soul'n'brass bombast of Blood, Sweat and Tears that was then in fashion. Both sides were written and produced by the Buie/Cobb team, who would work with Justo again when he formed The Atlanta Rhythm Section.

Bobby Caldwell had earlier drummed for The Go-Mads, prior to forming Noah's Ark with Buddy Richardson and Ronny Elliott. Both Elliott and Bill Mann also played in The Outlaws. Caldwell then was recruited by Johnny Winter and, later the UK/US outfit Captain Beyond. Caldwell also drummed on the New Englander's tracks found on the Tener Bee-Jay sampler albums. When Caldwell left The Go-Mads, the remaining members became, Plant Life.

Noah's Ark later re-grouped as Duckbutter and Buddy Richardson would later form White Witch.

Details on all the bands on the Florida sixties scene are covered in Jeff Lemlich's essential 1992 book 'Savage Lost' (Distinctive Publishing, ISBN 0-942963-12-1). (MW/RE/RT/SR/SMR)

45:	I Think I Wanna Love You Baby/ Hold Back The Sun	(Roulette 4703) 1966

45s:	Stop Your Running Around/Bend It	(CJL 1001) 1967
	My Flash On You/ Here's Where You Belong	(Kaleidoscope 001) 1968

This was an Oklahoma City band that spent a little time in Dallas, Texas. Stop Your Running Around is a fast dance number delivered in a typical garage punk style, whilst for their second single they opted for a reasonable cover of Love's My Flash On You. They also do a cool version of Sloan/Barri's Here's Where You Belong, also covered by the Grass Roots and West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band.

The 12" acetate, which sounds circa 1966, contains a cover of The Yardbirds' You're A Better Man Than I plus three untitled originals, all with thick fuzztone.

Compilation appearances include: My Flash On You on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 8 (LP & CD); and Stop Your Running Around on Texas Flashback (The Best Of) (CD), Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 4 (LP & CD) and Flashback, Vol. 4 (LP). (VJ/MW)

A quartet of freshmen from The University of Chicago they had all previously played with high school bands, in Pearie's case back home in Pennsylvania with The Marauders. They played during 1967 and 1968 and their screeching version of Short Time is worth investigating on Back From The Grave, Vol. 7 (2-LP). (VJ/MW)

45:	Things Aren't The Same/Night Rider	(IGL 130) 1967

This garage outfit came from Albert City, Iowa. Their finest moment, Things Aren't The Same, is a raucous if melancholic song and comes with a surf-styled guitar break.

Compilation appearances have included Things Aren't The Same on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. II (LP) and The Arf! Arf! Blitzkrieg 32 Track Sampler (2-CD); and both sides of the single can also be heard on The IGL Rock Story Part Two (LP) and The Best Of IGL Garage Rock. (VJ/MW)

From Grandview Heights, a village just northwest of Columbus, Ohio these Noblemen inspired by local heroes The Dantes, were active between 1966-68. Their main claim to fame was their inclusion on the rare Hillside '66 (LP) compilation, with a cover of The Who's Under My Thumb. Chris Calvin recalls: "Hillside Records was run by a guy called Larry McKenzie, who we used to hire amplifiers from for our gigs. The track was recorded about a month after we formed in the fall of '66 and we were all 15 at the time. Larry had a good two-track Ampex or Scully machine and the track was recorded in Larry's house, with band members spread through his front room, dining room and kitchen. The Hillside '66 record itself came with phone numbers under each band's name and was meant to be a demo for each band... it ended up being a snapshot of his customer base for 1966!"

Under My Thumb can also be heard on Oil Stains, Vol. 2 (LP). (IT/CC)

45:	Satisfied/She Thinks I Still Love Her	(Prism 1930) 1965

Formed in 1965 these Noblemen came from Indianapolis, Indiana. Rick Wilhelm and Brian Crouch co-wrote the 'A' side of their record, Satisfied. Larry Burch recalls: "I was the oldest (20) and Chuck the youngest (17), was still a senior in high school. The band was managed by Chucks' dad Ramon and his brother Gene. We worked all over Indy and most of the state.... playing at a lot of small town armories and teen dances, etc. We sold our single and 8" x 10" glossies for a buck each and developed a pretty good local following. One gig that stands out was playing for a summer stock cast party of which Edie Adams was the main star. It was our only association with a major star at that time and I can remember we thought it was a pretty good deal at the time. After about a year or so we cooled off somewhat and Rick left the group first and was replaced by Mickey Smith."

"After a few more weeks Mickey and I moved on to play in house bands in nightclubs playing in a group called Melting Pot. I left that group and went to the West Coast and the Melting Pot gravitated toward Florida. They did one album, Burn Fire, Cauldron Bubble (Capricorn Records) before they disbanded. The drummer of that group (Jerry Thompson) went on to work some with Dickey Betts, but I don't know what they're doing now. After I discovered that The Noblemen were on a compilation record, I did locate Rick Wilhelm and he's still in the Indy area into real estate."

"As far as I know I'm the only one of the original group who has stayed in music all their life. I stayed in the San Francisco Bay Area for about five years working with a trio (The Company) and we worked from Portland, Oregon down past San Bernardino, California and most points in between with a few trips to Reno and Tahoe. (Those gigs always paid well, and still do I guess) However this was the late sixties and in to the early seventies and I (plus the band and everyone else) were very much into "hippiedom" so a lot of the gigs remain kind of 'purple hazy' if you know what I mean. One thing that was constant until about 15 years ago was being on the road. I had met Woody Herman at a gig in Ohio and he was such a gentleman and complimentary towards me that it gave me enough confidence to move to Nashville. It was there that I joined an R&B group called Pure Pleasure. We were managed by Ed Leffler from L.A. who was also at the time managing Sammy Hagar and a couple of lesser known groups. He went on to manage Van Halen until he passed away in '93 I believe. But he got us a deal with A&M Records and we did shows mostly around the South with acts like Cameo and The Commodores. "

"I've been in the Columbus area since '88 and have found it to be a good home base for gigs. One days drive in any direction has hundreds of places for musicians to work. I've had a band called Larry B and The Real Deal for the last 10 years. We're fairly well known in the area and have done shows with the likes of Tower Of Power, Clarence "Gatemouth" Brown and most everyone in between in that musical genre."

Compilation appearances have included She Still Thinks I Love Her on Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 5 (LP & CD); and Satisfied has resurfaced on Wyld Sydes Volume 2 (CD). (GGI/MW/LB)

Hang It In Your Ear (Recap R.R. 292) 1967
Beach Umbrella World/Lady Flora (Mercury 72828) 1968

Mike Kuzmin's discography of Pennsylvania, 'Sounds From The Woods', reveals that this band hailed from Greensburg/Irwin. I Can Hear Raindrops, a superb garage ballad with great rainstorm effects and a salute to the Cascades, is to be found on I Can Hear Raindrops (LP). Confusingly it turns up again, with the last verse repeated, as I Can Hear The Rain Drops by The Aces on Thee Unheard Of (LP), supposedly a collection of Michigan acetates on the Punch label (a Hideout subsidiary). However, it turns out that the reason they were "unheard of" is that many of these acetates were modern forgeries, manufactured by a fraudster who duped the compiler.

Similarly, Hang It In Your Ear also appears on Thee Unheard Of (LP), but credited to "The Underdogs"! (MW/MM)

45: Something Else/
I Hope I Don't Get Hurt Again (Marquis 4991) 1966

This quartet was out of Wilmington in Delaware and earlier known as The Sting Rays and The Cobras. Something Else was a pretty frantic garage punker with vibrant guitar and lots of organ. The local radio station banned it because they thought the song was about sex and it sank without trace. The group soldiered on until 1968, when the draft and college led to their demise.

Compilation appearances include: Something Else on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol's 1 & 2 (LP), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 2 (2x7") and Back From The Grave, Vol. 5 (LP). (VJ)

Nobody's Children (TX)

45: Good Times/Somebody To Help Me (GPC 1944) 1968

From Dallas, this outfit's single, with its monster guitar riff, psychedelic fuzz and rampaging punk vocals is rather special.

Compilation appearances have included: Good Times on Psychedelic Microdots Of The Sixties, Vol. 1 (CD), Pebbles, Vol. 3 (ESD) (CD), Trash Box (5-CD), Texas Music, Vol. 3 (CD), Best of Pebbles, Vol. 1 - Get Primitive (LP & CD), Flashback, Vol. 6 (LP), Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 11 (LP) and Garage Beat '66 4 (CD); and Good Times and Somebody To Help Me on Sixties Archive Vol. 8 (CD) and Acid Trip From The Psychedelic Sixties (LP). Yet another outfit of this name, this time from Prince George's county Maryland. The band was managed by Washington DC radio station WPGC DJ Harv Moore and the horns featured on I Can't Let Go were courtesy of another DC group called The Arabians. The flip, Don'tcha Feel Like Crying is perhaps more interesting, with some fuzz guitar and that's been compiled on Realistic Patterns (CD).

Whilst under contract to United Artists they recorded a Christmas single under the moniker The Surf Boys. Jungo Partner (A Worthless Cajun) can also be found on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 5 (LP).

45: Colours And Shapes/ ? (Deek 1021) 196?

Colours And Shapes is an awesome 'bad trip' punker with screeching fuzzed guitar and snarling vocalist, comparable to the brooding magnificence of The Unrelated Segments or The Chocolate Watch Band. The lyrics come in clotted couplets of syllabic triplets, as if being extracted by forceps -

"I see blue - you're all green.
It's all lonely - nothin' seen.
Outside world - too bad, square.
It's too bad - you're still there.
(chorus) I'm alive - I'm alive.
You're so cold - growing old.
There's no time - you're my mind"

Crank it up on Open Lid EP (7"), Turds On A Bum Ride Vol. 5 (CD) or Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 1 (CD). No idea yet whence they hailed - no one's lettin' on and the writer credits (Sterling, McKenzie, Spitale) is the only clue to hand. (MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) THE NOMADDS (Radex MLP-6521) 1965 R2
NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Wylde Beat) 2008.

Formed in 1963, The Nomadds had built a strong local following by the time they released their 1965 album on the Radex label, based in Freeport, Illinois. It appears to have been their one shot at the big-time, as no singles have come to light, although there appears to have been a 1964 demo single on Radex, Don't Cheat On Me/W.P.L.J., as "The Nomads".

On the rare occasions that the album appears, it is tagged 'garage' by dealers; it is, but only in the widest sense - it is NOT garage-punk. Instead, if you think of it as a riposte to the FIRST wave of Invasion sounds, specifically the clear tones of 1963-4 period Merseybeat (Beatles and Searchers), as opposed to the second wave (Stones, Them, Kinks, Yardbirds), then you won't be disappointed. The Nomadds wore the slick, groomed style of the Everly Brothers (no Beatles fringes here) and it was Don & Phil who inspired the harmonies of Kuehl & Johnson, rather than Lennon and McCartney.

THE NOMADDS - Self Titled LP.

There are seven covers plus five originals by Greg Johnson. The latter include teenbeat melodrama (In Transit) and winsome minor-mood beat (There Is No More, Don't Cheat On Me). The covers comprise: - competent Merseybeat-ified versions of Lucille, Love Potion No. 9, and Roll Over Beethoven; energetic versions of Ain't That Just Like Me and W.P.L.J.; a pedestrian Shame, Shame, Shame rescued by warbling harmonica; and the gloomy ballad Tragedy. Overall an enjoyable listen which should find favour with fans of sixties beat.

Two of their cuts have been compiled: Don't Cheat On Me appears on Wyld Sydes Volume 1 (CD) and There Is No More can also be heard on Wyld Sydes Volume 2 (CD). (MW/CF)

Situations (Orbit 1121) 1968

These Texas City-based Nomads started out as a folk-rock band but progressed into a bizarre psychedelic outfit. Their development is well-documented on the compilation Three O'Clock Merrian Webster Time (LP) which includes the above singles, two 1967 outtakes: - My Little Red Book, New Generation and a cut from a 1968 single on Orbit (1126) called Mainstream by which time they had changed their name to The Smoke. In 1969 they relocated to California and recorded two albums for UNI.

Situations, quite an interesting garage punk number, can also be heard on Flashback, Vol. 6 (LP) Gathering Of The Tribe (CD), Acid Visions - The Complete Collection, Vol. 1 (CD), Acid Visions Vol. 8 (CD) (Spalax), The History Of Texas Garage 2 (CD) (two versions - one is a previously unreleased rehearsal version), Psychedelic States: Texas Vol. 1 (CD) and Wyld Sydes Volume Eight (CD); and My Little Red Book was included on The Cicadelic Sixties, Vol. 2 (LP). The six tracks featured on Three O'Clock Merrian Webster Time (LP) have also been recompiled on Collectables' 3-CD set - Acid Visions - Complete Collection, Vol. 3 (CD), and five are repeated again on The History Of Texas Garage Bands, Vol. 2 - The Orbit Records Story (CD) and on Acid Visions Vol. 8 (CD) (Spalax). My Little Red Book and Situations also appear on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 1 (CD). Fields Of Peppermint (Instr.) (Whiz 619) 1970

This Nomads was a five-star garage combo from Mount Airy, North Carolina. Thoughts... is regarded by many as a classic and its flip, is also a typical primal, grungy fuzztone scream about partying. The excellent and thoroughly worthwhile retrospective album on Crypt is a must for garage-heads everywhere.

The band had become Blu-Erebus by their third release in September 1968. Plastic Year was described by Erik Lindgren as "a prime example of four-star late sixties psychedelia" when he included it on An Overdose Of Heavy Psych (CD). The top side, Willow Green, became their final identity in 1970 when they reworked it into the pop-psych Fields Of Peppermint.

As The Nomads compilation appearances have included: From Zero Down on Pebbles, Vol. 12 (LP) and Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 10 (LP & CD); Thoughts Of A Madman on Vile Vinyl, Vol. 1 (LP), Vile Vinyl (CD), Chosen Few Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and The Chosen Few, Vol. 1 (LP); Not For Me on Total Raunch (CD); and How Many Times on One Hand In The Darkness (LP), Trip In Tyme Volume 4 (CD) and Sigh Cry Die (CD). The Nomads (PA)

This Philadelphia-based Nomads recorded two songs as a demo at that city's Magna Sound studios. The songs - Point Five and I Need Your Energy - are both crudely recorded but have a certain charm about them, particularly their pounding drumming and you'll find them both on the Crude PA, Vol. 1 (LP) compilation. A later version of Energy was released on Romain Records under the name One Way Street Band. (VJ)

Both sides of this obscure garage single, released in October 1965, were written by K. Herbert and produced by Goldstein, Weinstein, Boutwell. That last name offers the best potential clue as to their origins - if it's Ed Boutwell then it was most likely recorded at his Boutwell Studios in Birmingham, Alabama, which he ran from 1961 until 1986.

A young Californian singer/songwriter Steve Noonan wrote Buy For Me The Rain, the first hit for Nitty Gritty Dirt Band. The material on his sole album was co-written with Jackson Browne and Greg Copeland and was described as "folk flavoured art song" by Lillian Roxon in her 1969 Rock Encyclopedia.

The songs are generally good but Noonan's voice has nothing to retain your attention. (SR)

ALBUM: 1(A) EAST RIVER
(Cavern Custom Recording USR-7806) 197? R1

Hailing from Connecticut, this acoustic trio released a rare album of progressive folk with violin, acoustic guitars and good "drifting" vocals. The cover has a picture of a moon over a sleepy river, which captures the mood of the album well. Over half of the tracks are instrumental and given that the vocals aren't that strong these are possibly the better ones. The finale, an instrumental version of Summertime, is notable for fine violin playing. Although the band comprised Yale students, they recorded the album at the Cavern Studio in the Midwest.

They later recorded a jazzier album, Laurasia under the name East River Consort in 1978. (SR/VJ)

45: Down In The Basement/
I Wish I Was A Punk (Vanguard 35073) 1968

This Berkeley-based band was part of the first wave of Bay Area rock bands. Sokolow came from a very musical family and owned a five-string banjo by the time he'd reached High School. Mandell was an old High School friend of his, who earlier played with a band called The Dune Patrol in Santa Barbara. Joe Luke was the drummer in the original line-up, which played at the first Family Dog Longshoreman's Hall concert. With folk musician O'Connor on bass they started gigging at the Jabberwock where Berkeley's only other rock band at the time, Country Joe and the Fish, were the house band. Through The Fish they met Chris Strachwitz who had earlier recorded the Fish's first Rag Baby EP, and Chris subsequently recorded The Notes for their own EP, which was released in 1966. This is now rare. The tracks were Where Does Love Go, Down In The Basement (which was later re-recorded for the album), What Am I Doing Here? (also on the album), and Got To Get Out Of This Dream. By this time Ostwald, who'd played with various blues and jazz outfits, had replaced Luke on drums.

The Notes later became the house band at The New Orleans House (Berkeley), and built up strong local following playing lots of benefits around The Bay Area. They got a manager, Dan Carey in 1967 (he'd earlier been a road manager for Junior Wells in Chicago) and then a contract with Vanguard for the above album. Ex-jazzman, Skip Rose came in to replace the original keyboard player, John Miller, who fell ill just before it was recorded. The album, which was cut in New York, reflects the diverse musical backgrounds of the band's members and draws on blues, jazz, folk and country influences. Its most psychedelic cut was Why Did You Put Me On? which had a fine fuzztone solo and swirling organ. Their lightheartedness is best represented by Follow Me Down (To The Underground), I Wish I Was A Punk and Mainliner. Other notable tracks were Where I'm At, Cantaloupe Island and What Am I Doing Here?

Sadly, after O'Connor and Ostwald left the band, Vanguard, fearing they would disintegrate, became unwilling to provide them with the necessary financial backing and eventually dropped them. Further personnel changes ensued before they left Berkeley for Taos in New Mexico and finally disintegrated. Fred Sokolow and Mark Mandell later formed Prince Bakaradi in Berkeley in 1970. In the late seventies, when Sokolow and Mandell were collaborating on a book about their sixties music experiences, they re-assembled the band with a new line-up recording one album, Prince Bakaradi (Appaloosa AP 006) 1980, using mostly material written back in 1970 and 1972. Prince Bakaradi was the villain of a fifties Sci-fi TV series.

Sokolow also recorded a bluegrass album, Bluegrass Banjo Inventions (Kicking Mule) 1977. Skip Rose went on to play on a number of Charlie Musselwhite albums. Mandell now writes fiction and non-fiction full-time. Sokolow still plays music and writes guitar instruction books for many publishers.

Compilation appearances include: Follow Me Down (To The Underground) on The New Sound Of Underground (LP); Where Does Love Go, Down In The Basement, What Am I Doing Here, Got To Get Out Of This Dream, You Don't Love Me, Let Yourself Fly and Where I'm At Today (the last three were previously unreleased) on Nuggets From The Golden State: The Berkeley EPs (CD); and Why Did You Put Me On on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD book). 45: Yellow Canary/If I Needed Someone (Bedell 80405) 1967

While based in Iowa (members hailed from Storm Lake, Albert City and Fort Dodge), The Norious Noblemen's only single Yellow Canary (an original written by the entire band) b/w a cover of the Beatles' If I Needed Someone was recorded at the Lynn Recording Studio in Rochester, Minnesota in 1967. Only 500 copies were pressed and because a guy called Tom Bedell helped fund the single his name was put on as the record label name.

The band's live set list consisted of many of the "Top 40" songs of the era, ranging from the Rolling Stone's Get Off Of My Cloud, Sam The Sham and The Pharaohs' Wooly Bully and the Beatles' Ticket To Ride, to more latter day fare such as covers of songs by Crow, Blood Sweat and Tears and Jimi Hendrix. Keyboardist Mike McCormick has stated that the band's "legacy was doing tunes that were either too hard or too weird for other bands of (the) time to do. Yet we had to remain popular and danceable... earlier we were more mainstream, but later we evolved into a more eclectic band". The band was locally renown for playing everything from Harlem Shuffle to the Rocky And Bullwinkle theme!

It should be noted that this outfit is entirely different to Iowa's other Noblemen. (MDo/MMc)

	Other Girls/ John Knight's Body (I Wanna Get Out)	(Decca 32194) 1967

This band comprised students from the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. Their album, which was recorded in New York in December 1966, is definitely worth investigating and is a minor collectable. Its cover of Morning Dew is the highlight. Its very Anglophile sound garnered it a U.K. release, although the band had split by April 1967.

Bassist Jim Opton told U-Spaces: - "We were a band that was making a pretty good living playing fraternity parties around the campus, and a few cellar clubs in Chapel Hill. My fraternity, Phi Mu Alpha, was sponsoring a charity concert for our scholarship fund, and we decided to go for broke that year and book a big name. We contacted William Morris Agency in New York, and booked Chad and Jeremy. We needed an opening act, so I booked my own band... got us real cheap. The deal was that Rob Heller, who was with the Morris Agency would come and hear us play. He signed us immediately after the concert. A week later he hooked us up with Elliot Mazer, who became our producer. Elliot also worked as a song peddler for E.B. Marks Music, who published the music. We got a recording contract with Decca, I don't know how, but Rob put that deal together with Elliot, and the next thing I know, we are in the studio with all kinds of famous people that had us in awe for the first 35 seconds or so. I do know that somebody thought we were kind of special, because the studio was absolutely closed to visitors while we were there, and we were not allowed to take home raw tape to play for anyone. We did a lot of things that were pretty advanced for our time. Listen carefully to Morning Dew for example. The strange vocal effects were done by feeding the vocals through a Leslie Tone Cabinet from a Hammond B3. Also, the bass lead is the first bass feedback lead I think I can remember in a rock song. I blew up the amp doing it!! Cost me $750 (a LOT of money I didn't have in 1966)!! But, it was a hell of a lick. The album was essentially recorded by five of us: Randy, Bill, Joe, Cam and me. Phil had departed for law school. I believe he is alive and well, and practicing law in Charlotte, North Carolina"

"Actually, there is one little piece or two of rock and roll history that goes with that album. It was the first ever recorded using the very new, and relatively unknown, Dolby NR System. It took up a good size room at the time. The engineer for the album, Fred Catero, was also the engineer for Simon and Garfunkel."

Joe Mendyk had earlier played in Tri-Power, The Better Days and The Warlocks (with an excellent single on Decca). Their excellent harmony pop-punk debut single Games, can be heard on Echoes In Time, Vol. 2 (LP), Echoes In Time, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Die Today (CD), the flip If You Only Had The Time is on the album and can also be heard on Realistic Patterns 2: Wednesday Morning Dew (CD). Forgotten Man, also from the album, has resurfaced on Baubles - Down To Middle Earth (LP) and Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 6 (CD). Finally, Other Girls rides again on Wake The Neighbours! (LP) and Wyld Sydes Volume Five (CD). (VJ/MW)

NB: There's also a CD on Collectables titled The Sump 'n Else Tapes which presumably covers the same material.

45s:	William Junior/And It's Time	(S.T.A.R. 001) 1966
	Coronado's Puzzle/Lakeside Lot	(GPC 1946) 1967

From Dallas in Texas they started out in 1964 covering Astronauts' songs but developed into a tightly knit pop band issuing a folk-rock single on S.T.A.R. Dennard later headed for L.A. joining The Ravers. Then, after a spell in The Low Numbers, he ended up in fellow Texan Gary Myrick's band.

The Distortions album is a compilation of the recorded output by this mid-to-late sixties Dallas band. The title track falls into the folk-rock vein which is also where some of their other material lands. It also contains some really cool tracks that were recorded partly for lip-syncing on the 'Sump'n Else' TV show. These include a fuzz-frat version of Shake, the Mersey sounding Help, a cool version of Bus Stop which quite possibly outdoes the original as well as the obligatory Byrds cover Feel A Whole Lot Better. There are a few other tracks from an unreleased single and some demos. But while they did some stellar versions of other bands' songs, in the end, it's their originals from their single, William Junior/And It's Time that really shine.

And It's Time and William Junior have both been compiled on both Texas Punk, Vol. 6 (LP), Acid Visions - Complete Collection, Vol. 3 (3-CD) and Acid Visions Vol. 7 (CD) (Spalax). (VJ/MW)

	Novas Coaster/On The Road Again	(Twin Town 713) 1965

This punk band from Edina, Minnesota is worth investigating. They were a high school four-piece. Their debut single consisted of a Trashmen-inspired novelty song The Crusher, backed by primitive but worthwhile surf instrumental. Their second single included their grungy-style interpretation of Bob Dylan's On The Road Again. This was featured on the Bud-Jet mid-sixties Minneapolis compilation Top Teen Bands, Vol. 2 (LP), whilst Novas Coaster appeared on Top Teen Bands, Vol. 3 (LP).

Billy Miller's welcome Norton reissue EP features the Parrot single plus 1965 Dove demos of Dylan's On The Road Again and a cover of the Astronauts' My Sin Is My Pride.

Compilation appearances have included:- Take 7 on Pebbles, Vol. 17 (LP) and Strummin Mental, Vol. 2 (LP); and The Crusher on We Have Come For Your Children (LP and cassette), Born Bad (The Songs The Cramps Taught Us) (LP), Back From The Grave, Vol. 2 (LP), Garage Kings (2-LP) and Pebbles Vol. 17 (LP); and On The Road Again on Top Teen Bands Vol. 2 (LP) and Novas Coaster on Top Teen Bands Vol. 3 (LP). The Novas were one of several local bands to come out of the Palmetto High School in Miami, Florida. Their adversaries included the Summits, Squires, Travellers, Collegians and Nightwalkers (w/Bobby Caldwell). They entered Criteria Studios in 1966 and under the controls of Steve Kimball (who also oversaw recordings by The Hustlers and Cavemen) they put down the overtly Merseybeat-styled Please Ask Her, notable for some fab harmonies. It was arranged by the Hustlers' Bob Leavitt and has been re-aired on Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 3 (CD). They also recorded an unreleased track called Frogs Eyeballs!

45: Almost There/Sunshine Of Your Love (Mothers 1312) 1968/9

A L.A.-based outfit whose album is at present only a very minor collectable. Seriously arty pop it mixes soft melodies with searing acidic guitar - tracks like Love (a Lee Michaels cover) owe a heavy debt to the Vanilla Fudge school. With good covers of Sitting On The Dock Of The Bay and Cream's Sunshine Of Your Love amongst freshly-scrubbed harmony-pop, this group seemed to be in a quandary - "are we just another pop group or a serious rock band?" The resulting dichotomy won't convince fans of either genre, so the album is disappointing and best described as patchy.

Love has also resurfaced on Sixties Archive Vol. 8 (CD), Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD) and Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 (2-LP). (VJ/MW/SR)

Produced by Arthur Gorson (Phil Ochs, David Blue) and Jerry Schoenbaum (Blues Project), No Explanations is the sole album by Len Novy. Recorded in New York with some renowned session men, the material comprises covers of Ars Nova's Round Once Again, Eric Andersen's Think About It, Stevie Wonder's You're The One For Me and several originals penned by Novy often helped by Bonnie McCullough or Michael Thomas. Although the album suffers from often insipid arrangements by Paul Harris, it does contain three good tracks: Tucson (with some tasteful guitar parts), Shy Ann and Rain And Snow (both with Byard Ray's fiddle). The music is a mix of electrified folk and rock, graced by Novy's distinctive voice. (SR)

45: I Want/Like A Flying Bird (Embassy 1968) 1967

Previously known as The Ban, from Lompoc, California, they changed names when their lead guitarist Tony McGuire was drafted and David Zandonatti came aboard to play bass/vocals. Subsequently the group moved to Los Angeles, signed with Embassy (owned by comic Milton Berle) and changed their name to The Now.

Their single contains straight pop-rock on I Want backed by a pleasant harmony-pop number in a baroque vein that may appeal to fans of The Left Banke.

Managed by Randy Guzman's parents, (hence his stage name Gordon), the band was shopped around to all of the L.A. labels and promoters. They'd played great gigs at the Sea Witch and Pandora's Box on the Sunset Strip, building up a strong following and generally playing the same circuit as the Seeds, Strawberry Alarm Clock, Yellow Payges etc... They also moved to San Bernardino East of L.A.

Finally they caught the attention of Matthew Katz in San Francisco. Katz had just lost contractual control of Jefferson Airplane and was looking for new groups to bolster his roster. The Now moved to San Francisco and was 'given' the name Tripsichord Music Box. (MW/GMy)

Rasico was better known as "Tommy Jay", of Tommy Jay and The Escorts. Selph was a DJ, Master of Ceremonies and radio announcer. Both were well-known on the Memphis sixties scene and struck up a songwriting partnership. One result was Groovy Day, recorded by the Kangaroos in 1969. With singer-songwriter acts being in vogue at the time, they secured a deal with a national label, yet this single, which is thought to date from the early seventies, appears to be the sole product of their performing collaboration.

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Guerssen GUESS063) 2009. (1) reissued on CD (Guerssen GUESSCD029) 2010.

An interesting instrumental progressive effort by a Rochester, New York outfit. Side one has a dreamy feel and could be compared to mid-seventies Pink Floyd or Popol Vuh. Side two is more avant-garde with long meandering passages though a section in the middle of the side sounds influenced by early seventies King Crimson.

NB: α Carl Perkins 45s - we're not sure which feature NRBQ.

The New Rhythm and Blues Quintet evolved from The Seven Of Us, originally a New York-based band who had relocated to Miami in 1966, where they were joined by Adams and Ferguson, from Kentucky outfit

Mersey Beats U.S.A. Shortly after adopting their new identity in 1968/9 they returned north to Passaic, New Jersey, finally ending up back in New York City and hitting the big time. NRBQ is an interesting good-time bluesy rock band with a quirky sense of humour. Its members were renowned for their musicianship and they had played on many studio sessions as well as short-lived groups before forming the group circa 1969. Their first single Stomp was a minor hit in 1969, but they had to wait five years to chart again, when Get That Gasoline Blues climbed to No. 70 and spent six weeks in the Top 200 in 1974.

Their second album was recorded with the rock pioneer Carl Perkins and is an interesting (and good humoured) attempt at mixing "new" and "old" sounds.

In 1971, they were joined by Al Anderson from the Wildweeds.

A kind of cult group on the East Coast, NRBQ kept on recording and touring intensively, mainly on the New York area. In 2001, the group still exists, playing live and releasing albums. (SR/MW/JLh/VJ)

45: Open Up Your Mind/
B.G.'s One Eye (Rembrandt 818R-5001) 1966

A psychedelic masterpiece from a Chicago-based band with a strong Anglophile influence which probably explains why both sides of the single were erroneously included on the U.K. compilation Chocolate Soup For Diabetics (LP). Open Up Your Mind has some fine organ and frantic guitar-work, the flip is an instrumental.

Ricky Erickson later joined The Lemon Drops who also recorded for Rembrandt Records.

Compilation appearances have included: Open Up Your Mind (alt version) on Chicago Garage Band Greats (LP) and Chicago Garage Band Greats (CD); different versions of B.G.'s One Eye and Open Up Your Mind appear on The Cicadelic 60's, Vol. 5 (CD) and both sides of the single were erroneously compiled on one of the very first retrospective UK psych compilations Chocolate Soup For Diabetics (LP); and finally Open Up Your Mind on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 9 (CD). 45: Another Side/Look Thru Any Window (Burdette 1) 1967

Often described as 'psych', Another Side is actually decent pop with some good keyboard moves, the odd baroque touch and weird effects - an interesting effort by this Pacific Northwest outfit. It's backed by a slightly slowed down version of The Hollies' hit with lots of echo.

Another Side can also be found on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 - Knock You Flat! (LP & CD). (MW)

This album was recorded by five nuns and two non-nun Catholics from Oregon. All 12 cuts were penned by Sister Marianne Misetich. The album title Ljubimo means 'let us love' in Croatian. Musically, the album features mostly folk-styled numbers, some soft and others more upbeat. Walk About The Craters Of The Moon opens and closes with electronic bleeps and blips and features flute, marimba and harp sections. Quite a few tracks feature electric guitar parts and St. Ives is notable for Arabian percussion. (VJ)

Although this album was pressed in Canada and lists no home base for the group on the cover, it is known that they were based in Marin County, California. The album, which is mainstream pop-rock and AOR with male and female vocals, sounds like a cross between Pablo Cruise and later-day It's A Beautiful Day. The group was previously known as RJ Fox, who saw a 2-CD issue of their early seventies material issued RJ Fox: Retrospective Dreams (Black Bamboo) 1994.

Sherry Fox was previously in Cookin' Mama and Stephen Barncard also worked with Chet Nichols and David Crosby. Kelly Bryan had earlier been in the short-lived Grootna and later played on a couple of albums by Jesse Colin Young. (CF/SR)

Born in Texas in 1940, Ochs was a journalism student in Ohio before he started singing in the early sixties. He arrived in Greenwich Village in 1962, began writing political folk songs and soon got a contract with Elektra. His first album established him as the first of the singing journalists, with songs about the Bay Of Pigs, the escalation in Vietnam and also an inspired adaptation of Edgar Allan Poe's The Bells. Danny Kalb (pre-Blues Project) played guitar and Bob Gibson helped to write some tunes.

The second album, I Ain't Marchin' Anymore, was even more political, with That Was The President being about the Kennedy Assassination and there are also two anti-war songs (the title track and Draft Dodger Rag). Both albums were produced by Paul Rothchild, the future Doors/Love producer. After a good live album, with There But For Fortune (a later hit for Joan Baez), Ochs moved to California and signed with A&M, Larry Marks producing his three next albums.

Pleasures Of The Harbor was his most ambitious project to date and marked an attempt to become a major songwriter/poet in the mould of Dylan. Two tracks are outstanding: the long The Crucifixion about Kennedy's Death, with an electronic score arranged by Joseph Byrd (two years before his United States Of America project) and Outside Of A Small Circle Of Friends, which could have been a hit if it wasn't for the censorship which chopped up the single.

OCTOBER COUNTRY

OCTOBER COUNTRY - Self Titled CD.

Ochs then teamed up with Van Dyke Parks for Tape From California. His most successful album notable for the title track and the 13-minute When In Rome, a rewritten history of the USA. Ramblin Jack Elliott and Lincoln Mayorga backed him on some tracks.

Ochs then went to Chicago for the Democratic Convention in August 1968. He was involved in the violent riots, even spending a night in jail. He never recovered from this trauma and his next album Rehearsals For Retirement showed a gravestone with the inscription: "Phil Ochs (American). Born El Paso, Texas, 1940. Died Chicago, Illinois, 1968". Musically it was very sad and depressing, with songs like The World Began In Eden But Ended In Los Angeles and I Kill Therefore I Am. Bob Rafkin and Mayorga helped him on this project.

For his next album, Ochs bought a gold lamé suit, posed like Elvis Presley and titled the project Greatest Hits, with a subtitle: "50 Phil Ochs Fans Can't Be Wrong". Produced by Van Dyke Parks it featured a prestigious back-up group: two Byrds (Clarence White and Gene Parsons), Ry Cooder, James Burton, Tom Scott and Dick Rosmini. Unfortunately, the album is also one of his weakest, with the heavy arrangements being unsuitable.

The next album Gunfight At Carnegie Hall was released only in Canada and Japan and contains two rock medleys of Elvis Presley and Buddy Holly songs. Phil Ochs then began travelling to Chile, Australia (where he recorded a single) and Africa, notably Tanzania, Nigeria, South Africa and Kenya, where he recorded a single in Swahili.

Back in the U.S.A. and after a period of depression, he released a final single Here's To The State Of Richard Nixon/Power And The Glory. A tormented character, Phil Ochs killed himself in 1976.

Two albums with previously unreleased tracks have subsequently been released: the essential double album Chords Of Fame with an extensive biography by Ed Sanders (of The Fugs), and a collection of early demos, A Toast To Those Who Are Gone, in 1986. The discography details most of his retrospective releases.

His brother, Michael Ochs, has founded the 'Michael Ochs Archives', one of the biggest collections of music related items: records, sleeeves, posters etc., and published a marvelous book of photographs of musicians from the 1940s - 1960s called "Rock Archives" (Doubleday, 1984).

Ochs appears on several various artists compilations. Ballad Of William Worthy, Changes, We Seek No Wider War, Freedom Riders and Changes can also be heard on Best Of Broadside 1962-1988 (LP). His tracks also feature on: A&M Family Portrait (LP); The Bitter End - The First Ten Years (LP); Broadside Ballads Vol 1 (LP); Broadside Reunion (LP); The Broadside Singers (LP); The Folk Box (LP); Folk Songs '65 (LP); Get Off (LP); Greatest Folksingers Of The Sixties (LP); New Folks (LP); The Newport Festival (1964) (LP); and Storytellers: Singers and Songwriters (LP). Finally, I Ain't Marching Any More can also be heard on the Follow The Music (CD) which was included in the Elektra book. (SR/VJ)

October Country was a Los Angeles-based six-piece harmony-pop group. The album's title track is a quite delightful piece of orchestrated sunshine harmony-pop and showcased Michael Lloyd's talents as a producer and composer. The album is in the style of bands like Millennium, Sagittarius and Orange Colored Sky and Michael Lloyd wrote all 11 tracks and played much of the instrumentation on them - as well as arranging and producing them all. This guy was such a talent.

He also worked with the West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band, Smoke, and as an arranger or producer (or both, often with Kim Fowley) with Fire Escape, St. John Green, American Revolution, A.B. Skhy and Grains Of Sand. He was also a member of Laughing Wind, a band who recorded for Tower and masterminded an album called Cream Songbook (GTR 10000) 1969, which was credited to The Rubber Band, as well as Cotton, Lloyd and Christian, before becoming an even more successful producer and songwriter.

The CD reissue of their album on Rev-Ola includes their mono single mixes and the missing album cut Baby What I Mean. Of these, the bizarrely titled My Girlfriend Is A Witch catches the ear. The CD comes with an informative booklet including an interview with Michael Lloyd.

I Wonder What She's Doing Tonight has been compiled on Nuggets Vol. 3: Pop (LP); and you can also check out My Girl Friend Is A Witch on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book). (VJ)

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Void 010) 1998. (1) reissued on CD (Hallucinations HCD 01) 2000 with four bonus tracks.

This hard-rock album is now of minor interest to collectors. Randy Oda was later in a late seventies band, Ruby, with Tom Fogerty. This album probably won't be of any interest to fans of garage, psych or 'hippie-rock' but is a very competent hard-rock album with some incisive lead guitar work from Randy Oda.

They were based in the San Francisco Bay Area. (VJ)

Be Happy Baby (South Bay 102) 1966

This band is believed to have been from Los Angeles area, despite the label name. It does make more sense when one considers that they chose to cover an obscure album track by L.A.'s Tormentors. Their up-tempo folk-punk rendition of 'Cause You Don't Love Me reappeared on the lo-fi Boulders Vol. 2 (LP) and on Garage Punk Unknowns Vol. 3 (LP). The Stonesy flip featured on Garage Punk Unknowns Vol. 4 (LP). (MW/VJ)

Kevin Odegard was a folk-rock singer from Minneapolis. He is best known as the guitarist on Bob Dylan's Blood On The Tracks album. He also wrote a book about the experience, "A Simple Twist Of Fate". This eponymous album was produced by David Zimmerman, Dylan's brother. It's a mediocre West Coast-influenced folk-rock effort, which is of little interest. He made another album, Silver Lining, which was more country-rockish. (SR/VJ)

Originally known simply as The Group, this Shreveport, Louisiana bunch put out a couple of "soul-psych" singles before their split. When Noel left, the rest of the band became the second incarnation of The Bad Habits (on Paula).

I Can't See Nobody is indeed a cover of the Bee Gees song, but much less sentimental and thus better to these ears. Pardon My Complete Objection is a fine organ-guided gloomy observation on the dismal sides of life and the uselessness of striving anywhere. This is a stylish and worthwhile single. (MW/MK)

Also relevant is Live At The Levittown Memorial Auditorium: 1974 (CD) (Lion Music LION 602) 2005 which contains raw recordings of the band in their progressive phase, shortly before Fred Callan and occasional Odyssey keyboardist Tom Doncourt recorded a now legendary album as Cathedral.

This is a very rare psychedelic/progressive collectors' item, from a Brentwood, Long Island, New York group that is well worth seeking out. The album is of a pretty consistently high standard. There's lots of heavy psychedelic guitar, upfront keyboards and very expressive vocals. The stand-out tracks include Society's Child, Church Yard and Angel Dust (although this last one is partly marred by a rather boring drum solo).

ODYSSEY - Setting Forth... CD.

Michael Tschudin's composition You're Not There, was a reworked version of a track that appears on Listening's album. Original copies were issued in a plain white cover, some of which were emblazoned with a title sticker reflecting the album title above. Most were in plain covers and this title does not appear on the record label.

The album has been painstakingly re-mastered and repackaged by Lion Productions in a sixties-style gatefold jacket. The gatefold spread has a band history by Odyssey leader Vinny Kusy, as well as rare photos from his private archive. The reissue is also available on CD, which is accompanied by a 12-page booklet with part one of a band history and rare photos from Kusy's private archive.

Live At The Levittown Memorial Auditorium: 1974 (CD) contains raw recordings of the band in their progressive phase, shortly before Fred Callan and occasional Odyssey keyboardist Tom Doncourt recorded a now legendary album as Cathedral. The CD includes bonus tracks featuring three Setting Forth era home recordings, two untitled originals that never made the album, plus their version of Whiter Shade Of Pale. The sound quality is poor but the CD came with a 12-page booklet that continues the Odyssey story by band leader Vinny Kusy, which was commenced on the Setting Forth reissue, as well as additional photos.

Compilation coverage has been limited to Churchyard on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 1 (2-LP & CD). (VJ/CF/MW)

This single was reported as The Turtles using a pseudonym, however Fuzz Flaykes & Shakes, Vol. 1 (LP & CD) reveals that the group was not The Turtles but comprised of ex-members of L.A. outfits Just Too Much and the Looking Glasses. The credits - a Media production and Visions composer J./Jerry Berke appear to bear this out. Well-spotted, but deduct two brownie points for billing it as Little Boy, Little Girl. As well as Fuzz Flaykes & Shakes, Vol. 1, Little Girl, Little Boy can also be found on Garage Beat '66 1 (CD) and Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book).

As to the single, Little Girl... is one great pop-punk belter. A driving punchy beat, some great girl put-down lyrics and delivered with a slight snarl and oozing testosterone. The flip is cute and uninspiring by comparison. (MW)

45:	(I Remember) How It Used To Be/ Lonesome	(Beacon 1001) 1967

Out of Austin, Texas came Oedipus and The Mothers with this highly thought of single. You'll also find (I Remember) How It Used To Be on Texas Punk From The Sixties (CD). An interesting psychedelic effort with some good guitar, it does come across as a little disjointed though. Don Passman was studying law at the University of Texas. When he gave a demo of the band to legendary record producer (and family friend) Snuff Garrett, the producer smiled and said, "Don, go to law school," which is exactly what he did. In fact, he went to Harvard!

The band should not be confused with another Oedipus and The Mothers (1963-66), who performed at frat parties at RPI, Cornell, and Albany State, but did not record. (VJ/SR/MW/RMh)

45:	Tired Of Crying/Tell Me Baby	(Rhythm 100) 1966

Probably unrelated to The Off-Beats on Guyden and Tower, this West Monroe, Louisiana release boasts a moody punker modelled loosely on Harlem Shuffle, backed by a bluesy garage ballad. Tired Of Crying has subsequently resurfaced on Psychedelic Crown Jewels Vol. 2 (2-LP & CD) and Time Won't Change My Mind (CD). NB: α acetate only, shown as by The Nonchalants.

From the Orlando/Winter Park area of Florida, The Offbeets' manager, Ron Dillman managed to score them their recording sessions, as well as getting them into a 'B' movie - "Daytona Beach Weekend". Their main claim to fame, however, is that they would later evolve into the seminal We The People.

The acetate version of Double Trouble and I Wanna Do It have subsequently resurfaced on the great Sundazed We The People retrospective, Mirror Of Our Minds, together with a previously unreleased track, Drivin' Me Out Of My Mind.

Like many bands of the era, their destiny was shaped by the Vietnam War - when Dennis Messimer was drafted, Tommy Talton was recruited from The Chessmen. Soon afterwards Jim Robinson got called up and with their band evaporating fast, Ron Dillman organised a jam session with Wayne Proctor and Randy Boyte from The Trademarks - who he also managed. Within the week We The People had cut their first session and the rest, as they say, is history...

Reflections/Lies I Spoke (acetate only) 1966
Stop Feeling Sorry For Yourself/
Look in Her Eyes (acetate only) 196?

This is Brooklyn's Jagged Edge which was forced to change their name for this, their second single. A double-sided gem, A Change Is Gonna Come is a chiming folk-rocker with subtle fuzz in the background and momentarily brings to mind The Dovers. Xanthia, meanwhile, is a glorious Eastern raga-type concoction with mewling guitars, 'sitars' and suitably cool vocals - one for the connoisseur.

Art Steinman recalls - "We were all set to go into the studio with our version of It Ain't Me Babe by Dylan, when The Turtles released their version. Ours was quite similar to theirs so we scuttled the plans when they beat us to the punch. A Change Is Gonna Come was recorded as a substitute. It was a big hit for and written by Sam Cooke, the famous R&B singer, who did such great singles as Chain Gang, Another Saturday Night, Cupid and many others. That's me playing surfer 12-string on the tune and singing harmony. The fuzz is Harley on bass through my Maestro fuzz box, one of the first ever made, I think".

"Drew Georgopolous, second guitar in Jagged Edge to my lead guitar, wrote Xanthia. I'm playing the psychedelic slide guitar on my Gretsch Tennessean with a Zippo lighter."

Compilation appearances include: Xanthia (Lisa) on Brain Shadows, Vol. 1 (LP & CD); and an unreleased version of A Change Is Gonna Come on Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 1 (CD). (MW/ASn)

OFOEDIAN DEN - The Birds LP.

ALBUM: 1(A) THE BIRDS (w/insert) (Rock Bottom CFS-2151) 1970 R1

A marginal case for inclusion here as this album is the soundtrack to a college play and includes a large chorus that distracts mightily. Largely, the musical accompaniment is of a jazzy nature and only a couple of tracks tread in either rock or folk territory. This album is very rare, having only been sold at the performances which were staged at the College Of Marin in May 1970. (CF)

Carl Oglesby was initially known as an ex-Weavermen and Pete Seeger sideman. He went solo and released at least two albums. The first is a good psychy folk-rock effort, which is beginning to attract attention amongst collectors. Surprisingly, the lyrics are pseudo-Dylanesque rather than political with nice instrumentation, including guitars, woodwinds and cello. The second is in the same style and has a Dave Sheridan comic on its front sleeve plus an insert. (SR)

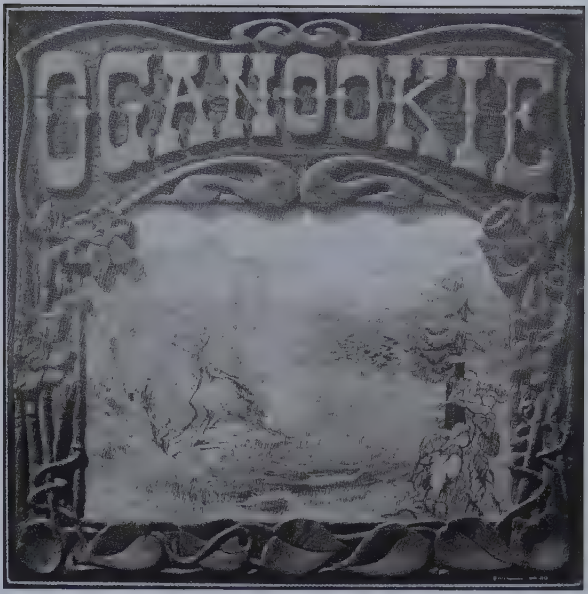
This was one of a number of bubblegum acts put together by producers Jerry Kasenetz and Jeff Katz. From the start this was more of a 'project' rather than a single band. Beg, Borrow Or Steal was recorded by The Rare Breed. The outfit that first went on the road as Ohio Express was another Mansfield, Ohio group Sir Timothy and The Royals, led by Tim Corwin. They were involved in many of the earlier studio recordings and Corwin stayed on through later personnel shifts. Other early tracks were recorded by the Measles (who included Joe Walsh and were later known as Lacewing), before Levine took control of the project.

They are best remembered for their hits Yummy, Yummy, Yummy and Chewy, Chewy, which were typical of the bubblegum genre (heavy repetitive bass beat, simple lyrics and nasal vocals), but they also enjoyed several other minor hits. Two of their albums made the Top 200:- Ohio Express (which included Yummy, Yummy, Yummy) climbed to No. 126 and Chewy, Chewy peaked at No. 191, but bubblegum music was really aimed at the singles market. Their first seven singles were sung and written by Joey Levine, who was on Buddah's staff, but Buddy Bengert was lead singer on Pinch Me and Graham Gouldman (later of 10cc fame) performed the vocal honours on Sausalito (Is The Place To Go).

On their eponymous second album whilst the studio musicians performed songs like Yummy Yummy Yummy and Down At Lulu's, they left the rest of the material to the band pictured on the cover. Tucked away on this album are some very pleasant surprises. For fans of pop-psych with beautiful harmony vocals, She's Not Coming Home is simply exquisite and the breezy pop of Winter Skies may appeal too. Into This Time has a great psychedelic guitar ending, First Grade Reader showcases a harsher side to their music - it also features some fine guitar work. Turn To Straw is a superb slice of psychedelia and the jewel in the crown is garage-popster The Time You Spent With Me, which contains some great psychedelic guitar passages.



OGANOOKIE - Self Titled LP.

Joey Levine had a hand in writing eight of the 11 songs on the Chewy Chewy album and the first one, the title song is one of the finest examples of pure bubblegum. This song has it all, the pounding Indian train rhythm, repeating title chorus, hand-claps, ever-present farfisa keyboard and that sexual innuendo thing. The album's other nugget is Down In Tennessee which gives the album a strong ending. What's in between is not so hot. There are inferior covers of two 1910 Fruitgum Co. songs (Simon Says and 1,2 3 Red Light) and Yes, Sir is one of Levine's weakest songs. The remaining material is OK though.

There was a touring version of the band in the eighties. Nowadays, there's a line-up that works the oldies circuit led by original drummer Tim Corwin (and featuring occasional appearances by original guitarist Doug Grassel). Jim Pfahler died in March 2003. Bassist Dean Kastran now plays bass for bluegrass band Faces Made for Radio, which is based in Ashland, Ohio.

Compilation appearances have included: - Chewy, Chewy and Firebird on Pop Explosion (LP); Yummy, Yummy, Yummy, Down At Lulu's, and Chewy, Chewy on Bubble Gum Music Is... The Naked Truth (LP); and First Grade Reader on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD) and Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 2 (2-LP).

Do check out some of their albums - you'll be pleasantly surprised. (VJ/MW/MM)

NB: (1) reissued in Germany on vinyl (Little Wing LW-3044/47) 1995 as four 10" albums with a booklet and bonus tracks in a metal film can. This was a limited numbered edition of 800.

This really weird psychotic local Baltimore, Maryland progressive band released a truly demented album. There's some clear Zappa influence here and a very free-form approach. Certainly not for everyone, but if you like highly experimental music, this could be for you. The album's quite a collectors' item and Greg Shaw listed it in his Top 10 "Acid Punk" review in one of the Bomp issues of 1978 or 1979. The reissue contains all 16 tracks from the original plus another 15 the group had recorded in the same sessions. The reissue consisted of four 10" albums in a can (like the old metal boxes for films).

Later Oho became a more disciplined progressive band. Their never released Vitamin Oho album was finally put out in 1992 by Little Wing (LW 3023).

Most, or all, of the members of Oho later released at least one album as The Dark Side, Rumours In Our Own Time, Legends In Our Own Room (Gohog Records B-004) 1980. It's quite a good album, much more in the "punk" or new wave style of the time, but still recognisably strange and weird enough to be quite interesting. The original band line-up has a non-album cut on The Best Of Baltimore's Buried (LP) compilation. (VJ/ESn/BK)

The Olivers were from Fort Wayne, Indiana and were previously The Serfmen. Their October 1966 release was picked up by RCA in early 1967 but they must have done nothing to promote it. It has got to be one of the top double-sided killers of the sixties on a major label. Beeker Street is a relentless fuzz-rocker with great drumming and a killer guitar solo, I Saw What You Did is a raw, simmering punker with cool keyboards and another great fuzz solo.

After The Olivers broke up, Mankey formed Triad, relocated to Minneapolis and played with Thundertree before going on tour with a company performing Jesus Christ Superstar.

45: Sad Song #1/Come To The Party (VMC V 733) 1969

On the short-lived California label which also released The David and Pacific Ocean, Come To The Party can only be described as "extremely strange". Housed in a weird collage cover showing Olivieri naked and showing the palms of his hands full of people, surrounded by strange colours, it's a kind of concept album with the sides titled "Before" and "After".

Produced by Tandyn Almer (the man also behind Paper Fortress), the music is extremely messy, with loads of keyboards, percussion and bass with almost no melody. It provides a rather appropriate background to the hallucinated lyrics and vocals of Olivieri, who sounds sincere in what he sings, even if it's completely absurd or banal. Fuzzy Soft Thing, I Cry In The Morning, Yesterday Was Nuthin' Like Today and Lady Fair are some examples of this weird production. 45: I Am A Natural Man/? (GWP 526) 1970

A rural-rock outfit from Syracuse, New York. Produced in New York by Rupert Holmes, Danny Jordan and Stan Herman, the album was recorded in 1970 when the band was known as Reincarnation. The label turned it down initially but had a change of heart later, by which time the band had changed personnel and name. There are a handful of decent tracks on the album. The best is arguably It's My Birthday about a Vietnam veteran who wants to celebrate his birthday but has no-one to spend it with. All For Love has an unusual guitar-based ending. I'm A Natural Man has a strong intro and a couple of other tracks; Was I Surprised and You Are My Friend have quite catchy harmonies. There's half a decent album here really.

Their music is described as "psych-tinged power pop" on the CD reissue which came out without the knowledge of Zeppetello and former band mates. This description over-hypes the psych element. (VJ/MW/SR)

Based in Tempe, Arizona, Olson released several interesting records. The above is probably his best and it sold well enough locally to warrant a repressing in 1980. Other releases include The Blonde Sun Album (1976 live recordings, issued in 1978 in a stunning Rick Griffin-style cover), Hans Olson Sings The Blues (studio recordings, issued in 1980), and The Aspen Tapes (a 7" EP recorded in 1981 with such luminaries as Albert Lee, Mark Naftalin, Al Kooper and Linda Tillery). Each album contains a mixture of electric and acoustic blues-based material, comparable perhaps to Bill Homans' Merry Airbrakes, although Olson's material is decidely more lighthearted.

Olson continues to perform and release CDs in Arizona, and makes trips regularly to Europe where his uniquely American folk style has found favour. (CF) give it a few spins. On the surface it's a cool, almost-catchy fuzzy pop-punker; what makes it stand out is an expressive and versatile vocalist plus some creative and seemingly off-the-cuff guitar work. It is a fitting finale on Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 1 (CD).

Tommy Stuart recalls: - "the single was recorded in Ed Boutwell's old studio, which was in an abandoned church in Birmingham. It was engineered by the late Eddie Hinton, a famous session player, writer, and artist, who has something of a cult following. The lead guitar was done by a friend of the band, Tippy Armstrong, also a well known session player at Muscle Shoals". (MW)

NB: α shown as by Carol & The Omens.

These Omens came from Hammond, Indiana - a suburb of Chicago. Their anthemic garage single is well worth 'searching' out... Duane O'Donnell:- "The single was recorded in the summer of 1965, I remember playing a lot of gigs, but can't remember making any money. In retrospect, however, it was tremendous fun."

Compilation appearances include: Searching on Off The Wall, Vol. 11 (LP), Pebbles Vol. 6: Chicago 1 (CD), The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 1 (2-CD), Trash Box (5-CD), Best of Pebbles, Vol. 2 (LP & CD) and Highs In The Mid-Sixties Vol. 4 (LP); and Girl Get Away on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 7: Backyard Patio (LP & CD).

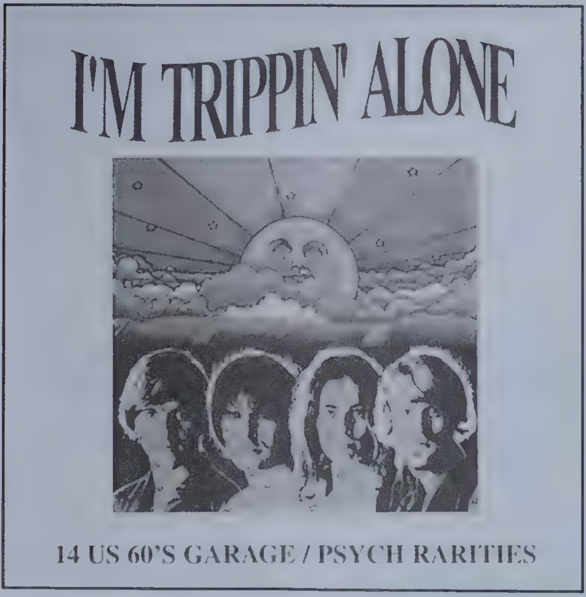
Duane: - "I was 15 years old when I joined The Omens in 1964. Carol Buehler was the girlfriend and later wife of Don Revercomb who wrote and sang Searching; they were married when Don was 16 and Carol had just turned 15. She sang only one song, As Tears Go By, at our gigs. We recorded the three songs one Saturday in East Chicago, Indiana in a tiny apartment onto an Ampex reel to reel. Two singles were cut, with Searching being the 'A' side on both. My only copy of the single had Tears on the 'B' side. I gave the single as a birthday present to Al Patka, who played organ with The Omens after I had to quit in the summer of '65."

"The sixties were a great time to be in a rock & roll band. I still gig occasionally, and it's still just as much fun".



I'M TRIPPIN' ALONE

I'm Tripping Alone (Comp LP) including Omegas.

As to the other Omen members "I have no idea... I saw the drummer, Tim Jones, at a muffler shop in 1990, the day before leaving for the West Coast". Come 2002, Duane works for the Sacramento County Environmental Management Department regulating the operation of underground fuel storage tanks. His oldest son has got the rock & roll bug, playing bass with a group from Santa Cruz named A Burning Water, who are doing the California college circuit and were about to release their first CD. In 1968, O'Neill joined Soul Congress, who would relocate to Detroit. This band featured vocalist Billy Sha-Ray from Uniontown Pennsylvania, and two former Arondies - Jim Pavlack (guitar) and Gary Pittman (bass).

O'Neill revived The Oncomers circa 1997 as Splash and did a few local (McKeesport area) club shows.

David Miller and Alan Sherman were the brains behind this project which is one of the rarer exploito albums to come out of this stable which included Animated Egg and Black Diamonds. It features lots of swirling string arrangements and fuzzy instrumentals. There were several other exploitation albums credited to 101 Strings but this one is definitely the most relevant to this book.

They have three cuts: Flameout, Barrier X-69 and A Disappointing Love With A Desensitized Robot compiled on Everything You Always Wanted To Know About '60s Mind Expanding Punkadelic Garage Rock Instrumentals But Were Afraid To Ask (CD); and Karma Sitar, which does not appear on their album but is a featured bonus track on the CD reissues can be heard on A Prae-Kraut Pandaemonium Vol. 1 (LP) and Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 8 (CD). One Man's Family originated from guitarist Nigel Pickering and bassist Kenny Hodges, members of Spanky and Our Gang who were seeking to work together in a similar line-up after Spanky had left to go solo in 1969. John Beland (ex-Wheatstraw), auditioned and got the job as guitarist, vocalist. Also brought in was vocalist Sue Richards and Thad Maxwell as the band's drummer, fresh from a stint with the A&M band Tarantula with whom he had played guitar. Although no tapes of One Man's Family exist; the group mixed five-part harmonies singing a blend of pop and country as an early country-rock outfit. Their arrangement of When Will I Be Loved inspired Linda Ronstadt's version.

One Man's Family toured with The Byrds, Hollies and Steppenwolf and had received rave reviews. While touring with the comedy troupe 2nd City and hanging out with John Prine and Steve Goodman they split mid-tour in Chicago. After the band split up, Thad Maxwell and John Beland returned to L.A, where in December 1969 Beland was hired by Linda Ronstadt to help replace her backing group The Corvettes. Beland merged forces with three quarters of The Reasons, Eric White on bass, Gib Guilbeau on fiddle, vocals and guitar, and Stan Pratt on drums. This outfit became Swampwater and in early 1970 Eric White became their road manager with Thad Maxwell joining to play bass. They recorded their debut album in 1970 and followed with a second in 1971. After backing Ronstadt for a year and a half they backed Arlo Guthrie before folding in 1972 while recording their third album. They reappeared in the mid-seventies with Back Pocket.

Nigel Pickering reunited with Spanky McFarlane for a 1975 Spanky And Our Gang album. Eric White had worked with The Kentucky Colonels in the sixties with brothers Roland and Clarence White, including their 1973 European reunion tour. Gib Guilbeau and John Beland worked as backing musicians for a variety of pop and country artists. Both recorded solo albums in the seventies and had stints with The Flying Burrito Brothers and Sierra. (JO/JBd)

45: There Ain't No Use In Crying/Contribution (Santiago 2633) c1968

Both sides of this Elkton, Virginia band's single were written by Albert A. Simballa and produced by Jim Gallegos. There Ain't... is a strong Cream-like rocker with generous doses of fuzz and flowing wah-wah passages. The flip is restrained pop-rock until the final minute or so when it disintegrates into a free-form guitar freak-out. You can also hear it on The Psychedelic Experience (CD). (MW)

	Psychedelic Illusion/Feel The Pain	(Chetwyd CW-45005) 1967

This band came from the Lexington area of Kentucky. Their first single sounded very Byrds-influenced. Psychedelic Illusion was excellent chiming soft psychedelia, whilst the flip was guitar-laden pop-punk.

Trifolia can also be heard on I Can Hear Raindrops (LP), a compilation of vulnerable and frail 'loser' garage-ballads. Psychedelic Illusion, a coy garagy hippie-psych ditty that brings to mind the Venus Flytraps' Have You Ever, is on Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 3 (CD). Feel The Pain has resurfaced on Diggin' For Gold Vol. 10 (LP) and Wyld Sydes Volume 9 (CD). 45:	Cast A Shadow/Carnival	(Weems WR01) c1970

A complete mystery single touted as garage-psych turned out to be decent underground hard rock, sounding circa 1970-1.

With accomplished riffing 'n' picking, the predominantly instrumental Cast A Shadow is redolent of early Wishbone Ash. The fully instrumental Carnival is a grungey hard-rock jam. The labels give nothing away other than producer B. Heher and potential personnel of P.S. Pacelli, Spalla, and Noble. (MW)

ALBUM:	1(A)	THE ONES, Vol 1	(Ashwood House AH-1105) 1966 R3-R4

This group originated in Unionville, Connecticut and worked extensively in the Lake George/Albany New York region, before taking up residence in Boston. They became known as one of the hottest outfits to come out of the city in the era, but success eluded them probably because they concentrated on cover songs rather than originals. Their album, nonetheless, is now a significant collectors' item and hasn't yet been reissued. For a taster of how they sounded you can find Didi-Wa-Didi on Pebbles, Vol. 13 (LP), Mister You're A Better Man Than I on Oil Stains (LP), and I Can't Explain on Psychotic Reactions (LP). Other uncompiled covers include Unchained Melody, Hang On Sloopy and My Prayer.

ONE ST STEPHEN

ONE ST. STEPHEN - Self Titled CD.

The album was recorded in New York City, and included one original, Maybe It's Both Of Us, written by the producer Clay Pitts. This is a powerful beat tune with strong hooks and vocal harmonies. After its release, Sam DeSantos was recruited from Missing Links, who the band had met previously when working in Salisbury Beach, Massachusetts.

Jeff Costello: - "The Ones broke up in 1968. Jon Landau, who later became Bruce Springsteen's manager, reviewed our group in Crawdaddy, saying we were a "competent, soulful club band but not originators." It was true."

Sam DeSantos and Rick McPherson later formed Atlantis in 1970 with legendary producer Bobby Herne. Maris went on to the hard-rock outfit Euclid. (MW/AH/JC/VJ)

Here's a mellow rock album, with vocals reminiscent of The Doors' Jim Morrison. The highlights are two longish tracks November Edgar and In Your Mind that open and close side one. The album is vocally quite strong with some fuzz though it has some less interesting bluesy rock numbers. They came from Ohio. One St. Stephen have sometimes been confused with St. Steven, mainly due to incorrect sleeve notes on the Filling The Gap (4-LP box) compilation. In fact the bonus tracks included on the reissues were actually the work of the pre-St. Steven band Front Page Review. (VJ)

45s:	α	Listen To Me/Tears	(VanTown VT 101) 1966
	β	I See The Light/Tears In My Eyes	(Paula 281) 1967

NB: β features the same recordings as α, but with the track titles renamed.

Although this band was from Vancouver, Canada we're including them here to help avoid confusion with a different Louisiana act who issued a single on Apollo and two on Smash. This One Way Street only recorded one single, which was originally issued on Tom Peacock's VanTown label and subsequently licensed to the U.S. Paula label, which reissued it with different track titles.

Presumably because of the Paula release, people have assumed that the band came from Louisiana and indeed you can find both tracks on Eva's Louisiana Punk Groups From The Sixties, Vol. 2 (LP) and its CD equivalent Sixties Archive Vol. 3. In addition, I See The Light has resurfaced on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 7 (LP & CD) and Of Hopes And Dreams & Tombstones (LP); Tears In My Eyes on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 9 (CD), whilst The History Of Vancouver Rock & Roll, Vol. 4 (LP) includes both tracks taken from the master tapes, with liner notes from band member Doug Fairbairn. Previously thought to be from Louisiana, maybe due to the debut single being a Dover press, more recently it has been suggested that they were from Biloxi, Mississippi. They enjoyed a local hit with Yard Dog. Written by Miller Evan it was re-released by Smash. The group disappeared after a second single. (SR/MW)

This One-Way Street hailed from Pharr, near McAllen, Texas. Joy And Sorrow is catchy and notable for upfront drumming. The second single is also noteworthy - Illusions is an insistent fuzzy garage-popper and Never End is a silky garage-ballad with sweet harmonies.

Joe And Sorrow can also be heard on Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 2 (LP & CD), Texas Flashback (The Best Of) (CD) and Flashback, Vol. 2 (LP); and Illusions can also be found on Gravel Volume 1 (CD). (VJ/AB/MW)

45:	Another Place/Can't Trust A Woman	(Brumble 45-101) 1967

In the wake of the English Invasion, the Axberg brothers formed The Dimensions in 1964 with Thornton and friend Danny Sheehan on rhythm guitar. The following year they formed The Only Ones although no product appeared until July 1967, a month after the single from The Heard, their main rivals in Longview, Texas. The Only Ones' single is a cool organ-based garager with great 1966 girl-put-down lyrics.

Read their full story on the Break-A-Way EP, which includes the above single and the sole offering by The Heard, on which they cover the 13th Floor Elevators' hit You're Gonna Miss Me backed by the rather unusual Exit 9. The release comes with a detailed six-page insert, rare pictures and a band history.

Can't Trust A Woman also appears on The Lost Generation 3 (LP). (VJ/MW)

On The Seventh Day (NY)

ALBUM:	1	ON THE SEVENTH DAY	(Mercury SR-61248) 1970

This was a concept album rather than a band. It was written and produced by Alan Bernstein and Victor Millrose in New York. Leroy Glover was the arranger and conductor. There's a note on the album sleeve which says: - "It took God six days to create a perfect world. On the seventh day he rested. That was a big mistake for on the seventh day we took over." The album begins with a narrator reading these sentences and then gives way to a collage of sounds/documents and musical "Hair" - like songs. The bombing of Hiroshima, political speeches, black activists, civil rights, the Vietnam War, Chicago and Paris 1968 riots - all are mixed.

The album was released in two different sleeves (like the Asylum Choir Mercury album). The first has two naked kids (a boy and a girl). This controversial cover was immediately withdrawn and replaced with a tree cover, which is much more common. (VJ/GG)

An excellent local Wisconsin electric folk album in a stunning silk-screened cover. Just 500 copies were pressed originally.

Oosten played the clubs and coffee houses of Wisconsin and Illinois mainly prior to recording this album at the American Music Recording Studio in Sauk City, Wisconsin between November 1973 - February 1974. The album consists of five extended tracks. Various music friends helped out on side one. Tom Hennick, an old college friend played piano on Hey Babe, which is the weakest track; Jan Reek sings vocals on Garden (which features some interesting guitar work) and Algis Byla, another old college friend, played bass on Sunny Day. Oosten played solo on Hungry Horse Montana and Wavefaring Boy on side two. He wrote Hungry Horse just outside the Glacier National Park. The 11-minute cut features fine acoustic guitar work. The finale, Wavefaring Boy is the only cut he plays electric guitar on and the album's jewel. He does a vocal imitation of the sound of sea surf at one point and it works! These comments also draw partly on the Gear Fab CD notes. (CF/VJ)

NB: α shown as by Epiks.

After their debut release, Steubenville's Epiks changed their name to Opus IV. Mess Around is a party-dance popper, a hybrid of Shake and Land Of 1,000 Dances. About Her is a slow ballad with Animals-like keyboards; the singer sounds slurred in his efforts to emulate a deep'n'sultry Scott Walker style. When harmony-pop band Eighth Day split during the recording of their Kapp album, the Opus IV were drafted in to complete the project.

Guitarist Rob Parissi hit paydirt in 1976 when Wild Cherry's Play That Funky Music became an international disco smash. His website mentions that Opus IV used to play for Bobby Vinton and it was through him that they got the MGM deal.

45: Back Seat '38 Dodge/In My Mind (Mustang 3017) 1966

This young quartet from Long Beach, California was playing teen clubs like The Cinnamon Cinder, city and radio-sponsored youth dances, and the occasional bar gig (even though they were all under age). At one such bar, The Brass Lantern, they were plied with drinks early in the evening... by the end of the night they'd all switched instruments!

In March 1966 they presented themselves at Del-Fi's Hollywood studios. They'd already recorded a session at Western Recorders with the famed producer/engineer Bones Howe (Association, Turtles, The Mamas & The Papas) which yielded two tracks - In My Mind and the never-to-be-released Birds Of Passage. Del-Fi liked what they heard and laid on a day's recording session.

During one of the breaks, discussions came around to the controversy surrounding a sculpture by L.A.-based avant-gardist Ed Kienholz which was being shown at the Los Angeles County Art Museum. Entitled "Back Seat '38 Dodge", this was a '38 Dodge car, cut in half, with beer cans on the floor and two pairs of leg sticking out from the backseat - one pair of feet pointing up, the other down! Seems it was all too much for moralists, who thought it depicted what was wrong with teens at the time. Newspaper editorials abounded and it was declared obscene by the Museum board, but it remained on show ... with the car's doors closed!

With this in mind, they took one of the group's songs called Why Did I Lie (also known as Song), changed the lyrics ("what goes on in the back seat? I really wanna know"!) and tweaked the arrangement. Paired with the already-completed In My Mind, a dynamic upbeat pop-punker, Back Seat 38 Dodge was released on Mustang in April. It's a hyrid of throttling hot-rod and garage, a pulsating punker with crashing chords - check it out on Highs In The Mid-Sixties Vol. 2 (LP) or on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book) and crank up the volume.

This was to be their sole release. Del-Fi had just signed a deal with the Yardley Black Label Company to provide the music for a TV commercial. They asked the group to record a song called Some Guys Get It as "Limey and the Yanks" but the producer wasn't happy with the vocals and the chorus lyrics ("It's bitchin'... It's bitchin' ... when you get it, you got to get it"). He over-dubbed the vocals replacing the offending "bitchin'" with "bewitchin'" (hence the full page ad in KRLA Beat which said that the Back Seat '38 Dodge single was 'Bewitchin'). When Doug Decker and Chris Christensen heard the new vocals, they were not happy and the band quit the label.

Opus 1 later made an appearance on 'The Perry Mason' TV show, in one of the last black and white episodes ('The Case Of The Avenging Angel'). They were supposed to be playing themselves, but were called Gabe and His Angels and had to mime to some real fruity movie-rock-and-roll version of The Jersey Bounce. They also were supposed to appear in the Dean Martin movie 'Murderer's Row' but, typically Hollywood (where nepotism ruled), they were cut out and replaced by Dino, Desi, and Billy.

They broke up soon after. Christensen got his draft notice; he sold his car, cut his hair, put the drums in storage, and held a farewell party.... only to be turned down. He eventually went back to drumming, singing and playing guitar and bass and has done some film and video scoring. 35 years on, he teaches music and is the director of a youth band and choir for a Catholic church. Doug Decker became a successful recording engineer and worked with Johnny Cash, The Beach Boys, Band of Gypsies, Roger Miller, and John Fahey amongst others. Come the new millennium he was doing the sound for a cable TV show called 'Win Ben Stein's Money'.

Doug Decker and Chris Christensen played together in Laser Pace some years later.

The Back Seat '38 Dodge sculpture is still on show at the L.A. County Art Museum in their permanent collection and continues to cause a stir. (MW/BTs)

45:	The Night We Fell In Love/ Don't Say No	(Verve Forecast KF 5075) 1967

Here are some dreamy harmony-pop confections from Los Angeles. The single was produced by the team of Curt Boettcher (here spelt Kurt) and Keith Olsen (of Music Machine, later Millennium and Sagittarius with Curt B.). For fans of these latter two groups, this is a must, especially Don't Say No with its sitar, tablas, vocal and wind effects and those unmistakable heavenly Boettcher harmonies. It's a little gem; you'll also find it on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book) and on Fading Yellow Vol. 2 (CD). (MW)

A bright 'n' breezy pop outfit from Los Angeles (although they were from Pennsylvania originally), Slivinski, the organist, also wrote and arranged all 11 songs on the album, which was produced by Norman Ratner, although Larry Younger was the group's leader. The album, which is quite highly orchestrated, is a typically polished L.A. production with pleasing vocal harmonies, but it cannot be described as psychedelic. Their second single and Sweet Potato are not on the album.

Mr. Peacock the band's third single was also featured in the movie, "The Love God", starring Don Knotts.

In addition to the personnel listed above, Walter Slivinski's half-brother Ron Guzak was added at some point as second keyboardist. Ernie Hernandez (gtr) joined in 1970:- "MGM also released Simon Zealots, a cover of an album track from the rock musical "Jesus Christ Superstar". This received some great DJ reviews and airplay in Los Angeles. It also featured backing vocals by The Mike Curb Congregation, although politically, we made the mistake of not wishing to grant them co-credit on the record's label - an oversight that may have cost us substantial chart success, and lack of MGM promotional support".

"Help/Press A Rose was recorded during the same time, as Morning Light, which features myself (guitar), and also Bob Wilson (bassist from Cincinnati, Ohio). Pat Boone was also in the studio, as a guest of producer Don Costa. In those days, young MGM artists, like Marie and Donny Osmond, would also pop by our recording sessions, as they were in recording themselves, next door".

In 1974 Larry Parker (bs, vcls) joined, but Orange Colored Sky (OCS) finally called it quits in the early eighties. They reformed in 1996 with Ernie Hernandez (gtr), Larry Younger (vcls), Larry Parker (bs, vcls), Ron Guzak (kyb'ds, vcls) and Andrea Carol-Libman (drms, vcls). Michael Chanslor replaced Ron Guzak in 1998 and Larry Younger left in December 1999. Michael Chanslor: "In April, 2000, we shot a scene in the movie "Ghost World" in which we performed two songs, Mister Magic and Where Is The Love?. "Ghost World" stars Thora Birch and Steve Buscemi and was released in spring 2001, by... here's some irony...MGM!"

After leaving the band, Jack Skinner pursued a career in acting and commercials, becoming very successful locally, in southern California; Joel Christy went on to play one of the lead roles in the first Hollywood production of "Hair"; and was a member of The Cosmic Travelers. Dave Dickey (bassist from Oklahoma, from 1972-73) went on to be the bassist with America (of A Horse With No Name fame).

Joel Christy had a solo career prior to OCS, releasing at least three singles on Imperial in 1965-6. (VJ/MW/SPr/GM)

Orange Wedge hailed from Baltimore, Maryland where they formed in 1968. Both albums are full of guitar-oriented heavy rock gems and are recommended. The first features songs like Love Me, Death Comes Slowly and Keep On Livin, full of driving guitar and strong vocals. Comfort Of You has some nice jazzy piano playing, but perhaps the finest track is the finale, Revenge, which features some superb Neil Young-influenced guitar playing.

The second album is more of the same but slightly more aggressive vocally, particularly on the title track, and with more guitar exhibitionism on Hungary Man. Dream is a pleasant instrumental and Whisky And Gin pays its dues to the blues. The Gate provides a stunning finale much in the style of John Cipollina's Copperhead, but the first album seems marginally the better of the two. Born in New York in 1945, Colin Walcott was a disciple and sitar student of Ravi Shankar and a tabla student of Ustad Alla Rakha. He worked with the Society of Contemporary Music in New York and, being one of the few American players really able to understand Indian music, began to be used as a session musician on many records from the late sixties, from Bobby Callender to Elyse Weinberg, from the soundtracks of John Simon to the Alan Lorber Orchestra.

In 1969, he started working with Ralph Towner (b.1940 in Chehalis, Washington) and Glen Moore, who both had played with Tim Hardin and were also interested by jazz and oriental music. Towner was originally a trumpet and piano player who discovered the guitar in 1962 and moved to

New York in 1968, where he teamed up with Jeremy Steig (from Jeremy and The Satyrs). In 1970, Walcott, Moore and Towner joined the Winter Consort, one of the first groups combining jazz, rock and classical music and met Paul McCandless, an oboe major from the Manhattan School Of Music, who was already in the group. In 1972, they released their first album as Oregon. They also played Cyrus Faryar's album.

The music of Oregon was largely based on the combination of Indian ragas with jazz, rock and chamber music influences and was comprised of meditative tracks with mystic titles (Baku The Dream Eater, The Silence Of A Candle, Ghost Beads) with an unusual instrumentation: sitar, oboe, bass, guitar, piano and light percussions. Their material was mainly original, one of the very few covers being the classic "Witchi-Tai-To" by Jim Pepper.

This influential group was successful, both artistically and commercially and would later work with Elektra, for whom they recorded two albums in 1978 (Out Of The Woods and Roots In The Sky, which have been reissued on one CD in 2007) and ECM. Walcott died in a car accident in 1984, but the band is still together and releasing new CDs in the noughties.

Their early records should interest people who enjoy Sandy Bull, Peter Walker or Paul Horn. Rejoicing can also be heard on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 7 (CD). (SR/VJ)

The Orfuns from San Diego, California were a British Invasion/surf-hot rod influenced garage band of high school students. Their first recording was made on a wire recorder (!) at a band member's house, where they backed drummer Carl Spiron's sister Pat on a Beatle novelty tune. They also recorded an instrumental and both cuts were transferred to acetate. Fans of Randy Alvey's Green Fuzz will become incontinent upon hearing this! The Orfuns got serious about their music after this initial recording. The second acetate contains two stunning garage-punk numbers, again recorded by the band. A copy of the acetate was sent to Double Shot Records, who immediately invited the band to Los Angeles to record a few tracks. They laid down three McCann originals; the two on the second acetate were updated and In The Back Of My Mind, a brooding Them/Rolling Stones - influenced number. The Orfuns continued to play live locally and recorded a rehearsal, but shortly after their last line-up change, McCann got into trouble with the law in San Diego and the band was forced to pack it in. McCann and Spiron later dominated the two incarnations of Framework (1967-9), and then McCann was with Formerly Anthrax (1970-1). McCann continues to be active in the San Diego music scene. Carl Spiron passed away on 17 December 2009.

45s:	Daylight/Mirror Images	(Smash S-2227) 1969
	Babylon/Precious Time	(Smash S-2242) 1969

A flower-pop quintet from Baltimore, The Organ Grinders' to date unheralded album is a fine example of this genre. There are very few weak cuts on it, but mostly bright and breezy pop with some delightful woodwind, like Shady Tree. Not garage or psychedelic music, but it's typical late sixties melodic flower-pop similar to albums like Orange Colored Sky.

ORGANGRINDERS OUT OF THE EGG

ORGAN GRINDERS - Out Of The Egg LP.

Most of the finer moments come on side one on tracks like Halls Of Hours, New Day Holiday, Reach For The Sky and 8th Day In Heaven, although Smile For The Sun on side two is also a gem. Side two does include one throwaway cut, And I Know What Love Is, and ends with an experimental instrumental Kama Kazie Woman, which doesn't really come off.

Frank Eventoff had earlier been in The Seventh Sons. Nisan Eventoff: - "With my four brothers, Richard, Franklin, Paul, and Maury, and with my parents, Joseph and Ethel Eventoff, we had a music and magic show. We called ourselves The Seven Evens and our theme song was called The Magic Genie. We all studied at the Peabody Conservatory of Music and had scholarships".

"I am the youngest, then Richard (he played stand up bass), Frank (woodwinds), Paul (drums) and Maury (piano). Mom still plays piano at 93 years old. Dad played piano, violin, mandolin and danced. He passed away when I was 14."

On Organ Grinders Nisan tells us: - "Frank played woodwinds, flute, sax, and he also invented several instruments that were used. Frank and I did most of the lead vocals, however the whole band sang. Henry also sings Honey Bee on the album. After the Organ Grinders we formed a "gypsy rock" band called Romany. We sent demos out and Mercury was interested as were a few others including Decca. Maury, my oldest brother called Bob Reno who was head of A & R at Mercury and convinced him we were the next Beatles. They signed us and we ended up as opening act for many name groups. We played at colleges, clubs, arenas, Strawberry Fields Festival and did some T.V. and movie work. We stayed together for 15 years. At my moms 90th birthday, we all played together, it was great!"

Nowadays Nisan is a professional magician, balloon sculptor and musician. (VJ/NE)

45: Makes Me Sad/Tell Me Why (Golden-Records 104) 1968

This single is great garage-punk. Mike Markesich tracked this group down to a "small town South of Detroit, Michigan"; the record label was from a long way further south (Baton Rouge, Louisiana). Makes Me Sad kicks off in the vein of I Who Have Nothing and by the end you're convinced he hasn't even got that. Tell Me Why is a moody mid-tempo fuzz-punker about a guy being stood up. I hope they put out some more singles yet to come to our attention. (MW)

Originally from Europe this band moved to the States. Guy Duris was actually born on the Left Bank and later met Golesorkhi, who had been decorated by the Shah of Iran for his drumming and was interested in applying Eastern rhythms to Western music, in Iran. They met Bruno Giet, a Belgian pilot and guitarist, in Paris while travelling around Europe. Soon the three members headed for America and settled in New York's East Village initially but ended up in California where their album was recorded. It's powerful Eastern-influenced psychedelia similar to Kaleidoscope. Particularly fine examples of their marriage of Eastern and Western music are Train To Bombay and For A Moment. This album is highly recommended. They did not release any singles on Mainstream.

THE ORIENT EXPRESS

THE ORIENT EXPRESS - Self Titled LP.

45: You'll Never Know/I'll Be Home (Discotech 1001/2) 1966

Formed by Yale University students in the fall of 1964, You'll Never Know, is a rip off of Empty Heart, one of the classics of the punk era. The flip is no slouch either.

The group played mostly college parties and private gigs, they didn't play the local club scene. They did however travel up to the Boston area quite a bit, sharing some bills with The Remains, which led to some believing the group to be a Boston-based band.

Their single was recorded at the Music Box Record Shop in Hamden, Connecticut in early 1966, with funds provided by three Yale pals as an "investment" in the group's potential. The four guys recorded the song in the back room of the store. A local harmonica playing whiz kid named Mark McHugh, a 15-year-old, happened to be in the store and saw the guys setting up. He heard them play their originals and suggested adding some 'harp' to fill-out the sound. After running thru the songs a few times, Mark joined in for the session - but he was never a member of the group. He later joined Bone. Likewise, the guys had been trying to convince Steve Stack to join the group as their lead singer. He also was involved at the session, singing the lead vocal on both songs, but similarly was not a member of the group.

The single was issued in March, 1966 and received some local airplay, and notoriety in the Boston area. They were invited to play a high profile gig at the legendary Boston club the Rat, and won the crowd over with their set. They signed a management deal with Music Productions, and moved to Cambridge for the summer of 1966 to gig. They returned to studies in the fall back at Yale, then back to Cambridge in the summer of 1967.

Two further songs exist as an unreleased acetate, although the titles are not yet confirmed. Richard Robinson would graduate from the group, move to New York City, where he became a scenester of importance and started his career in the Music business by founding the underground rock magazine called 'Creem'.

Compilation appearances have included: You'll Never Know on Pebbles, Vol. 13 (LP), The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 2 (2-CD) and Grains of Time (CD); and I'll Be Home on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 6: The Biker (LP & CD). (MW/AH/MM)

ALBUM: 1(A) LIGHT SHOWS FOR THE BLIND

NB: (1) is a limited edition pressing with a booklet.

Formed in 1965, this seminal San Francisco "avant-garde" band never released any records although all its members, went on to play with other groups or found fame for various reasons. When they disbanded in 1967, Terry Wilson joined The Charlatans and David LaFlamme founded It's A Beautiful Day (after a brief stint with the first line-up of Dan Hicks and The Hot Licks). Jaime Leopold too joined Dan Hicks and The Hot Licks in 1968, whilst Jesse Barish, who was friends with Marty Balin became a song writer and went on to form Jesse, Wolff and Whings in 1971. Bobby Beausoleil also joined several local groups (including The Powerhouse Of Oz who performed for film-maker Kenneth Anger) before teaming up with Charles Manson and being associated with his murders.

The leader of the San Francisco 'Diggers', a legendary activist organisation, Emmet Grogan was involved with The Orkustra. Grogan later wrote his semi-romanced memories, "Ringolevio", which is recommended reading about San Francisco life in the mid-sixties. He also worked with Rick Danko of The Band contributing lyrics for his Rick Danko album in 1976. Sadly Grogan died in the late seventies.

Henry Rasof recalls: - "I joined the group in the summer of 1966 after seeing an ad in the Psychedelic Shop on Haight St. There were a lot of people in the band at that time. By Christmas, when we played our first gig at St John's the Evangelist Episcopal Church, there were, as I recall, six people and instruments:- guitar, drums, violin, acoustic bass, flute and oboe. I played the oboe, amplified with a harmonica pickup. I have a tape of that concert, which I got long ago from David LaFlamme. The flute player then dropped out, and there were five of us. The group disbanded the next year. The big gigs, at least for me, were playing at the Avalon on Big Brother and the Sir Douglas Quintet and at the Rock Garden club, near Ocean (on April 11th 1967) with the Buffalo Springfield."

"Emmet Grogan, founder of the Diggers, never played in the group whilst I was in it. Possibly there was a version of the Orkustra later on, or before I joined. I also don't know the Jesse mentioned in your article."

"CBS or NBC taped us for a news program, but I never saw it. Ahmet Ertegun heard us play but never recorded us for Atlantic. There were many fantasies and some possibilities."

Their recordings from this era are captured on a retrospective album, Light Shows For The Blind. Much of the music comprises Middle Eastern-influenced hippie-style jams reminiscent of bands like Beat Of The Earth. The album comes in a glossy cover with an eight-page insert, which contains the story of the band as told by Bobby Beausoleil, alongside photos and an overview of Orkustra live appearances.

Henry Rasof is now a publicity consultant in Louisville. (SR/VJ/MW)

From Lansing, Michigan this outfit's single was picked up by Decca for national release. Despite the catchy hand-clapped chorus on Good Day it still sounds like a 'serious' rock outfit trying to go commercial - definitely not garage. One for Blood, Sweat and Tears fans maybe.

Only Eric Lilljequist would still be around when they evolved into Orphan in the early seventies. This San Jose band formed at Saratoga high school. They played at local dances and won a 'Battle Of The Bands' contest at their school, which led to the above album. Produced by Guy Hemric and Jerry Styner, it is quickly becoming a significant collectors' item. Probably the two most promising tracks on a rather disappointing album are Falling and It's Wrong. Circumstance is also notable for some wild, early Blue Cheer-style guitar pyrotechnics. There are also a number of cover versions, including The Everly Brothers' Bird Dog.

Three tracks from the album also appear on the Original Soundtrack (LP) of Cycle Savages.

Formed in high school in Avon, Massachusetts as The Allurs, this band then relocated to Brockton and changed their name to The Orphans. Both singles were produced by Denny Randell and Sandy Linzer (whose compositions include I'll Be Back Up On My Feet Again, covered by The Monkees and Music Fair). Their material is slick mainly-orchestrated sixties pop. There's No Flowers... is classic 'Summer-of '67' fare with floral tributes to San Francisco.

They eventually settled in Boston and would last into the mid-seventies, releasing several singles and three albums on the London label, as Orphan. They also acted as Tom Rush's backing band in the mid-seventies.

Eric Lilljequist contributed songs to Jonathan Edwards' debut album and apparently played guitar on it. (MW/AH/JNa)

From Worcester, Massachusetts Orpheus was formed by ex-Villagers, Arnold and McKenes, Gulliksen from The Blue Echoes and Harry Sandler from The Mods. McKenes and Gulliksen had earlier worked together in a few folk groups, including The College Boys, who had one single The Man (Swan S-4166) 1963. Gulliksen: "This was a Kennedy tribute record; the group name was selected by Swan to remove commerciality from the record!"

Under the guidance of Alan Lorber, who produced all their albums, Orpheus became part of the "Boss-town Sound" movement but cultivated an almost singer-songwriter styled soft-rock sound with folkie elements, at variance with the overtly psychedelic sounds and image of most of their stable-mates. Check out their contributions to the 2-CD set The Best Of Bosstown Sound: Can't Find The Time To Tell You (1967), Walk Away Renee (1968), Brown Arms In Houston (1969), Tomorrow Man (1971) - and decide for yourself.

They should be given credit for having a wider appeal and more output than most of their regional stable-mates which saw them survive most of the hype and subsequent critical backlash. One of their songs, Can't Find The Time, was also covered by sixties instrumental band Groovin' Strings on their 1969 album Groovin' Strings And Things, and Rose Colored Glass, who had a Top 40 hit with the song. Other covers have included the gorgeous, uplifting Brown Arms In Houston by Mike Melvoin on his album The Plastic Cow Goes Moooog and a very interesting cover of Congress Alley by a New York jazz funk group called "Congress Alley" on their album Congress Alley. They also do their own appealing interpretation of Walk Away Renee on their Orpheus Ascending album.

Fans of the band might be interested to know that legendary studio drummer Bernard "Pretty" Purdie was used on some material on the early albums but as was the industry standard at the time, he did not receive credit for the work.

Orpheus also performed the theme song for the MGM movie "Marlowe", starring James Garner, called Little Sister. Jack McKenes and Bruce Arnold can also be heard on a single by The Alan Lorber Orchestra, Massachusetts/Congress Alley (MGM K-13926SS).

You can do a lot worse than invest in Akarma's excellent 2-CD set, which compiles all four of their albums. Alternatively, for a general introduction to the band The Very Best Of Orpheus draws material from all four of their albums and showcases the talents of Bruce Arnold (their co-writer) and Jack McKenes.

Can't Find The Time was covered more recently by Hootie and The Blowfish and this version was included on the soundtrack for the 2000 Jim Carrey movie "Me, Myself and Irene". Eric G's verdict - "It's not bad at all, certainly better than the one by The Rose Colored Glass back in the seventies". (MW/GDh/EGn/BA/VJ)

I.F.O.C. - It's Four O'Clock - is a swaying hypnotic jangly folk-punker with a bathroom-echo sound. This Stock... is dreamy laid-back folk-punk, with a nod in The Byrds direction and quite compelling after a few plays. The Wayne Pav-led single covers Bo Diddley's Mona via the Stones' Not Fade Away, with raucous upfront vocals and a brief but brilliant guitar solo. The flip looks to the Animals for a rendition of Sam Cooke's Bring It On Home To Me. It's no wonder that both singles are sought-after and amazing that they remain mostly uncompiled.

From Gary, Indiana originally where they were the mainstay act in the locale, this band later operated out of Chicago and played with a strong Anglophile influence. Led by Oscar Hamod, his Gibson Firebird guitar was fitted with a flat piece of sheet metal over the neck of his guitar, so people couldn't see what chords he was playing!

Phil Swan recalls: "Everyone in the Gary area in the mid-sixties knew Oscar as the King of the Marquette Park Pavilion at Miller Beach. Oscar's drummer John Toda was sort of a pioneer in the drumming arena. He was very innovative, as well as talented. On Why-O John played mostly on his tom-toms... it was a haunting song with sort of a slow jungle beat, just right for seductive dancing. All of the "garage bands" in the area began playing it at parties. Then one day - lo and behold - I find the song on Natalie Cole's Take A Look album and the song is titled Calypso Blues. Come On Willie is a take-off of Hang On Sloopy. Top Eliminator was an instrumental that let Oscar show off his ability to double-pick on up-tempo songs. He wrote a song called Jackie Jackie that was a spin-off of Louie Louie."

Drummer Johnny Toda was also the band's comedian and when they would perform Top Eliminator live, he would do the revved-up engine sound by mouth. He also used to sing Ian Whitcomb's You Really Turn Me On, copying the falsetto voice.

Their garage-punk interpretation of I Can't Explain, with chopped rhythm and distorted guitar, can be heard on Mindrocker, Vol. 2 (LP) and Pebbles, Vol. 7: Chicago 2 (CD); No Chance Baby is on Tougher Than Stains (LP), whose secretive compiler reveals only that it was issued on a 'semi-big label' (USA perhaps?); House Of The Rising Sun '69 is on Let's Dig 'Em Up, Vol. 2 (LP) and A Deadly Dose of Wyld Psych (CD); Come On Willie (a Come On Sloopy rip-off) on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 9 (CD); Got To Have Your Lovin' on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 13: (LP & CD); and No Chance Baby, My Girl Is Waiting, I Can't Explain, Got To Have Your Lovin' and Soulfinger have all been compiled on 2131 South Michigan Avenue (2-CD). NB: There's also a rare French EP with picture sleeve: Mr Pharmacist/I've Come So Far/It's Too Hard/I Know (Vogue INT 18112) 1968.

The above album was a competent effort, composed of original numbers aside from an interesting version of Arthur Lee's Feathered Fish. Holden's fine psychedelic guitar work stands out throughout and is at its best on Morning Fire plus the finale What Can I Do For You?. Another number, Oz Lee Eaves Drops had an interesting beat, whilst the band's best known track, the non-album Mr. Pharmacist, is a classic psych-punker and well worth checking out.

This group contained Randy Holden who, on The Other Half's demise, replaced Leigh Stephens in the better known Blue Cheer. Holden was formerly with the garage band Sons Of Adam. Two other former Sons Of Adam members, Craig Tarwater (gtr) and Mike Pon (bs) were also members of The Other Half, but did not feature on the album. The Sons Of Adam also covered Arthur Lee's Feathered Fish.

Carolyn White, who used to live with the band in Mill Valley, California, recalls that they may have recorded a second album entitled The Other Half And How To Get It - Anyone have further info? Carolyn also tells us "Things came to an official end in L.A. when Jeff and Larry and Ron decided to move to northern California, however I think Randy was the first to want to break up. 45:	A Lot To Live For/Aspens Of The Night	(7/2 P-1 1/2) 1966

An obscure garage combo this Other Half formed at The Hill School, a prep school in Pottstown, Pennsylvania with members originating from all over the locale - Long Island, central Jersey, just outside Philly etc. Both Hawkins and Sammis were previously in The Half Tribe (of Mannasseh) whose equally rare private album was also reissued on Resurrection. Covers, including Gloria, Satisfaction and Time Won't Let Me, make up the bulk of the material with the odd 'original' done in a competent frat-cum-garage style. The original is beyond all but the fanatics' pocket so grab the reissue.

The Other Half lasted two years: the academic years of 1965-66 and 1966-7. Their album was made in the spring of 1966, recorded on the top floor of the Oasis Hotel in Camden New Jersey (just across the river from Philadelphia) in a small for-hire recording studio.

Don Karr recalls: - "Two members, the bassist and drummer (Hawkins and Sammis), carried over from The Half Tribe to The Other Half. They both graduated in 1966. For The Other Half Mk. 2, the following academic year, a new drummer was added, Robert Potter. Puccio and I took over the bass (Puccio played Fender Bass; I played either Fender Bass or bass keys on the Farfisa Combo Compact). Inganni, Lamb, Puccio, and Collett all graduated in 1967. Potter, who was class of '68, went on to graduate; I was class of '69 (indeed, a mere freshman when I joined) and left The Hill after the '66-'67 school year (my second year)."

"A second album was planned; to be recorded spring of 1967, but one of the members was expelled from school just days before the recording was to take place."

Don Karr later played in The Trojans and Sleepless Knights. A Lot To Live For has been compiled on Teenage Shutdown 6: I'm Down Today. (MW/DKr)

This Others were from Rhode Island. Their debut single, I Can't Stand This Love Goodbye, couples smooth harmonies with upbeat dance rhythms, and is backed by a harmonious folk-rocker. Their second, The First Time I Saw You is a pleasant pop-rock song, coupled with a chiming pop-ballad. Their final effort, My Friend The Wizard, features a more psychedelic sound and the uncompiled Morning is a dreamy harmony ballad. The consistently high quality of their garage-pop output, blending Beatles and Byrds influences with mellow harmonies, surely indicates there's more to be heard. This band is ripe for a retrospective.

NB: reissued with PS (Sundazed S 137) 1998.

From the Lancaster-Palmdale area of California, they were a surf band until bitten by the Invasion bug and joined by Prue from the folkie Townsmen. Their story is revealed by Jud Cost on the very welcome Sundazed reissue. The 'A' side is pretty good fuzz-punk.

Compilation appearances include: Revenge has got a further airing on Pebbles, Vol. 17 (LP), Garage Beat '66 3 (CD), Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book) and there an alternate previously unreleased version on Nuggets From The Golden State: Good Things Are Happening (CD);

45: Streetcar/Walking Down The Road (Brent 7061) 1966

Skip Spence, later of Jefferson Airplane, was a transitory member of this San Jose outfit, originally a surf act known as The Topsiders, who were close friends of The Chocolate Watch Band. Indeed, in 1965 both bands underwent a change around in personnel with Phay, Torney and Kemling all joining The Other Side from The Chocolate Watch Band and Dave Tolby moving across to join The Chocolate Watch Band. Mark Loomis also had a brief spell with The Other Side after Jim Sawyers had joined The Vejtables, and Chocolate Watch Band bassist Rich Young had been drafted.

Although The Other Side did not record an album, they drew thousands to local dances in the San Jose area... Their single, which was included on the Mainstream A Pot Of Flowers (LP) compilation, is sadly their only vinyl epitaph.

From 1967/8 they were known as Bogus Thunder (line-up 'C') and eventually released a single in May 1969 as Gladstone.

Another cover of Walking Down The Road was done in garagy-folk-rock style on an unknown single by The Night People as well as by The Zipps (from Holland) on their retrospective Be Stoned! Dig Zipps (CD). Credited to G. Kleinsinger and Joe Darion on the A Pot Of Flowers compilation, the song turned up on two singles in 1968 by The Merrie Motor Company with amended title and credits.

Retrospective compilation appearances have included:- Streetcar and Walking Down The Road on Mindrocker, Vol. 10 (2-LP) and Sound Of The Sixties: San Francisco Part 2 (LP); Streetcar on Boulders Vol. 2 (LP), Pebbles Vol. 11: Northern California (CD) and Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD book); and Walking Down The Road on The 60's Choice Vol. 2 (LP). What's On Your Mind? (R.S.D. OST-1) 1967
Ivan's Comic Rock Opera In G# Minor/
This Is The End (Daisy 003/004) 1967

From Denver, Colorado The Other Side Of Time was no garage/psych band. It was a mixed gender folk/pop ensemble, somewhere between Peter, Paul & Mary and We Five. On their first single, both sides are upbeat folk-pop but with a beat-band backing. On the follow-up, This Is The End moved further into folk-rock territory by upping the energy and adding in small doses of fuzz. They found a formula for enduring popularity - it has also appeared on Bad Vibrations 3 (LP), Quagmire Volume 3 (CD), and Trip In Tyme Volume 3 (CD). (MW)

The Other Two (?)

45s: Look Around/Don't Lock Me In (Jerden 777) 1965
Don't Say No/When I Sleep (Panorama 40) 1966

This duo sound like the Pacific Northwest's answer to Peter and Gordon, especially on the mellow folk-rocker Look Around. The flip is solid punchy British invasion - styled beat with ringing guitars - a charming debut. Don't Say No features a catchy Latin shuffle, like a subdued Concrete and Clay, whilst When I Sleep is a soporific beat-ballad. Invasion and beat fans will cherish these. All four tracks were composed by Curt Bartholomew and Nicholas Richardson. (MW)

45: Careless Love/Heartbeat (Warrior 166) 1966

Mike Markesich has traced this outfit to California - Warrior was owned by Tom Sawyer, who also operated the Trident label and was based in North Hollywood. The band was from Buena Park, a suburb of Los Angeles. Careless Love, which has resurfaced on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 18 (LP) and Gravel Volume 5 (CD), is a raving punk effort with lots of mouth organ. 2(A) PRAISE AND PRAYER (Generation OG1072) 197? R4

NB: (2) reissued on vinyl (Nom De Plume Records) 2006 in a limited pressing of 250.

This Jesus Rock band from Nyact, New York has recorded two ultra-rare privately pressed albums that sound influenced by the harmony folk-rock sound of bands like Ill Wind and Yankee Dollar with male/female vocals, fuzz guitar and swirling organ. Some collectors rate these very highly.

Praise And Prayer includes three covers: Presence Of The Lord (Blind Faith), Get Together (The Youngbloods) and Hymn (Paul Stookey from Peter, Paul and Mary). The introduction, Hello Friends features fuzz distortion, electric bass and organ. The cover of Get Together is a vocal driven song with female/male dual vocals and bass accompaniment. I'm Only A Man is a late sixties psych-styled ballad-hymn with a beautiful emotional vocals backed by soft acoustic guitar, loudly recorded electric bass and some background organ. Jesus Said It All has prominent organ with harmony vocals and a splattering of percussion. Side one ends with Praise, with heavy fuzz bass and sixties garage/punk style vocals and it includes a superb electric fuzz guitar solo. Tracks like Sacrifice, Hymn and Have You Tried This One Called Jesus on side two are predominantly folk-psych numbers with more male/female vocals. The latter also features beautiful flute. The cover of In The Presence Of The Lord exudes a more Nashville style with electric guitar. It also has an extended heavier instrumental passage with freaky electric fuzz supported by drums, some organ, and electric bass, making it the most psychedelic track. The finale A Prayer is a delightful acid-folk ballad. (VJ)

I'm In Pittsburgh (And It's Raining)/
Price Of Victory (Askel 102) 1966
I'll Set You Free/Everyday (Askel 104) 1966
Route 66/Everyday (Askel 107) 1966
1523 Blair/Smokestack Lightning (Gallant 101) 1967

Based in San Antonio, this was one of the very best psychedelic/punk bands to come from Texas. Their two best known songs were I'm In Pittsburgh (And Its Raining), a Jim Carsten composition with catchy drumming and some effective mouth organ, and 1523 Blair, the zenith of their career. This has a superb psychedelic beginning which gives way to high speed guitar work culminating in a psychedelic haze.

For you curious completists, their first single comprises a rather lame beat ballad backed by a rockin' instrumental with no real hint as to what was to follow. It is however notable for being written and produced by Mike Post, who was in basic training at Lackland Air Force Base at the time. He went on to write music for many great TV series, including: "The Rockford Files" and "Hill Street Blues" etc. The Outcasts' manager at the time was Maj. John Carson who arranged for Mike and Jimmy Hawkins (Donna Reed Show, Leave It To Beaver, Elvis movies actor also in training) to do a series of shows at local military bases with The Outcasts as a back-up unit. Mike had worked as an arranger/band coach for Gary Lewis and the Playboys before this and put the show together. Exposure to Mike's professional attitude and working with him in the studio was an important factor in tightening the group into a working unit that went on to bigger and better things.

Of their other recordings, the flip to their final single, Smokestack Lightning features a stunning performance and the unreleased What Price Victory, is a protest song about the Vietnam War.

Over 10 years on the band turned up singing I'm In Pittsburgh on the top side to a single I Feel So Bad/Undecided (Grease FUN 2) credited to The Kicks, which was supposed to be released as a new wave record in Europe! A few copies of the record in a picture sleeve did apparently get circulated.

The CD compilation I'm In Pittsburgh And It's Raining contains all of their 1966-67 singles, unreleased material and later recordings when they were in Houston.

Galen Niles, who played guitar on 1523 Blair and was later a founding member of Homer, recalls: - "I also did two recordings with my friend Steve Perron - Still In Love With You Baby (The Argyles) and Help I'm Lost (The Mind's Eye). I was never a member of these groups, as I was involved with other bands at the time. Steve just asked me to play on these tracks, so I did. Both were recorded at Abe Epstein's Studio in San Antonio circa 1967."

1523 Blair turns out to be the address of Jones Sound Recording Studios in Houston, presumably where their classic was recorded. The studio was also used by The Moving Sidewalks.

Compilation appearances have included: 1523 Blair on Acid Dreams, Vol. 1 (LP), Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 2 (LP), Songs We Taught The Fuzztones (2-LP & 2-CD), Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), Acid Dreams Testament (CD) and Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 4: I'm A No-Count (LP & CD); I'm In Pittsburgh (And It's Raining) on Pebbles, Vol. 1 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 1 (CD), Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 2 (LP & CD), Flashback, Vol. 2 (LP), Great Pebbles (CD), Uptight Tonight (CD) and Garage Beat '66 7 (CD); 1523 Blair and Smokestack Lightning on Texas Punk Groups From The Sixties (LP), Sixties Archive, Vol. 2 (CD) and Texas Psychedelic Punk, Vol. II which wasn't released, but for which metal acetates exist; I'm In Pittsburgh (And It's Raining), Smokestack Lightning, Sweet Mary, I'll Set You Free, Route '66 and The Birds on Texas Punk: 1966, Vol. 2 (LP); Smokestack Lightning on Endless Journey - Phase One (LP) and Endless Journey - Phase I & II (2-CD); I'm In Pittsburgh (And It's Raining), Smokestack Lightning, Sweet Mary, I'll Set You Free, The Birds, My Love, Every Day (previously unreleased mix), Route '66 and What Price Victory on Acid Visions - Complete Collection, Vol. 2 (3-CD); I'm In Pittsburgh (And It's Raining) and Route '66 on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 8 (CD); and My Love, Everyday (previously unreleased mix) and What Price Victory on Texas Punk, Vol. 3 (LP). 45s: You'd Be Surprised/Set Me Free (Decca 32036) 1966
Today's The Day/
I Didn't Have To Make Her Anymore (Cameo 477) 1967

An excellent Long Island, New York garage combo, these Outcasts started out as The Radiations in 1965. The same foursome became The Outcasts in 1966 and was expanded to a five-piece with Chuck Thatcher on organ and vocals for their debut single. Whilst You'd Be Surprised is pleasant beat-pop it's the plaintive tones, imaginative drumming and haunting keyboards that make the flip Set Me Free just a bit special.

Chuck Thatcher was replaced by Jimmy Williams and this line-up features on the Standing Room Only collection of live tracks from their '66-67 period and which recorded the second single. I Didn't Have To Love Her Anymore is a catchy and commercial minor-key folk-rock-punker with an irresistible beat.

Paul Brokan was the next keyboardist brought in until the demise of the group in 1968. The Meet The Outcasts! album includes two Radiations tracks, the single tracks, a live Today's The Day and more excellent live material, plus several unreleased tracks. As with many of the bands of the era the live stuff is predominantly fave covers, though they also include rather good versions of Walk On By and the Good Rats' Groovy in their repertoire. Do yourself a favour and pick up the Cicadelic albums if you come across them.

Compilation appearances have included: I Didn't Have To Love Her Anymore on Mindrocker, Vol. 11 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 12 (LP) and A Journey To Tyme, Vol. 2 (LP); Set Me Free on Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), Acid Dreams Testament (CD), Echoes In Time Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Echoes In Time, Vol. 2 (LP); Boom Boom Boom and Gloria on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 7 (CD); Walk On By on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 9 (CD); Nothing But Love and Something About You on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 10 (CD); demo versions of Nothing But Love and Something About You appear on The Cicadelic 60s Vol. 3 (CD); the previously unreleased Don't Press Your Luck on Wyld Sydes Volume 9 (CD); and Little Latin Lupe Lu, You Really Got Me, Ain't Gonna Eat Out My Heart Anymore, Louie Louie, Try Too Hard and Cara-Lin can all be heard on The Battle Of The Bands Live Round 1 (LP). 45s: Run Away/Would You Care (Prince 1265) 1965
I Can't Get Through To You/
I Found Out About You (Karate 531) 1966

Formed in San Diego, California, line-up 'A' was known as The Ravens before changing their names to The Outcasts in early 1965. The band picked up speed when Kendall joined and the two singles this line-up recorded sold well locally and found their way onto San Diego radio. Run Away has a nasty fuzz riff coursing through it and is probably their finest moment. The Karate single is reasonable garage beat with strong vocals, but nothing to write home about.

Line-up 'C' was decidedly less garage and the demo they recorded in 1966 was all the proof Columbia needed to offer the group a contract, but several members of the band would have nothing to do with Puckett's personal manager and wouldn't sign on. A new group was quickly assembled and subsequently recorded for Columbia as The Union Gap (later 'Gary Puckett and The Union Gap'), dressed in Civil War uniforms (no doubt inspired by Paul Revere and The Raiders).

Kellogg went on to The Five # Grin, Pale Fire, The Friendly Grin (see Joel Scott Hill entry), The Survivors, and Moby Grape. Dwight Bement (who went on to The Union Gap) is currently in Colorado with Flash Cadillac.

Compilation appearances include I Can't Get Through To You on Let's Dig 'Em Up, Vol. 1 (CD); and Run Away on Follow That Munster, Vol. 2 (LP) and Teen Blast Volume #2 (CD). (MW/CF)

As their name suggests, this was a blues-rock outfit but they were a pretty good one at that. From California, they were one of the several new acts signed by Bob Thiele, the producer of several interesting jazz artists (Coltrane, Gabor Szabo) and rock groups (Eden's Children, Free Spirits etc).

Their first album features lots of fluid guitar and you should enjoy this if blues-rock is your thing. Even if it isn't you might still like it. Certainly I've Got To Have Peace On My Mind is very imaginative with interesting sound effects and it extends far beyond the usual blues-rock format. The band also has strong jazz influences, particularly in the drumming and the sax (or flute) interludes. Other highlights include an interesting reinterpretation of John D. Loudermilk's Tobacco Road, the instrumental Death Dog Of Doom, Tried To Be A Good Boy (But I'm Worse Than A Nazi), Two 'Tranes Running (not a mispelling but an an homage to Coltrane!) and the catchy Lost In The Blues.

After Gonzales, their bass player, was replaced by Dickens (who would later play with Willie Hutch, a soul/funk singer), they recorded a second album in the same style, still mixing blues covers (Stormy Monday Blues) with original material (Mano Pano Shhhh, Plastic Man, Day Said...).

They can easily be compared to the best moments of the Butterfield Blues Band or The Blues Project, although their albums are only minor collectables at present.

Leon Rubenhold had previously played in Rosie And The Originals, in the early sixties and later did a lot of un-credited session work in the Hollywood studios. Equally at ease with guitar and harmonica, he reappeared in 1980 with Rainbow Red Oxidiser, a short-lived L.A. group formed by Michael Neal (a friend of Sky Saxon) with Mars Bonfire, Ed Cassidy (Spirit) and Gary Marker (Rising Sons, Fusion).

Bass player, Joe Francis Gonzales died recently of liver cancer. (SR/VJ)

From the Toledo, Ohio area, this band's single on Wanted was an early production by Harry Hinde who made his mark many years later after moving to Canada and working with the likes of Shania Twain.

That single is described as "garage" by dealers but these Outlaws were very tame - their lead instrument was a piano, so they sound more like a club/lounge group than a garage outfit. Lost Love is a teener ballad backed by a tight version of the Beatles number. (MW)

45:	You Ain't Gonna Bring Me Down To My Knees/ Sometimes I Don't Like Myself	(Right RRM-6612) 1966

York in Maine was home to this crew. According to the accompanying notes to You Ain't Gonna Bring Me Down To My Knees (CD), Herne was the guitarist on the 90th Congress single. He also crops up on numerous Northeast recordings as producer/arranger (Missing Links, Shaggs, Flat Earth Society, Euclid) and was in numerous bands from the late fifties.

In the sixties Herne's outfits include The Exotics (on Coral), OJ and The Soulbeats and The Cobras. In 1970 he formed Atlantis. He died suddenly in May 1998 and some of his legacy is revealed in Aram Heller's zine 'Banjo Room Revisited #2'.

Bassist Andy Murton went on to be Sunday editor for the Boston Globe.

Compilation appearances have includes: You Ain't Gonna Bring Me Down To My Knees and Sometimes I Don't Like Myself on You Ain't Gonna Bring Me Down To My Knees (CD); You Ain't Gonna Bring Me Down To My Knees on The Cicadelic 60's, Vol. 4 (CD), The Cicadelic 60's, Vol. 2 (LP), Green Crystal Ties Vol. 4 (CD), The Strafford/Right Records Story (CD) and Quagmire Volume 5 (CD); and Sometimes I Don't Like Myself is also on The Strafford/Right Records Story (CD). The Outsiders were a rather ordinary pop outfit from Cleveland, Ohio. They enjoyed short-term success, including a Top 10 hit with Time Won't Let Me. It turned out to be the zenith of their career, which then took a slow downward spiral.

Tom King initially formed the Starfires, a rock'n'roll/soul band, recording numerous records on his uncle's Pama label. Seeking greater success with a major label after acquiring Sonny Geraci as vocalist led to family friction resulting in (and reflected by) the band's new name, The Outsiders. Time Won't Let Me secured a deal with Capitol via Roger Karschner, whose name crops up on many other sixties Cleveland recordings. He became their manager too.

The flip to their cover of The Isley Brothers' Respectable, Lost In My World, was re-recorded in 1970 by singer Sonny Geraci's new band Climax. Based in Los Angeles, they enjoyed a Top 10 hit with Precious and Few. Geraci went on to become a pretty atrocious ballad singer.

The Outsiders CD retrospective on Collectables is a 25-track odyssey of recordings spanning 1965 through 1968 and is accompanied by a well-researched and detailed booklet.

Compilation appearances have included: Time Won't Let Me on Nuggets, Vol. 3: Pop (LP), Nuggets Box (CD), Nuggets From Nuggets (CD), Psychotic Reactions (Topline) (LP) and Pride Of Cleveland Past (LP); Lost In My World on Nuggets Vol. 4: Pop Part Two (LP); I'm Not Trying To Hurt You on Pebbles, Vol. 9 (LP); And Now You Want My Sympathy on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box); and Haunted By Your Love on Who Needs Tomorrow Vol. 2 (CD). 	Summertime Blues/Set You Free This Time	(Knight 104)	1966

This different five-piece came from Tampa, Florida and formed in 1964. Bassist Ronny Elliot joined in 1965 from another Tampa band The Raveons and Hinkle had played in early line-ups of Tampa's Tropics. They developed a lot of local support and cut their first single at Tampa's H & H Avenue. She's Coming On Stronger is a pretty good pop/punk piece with some upfront drumming and they followed it with a ripping cover of Eddie Cochran's Summertime Blues. By now John Delise had replaced Hardy Dial on vocals. In 1966, they were signed to the Laurie Records subsidiary label Providence who changed their name to The Soul Trippers because of the better-known Ohio Outsiders. Then, in 1967, they changed name again to Noah's Ark releasing two singles for New York's Decca label.

Buddy Richardson went on to form White Witch who released two albums on Capricorn 1973-4. John DeLise also had spells in The Rovin' Flames and Those Five.

She's Comin' On Stronger can also be found on Back From The Grave Vol. 2 (LP) (along with their cover of Summertime Blues) and on Psychedelic States - Florida Vol. 1 (CD). (VJ/MW/JLh)

45:		Mister, You're A Better Man Than I/ Not Right Now	(Orlyn) 1966.

From Chicago, Not Right Now was recorded in June 1966 and is a moody rocker, with fiery lead guitar, a relentless throbbing beat and spine-chilling organ.

The band's roots lay in frat-rock combo The Empires (Bill Levak - drms; Tom Nelson - gtr; 14-year old Bob Stanley - vcls, ld gtr; Jim Stanley - gtr, vcls; and Tim Wagner - bs). When Jim left the band for college, they continued for a while as a four-piece, but he soon returned after injuring his knee and then Tim Wagner was drafted. The Empires subsequently split in 1965, with Bob Stanley joining The Bryds and the remaining members joining forces with Jim Korn and Bill Kirchmeyer from Beat Incorporated.

The group grew to a six-piece in 1967 when The Bryd(e)s split up and Jim Stanley's brother Bob joined. Jim Korn however was drafted into the army and then James took over full bass/vocal duties. In their later years they adopted a more white-soul sound and recorded an unissued album for Mercury.

Bill Kirchmeyer and Jim Stanley later formed a group called The Prod with bassist Herb Eimerman. Bob Stanley also later formed Hot Mama Silver with Herb Eimerman.

The Outspoken Blues compilation features both sides of their ultra-rare single and 11 previously unreleased garage/R&B tracks from the unreleased Mercury album, including seven originals (A Wonderful Summer, I Can't Make You Love Me, I'll Stay, Not Right Now, Sitting On A Sunday, All Your Love and N.Y.P.D) and five covers (Mister You're A Better Man Than I, I Know, Hold On I'm Comin', Turn On Your Lovelight and Since I Don't Have You). Also featured are two previously unreleased 1968 garage tracks (Poor Rich Man and Jr. Saw It Happen) that were recorded under the moniker of The Prod. As a final bonus, the CD includes both tracks from The Bryds' super rare 1965 teen garage single, Your Lies and Why Did You Have To Break My Heart, that was penned by The Outspoken Blues' main songwriter and part lead-vocalist Robert Stanley.

Not Right Now has been compiled on Back From The Grave, Vol. 8 (CD) and Back From The Grave, Vol. 8 (2-LP). (VJ/JSa)

45s:	Mississippi Mama/Nowhere To Run	(Janus 107) 1970	97
	Never Goin' Home/Zig Zag Man	(Janus 123) 1970	-

Their album is an early seventies privately-pressed bluesy rock offering with some good guitar moments. It has become a significant collectors' item and was repressed in the late eighties. Recorded in Columbus, Ohio it achieves a good standard throughout. The material was written, arranged and produced by the band themselves. There are some good rock numbers like Daily News, Mellow Meadow, My Friends and Out On Our Own, some nice vocal harmonies on Share and All We Are Asking is a more sensitive psychedelic folk number. Well worth a listen. Both singles feature non-album tracks and they rock. Tom Zinser had previously been in The Sleepers and Wildlife.

They also recorded a second album, Old Happy Places in the later seventies.

You can also find Zig Zag Man on Marijuana Unknowns (LP & CD) and Mississippi Mama on Acid Dreams, Vol. 2 (LP). (VJ/MW/CW)

This garagy-pop band from Brookyn, New York was originally known as The Creations. They do a decent 'heavy', rock version of the Four Tops' Reach Out, with treated vocals. The flip is a claps-and-whistles frat-party sing-along and You Can't Make Love By Yourself is in a similar vein. (MW)

CD: 1 LIVE AT THE AVALON 1966 (Big Beat CDWIKD 178) 1998

45:	Foolish Woman/Mind Destruction	(World United 1002) 1966

An historically significant outfit from Sacramento, California. They included Gary Yoder (later of Kak and Blue Cheer) and gigged regularly as support to bands like The Grateful Dead. Jim Keylor was in some groups with Bob Segarini after Family Tree and in the embryonic Roxy. He was also involved in assembling Blue Cheer for their Oh! Pleasant Hope album and in 1978 started BSU studios whose products included Dead Kennedys, Suspects and True West. Patten also went on to play for Kak, and of course Whaley played drums with Blue Cheer.

What of their music? The recent Big Beat retrospective shows a band that was pushing back the barriers of psychedelia in much the same way as The Yardbirds were. They should have gone on to better and bigger things in their own right. It includes 14 live tracks, plus four studio cuts, including both sides of their exceptional single. Also included is a detailed history of the band. Donnie Jupiter of the cult seventies psych/punk band The Twinkeyz recalls: "The first time I saw them I was blown away - they looked cooler than hell with their long hair, hippie beads and somewhat surly attitude. Their drummer, Paul Whaley, nailed his kit to the floor and flailed away like a madman through the whole set. When they were finished playing his hands were bleeding." The Big Beat CD is probably the next best thing to having been there and comes highly recommended.

World United Records was owned by fellow Sacramento-based band The New Breed who had set up the label when they were dropped by Mercury.

Compilation appearances have included: Foolish Woman on Pebbles Box (5-LP), Trash Box (5-CD), Uptight Tonight (CD) and Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD box); Mind Destruction on Everything You Always Wanted To Know (CD); and Foolish Woman and Mind Destruction on Endless Journey - Phase One (LP) and Endless Journey - Phase I & II (2-CD). Another, apparently different, Texas outfit from McAllen, this Oxford Circus has six live tracks from 1968 featured on The Headstones 24 Hours (Everyday) CD. Heavy acid-psych covers of Splash 1 (13th Floor Elevators), 99th Floor (Moving Sidewalks), Time Has Come Today (Chambers Bros), 59th Street Bridge Song and You Keep Me Hanging On. According to the CD liners, they'd formed in 1966 after Logan had left McAllen's Headstones (hence their inclusion on the CD). In 1969, line-up 'B' decided to concentrate on original compositions only, acquired a young guitarist called Rene Best and changed their name to Watermusic, who also feature on the CD. (MW)

	My World/Sung At Harvest Time	(Union Jac 5632/3) 1969
	Come On Back To Beer/Your Own Way	(Paula 331) 1970

This Louisville, Kentucky band's album is now beginning to interest some collectors. Bright 'n' breezy pop very much in the same mould as Orange Coloured Sky is on the side one menu. Side two isn't quite as good, but is more experimental. Young Girl's Lament is the stand-out cut on this side with powerful female vocals and fuzz guitar; Come On 'Round is marred by a tedious drum solo and Good Night sounds gospel-influenced. Worth a spin if you come across a copy.

Originally formed in 1964 by Jim Guest, the band became very popular and influential on the Louisville scene, where they were the first group to adopt the British sound and look. In 1965, a rift developed between Guest and the rest of the band. Being friends with another local band The Spectres (Jay Petach, Bill Tullis, Bill Turner, Danny Marshall and drummer Glenn Howerton) the problem was resolved by trading drummers. The Spectres joined Guest in the Oxfords whilst Howerton teamed up the ex-Oxfords to form The Rugbys (their preferred stage attire being rugby shirts). Over the next couple of years the Oxfords released a couple of singles including the superb fuzz-punker Time And Place. In 1968, Guest left; Jay Petach took the reins and built a new group which included Jill DeMarco, lead singer from girl group The Hearby. This line-up set about recording an album though it wasn't released until 1970 when, despite label offers, the band chose to put it out with a showcase single on their own label. They also released a single on Paula which featured the Zappa-inspired Come On Back To Beer, which hit the No. 1 spot in Louisville. In 1971, Petach composed a musical called 'Grease', which was performed by the Oxfords in Louisville, Atlanta and Kansas. The following year he got involved in studio engineering. The Oxfords finally called it a day in the summer of 1972.

In 1997, the Oxfords had a "reunion" gig in Louisville for a charity function. Jill DeMarco: - "After 25 years of not playing together, we actually did pretty well! Everyone looked much the same as they did way back when, believe it or not - full sets of hair and no potbellies. Only the acne was gone!"

"Today, Jay Petach is still in the music business as a producer in a studio in Cincinnatti, Ohio. He has made numerous commercials over the years and has even released an all-instrumental CD of songs played on the ocarina! (He was the multi-talented member of the group). Larry Holt sadly suffered a severe back injury and was out of commission for a while, but he is back to playing bass around Louisville, Paul Hoerni continues to play drums around Louisville and works for UPS, whilst I'm the only one who hasn't stayed in music to any great degree. I moved to Chicago in 1973 and did some recording, music copyrighting, and jazz studies for six years. Then I moved to Seattle in 1979 and played solo gigs up through the mid-eighties, but it was not lucrative enough to survive. So, I found full-time work as a Technical Writer for the U.S. government (Federal Aviation Administration), and have been working at it ever since. I'm still in Seattle and do sing in the shower!"

The Gear Fab retrospective CD gathers together the complete album and all their singles as well as several unreleased cuts from 1969 to 1972.

The second CD comprises unreleased material that had never seen the light of day. In 2006 the Allen-Martin Recording (formerly Sambo) Studios were demolished; Soul Inc's Marvin Maxwell and Walter Ed Amick had managed to rescue thousands of master tapes beforehand and it was amongst this hoard that the Oxfords' material came to light. They were duly presented to bandleader Jay Petach, who put together this second retrospective CD.

It should be noted that the first CD had to be put together from the original vinyl album and singles, because the aforementioned studios had refused to make the original master tapes available back in 2001. Now it is hoped to re-issue that first retrospective CD using recordings from the original master tapes that have now been recovered.

Compilation appearances have included:- Time And Place on Sixties Rebellion Vol. 16 (LP & CD), Victims Of Circumstance, Vol. 2 (LP) and Victims Of Circumstance, Vol. 2 (CD). (MW/LDwiththankstoJDo)

45: Diagnosis (One Way Empty And Down)/
Welcome To The World (Hand 496) 1969

Rochester, New York's Oxford Watchband was around for a few years yet only released one single. Diagnosis kicks off in Vanilla Fudge vein before a heavy blast of fuzz and bombast. Midway a peal of thunder fades to return as a barrage of gun and fighting effects. It's a late sixites psych/prog trip, with wicked guitar on the outro and wailing vocals reminiscent of (Don Gallucci's) Touch. The Fudge influence is more to the fore on the pedestrian flip, although it does feature some quiet flute passages between ponderous keyboard vibes, soulful vocals and brassy outbursts.

Jim Gilbert got in touch with details of the band and info about an unreleased album, Schitzophrenia. "The Oxford Watchband was in existence from October of 1967 through January of 1971. Geno Charles, Brad Wheat and myself (Jim Gilbert) were the only members to go the three-year distance. We were a six-piece group with much versatility. All members were from Rochester except Dale Rider (Utica) and Frankie Previte (New Brunswick, New Jersey). The album was recorded between February and October of 1969 at Ultrasonic Sound in Hempstead, Long Island, New York with engineer Bill Stahl. It was produced by John Linde, who had co-produced a Vanilla Fudge album with Shadow Morton. The concept was to highlight the split personality of the group: the show band personality performing production tunes on side one and the acid-rock personality performing original tunes on side two. All cuts were written and arranged by the band except The West Side Story Medley by Leonard Bernstein, Carmen written by Bizet, and Keep On Runnin' written by Stevie Winwood.

Geno Charles and Frank Previte went on to form hard-rock outfit BullAngus. Previte would write (I've Had) The Time Of My Life which hit the big-time via the film Dirty Dancing; he had other hit singles Sweetheart and Shakedown as Franke and the Knockouts. Benny Grammatico is the older brother of Lou Gramm from Foreigner. (MW)

Down From The Mountains/
What Can You Say (Mercury 73143) 1970

The Oxpetals were from upstate New York. Prune... is psychedelic pop with a twist. Ignoring the awful square sounding male-female vocals and stupidly hip lyrics, there's some strangely warped pop with phasing, acidic guitar and chiming keyboards that'll please Rubble-ites, but not garage-psych fans. The flip is harmony-folk-pop.

By 1970 they had evolved into a five-piece, commune-based band. The album comes in a gatefold of pastoral serenity. Pasted-in leaves of photos and lyrics fail to give details of the band personnel and instrumentation, other than writer credits. Very laid-back and with pleasing harmonies, this is uplifting soft-rock that incorporates boogie, folk and country influences. Likely to be labelled "hippie-rock" but that's not to denigrate it - it doesn't ramble and the varied selection shows that they can rock.

OZ KNOZZ - Ruff Mix LP.

The Oz Band (?)

45: I Am Not The Same/Winter Rain (Cub 9158 SS) 1968

An obscure outfit with a meritorious single in a restrained but haunting folk-psych style, like a softer Jefferson Airplane with cool male-female vocals that intertwine well. Winter Rain in particular has a persistent and hypnotic quality that demands repeated playing. Both sides are credited to Morris-Freeman and produced by Lamont Johnson for Downeast Productions. (MW)

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Ozone OZ-1000) 1985. (1) reissued on CD (Black Rose BR 146) 2001.

This much-vaunted album has become a minor collectors' item. A private-press by a Bellaire, Texas band and recorded in Houston, this commands a high price tag (in Europe anyway). It's actually quite good, but not really psychedelic in the sixties sense. It certainly varies in style from heavy to soft, jazzy to funky and is of a high standard of musicianship but it has more in common with, say, Led Zeppelin (especially Led Zepp III). The stand-out track is the superb Second Time Blues - an anguished bluesy-rock ballad whose comparison to Led Zepp tour-de-force Since I've Been Loving You is, I'm afraid, unavoidable. The main problem with the album, though, is that the songwriting lacks any real flair.

Incredibly, the band is still active, and Duane Massey recalls: "Richard Heath left the band shortly after Ruff Mix was released, and was tragically killed in an auto accident several years later while playing with Vince Vance and The Valients. Although there have been several personnel changes and two "dormant" periods, we are back performing on a limited basis in regional halls. Marty, Bill and I still make up the nucleus of the band, with a guitarist, Bill Mojelsky, and a singer, Milton Coronado."

"I agree with your observation on the songwriting on Ruff Mix, as the material in that period of the band was restricted by my own vocal limitations. We added a vocalist in 1979 (the first of several) and my composing boundaries were greatly increased."

"The band also released a two-song EP with this line-up but never really marketed it and only pressed 500 copies. Incidentally, Ruff Mix was limited to two pressings of 1,000 copies each, but was bootlegged in Italy at some time in the eighties, I believe. The cover has "Made in Italy" printed on it". This blues-rock band formed in Los Angeles in 1967 and was primarily fronted by Charlie Allen, a passable black singer and the fleet fingered blues guitar work of Glenn Schwartz, who had been the original guitarist in The James Gang. With Frank Cook from Canned Heat the band rapidly built up a hot reputation as a popular blues band and recorded a single for their own Power label. The single attracted the attention of Chess Records who signed the band to their Bright Orange subsidiary and issued Get It On. This was a strong album with superb blues and rock guitar work from Schwartz on Motor City Burning and Live Love respectively. That album sold well locally and led to a contract with Columbia. Are You Ready? featured the backing vocals of The Blackberries and gave them a Top 20 hit. None of the Columbia albums met the promise of the first as Allen took the band further and further down the soul trail. They shortened their name to PG & E in 1970. The band did countless concerts, often appearing with other big musical acts of the era. On April 25, 1970, racists in Raleigh, North Carolina heckled the band off the stage. When the members were driving away, they came under gunfire. Despite four shots hitting their van, no one was hurt. After two albums the rest of the band departed and it became more a case of the Charlie Allen Show and the band was billed as PG+E on all credits. The end came in March 1973 when they fell apart. Never as pure in purpose as Canned Heat the band nevertheless played an important part in the Los Angeles blues scene but never attained a wider significance.

Live N Kicking At Lexington in 2007 compiles two shows they did on 8 & 9 August 1970 at the federal drug rehabilitation centre in Lexington, Kentucky. The filmmaker Lawrence Schiller was there to make a documentary of the band, the facility and its inmates. Columbia (now owned by Sony) was also there, recording the shows for a planned live album. When Schiller's film didn't make it to a national release (it was only shown twice in California before being shelved by a judge) Columbia chose to stop work on the record. Thanks to Wounded Bird you can hear it now. The featured tracks were Old Slop in "A", Are You Ready?, Next Time You See Me, Elvira, 32 - 20 Blues, One More River To Cross, Motor City Is Burning and Jelly Jelly. (VJ/HMc)

45:	Ba Ba Yaga/Stop Shakin' Your Head	(Studio City 1034) 1965

Rochester in southeast Minnesota was home turf to this outfit, which gradually came together during 1963-64. Steve Rossi took over on drums in August 1964 after Jay Thompson (who had once filled in for Gordy Scudamore on drums in The Mustangs) committed suicide. They travelled to Minneapolis during Easter 1965 to record the two original compositions which comprised their single. Ba Ba Yaga veers towards folk-rock and 500 copies of the single were pressed.

Chris Hollenbeck was a member of the band only briefly - he was killed in a car crash sometime after leaving the band. His main claim to fame was that his father was a distinguished surgeon who had removed LBJ's gall bladder. The band disintegrated after Kip Sullivan left to go to Pomona College in California in the fall of 1965. They later reformed into The Downchilds and then The Downchild's Blues Band but these later incarnations produced no vinyl. The Sullivan brothers and Steve Rossi were later involved in a late eighties reformation of the band.

You can also check out Ba Ba Yaga on The Midwest Vs. Canada (LP) and Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 3: Things Been Bad (LP & CD); and Stop Shakin' Your Head has re-emerged on Destination Frantic Volume 3 (CD). (VJ/MW)

This band came from Fort Myers in Florida and not Los Angeles as had previously been suggested. Turano and McKinney were eventually forced to quit the band as they travelled increasingly to play in New York City and they were replaced by various musicians, but the heart of the band remained Jack O'Neill, George Schule and Harry Bragg. It was during a spell at a bar called 'A Place In The Sun' on the Virgin Islands that they began painting their faces. In the same era they recorded an entire album of Today's Hits, featuring covers of songs like The Letter, Brown Eyed Girl and Incense And Peppermints, which was supposed to come out on Sidewalk or Tower as a budget album, but which never got past the acetate stage.

Thanks to Distortions all their single cuts and several previously unreleased cuts are now compiled on Anxious Color. The 28-track CD reissue includes great covers of Strawberry Alarm Clock's Incense and Peppermints and Rolling Stones' Play With Fire and culminates with six live songs. In Anxious Color and I Lost You In My Mind, in particular, they recorded some stunning slices of sixties garage-psych, making this collection a 'must have' for all fans of the genre.

Behind The Public Mind (CD) (Cosmic Mind PR001CD) 2007 is a very limited collection of outtakes and alternate versions. It includes a very different version of one of their final moments, Now.

From Minneapolis in Minnesota came The Paisleys. The most interesting tracks on their significant album are Rockin, notable for its use of echoes and sound effects, the haunting Wind and Now, which utilises sound effects and an unusual melody to good effect. Side two of the album consists entirely of the ambitious, though not entirely convincing Musical Journey.

There's also an Italian CD entitled Beyond The Cosmic Mind (Cosmic Mind Records 001) that is said to contain outtakes from the original album. However, the material is recorded some 10-12 years later as is easily discovered when listening to the drumbeats (by a machine) and the track Dear John, about the murder of John Lennon.

Compilation appearances have included: Now! on Acid Trip From The Psychedelic Sixties (LP) and Sixties Archive, Vol. 8 (CD); the previously unreleased Something's Missing on The Scotty Story (CD); and Wind on Endless Journey - Phase Two (LP) and Endless Journey - Phase I & II (2-CD). THE PAISLEYS - Cosmic Mind At Play LP.

Originally known as The Emerals, this youthful Los Angeles pop band became Palace Guard and was initially employed as backing band for TV actor-turned-musician Don Grady. They are best remembered as the launching pad for Emitt Rhodes who left in 1966 to form the Merry-Go-Round. Musically they served up an amalgam of the British invasion sound and the burgeoning L.A. folk-rock style. After Emitt left the group they acquired considerable popularity as the houseband at Dave Hull's 'Hullaballoo Club', where they opened for touring bands who visited L.A. from The Yardbirds to Sonny and Cher. Their finest moments, Falling Sugar and All Night Long are both pleasant folk-pop renditions and it's surprising that they achieved no chart success and attracted little attention outside of southern California. They certainly paid homage to the British invasion, often wearing uniforms and tall fur hats in an attempt to emulate the guards outside Buckingham Palace. Although their later material consisted of originals they also played some Beatles' covers, like Norwegian Wood and Its Only Love in their live act.

The Palace Guard also backed Don Grady (Agrati) before he joined The Yellow Balloon, recording a single for Orange Empire under this name. After leaving the band Emitt Rhodes went on to form Merry-Go-Round, whose sound was defined by the harmonious beat ballad A Girl You Can Depend On... Terry Rae also played in Jamme.

Party Lights was an excellent cover of the Claudine Clark hit with quite a novel arrangement.

The CD gathers all their singles. Gear Fab's Roger Maglio pieced together their history from interviews with drummer Terry Rae (who'd replaced Rhodes in 1966), bassist Rick Moser, and Emitt Rhodes (whose reported death shortly after the CD appeared turned out to be a stupid hoax). One revelation was that the Emerals had recorded a demo single, The Beat/It's You; sadly no copy could be located for inclusion in the project.

Compilation appearances have included: Falling Sugar on Nuggets Box (4-CD) and Excerpts From Nuggets (CD); Falling Sugar and All Night Long on Nuggets, Vol. 4; Pop Part 2 (LP); All Night Long and A Girl You Can Depend On on From The New World (LP); A Girl You Can Depend On on Today Is Just Tomorrow's Yesterday 1 (CD); All Night Long on *Where The Action Is! This Metarie, Louisiana platoon was active on the New Orleans scene between 1965 and 1969. According to the Fuzz Flaykes & Shakes liners, singer Kenny Lyles from local rivals The Glory Rhodes also sang with them and Frank Bua occasionally sat in with another local bunch, the Better Half Dozen. Oddly, neither of these get a mention in the liners on Gear Fab's retrospective CD, where Richie Faber and Jeff Miller recount the history of the band. The CD gathers together all their recordings between 1966 to 1969; all the singles above plus 13 previously unreleased tracks.

Stand-out single cuts include: No Comin' Back, a great punker with screeching guitar; Gas Station Boogaloo Downtown, a cool bluesy punker; Sideshow ventures into upbeat acid-pop territory; and Jeff Miller's Mr. Greene is lyte-pop-psych. The latter pair have an overtly Anglophile style and would not be out of place on a Rubble volume. Of the unreleased cuts, the frantic fuzz-punker I'm Gonna Meet Her justifies picking up the CD.

LUCIA PAMELA - Into Space With... CD.

Late sixties orchestrated 'psych' obscurities, so dubbed mainly due to some outbursts of heavy searing guitar on the first single. Unfortunately brassy sounds are in evidence along with soulful vocals especially on Never Hurt Again. Eye Girl has a dreamy vibe with baroque flashes until an explosive acid-drenched finale. Unlikely to appeal to either garage or psych purists initially, but after a few plays they do grow on you.

This San Diego, California bunch were also known as The Five # Grin and had a rawer version of Never Hurt Again which made it onto acetate - this can be heard on Brain Shadows, Vol. 2 (LP & CD). (MW/CF)

Bruce Palmer was the bassist for Buffalo Springfield. He recorded the album in 1970, with a range of genres - folk, jazz, rock psych, and trance - creating a fascinating and unique sound that was ahead of its time. Alpha-Omega-Apocalypse explores jazz and is enhanced by the blues vocals of Rick Matthews (aka Rick James, future psychedelic soul star). Eastern influences predominate in Oxo, and Calm Before The Storm is another interesting track. (VJ)

ALBUM:	1	INTO OUTER SPACE WITH LUCIA PAMELA	(Gulfstream no #) 1969 R3

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (L'Peg) 198?. (1) reissued on CD (Arf! Arf! AA 037) 1992 and again in 2005.

Her truly eccentric album originally on a Florida label can be described as free-spirited bebop stuck in interstellar overdrive. She came from Florida and sings about 'moon people' who abducted her Cadillac! The second pressing was on a different label and is the version the reissue was taken from.

Curiously, it turns out Lucia Pamela may also have been psychic! In the closing song on her album, the eccentric In The Year 2000, she proclaims "they will still be playing football in the year 2000". Not only are they still playing football, but Pamela's daughter, Georgia Frontiere, is at the top of the (U.S.) football world; the team she owns, the St. Louis Rams, won the Super Bowl in 2000!

Frontiere, also a show girl and psychic, apparently takes after her mother! It turns out Lucia Pamela was voted Miss St. Louis way back in 1926. She may have also recorded under the name Kathy Kent on both the Gulfstream and YG labels and there is a rumoured duet between Pamela and Walter Scott (ex-Bob Kuban and The In-Men).

45: Walk/Girl From New York City (Swingtime 1001) 1966

Early copies of this single were released on red vinyl. Walk, was a great dance number released in May 1966 with fine fuzztone guitar and a great pulsating beat.

From Alamo City, Texas they were originally known as The Centurys and later became Giant Smiling Dog, but did not record under that name.

Compilation appearances have included: Walk on Mindrocker, Vol. 4 (LP) and Acid Visions (LP); and Walk and Girl From New York City on Acid Visions - The Complete Collection Vol. 1 (3-CD). (VJ)

Tender Is The Girl (Teen Town 177) 1970

From Milwaukee, Wisconsin this late sixties/early seventies band issued at least one single and opened for a bunch of big acts who played the Milwaukee Arena at that time including The Association. They had a very First Edition/Association /Left Banke sound. Fantastic breezy paisley pop band full of harmonies!

Kerry Narf recalls that he sang on some sessions with Tony's Tygers. (JKn/MW/GM)

NB: (1) two-sided 9" flexi-disc, running time about 25 mins. Also available is a full-length CD Space Amazon (Arf! Arf! AA-064) 1997.

This rare demo disc was produced by Granicus drummer Joe Battaglia to introduce Pandora to major record labels. The hard-rock band is thought to have been from New York, but made this recording in Cleveland, Ohio. Their sound could be compared favourably with contemporaries The New York Dolls or the Raw Power-era Stooges. The Arf! Arf! CD features all seven tracks on the flexi-disc at their original length (much of the music was edited for the flexi) plus several other songs recorded at the same session. (VJ)

CD: 1(A/B) THE COMPLETE RECORDINGS (Gear Fab GF-236) 2009

You're My Baby/Lots Of Pretty Girls (Dupree 200) 1967

Obscure Stones-inspired teen-punk from Brecksville and Boston Heights, Ohio two communities between Cleveland and Akron. Originally known as Panics, they had to change their name to The Panicks to avoid confusion with another act. Consequently their first single has a pasted on "Panicks" tag over their original moniker. Both sides of the first single were penned by Bill Sobecki. Work is a R&B/soul amalgam that had some commercial appeal. The flip Treat Me Right featured some good guitar. They acquired a short-lived keyboardist Katie Hendricks who assisted in the recording of their second single. This time both sides were covers. You're My Baby is a great garage-punker and a big improvement on their first effort.

They played lost of live gigs and wore matching costumes; sometimes tailored suits and others times Mod-styled shirts. When they were at their most popular Bob Dent was drafted. They tried a couple of other guitarists (initially Joe Walsh is rumoured to have filled in and played an overdubbed lead on their second single, but this is unconfirmed) and a new drummer, but didn't gell and disbanded in early 1968.

They recorded lots of unreleased material that is compiled along with their two singles on the 19-track Gear Fab compilation. Of the previously unreleased cuts it's I'm Gonna Leave, a superb band-penned garage-punker that catches the ear. The CD includes studio, live and instrumental versions of You're My Baby. Indeed it features alternative instrumental versions of five of the other songs on the CD.

There was another Panicks (from Pittsburgh) who put out a single in 1964 - Doreen/Doreen (instr) (Kyra HA-1001/2).

Compilation appearances include: You're My Baby on Vile Vinyl, Vol. 1 (LP), Vile Vinyl (CD), It's A Hard Life (LP) and Psychedelic States: Ohio Vol. 1 (CD); and Treat Me Right on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 21 (LP) and Psychedelic States: Ohio Vol. 2 (CD). (VJ/GGI/MMy/MW)

45: I Pretend/No More (Shoestring SHO 107) 1965

Their only album went totally unnoticed but the musicians kept working together and, in 1975, Packer, Allen, Harkin and Mintzer formed Free Beer for three albums of mainstream rock on Southwind and RCA. In 1976, Harkin left them to front Starz, an awful hard-rock group a la Kiss (1976/79) and Mintzer became a session man. (SR)

45:	Butterfly High/Sleepy Hollow People	(VMC V 719) 1968

L.A. area harmony-pop with flower-power lyrics about caterpillars and butterflies, produced and arranged by Tandyn Almer and Eddie Hodges. Ultimately rather messy with constant interjections of various different instruments and the odd effect in an attempt to turn it into 'psych' - it doesn't really work. The flip, too, is more harmony-pop.

Sleepy Hollow People has resurfaced on Soft Sounds For Gentle People (CD). (MW/SR)

ALBUM: 1(A) PAPER GARDEN PRESENTS... (Musicor MS 3175) 1969 R2

NB: (1) released in Canada (Columbia) 1969. (1) reissued on vinyl (Antar 3) 1986 in new sleeve. (1) later reissued on vinyl in original sleeve 2002. (1) reissued on 2-CD (Gear Fab GF-194) 2004.

When Paper Garden formed in New York in 1967 they were clearly inspired by Anglophile prog-pop bands like The Beatles and The Moody Blues. They linked up with British producer Geoff Turner who had emigrated to the States and was the staff producer at Musicor. He allowed them to experiment in the studio and the resulting album is both varied and variable. Their 10-track album (all penned by the band) embraces Eastern-style psychedelia (especially on Man Do You and Raining); Beatles' inspired pop-psych (this is evident to great success on Way Up High, OK on Raven, interesting on A Day, but irritating on Mr. Mortimer) and there's some jazz influence in places too. The album was better received in the UK than the US at the time, but was poorly promoted and stiffed. The group disbanded in 1970. Over the years it's become a minor collectors' item and the various reissues have introduced this interesting effort to a wider audience.

Compilation appearances include: I Hide on Pepperisms Around The Globe (LP & CD); A Day on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box); and Man Do You on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers Vol. 2 (CD). (VJ/MW)

This Los Angeles-based pop trio made the Top 20 with their debut recording Sunshine Girl that had a light, summery feel which epitomised the summer of peace and love. Comprised of aspiring actors for the most part rather than serious musicians, they never got beyond the studio and this meant they never built up much of a following. The band was master-minded by Jerry Riopelle, who wrote, arranged and produced their music. The group recorded an album that was never released.

Sunshine Girl: The Complete Recordings features their singles (of which I Can See Love, The Radio Song and She Sleeps Alone catch the ear, along with the sunshine pop classic Sunshine Girl) and nine bonus tracks of demos and alternate takes.

Jerry Riopelle also worked with The Black Sheep. He went on to record solo albums in the seventies.

45:	Abba/
You're A Better Man Than I	(Bobbi no # (matrix 7-7352)) 1967

This band was one of the earliest forays for guitarist Pat Walters. He'd joined this Charlotte, North Carolina band from the Barons and would go through several other outfits (including The Good, Bad, & Ugly and Jeremiah) until he formed the highly-regarded Spongetones at the end of the seventies. Johnny Pace went on to New Mix.

Abba was covered by The Cynics in 1988 on their Twelve Flights Up album.

Paraphernalia (MA)

45:	Never/Watch Out	(St. George I. 7-202, 440 /1) 1968

From Lowell, Massachusetts came Paraphernalia. Never is a late sixties rock-prog ballad that's melodic but doesn't quite gel. Thanks to a mix-up at the pressing plant, some promo copies were labelled up as Mary Maiden by Scarlet Letter (Mainstream 696).

Watch Out is a heavyish rocker with some inventive and intense guitar effects that can be sampled on An Overdose Of Heavy Psych (CD). (MW)

Paraphernalia (MI)

45:	Sunny Days (And Good Living)/
Sea Of No Return	(Time 501) c1969

A different outfit, reported to be from Michigan. This is very good anthemic pop-rock with a U.K. Nirvana feel thanks to some melodic piano runs and slightly drippy but phased vocals. However, it's not all soft 'n' sweetness - a superb guitar break erupts mid-song which reappears on the outro. This should appeal to fans of Rubble-type psych. The flip remains unheard as I've only managed to obtain the double 'A' side promo version of this single. (MW)

HIP Records were a division of Stax Records aimed at the white "pop" market. They also released the Southwest F.O.B. album. Paris Pilot's sole album was produced, arranged and engineered in Memphis by Don Nix (ex-Mar-Kays), who also co-wrote most of the songs and took the photographs on the sleeve! The four other members are not credited. Musically interesting, it's a kind of lightweight Vanilla Fudge with a cover of The Beat Goes On, lots of heavy organ, guitar and drums and good vocals. Don't Let It was co-written by Nix and Delaney Bramlett, and Shades Of Doubt by Don Preston and Joe Cooper, two members of Leon Russell's "Oklahoma Mafia".

45:	I Know/The Trip	(USA 919) 1968/9

Park Avenue Playground was a late sixties Lansing, Illinois act. The Trip, a classic piece of punk dementia with driving organ, lots of fuzz, swirling sound effects and psychedelic lyrics like: 'You Say There's No Beginning/I Say You're Wrong/This Trip Is Never-Ending/It Won't Be Long', can now be heard on Beyond The Calico Wall (LP & CD) and both sides of the single can be found on 2131 South Michigan Avenue (2-CD).

George Eder recalls: - "The band arose from the ashes of my first band, The U.S. Males (Lansing, Illinois '65-'67). Because we had gone through some personnel changes, we needed a new name. I lived on Park Ave in Lansing, Illinois and one of the playgrounds of the local grade school was on my block. We'd always meet on the Park Ave. playground, so that's how I got the name."

"In the year and a half we were together ('67 - '69), we went through several bass players, but none stuck so I'd play bass live and in the studio as well a rhythm guitar on the recordings."

"We recorded The Trip in Lansing, Michigan in an old theatre that a lot of bands were using in those days. The Rotary Connection had just wrapped their recording so the vibe was in the room. There was a Hammond B3 for Mike so we put it on the record. The majority of the psychedelic sounds were added after the fact by our manager and the studio engineer."

"Mike Jones wrote I Know whilst I wrote The Trip. After the session, Paul Kovak had to leave the band due to parental pressure and another ex-U.S. Males member Doug Maxeiner was rehired." Most of the singles were used by their manager, who took them to radio stations in the mid-west and East Coast, the remainder being distributed between the band members.

Parliament was in fact another moniker for George Clinton and the musicians of Funkadelic. They played a powerful mix of psych and funk, maybe a bit more soulish than Funkadelic. Osmium mixed hard-edged funk with acid-rock, country and gospel. The better tracks included, The Silent Boatman, a haunting funk hymn featuring bagpipes, Nothing Before Me But Thang which combines sitar with wild acid-rock funk storm and Funky Woman.

After Osmium, which is now rare and sought-after, Clinton resurrected the name beginning in 1974 for a long series of funk albums on Casablanca.

	Numbers/Nathan	(Warner Bros. WB 7556) 1972
	Nathan/American	(Warner Bros WB 7601) 1972

Paul Parrish's album was recorded at Tera Shirma Studios in Detroit and features slight 'loner' vibes. The very simple - but effective- drums and vocals are the most interesting aspects of the album, with English Sparrows, Walking In The Forest (Of My Mind), Dialogue Of Wind and Lover being the most interesting tracks on side one, which also concludes with a laid-back, melodic cover version of The Beatles' You've Got To Hide Your Love Away. The other three songs are filled with fragile vocals and folky guitars backed with nice, psychedelic orchestrations. Most of side two is not of the same quality but on Flowers In The Park a sparkling magic atmosphere can be heard. Not bad!

The first single, which is taken from the album features orchestrated folk-pop on Walking In The Forest Of My Mind, with lots of phasing and fuzzy effects, like a psychedelic pop version of Bob Lind. Pure confection but enjoyable. The flip is more melodic Lind-esque folk-pop with harpsichord. Arranged and conducted by Mike Theodore and Dennis Coffey (aka Theo-Coff Invasion).

Parrish would later release three singles for Warner, the second being produced by Dan Dalton in an early Bee Gees vein. Parrish then became a session man.

45:	Put The Clock Back On The Wall/ Why All Got Carried Away Hey	(Mala 558) 1967

This appears to be the sole single by an unknown outfit; Florida has been suggested as their home but New York is more likely as it's a Koppelman-Rubin production. Put The Clock Back On The Wall was a sort of psychedelic/garage grinder which can also be heard on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 4 (LP & CD). The same year it was redone with melodic harmonies by San Jose's E-Types who achieved a minor hit with the song in northern California and by C.C. & The Chasers. (VJ/MW)

ALBUM:	1(A)	HAWKS AND DOVES	(Pete S1106) 1970 SC

Produced by Dick Glasser for a small California label, this rare and little known album contains 11 short cuts with keyboards-driven tracks like Dr. Bernstein's Dream and Clock Upon The Sky. Their material, rather jazzy in places, was inspired by the Chinese I Ching and written by Ross and Fineman. Competently arranged and with some thrilling time/measure changes plus great vocal parts, Touch And Go arguably dominates the record. The title track too, is in the same excellent vein and shows considerable musical wit and feeling. At times The Association comes to mind, but unfortunately there's just a shade too much filler. Still there's room for another outstanding feature: the very cool atmosphere of I'd Be Lying and the heavy fuzz on At The Head Of The List. Uneven, but a nice listen nonetheless.

The front sleeve shows a picture of the group bare chested with a dove (it was probably too dangerous to picture an hawk too!).

Herschel Freeman also played with the Sir Douglas Quintet on their 1+1+1=4 album. (SR/MK)

45:	'Cause I Love You/Don't Ya Know	(Phalanx 1006/7) 1966

This Battle Creek, Michigan group was formed in 1961, as Carl Parker & The Pastels. Major personnel changes took place in 1964 following Parker's departure and it was the second incarnation of the band which would release their sole single in June 1966, on Portage's Phalanx label. The band continued to evolve and perform into the early seventies.

'Cause I Love You has been compiled on Sixties Archive Vol. 7 (CD), When The Time Run Out (Minnesota vs Michigan) (LP & CD), Glimpses, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD), Glimpses, Vol. 2 (LP) and Sigh Cry Die (CD). (VJ/MW)

45:	Flower Eyes/Cotton Soul	(Original Sound OS-77) 1967

This Los Angeles outfit was originally known as The Mustard Greens. Both sides of their single are featured on Mindrocker Vol. 13 (LP) and Flower Eyes is also on Where The Action Is! (4-CD book).

In 1969 Branca and Pasternak, son of film director Joe, teamed up with Original Sound's ubiquitous engineer and producer Brian Ross (best remembered for his work with The Music Machine) to create a weird'n'wonderful single credited to Mad Andy's Twist Combo. John Branca went on to become a high-powered music attorney; his clients have included The Beach Boys, Carlos Santana, and Michael Jackson.

Incidentally, Pasternak's brother Michael is better known to UK radio fans as DJ "Emperor Rosko", whose over-the-top style blasted out from offshore pirate station Radio Caroline; when Caroline was outlawed in 1967, he jumped ship (literally) and joined Radio 1. (MW/GM/VJ)

	Where You Gettin' Your Kicks Now?/ We Gotta Stick It Out (PS)	(RSVP 1122) 1966

Young black singer Patrick was featured on "Hullabaloo" for a while. Produced by Gilligan and Hutch Davie (who co-wrote both songs with R. Alfred), his first single is folk-rock with funny lyrics and a "wall of sound" production including harmonica, harpsichord, guitar, horns, male and female vocals. It's rather interesting.

RSVP was a small label from New York, which also released Faine Jade's classic Introspection album. (SR/MW)

The Patriots (NY)

45:	What A Drag It Is/Blankets And Candles	(Murbo M-1025) 1968

Here's a New York City outfit on the same label that brought us The Household Sponge. What A Drag It Is is a pleasant mid-tempo Beatlesque pop effort now compiled on Quagmire Volume 3 (CD), whilst Blankets And Candles is an insistent minor-mood ballad. Not for yer fuzz'n'snarl brigade - this will appeal to those who dig Zombies, Choir, etc. (MW)

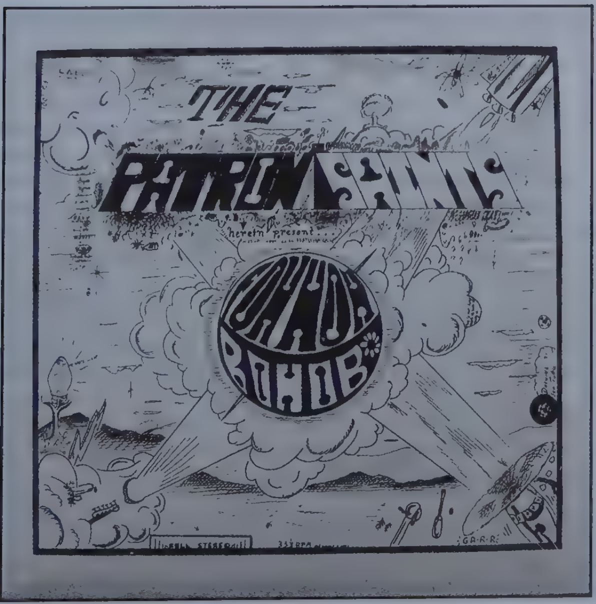
ALBUM: 1(A) FOHHOH BOHOB (No label PS-JT 1001) 1969 R4/R5

NB: (1) originally issued in thick white sleeve with front and rear slicks. The pressing was reportedly 100, some copies came with booklet (R5). (1) counterfeited in Austria vinyl (No label) 1994 (300 copies with photocopied booklet), and later an official reissue was produced from the master tapes (American Sound 106202-3) 1997, 500 numbered copies with booklet and bonus 7" of unreleased material. In addition, (1) has been issued on CD with three bonus tracks (Patron Saint PSCD-101) 1997.

More recently two compilations of unreleased recordings have appeared: Proto Bohob (Patron Saint PSCD-104) 1999, consisting of early demos from 1969, and The Latimer Sessions (Patron Saint PSCD-105/6) 2000, which is unreleased material from 1970-3 by line-ups 'B' and 'C'. There's also a reunion album, Time And Place (CD) (Patron Saints Records) 2005.

Fohhoh Bohob was produced by the band over the course of a few weeks in the summer of 1969 and it doesn't sound too much like anything else. There are moments where it could be The Velvet Underground, perhaps Pearls Before Swine, maybe Sidetrack or even Faine Jade influencing them, but one gets the impression that these guys made their own maps.



THE PATRON SAINTS - Fohhoh Bohob LP.

Proto Bohob

THE PATRON SAINTS - Proto Bohob CD.

There are a few places where the band seems to flounder, but other passages where their ability to impress is apparent. The album isn't a masterpiece, but it is a very unique and unusual record, and many collectors rate it very highly as a result - others think it is amateurish rubbish. Only 100 copies were pressed originally, but the reissues are quite easy to find.

Of their compilations of unreleased material, The Latimer Sessions (a 2-CD release) is the better of the two. The Patron Saints definitely improved over the years - the quirky, underground vision is still there, but their ability to render ideas as a band is markedly improved. With well over two hours of material on offer, this is remarkably consistent throughout. Proto Bohob, however, is too similar to their original Fohhoh Bohob album to recommend.

Eric Bergman also issued two solo albums that fall outside the scope of this book: Modern Phonography (Patron Saint PS-1) 1978, and Sending Out Signals (Patron Saint PS-2) 1982. Both albums have been compiled on CD with bonus material (Patron Saint PS CD-102/3) 1998. John Tuttle passed away in 1994.

The band returned with a reunion album Time And Place, an 11-track offering which maintains their trademark psychedelic folk sound while also drawing upon many of their classic rock influences. On Time And Place the band present updated versions of a couple of their older recordings, Fly Away and In The Mourning. The collection is completed with Good Friday, an old live favourite from the seventies which was never recorded in the studio, a few tracks from the eighties which had never been recorded, and some new material. There's also an early seventies demo recording by original Patron Saint and Fohhoh Bohob co-writer, the late Jon Tuttle, which was given the "Beatles-Free As A Bird" treatment, i.e., other instruments were added to Jon's demo to make it a finished production.

You can also check out Reflections On A Warm Day on Love, Peace And Poetry, Vol. 1 (LP & CD). (CF/VJ)

(I'm Gonna) Jump Girl/You Should Know (Ttens 1002) 1966
You Should Know/Jump (Stature 1102) 1966

This band operated out of Wheaton, Illinois for the second half of the sixties. The flip to their first single, Say Ma, Ma, was a Gene Vincent cover. (I'm Gonna) Jump Girl/Jump is a cover of UK beat/R'n'b band Toggery

Five's I'm Gonna Jump; it was written by Toggery Five's lead guitarist Frank Renshaw (aka Frank Young) although on The Patten's Stature single it is credited to "Ren Shawel" (?).

Compilation appearances include: Say Ma, Ma on Pebbles Vol. 6: Chicago 1 (CD) and Highs In The Mid-Sixties Vol. 4 (LP); You Should Know and Jump on A Journey To Tyme, Vol. 5 (LP); and Jump on Glimpses, Vol. 3 (LP). (VJ/MW)

NB: (1) demo disc in plain sleeve. In 1971 a cover was printed for the LP bearing the title "Instrumentalist - Singer - Songwriter" (R4).

Patterson had been the guitarist and singer of the sixties band Elizabeth from Philadelphia. These solo efforts are all in the folk/singer-songwriter genre. The first album is quite good and both editions of it are very rare. Bob also issued a third album, Short Stories (Conch Island Music RDP-3) 1980 R1. (CF/VJ)

Patterson & Pults (TX)

Pavlov's Dog was formed in St Louis, Missouri with an original line-up that featured former Chuck Berry drummer, Mike Saffron and the excellent former REO Speedwagon guitarist Mike Scorfina, although it was the eerie soaring warbling falsetto vocals of David Surkamp and the brilliant violin/viola playing of Sigfried Carver that gave them a stunningly original sound. They were signed by ABC for a considerable sum and Pampered Menial was then issued but not widely promoted. By chance country-rock band Poco was disillusioned with their deal with the giant Columbia subsidiary Epic. They were interested in a deal with ABC/MCA who, looking to attain a major name, agreed to swap contracts for Pavlov's Dog for that of Poco. The deal was completed and, as a result Pampered Menial emerged in a splendid sleeve on both labels. Sadly, the shuffle meant that neither label directed much effort to promotion and, in commercial terms, the album bombed. It was, however, a stunning debut comprised entirely of original compositions and maintained a very high quality throughout. It mixed symphonic progressive rock with hard-rock on tracks like Julia, Late November and the instrumental Preludin. It did creep to No. 181 in the album charts and the group soon enjoyed a minor cult following.

Both Saffron and Carver departed prior to At The Sound Of The Bell with Nickeson coming in on vocals and guitar and British drummer Bill Bruford (who had been with Yes and King Crimson) filling in as a session drummer. At The Sound Of The Bell was also an excellent album, though materially weaker than and not necessarily a progression on Pampered Menial. The band recorded a third album that was rejected by Columbia and subsequently issued privately as St Louis Hounds. This displayed a big band sound with violin in a rock format. The tapes of this album were released on CD by German label TRC in 1994 under the title Third with cover art incredibly similar to the cover of Rick Springfield's Working Class Dog.

When the group disintegrated in 1977 Surkamp went solo and Doug Rayburn went with him. Surkamp was signed by Janus and began work on an album. He was later in the Seattle band Hi Fi, with former Fairport Convention vocalist Ian Matthews. Despite his considerable talent sadly commercial success eluded him.

Surkamp and Rayburn briefly reformed the group in the late eighties and a fourth album Lost In America appeared as a CD release in 1990. Surkamp still plays solo around St Louis. (VJ)

	Realize/Smell Of Incense	(Big Sound 1003) 1968
	Dime-A-Dance Romance/ It's Been A Long, Long Time	(Big Sound 1004) 1969

Students at the University of northern Iowa formed this outfit. Their second single couples the Cream-y riffer Realize with a slightly laboured acid-rock version of West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band's Smell Of Incense. Their final release also looks to a heavy Cream/Blue Cheer sound, especially the excellent fuzz-crunchin' cover of the Steve Miller Band's Dime-A-Dance Romance. The flip is in a blues-rock vein. To find out the full low-down, including personnel and minutiae, get yourself a copy of the excellent, but sometimes xenophobic, 'Lost And Found No. 4'.

You'll also find Someday on The Best of IGL Folk Rock (LP) and The IGL Rock Story: Part Two (1967 - 68) (CD). (MW)

Pawnee Drive (?OH/?ND)

45s:	Break My Mind/Ride	(Forward F-103) 1969
	Little Girl/Homeward Bound	(Forward 115) c1969

Their first single is very catchy bubblegum/punk and almost certainly the work of a studio group. Ride was also released as Love Tunnel, which is what the lyrics were all about and was apparently suppressed because someone considered it pornographic! The same song was also released as Take A Ride by an outfit called River Deep (Bell 791). Break My Mind was a pop cover of John D. Loudermilk. The single was produced by a George Tobin, who also produced the Roads End single on Brahma. Ohio has been suggested as the band's locale but hasn't been confirmed. The first single was a local hit on KQWB in Fargo, North Dakota so perhaps the band were from that area.

Pawnee Drive's Ride can also be heard on Pebbles, Vol. 12 (LP). (MW)

Cincinnati, Ohio was home to this singer-songwriter, who wrote, produced and arranged all 10 tracks on the above album. Essentially of the folk-rock genre it's a pleasing collection of varied guitar styles from the fuzz guitar of Reflections I See; to the jangly guitar of It's Been So Long and Goodbye; the wailing guitar and catchy percussion of Sad Surprise, the melody of High Time We Made Love and Love Me Like A Stranger and the crisp guitar style of Hello My Lady Friend. Already a very rare album it is worth checking out if you find a copy. (VJ)

	I've Got News For You/Gotta Go Back	(L.F. 001) 197?

This late-sixties Indiana band included Finchum & Geise from Fort Wayne's Chessmen. Included here more as a warning, their sound is that of a slick club/lounge covers-band, NOT garage, so if you see these singles listed as such and you're a purist, give 'em a wide berth to avoid disappointment. Their choice of material cannot be condemned... only what they did to it. Their take on ? And The Mysterians' 96 Tears is plodding and lacks any real spark; their funkified version of the Rascals' Come On Up has burbling, loungey keyboards redeemed only by some heavyish guitar; I Touched Her is a terrible brass-pop melodrama with overwrought vocals;

the Birdwatchers' Girl I Have News For You is actually good, garagy pop with Raiders-like exhortations of "yeah"... however, in 1972 that was probably considered old hat. The final single details are incomplete and unconfirmed and there was possibly an earlier single on Ex-Plo. (MW)

From Miami, an overlooked act on the same label as Marcus. Their album sported a wonderful front cover and contained six self-penned compositions. On one, Margo's Leaving Song, Flock's Jerry Goodman helped out on violin. The best track is the finale, the lengthy instrumental jam Looney Tunes. Not a psychedelic album but an interesting mainstream rock effort with lots of good organ and guitar work and a few country-rock and jazz rock passages.

Sid Brown had earlier been in The Spike Drivers. They made some recordings and then headed north and released a 10 inch album Liberation Music in an oversized envelope (decorated with sixties motives) and later on a 7 inch EP. The 1978 album Bright New Dawn is not as good.

The songs on RD Records' Spirito - Politico Folk Rock 1969-78 have psychedelia and folk influences throughout. The release came with a four-page insert. Sid Brown now directs and produces a cable TV show called "PrimeTimers" which gives voice and inspiration to older adults. (CF/SBn/VJ)

Lazy River Blues (Accent ACS 1279) 1968

Uzonyi formed the band with Tsuruda in the mid-sixties whilst they were still at High School. In 1968, they headed for Hollywood and recorded two tracks; the absolutely stunning The Sun Won't Shine Forever and Lazy River Blues, which were released on a rare single by Accent. After school Uzonyi joined the U.S. Air Force and was based in Tucson, Arizona. There he met Rick Abts who joined Jon and Gary to form The Human Equation. They gigged around the U.S. West Coast but disbanded in 1969 to pursue non-musical careers. Shortly after, though, they reformed to record the tunes which found their way onto Rockadelic's Peacepipe album. (Jon shelved the project at the time). The result is some stunning psychedelic rock with the opening track Sea Of Nightmares especially ear-catching. On side two, A Biker's Tune features some superb psychedelic guitar work and Open Your Mind culminates in more guitar histrionics. The final track Love Shine is much mellower by contrast.

The CD reissue includes three bonus cuts; both sides of their rare late sixties single and a toe-tapping pop song called Keep A-Smilin' Cari.

The Sun Won't Shine Forever has been compiled on Incredible Sound Show Stories, Vol. 7 (LP), For A Few Fuzz Guitars More (CD) and A Deadly Dose Of Wylde Psych (CD). (CF/VJ)

THE PEANUT BUTTER CONSPIRACY - The Great Conspiracy LP.

Evolving out of the remains of The Ashes, which had included Brackett, Merrill and Robinson, they recorded their first single for Vault before signing with the major-label Columbia in November 1966. Much of their material was written by Brackett and Merrill and produced by Gary Usher. It was well produced and often orchestrated. Their first album was a fine debut. The stand-out track was Then Came Love, a beautiful love song on which Sandy's gorgeous voice was supported by excellent orchestration. Also of note were the good-time sounds of You Took Too Much and Why Did I Get So High? which sounds like an anti-drug song. The chorus lyrics to this one were:-

"Why did I get so high?
Just to fall from the sky
Why did I get so high?
Just to see our love die
Oh, why did I get so high?"
(from Why Did I Get So High?)

The second album was in similar vein, bursting with ravishing harmonies and psychedelic lyrics (e.g. "Everyone has a bomb/In their mind/And when it explodes/Blows your mind" from the transcendent Living, Loving Life). The single off the album, Turn On A Friend found its way on to the Rock Machine Turns You On compilation.

However, the end of the flower-power era sounded the death knell for the band. Their third album dispensed with the folk-rock and psychedelia in favour of gospel-rock and gruff male vocals fronting horns and girlie choruses (the CD bonus tracks, however, do include a couple of glorious Barbara Robinson vocal performances). After the album's failure, Al Brackett went into session and production work, Lance Fent played for Randy Meisner and Bill Wolff (who'd also played with Sound Machine) later joined Fusion. Sadly, Sandy Robinson died some years back.

The Sundazed EP unearths three demos recorded in November 1966, including an early take on Twice Is Life, which reveal an edgier, more garagy sound to the band.

Living The Dream: The Best Of The Peanut Butter Conspiracy would be a good way to investigate the band retrospectively. The Spreading From The Ashes CD is a retrospective collection researched and compiled by Alec Palao. Another volume in his much-lauded Nuggets From The Golden State series on Big Beat, it concentrates on unreleased and non-album tracks from their 1965-1967 Vault label period. There are seven tracks by pre-PBC Ashes, three of which are from singles, a pair of the band's cuts from the West Coast Love-In album, and both sides of the band's debut single. The remaining 15 tracks are unreleased gems highlighting the writing talents of Alan Brackett and John Merrill who, along with Lance Fent, contributed to the 20-page booklet - the icing on a superb package.

Compilation coverage has so far included: It's A Happening Thing on Nuggets, Vol. 10: Folk Rock (LP) and Psychedelic Visions (CD); Time Is After You on Mindrocker, Vol. 1 (LP); Too Many Do, from their second album, on Psychedelic Dream: A Collection of '60s Euphoria (LP); Angels

From Hell on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 4 (CD); Time Is After You, One-Nine-Six-Seven, Big Bummer and Floating Dream on West Coast Love-In (CD); Angels From Hell, Crystal Tear and No Communication on Filling The Gap (4-LP); Roses Gone on First Vibration (LP); and the previously unreleased Eventually appears on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book).

In addition, Love Exchange's Swallow The Sun, featured on Nuggets, Vol. 10 (LP) and Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 3 (LP) is actually Peanut Butter Conspiracy's Dark On You Now with slightly altered lyrics - Peanut Butter Conspiracy under a pseudonym or a faceless studio outfit? Drop me a line if you know. (VJ/LP/SR/MW)

Pearl Divers (TX)

According to the liner notes to Acid Visions - The Complete Collection Vol. 1 (3-CD), which includes Terminal Loser, Riding On A Rainbow and She Was The Doctor, this band came from Houston, Texas. The three tracks were recorded at ACA studios in 1968. (GG)

45s: Drop Out!/Morning Sun (ESP 4554) 196?
These Things Too/If You Don't Want To (Reprise 0873) 1969
The Jeweller/Rocket Man (Reprise 0949) 1970

This group focused on Tom Rapp, who had apparently once finished ahead of Bob Dylan in a talent contest. Rapp formed Pearls Before Swine in Florida in 1965 with high school friends Crissinger, Harley and Lederer. They recorded a demo which they sent to ESP Records in New York, and soon traveled there to record. The original band was augmented by a session drummer.

Their debut album was characterised by Rapp's gentle vocals and a woodwind musical accompaniment. Morning Song, Another Time, Drop Out and The Surrealist Waltz were two of the stronger tracks, although a consistently high standard was maintained throughout. The group's acid sound seems almost certain to have been drug-inspired and their music was always mystical, innovative and mysterious.

The album's lyrics were often inquisitive and philosophical; for example:

"Where have you been to?
Where did you go?
Did you follow the summer out
When the winter pushed its face
In the snow?
Or have you come by again
To die again?
Try again another time."
(from Another Time)

Another track, Shall Not Care has a strange Eastern sound.

The follow-up Balaklava was in similar vein, and based around the concept of the charge of the Light Brigade at Balaklava in 1852. It also includes a beautiful version of the Leonard Cohen song Suzanne. All the other compositions are Rapp's, including the final track Ring Thing, which is possibly the strangest of all - taken as it is from the cornerstone verse of J.R.R. Tolkien's Lord Of The Rings. A number of session players assisted with this recording.

PEARLS BEFORE SWINE

balaklava / pearls before swine

PEARLS BEFORE SWINE - Balaklava LP.

The two ESP albums sold well (they were re-pressed several times), but the band was apparently never compensated by the label. Rapp signed with Warner Bros in 1969 and his subsequent recordings appeared on their Reprise imprint.

Rapp abandoned his use of abstract themes for his remaining albums which were more conventional. Although possibly less interesting than those first two albums, the remaining four Pearls Before Swine albums are still well worth hearing. Session players figure on all of the Reprise recordings.

The Use Of Ashes album and part of the follow-up, City Of Gold were recorded in Nashville. The Use Of Ashes features songs written by Tom Rapp whilst he was living in Holland and contains some fine songs like The Jeweller. City Of Gold includes a great version of Leonard Cohen's Nancy and a strong version of Season's In The Sun as well as some fine Rapp originals like Did You Dream Of. The remainder of their albums and Beautiful Lies You Could Live In were made in New York. The latter contains ten Rapp originals, plus a beautiful cover of Leonard Cohen's Bird On A Wire. In 1972, Tom Rapp started recording under his own name, although his first solo album was largely comprised of re-recordings of songs from his earlier albums.

A 2-CD set The Wizard Is compiles entirely previously unreleased material from the band. Disc one features sixties and seventies home demos, out-takes, various studio recordings and works in progress. Many of these songs never appeared on any of their albums. Disc two contains an entire live concert performance from the seventies, as well as other vintage radio sessions and live recordings from this era.

Fans of the band and Tom Rapp will also be interested in a tribute album For The Dead In Space, including Fit And Limo, Bevis Frond, Mourning Cloak and even an exclusive track by Tom Rapp himself. More recently Tom Rapp gave a mesmerising performance at Ptolemaic Terrascope's 'Terrastock III' and released a fine solo album, A Journal Of The Plague Year.

Roger Crissinger was later in One.

The single version of Morning Song can also be found on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box), alternate versions of Transluscent Carriages, Ring Thing and Macbeth/Cowboy Who Ate Vietnam (Out) appear on Ptolemaic Terrascope 15 (EP); and the previously unreleased Blind from the early seventies figured on Ptolemaic Terrascope 15 (EP). 	Daisey/ What Do You Hear From Your Head	(Decca 32663) 1970

Here's another studio-only soft-pop project by Ron Dante (of Archies infamy). Whilst Free is a standard pop rock tune, the flip is a cool trippy instrumental. Free charted in (at least) New York on WMCA at a high of No. 50 on 5 Nov 1969. (SR/MC/MW)

The Pebble Episode (NY)

45:	Tripsy/The Plum Song	(J-2 1300) 1967

From Brooklyn, New York, The Pebble Episode recorded a haunting and rather trippy psychedelic instrumental called Tripsy which can also be found on the Beyond The Calico Wall (LP & CD) compilation. It's worth a spin.

Some copies of the single were miscredited to Vincent Oddo, the owner of the recording studio where it was cut. (VJ/MW/MM/RMh)

Great fuzzy garage-pop, not rough enough presumably to make it onto compilations so far, but given the band name, a natural for that classic series. The flip is straight bouncy pop fodder with some brass. Produced by Brian Ross (of Music Machine fame), both sides are composed by Cooper / Blackwell who played with Leon Russell and Delaney Bramlett in The Shindogs. The Pebbles may well have been a pseudonym for that band. This Pebbles was a quintet from St. Petersburg, Florida. Originally the Satins, they lost their original bassist to Tommy Roe and The Roemans and by 1965 were known as The Pebbles. Recorded in Tampa in early '65, their sole single was released on manager Ralph P. This band was from The Bronx, New York. Their first single, released as by Peck's Bad Boys, is rare and sought-after for the frenzied Crazy World. Their second single however, as Pex's Bad Boys tends towards garagy pop with Silver Dawn winning out with its mesh of jangling guitars and waltzing rhythm.

A teen quartet from Grand Rapids, Michigan whose career high was to beat The Soulbenders in a 'Battle Of The Bands' at "The Place" in 1966. Weighous was later in seventies club-rock outfit Flyin' Home. Think Twice is a haunting garage ballad, with early sixties feel (Shadowy guitars chiming) with an intro whistled a-la spaghetti westerns! The Buy-It single features a different Think Twice, with bells and strings dubbed on, that was released in Florida by Tony Cooper.

This New York City-based 'hippie' rock group may interest readers. They developed quite a cult following and continued to record albums into the eighties. The above three have become collectable. I Like Marijuana from their first album can also be heard on Elektrock The Sixties (4-LP). It was the highlight of a musically poor album, which has not stood the test of time well, but the songs which mostly dealt with dope and getting 'stoned' were popular with hippie audiences at the time.

He was a friend of John Lennon and Yoko Ono and they sometimes performed together. Lennon and Yoko Ono produced his third album, The Pope Smokes Dope. The album propelled him into celebrity status, giving him the extremely rare honor of being banned by every country in the world, except America and Canada! He's celebrated on Lennon's song New York City on the Some Time In New York City album.

David Peel still resides on the Lower East side and is today involved with Cures Not Wars and the marijuana legalisation movements.

And The Rest Is History: The Elektra Recordings compiles his two Elektra albums as well as two previously unissued tracks recorded for, but not used on, the second album. It also includes a 20-page booklet with Peel's recollections of the recording of the albums and track-by-track commentary on his composition of their songs.. (VJ)

45:	Frankie's Got It!/Today She Didn't Want To	(FGI 1000) 1969

A one-off studio assemblage in Norfolk, Virginia dashed off this single as a promo for the 'Frankie's Got It' record store. It's quite memorable - a novelty of sorts, affected verging-on-manic lead vocals with background eening that gives it a ghoulish B-movie flavour. I guess it didn't make it onto the soundtrack for High Fidelity so you'll have to seek it out on Pebbles, Vol. 16 (LP) or Aliens, Psychos And Wild Things (CD). BHr/ST/MW)

45: Freedom/Please Take My Life (Roaring Records 801) 1968

Freedom is a sombre pleading folk-rocker ballad with keening falsetto narmonies. Please Take My Life composed by Joseph De Jesus, is a aboured instrumental where the guitarist attempts some resounding John Cipollina chops, giving it a West Coast vibe. Maybe that's why it has been suggested that the band was from California, but Alongi and DeJesus later ed the East Coast hard-rock outfit Banchee. The single was produced by Jim Kemper and Pete Glick, for Boy Wonder and Kama Sutra Productions.

Please Take My Life has been compiled on Buzz Buzz Buzzzzz Vol. 1 (CD). (MW)

ALBUM: 1 MELLOW UNDERSTANDING (Harvest 06781) 1976 R2

This Texas folk album is housed in a cover with a dove on a blue background with shiny silver writing. Pegues' powerful voice often dominates the acoustic backing. Side one exudes both a loner folk and southern hippie vibe. The magnum opus is Take The Devil on side two which has dramatic mellotron-like backing and superb 12-string guitar. The emaining cuts on the album aren't by Pegues! Instead his friend Kevin Kine provides two ballads accompanied by guitar and there's a short guitar nstrumental. The quality is not as good and this certainly detracts from the consistency and status of the album. (VJ)

ALBUM: 1(A) PENDULUM & CO. (Perception PLP 23) 1971 SC

Late-sixties sounding pop/rock from this Massachusetts band. A rather mixed bag, actually. At their best, they are reminiscent of early Buffalo Springfield, with Tell Me You're Free being an up-tempo rocker and Loneliness owing a great deal to both For What It's Worth and Neil Young's Down By The River. A number of tracks are orchestrated which will not endear most listeners perusing this book, but be advised that this album has its moments. Those interested in a druggier, more introspective rock sound will appreciate their approach.

The Penny Arkade was a mid-sixties Los Angeles group that included Craig Smith (aka Maitreya Kali) and Chris Ducey (aka Chris Lucey; aka Bobby Jameson). Their jangly folk-rock style recalls The Byrds, Buffalo Springfield and Moby Grape which suggests the band could have made it big, instead their album, which was produced by Mike Nesmith, was inexplicably shelved. Several tracks they recorded appeared on the two rare Maitreya Kali albums in the early seventies, and more recently Sundazed issued all their recordings (including some demos) on the CD listed above. The package is presented with archive photos and a detailed band history penned by Ugly Things' editor Mike Stax. This is well worth a listen.

Craig Smith and Chris Ducey had previously issued a single on Capitol as Chris and Craig. Donaho had been with Texas garage band The Bad Seeds.

This was a later version of Macabre, from Arlington, Virginia. The 1972-1979 album is best described as a psychedelic hard-rock album. It includes 1972 versions of Be Forewarned as well as covers of Little Games and Under My Thumb.

They went on to record two heavy metal albums in the eighties. Pentagram in 1985 was later re-mixed and reissued as Relentless on Peaceville and Day Of Reckoning (Napalm) in 1987 (also re-mixed on Peaceville).

In 2000, a further album of death metal appeared Review Your Choices (Black Widow BWR 031).

They still play live occasionally. (VJ/BK)

San Jose, California band People! made two slightly psychedelic albums. Larry Norman, later known for his Christian beliefs and records in that vein, was an early member and shares lead vocals on their first album. The group had a small hit with a cover of the Zombies I Love You. Besides that track, their first album contains some tracks with a slight psychedelic influence, notably 1000 Years B.C., Nothing Can Stop The Elephants, and Ashes Of Me. Side two of the album contains the sidelong The Epic, which changes shape several times and tells the tale of the maid Tori Kincaid. It also sold quite well, climbing to No. 128 and spending eight weeks in the charts.

By the second album Larry Norman had left the group, but it still contains several of his compositions. Like their first album, their sound is somewhat similar to Iron Butterfly, but quirkier, with lots of Hammond organ to the fore. Their vocal harmonies sometimes make you think of Vanilla Fudge, but the group make it all part of their own sound. Both Sides Of People covers many styles (there's even a country song!), and on this album there's more excellent guitar work than on their first. Side two is particularly excellent, with only three tracks, the first of which, Lucky John, contains some sitar, and some snakey fuzz. She's A Dancer contains great wah-wah and searing fuzz. Lastly Pirate Bill is another example of their humorous style and somewhat reminiscent of parts of The Epic. By the third album, the group had been revamped, and had lost their lead vocalist as well as their lead guitarist. There was also added brass, so consequently their sound had changed a lot and the reason for its inclusion here is minimal.

In between the second and third albums, Bruce Eason sang for in the band for about three months: - "I appeared as lead singer for the band on American Bandstand and Sam Riddle's 9th Street West. I used the stage name Scott Eason on the shows because Geoff and Robby didn't like my real first name. I also participated in some unreleased studio recording which we did at Rainbow Studios in Hollywood as well as the arrangement of several songs for which I never received credit."

Compilation appearances include: I Love You on Nuggets, Vol. 3: Pop (LP) and Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD plus book); and Lucky John on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 2 (CD).

In summer 2006 Fridkin, Mason and Norman reformed the band to play a reunion concert at Williamnette University in Salem, Oregon. The concert was recorded and released as People! Reunion Concert 2006 (Solid Rock) 2007. Norman died of heart disease in February 2008. (CBe/VJ)

NB: (1) also issued on Atlantic 2400 149. (1) reissued on CD (Wounded Bird WOU ?) 2007.

Jim Pepper was a Kaw and Creek Indian as well as a jazz and rock musician. In 1967 he formed Free Spirits with Larry Coryell and Chris Hills and pursued a jazz career. The Free Spirits evolved into Everything is Everything and their debut, Pepper's Witchi Tai To, reached No. 69 in the charts. It was covered subsequently by Harpers Bizarre, Taiconderoga, and Brewer and Shipley. Witchi Tai To was inspired by a religious Peyote chant from the Kaw tribe.

Released in 1971 and recorded at Apostolic Studios in New York, Pepper's Pow Wow is a strange mix of Indian songs (Witchi Tai To, Slow and Fast War Dance, Squaw Song, Newly-Weds Song have Kaw origins, Rock Stomp Indian Style and Nommie-Nommie are Creek inspired), folk (two Peter LaFarge songs), jazz, country and rock, with some excellent guitar solos by Coryell. The album was produced by Herbie Mann and Danny Weiss.

After releasing some jazz albums, Pepper died in the nineties. (SR)

Here's quite successful late sixties pop band from Baltimore, Maryland. The two-girl, three-boy band was formed by Skip Harris, previously with The Progressions, and Doug Lewis. Both had played together in an earlier teen-pop outfit.

PEPPERMINT TROLLEY CO. - Self Titled LP.

They were discovered and promoted by the producer/songwriter Paul Leka and Will You Be Staying After Sunday was a Top 35 hit in April 1969. The album also sold quite well, spending nine weeks in the charts and climbing to No. 106. It draws mainly on The Mamas & The Papas and Spanky and Our Gang material and the CD reissue adds 10 bonus single mixes of which You're The Sound Of Love is the best. Leka had previously worked with The Lemon Pipers and the album also contains a reworked version of their Green Tambourine. Largely forgotten now, it may appeal to fans of the softer aspects of The Mamas & The Papas or Spanky and Our Gang.

After they split in 1970, Doug Lewis joined The Better Half.

Pink Lemonade has been compiled on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box) and on Realistic Patterns 2: Wednesday Morning Dew (CD). (VJ/MW/JV/SR)

From Redlands, California The Peppermint Trolley Co. later evolved into Bones and later The Faragher Brothers. The above soft-psych album is full of bright and breezy pop tunes. It's nothing special, but a pleasant record. Some of their singles are apparently far superior, and in particular Nine O'Clock Business Man is a great slice of psych-pop.

The Faragher brothers had previously been in The Mark Five, who had also released singles as The C-Minors and The Intercoms.

Beautiful Sun is a digitally remastered and expanded edition of their album that come with 16 bonus tracks, including non-album cuts, mono single mixes, and rare sides recorded under their earlier monikers, The Mark Five, The C-Minors and The Intercoms. Peraino was the original drummer of the Detroit band Up. He relocated to the UK in the early 70s and met up with Arthur Brown, recording and touring as part of his band Kingdom Come. He returned the the USA in the mid-seventies and fronted his own version of Kingdom Come. It has been reported that only 100 copies of their privately-issued album were made. 45: Your Love/Misery And Pain (Block 201) 1966

A West Tennessee band, which played around the Paris area. Your Love is a grinding frat-cum-punk rocker with raunchy sax, performed live with an accompaniment of screams; it has reappeared on Prisoners Of The Beat (LP) and A History Of Garage & Frat Bands In Memphis Vol. 2 (CD).

Guitarist Williams had released a solo single as Troy Williams in 1963 (Anna Baby/Street Of Love on Hi 2067). Linda Arnold was born in Mill Valley just north of San Francisco. By the age of five she had started writing compositions. In the mid-sixties she headed to the University of Southern California and focused on a dental hygiene career. In this era she began to write songs and when she moved with her husband to the artistic community of Topanga Canyon her songwriting blossomed. Whilst working at a Beverly Hills periodontal office she got talking to movie composer Leonard Rosenman, who was one of her patients, about music and she gave him one of her home-made tapes. He called her the following morning and offered to produce an album for her.

The resulting drifting femme fatale folk-psych album is superb. The best tracks are where Perhacs is augmented by the guest musicians, as on Moons And Cattails which has Eastern percussion and is rather psychedelic. The title track (which came to her whilst she was driving down the Ventura Freeway in the early hours of the morning) is superb and suddenly becomes psychedelic mid-way through. It is her personal favourite on the album. Perhacs' voice is actually very reminiscent of Ann Wilson's (Heart)... very lovely. Unfortunately, when her album was finished the label did nothing to promote it, didn't sequence it how Perhacs wanted and pressed it so badly that she could only bear to listen to it once! It got very little airplay and inevitably sold poorly.

By the time labels started reissuing it in the new millennium it had become a cult classic. The 2008 Sunbeam reissue contains detailed sleevenotes from Perhacs which this article has drawn on. It features eight bonus tracks, including a previously unreleased recording I Would Rather Love (from 1978), demos and an alternate take of one of the best album tracks, If You Were My Man as well as a BBC interview from 2005. NB: reissued in a limited (1,000 copy) picture sleeve edition (Bacchus Archives BA 1144) 2000.

This rare'n'raw frat-rock single's reissue comes with a seal of approval from Crypt's Tim Warren and reveals their history... The Periscopes started playing at Van Nuys High School, California in 1964 and by 1965 the line-up had settled to the quintet above. Their biggest gig was at the L.A. Coliseum for the UCLA-SC football game, with an audience of over 80,000. In the summer of '65 they recorded the raunchy Beavershot at RCA studios in Hollywood. It got some airplay and appeared briefly on the Sight & Sound charts before being banned by the FCC for being "overly suggestive". Producers Wells and DeSett not only ripped off Louie Louie for the flipside but did a runner, so the band never got paid either.

Only Kruger still plays professionally, Nicholson and Golden reside in the San Fernando Valley, Hungerford lives in Washington State and Kaplan passed away. (MW)

Chuck Perrin was previously with in the Notre Dame Band The Shaggs. For these three albums he links up with his sister Mary. They are basically sixties style folk and folk-pop with crystal clear voices and acoustic guitar. The first two were recorded at Golden Voice Studios in Illinois and issued on Chuck Perrin's own Webster's Last Word label. Brother And Sister contains mostly self-penned material as does The Next Of Kin. Both albums are very highly rated, with the second a little more sophisticated than the first.

Life Is A Stream includes revised versions of some songs from The Next Of Kin. The main change is that here the duo is supported by a soft-rock accompaniment with good arrangements.

They contribute two cuts to a rare Various Artists album, The Peoria Folk Anthology Volume Three (Webster's Last Word 3825) 1970 R2. (VJ)

45: (Tiny Little) Seeds/This Girl (Achillean 501) 1967/8

This obscure single has been touted as 'garage' but is more accurately bright folk-pop and beat with reedy keyboard solos. The band was from Crofton, just south of Baltimore, Maryland and included Norman Alton, formerly of covers band Norman's Norts. (MW)

45: Don't Need Your Lovin'/Johnny Of Dreams (Fenton 2050) 1966

This single was the sole platter by this Detroit, Michigan folk-rock outfit for whom The Byrds were a clear influence.

Don't Need Your Lovin' can also be heard on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 5 (LP) and Best Of Michigan Rock Groups, Vol. 2 (cassette); Johnny Of Dreams on Byrds Won't Fly Today (LP); and Don't Need Your Lovin' and Johnny Of Dreams on Scream Loud!! The Fenton Story (2-CD). (VJ)

45: Bless You Little Girl/ Someone I've Got My Eyes Upon (Bell 670) 1967

Thought to have been a Tennessee band they seem to merge folk-rock, punk and bubblegum on Someone I've Got My Eyes Upon, a pretty commercial effort which can also be heard on Pebbles, Vol. 12 (LP). (VJ)

Peter and The Wolves (IL)

45: Hey Mama/Only Everything (P.W. 500) 196?

This Los Angeles-based outfit operated in 1965 and 1966 and was thought to include future Moby Grape members Peter Lewis and Bob Newkirk, however Peter Lewis has confirmed that his Peter & The Wolves never recorded.

Compilation appearances have included: Hey Mama and Only Everything on Off The Wall, Vol. 1 (LP) and The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 1 (2-CD); and Only Everything on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 3 (LP & CD). (VJ/CMn)

NB: 1,000 copies of (1) were pressed originally. (1) has been counterfeited on vinyl in the UK (w/insert) (Psychedelic Archives PALP 1005) 1997 in a limited edition of 300 copies with a purple label in a different sleeve, comprising a glued on small size photo on a third cardboard silver cover.

John Peterson is an Illinois folk singer/songwriter. His songs were written during 1970-1975 whilst he was living in Europe. The album was recorded live in a day during the winter of 1975-76. He's assisted on the album by Paul Bruton (lead gtr, acoustic gtr on Leave With The Storm), Steve Salisbury (drms), Dave Sellers (bs) and Wendy Boeke guest on piano on Night And Day.

The music is essentially singer/songwriter material with good vocals and a nod in the direction of Tim Buckley. The highlights include the gorgeous Summer Is Over with its lovely mellow guitar intro, which overall has a melancholic and haunting vibe; the delightful piano accompaniment to Night And Day and the two final cuts; I Still See You and Many A Stream, which both feature more passionate and emotive vocals than the rest. The title cut is an up-tempo number with lively guitar. (SR/VJ)

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Asterisk 6) 2009. (2) reissued on CD (Fallout FOCD2052) 2007.

Originating from Bloomington, Indiana Carolyn Peyton was a member of the Screaming Gypsy Bandits. Her voice sounded like a cross between Joni Mitchell and Carole King and she released at least two solo albums (there may be more). The first was housed in a home-made yellow cover with graffiti and drawings and was recorded with the help of Anderson and Bingham, two members of the 'Bandits. It includes songs like The Sky In Japan Is Always Close To You, Hook, Sweet Misery, Pull, Come For A Day, the strongest track being possibly Lor el iii. The next album, Intuition, included Brister, Light-Years, All This Waiting, Donkey Blues, Together, Call Of The Wild and You Too and can be described as hippie-folk rock.

Carolyn Peyton later relocated to the West Coast, where she has recorded Celtic music and done major-movie voice-overs for animated features. (SR)

	You'd Better Come Home/ Leave It To Me	(Warner Bros. 7205) 1968

This outfit was based in Long Island, New York. Their second single is a good pop-psych effort. The third harmony-pop single, produced by Jerry Ragovoy, covers You'd Better Come Home by UK song smith Tony Hatch (not the oft-covered Bert Russell song of the same name) and a Pomus-Schuman composition. ALBUM: 1(A) OVERDRIVE (Dragon no #) 1971 R5

NB: The Rockadelic-related label Animus Ochlus LP titled Phafner (AOLP 101) 1990 collected six of the eight tracks on the Overdrive album plus two unreleased demos. More recently, Akarma have issued their own Phafner album (Akarma AK 009) 1998 on vinyl and CD but this version contains only the six tracks from Overdrive that were included on the Animus Ochlus collection and duplicates the sleeve created for the Animus Ochlus collection. To date, neither the original sleeve nor the complete music of (1) have been reissued.

45: Overdrive/Plea From The Soul (Dragon 1001) 1971

This band formed in Marshalltown, Iowa in 1969 playing a form of hard-edged, drug-induced rock'n'roll. Their album was recorded in a basement studio in 1971 and just 50 copies were pressed on the Dragon label. In 1972, they recorded some rough cuts for what was to be their second album, Meathook. Sadly the band fell apart before the album was completed but two of these previously unreleased tracks, Breakdown and Cat Black Claw, can now be heard on the Animus Ochlus retrospective album - which is not a straightforward reissue of Overdrive, as it omits some of the original material. Overdrive features some pretty fine and varied guitar work. The opening cut, Plea From The Soul, has lots of fuzz and mouth harp; Uncle Jerry and Rock n Roll Man feature breakneck guitar work, whilst by contrast Whiskey Took My Woman is slower and bluesy. Recommended.

45: The Clowns Are Coming/
Two A Little One (San Francisco Sound T-1-12700) 196?

This rare guitar-based pop-rock single was recorded in Boston by Tom Foley. Phananganang performed in the San Francisco area between 1969 and 1972 and was managed by Matthew Katz. In their time they got to open for the likes of The Grateful Dead and Jefferson Airplane and also performed on the same bill with Clover.

ALBUMS: 1(A) PHANTASIA (Damon D-12918) 1971 R5
2(A) WALKENHORST & DE PUGH (Damon D-12969) 1972 R5

NB: (1) and (2) are promo-only demo albums issued without covers. Just 24 copies were originally pressed of each. (2) is one-sided. Material from both albums, plus the equally rare Trizo 50 demo album has been compiled as A Psychedelic By Phantasia (Ton Um Ton LP ST-641), 1994, I Talk To The Moon (Ton Um Ton 1096) 1996, and CD A Psychedelic By (Synton 1610974) 1997. (1) and (2) reissued on vinyl (w/poster insert) (World In Sound Records WIS RFI-18) 2003 and on CD (World In Sound Records WIS 1015) 2003 along with a 20-page booklet and photos.

These two rare demo albums were recorded at Damon Recording Studios in Kansas City, Missouri in approximately 1970. As they are virtually unobtainable, the Ton Um Ton/Synton collections are the only currently accessible source for the material.

The A Psychedelic By collection on vinyl and CD has the edge over the I Talk To The Moon release, with highlights including the siren effects on the rocky Ride Me and the phasing and bubbling sounds on I'm Alive (which have an almost 13th Floor Elevators aura). The sound on these releases is predominantly gentle psychy hippie-rock but with the odd heavier moment like the excellent slow burnin' A Stumbling Dragon. This latter track also appears on the I Talk To The Moon collection as the second half of the wistful Genena. Another track, Chasing Now The Flying Time, also gets an airing on both vinyl releases.

The same band continued to record well into the seventies and another demo album appeared circa 1974 as by Trizo 50.

You can also find Trizo 50's Graveyard on Love, Peace And Poetry: American Psychedelic Music (LP & CD). (VJ/CF)

NB: also exists as a doubled sided promo, Calm Before The Storm (stereo)/Calm Before The Storm (mono) (Hideout 1080) 1973. Reissued on Capitol red label (3857) 1974.

Originally known as Walpurgis, The Lost Album is supposed to have been recorded by line-up 'A' in Los Angeles and predates the official Divine Comedy release. We have been told that the band were re-named by their manager as Phantom and we know that the line-up which recorded Divine Comedy definitely came from Rochester, a small town about 30 miles from Detroit.

On both albums the vocalist sounds like Jim Morrison and indeed Capitol Records issued a statement that it was leading to legal action by Elektra.

What of the music? Divine Comedy is highly-rated by many; it has a mystical hard-rock sound and is recommended. Tales From A Wizard and Welcome To Hell, which are both rather melodramatic, are arguably the strongest tracks but a consistent standard is maintained throughout.

The Divine Comedy line-up made a second self-titled album in 1978 under the name Happy Dragon Band, this is more electronic.

The Lost Album contains previously unreleased material. Musically it's similar to their first effort though not as good. (VJ/RMn/SR)

ALBUM: 1 ...NEW SOUND '67 (Justice 146) 1967 R2

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Collectables COL-0612) 1995.

A true teen combo, with members all between the ages of 11 and 14, The Phantom Raiders' 1967 album was released on Calvin Newton's Justice Records label. As opposed to many of the label's other acts, who concentrated on mostly soul and R&B covers, the Phantom Raiders' leaned towards pop/Top 40 material. As such, their lone album includes the band's versions of The Monkees' I'm Not Your Stepping Stone and I'm A Believer, The Beatles' Day Tripper, J. Frank Wilson's Last Kiss, Mitch Ryder & The Detroit Wheels' Devil With A Blue Dress On/Good Golly Miss Molly, and Them's Gloria, which the band seemingly improvised lyrics on. The album is also heavy on instrumentals, and features versions of Stick Shift, Pipeline, Wipeout, Walk, Don't Run, and New Sound '67, a group original. (MDo)

Story Of A Rich Man/Our Great Society (Ridon 859) 1968

From Portland, Oregon and on the same label as the United Travel Service, Story Of A Rich Man is excellent catchy UK/Beatles-infused psych-rock, produced by Rick Keefer, best known to readers of this book for his collaboration with The New Tweedy Bros! Check it out on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 2 (2-LP & CD) whose liners reveal (via Mike Markesich) that the band started as a three-piece with the Muller brothers in 1965. They were later known as Prime Mover having been augmented by Indonesian nationals, Soentpiet and Ashbaugh, who composed both sides of the Ridon single.

Our Great Society is a moody off-the-wall psych gem that goes off on its own amazin' freak-out trip and doesn't come back! Well overdue for a compilation or reissue. The first single remains elusive, but is said to be good psych too. (MW/CF/GGI/MM)

	I Must Run/Pain	(Rabbit 1219) 1966
	I Must Run/What's Happening	(Ramco/ARA 1970) 1966

Phil Kelsey was born into a musical environment in Dallas, both his parents had jazz and gospel experience. His family later moved to Phoenix, Arizona where in his last two years of school he fronted The Four Gants, a fifties rock combo. Kelsey put together line-up 'A' of Phil And The Frantics in 1963. Jim Musil discovered the band playing at their own Phoenix club, The Cave, and became their manager and producer. Phil renamed the club The Frantic Den and enlisted his mother's assistance to run it. Their early recordings were much influenced by the British invasion sound. The first single made no impact at all; the second was a local hit and the third a smash hit in Phoenix. Both sides, particularly the flip, featured haunting minor key melodies making this their best record so far. However, I Must Run, which was produced by Waylon Jennings and largely based on I Must Move, an early Zombies flip side, went one better charting in many parts of the country, although it was not a national hit. After its success they toured with Peter and Gordon and also played with other big name acts, but the band fell apart when Lambert and Powell left to join Beethoven Soul, a California band who had an album on Dot. Kelsey put together a new line-up (C), but their now dated British invasion sound could not survive the psychedelic era.

The Voxx compilation traces the band's musical development superbly and has excellent liner notes part of which have been summarised here. The first side concentrates largely on fast R&B rockers, the flip on their British invasion sound. All their singles are included.

PHIL AND THE FRANTICS - Rough Diamonds... LP.

Upon the demise of Phil And The Frantics Phil Kelsey and Steve Dodge drifted between L.A., Las Vegas and Phoenix. They changed their name to Phil Mark Five and then with the addition of Bobby Blood on trumpet to The Babies. An album was recorded after a deal with ABC - Dunhill in 1969. They toured with Three Dog Night, Blues Image and other popular bands of the time but, increasingly beset by drug problems and after three singles had flopped; they then learnt that their album was shelved. Shortly afterwards, when Phil broke his leg, the band sacked him!

Back in L.A. Phil became an active session musician and songwriter. He worked with Earth Wind and Fire, Billy Preston and Brenton Wood among others. In 1979, he changed his name to Devin Payne and recorded an album, Excuse Me, which was scheduled for release on Casablanca but shelved when the company went bust in 1980. Later he produced a record for Blow-Up, a sixties-inspired new wave band.

Compilation appearances include: I Must Run on Pebbles, Vol. 2 (LP) and Pebbles Vol. 2 (CD); I Must Run and Til You Get What You Want on Pebbles Box (4-LP), Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), Acid Dreams Epitaph (CD) and Trash Box (5-CD); and Pain on Garage Music For Psych-Heads, Vol. 1 (cassette). 45s: α Topanga Canyon/Holland Tunnel (Stateside) 1970
Mississippi/April Anne (Dunhill 4236) 1970

NB: α Australian release.

This solo album by the former leader of The Mamas & The Papas was recorded with Hal Blaine, Darlene Love and James Burton. Some rate it highly, but many find it rather boring. The album is characterised by sweet melodies and close harmonies and is similar in style to The Byrds and Arlo Guthrie. The lyrics tend to deal with incidents in Phillips' life. His song writing skills are borne out by songs like April Anne, Malibu People, and Holland Tunnel. It sold reasonably well, reaching No. 181 during a nine week chart sojourn. The reissue on Varese Saraband includes outtakes and demos.

Pussycat gave an airing to an album recorded in 1976 but unreleased at the time with five bonus tracks added. It was produced by the Glimmer Twins and included Mick Taylor, Ron Wood, Michelle Phillips, Chris Spedding, Traffic's Kwaku Baah, James Biondolilo and Jean Rousell. The musical menu spans pop, rock, ballads and country and many of Phillips' compositions dealt with people he knew. Susan, Susan was about his daughter. The project was originally abandoned and then the master tapes were mislaid for some years. Other highlights include the anti-apartheid song Zulu Warrior, which is driven by Kwaku Baah's percussive hand-drumming, the strip-club theme title tune and nostalgia Oh, Virginia. Three of the five bonus cuts to the original 10-track album were from the album sessions, while the other two were from the Bowie soundtrack 'The Man Who Fell To Earth' which Phillips worked on.

Man On The Moon compiles recordings from a failed lunar stage musical. The storyline was that of an astronaut catapulted to the Sea of Tranquillity to defuse a bomb left behind on the moon by the Apollo crew. He envisaged the Andy Warhol-produced project as a vehicle for his third wife, actress Genevieve Waite, but it was panned by the critics and closed soon after it opened in 1975. The CD features surviving recordings of the stage show and Phillips' own demos of the score. The show's failure was a major factor in Phillips' decline into drug abuse.

GLENN PHILLIPS - Lost At Sea LP.

After many problems with drugs, Phillips died in 2001, two weeks before the release of his second solo album. This compiles recordings done over 25 years, including some with members of the Rolling Stones. (SR/VJ)

45: The Law Of Love/Do Fuga (Philo Spectrum PS 31180) c1969

An early seventies Los Angeles based group produced this blues-rock album with some biting leads. There's also lots of keyboard dominance (Hammond organ), including some instrumentals, but musically it's not terribly memorable. The album's produced by J. Gibson and arranged by Harold P. Johnson (who also seems to have been part of the multi-racial quintet, which included two blacks). All bar one track (Baby I Care was credited to Harold Johnson) were co-written by J. Gibson and Harold Johnson.

The single is often described as 'psych', presumably due to Do Fuga, a piece of backwards mayhem that appears to be just the 'A' side in reverse, and probably more interesting for that.

The front cover of the album uses the same picture as White Light's album. This was because both albums were pressed by Century records. If customers didn't have their own artwork, then the company had a selection of non-copyrighted cover art blanks from which they could choose. The odd art (resembling the contents of a fish aquarium under coloured lights) was picked up by both White Light and Philosophers coincidentally. Century also offered an outdoor scene showing an old mill wheel, which was used on many different records - the Victims Of Chance: Goin' Home Blue and Fifth Flight: Into Smoke Tree Village, to name two. Most of Century label's customers seem to have been schools/marching bands. (CF/VJ/MW)

THE PHILOSOPHERS - After Sundown - Getting Down LP.

This is a Corona Del Mar, California-based Christian harmony folk and folk-rock album. The band was a trio with one female singer and two guitarists on back-up vocals. Gary and Debbie both came from Phoenix - hence the band's name. The album's nugget is Broken Wing. The song commences with a brooding feel and Jesus hippie lyrics. It changes pace half-way through beginning with an abrupt pause after the last verse, followed by a fast drum break, bongos and guitar licks. Elsewhere jangly folk-rock tunes (That's A Start and the title track), blend with heartfelt ballads like Sing A Song Of Jesus, Lazarus and the moody Faith with flute accompaniment. New Life is an acoustic rock number featuring surging organ. He Died has nice percussion and guitar work and the spirited Love Of Jesus benefits from both electric guitar and electric piano. 45: Anything Can Happen (When You're Lonely)/

45s: My Baby Don't Care/Sometimes (Pic 1 139) 1966
Duke of Earl/House Of The Rising Sun (Pic 1 144) 1967

Phinx was Booneville, Mississippi's answer to The Gants. A mystery outfit produced by Huey P. Meaux, who eventually released the 10-track compilation of their material, though omitting House Of The Rising Sun. Like The Gants their stuff is almost all covers, competent but lightweight garagy beat/folk-rock - good but not that good. They even cover The Gants' own My Baby Don't Care alongside regular faves like Feel A Whole Lot Better, You Make Me Feel Good, etc.

You'll also find My Baby Don't Care is on Psychedelic States: Mississippi (CD). (MW)

NB: α was pressed on red vinyl and in stereo.

Phlegethon was the next musical venture for Hampers and Boughner after Grand Rapids, Michigan's mighty Soulbenders.

Aris: "Phlegethon was more of an "art-rock" band than garage; at least the last incarnation... it was the times. But some of the earlier stuff definitely borders on garage... particularly the organ and guitar sounds."

They disbanded a couple of months after the second release - "Actually the friction had begun before the recording session. I knew we were about to give it up... that's pretty much why I titled the tune Last Voyage Home even though the lyrics don't allude to that."

Aris Hampers released two CDs of material from both bands in 2000.

You're No Good can also be found on Sixties Archive, Vol. 6: Texas/Michigan Psych (CD) and Brain Shadows, Vol. II (LP & CD). (MW)

This Boston band made an excellent psychedelic album full of trippy lyrics, catchy organ work and, at times, fine guitar work. Almost all the tracks are interesting so it's difficult to single out individual ones. This is more commercial than most of the Bosstown Sound's offerings in 1968 and is now a collectors' item. Both singles are taken from the album. (VJ)

Postmark : N.Y.C./Julia's Face (ABC 11263) 1969

Produced by Bob Todd, Phoenix was a California rock quartet whose album is only of minor interest. The musicians are good, but the songs are weak and the production is direction-less, with ballads with strings, rock songs with horns. The best tracks are the ones used for the singles, plus I'm Leaving, You Arrived.

Their young black bassist, Tiran Porter, would later join the Doobie Brothers. (SR)

45: When Charlie's Doin' His Thing/
Three-Part Invention (Capitol 2227) 1968

An obscure harmony-pop single that reeks of L.A. and would have remained obscure but for Erik Lindgren featuring the flip on his weird 'n' wacky odyssey Only In America (CD). The top-side is pretty ordinary pop but Three-Part Invention is a haunting dirge that combines a Curt Boettcher type vocal collage and adds a David Axelrod backing track. Not psych, just extra-ordinary.

45: Minglewood Blues/Barefoot John (Piccadilly 241) 1967

This was a Portland, Oregon outfit, although they spent some time in San Francisco during the flower-power era. They recorded a number of tracks in the sixties for producer Jerry Dennon, but only the above single was issued at the time. An album collecting their material, entitled Merryjuana, was put out in the early eighties on Dennon's label but it is now extremely elusive. They had an eclectic sound with elements of jugband and sound musically reminiscent of bands like US Kaleidoscope and early Charlatans and Country Joe and The Fish.

PH PHACTOR - Merryjuana LP.

Paul Bassett became a poster artist and like Nick Ogilvie now lives in Portland. John Browne resides near Seattle and Steve Mork lives in Sacramento, California. A video "The Life And Times Of The Red Dog Saloon" which is due for release, includes extensive footage of a Red Dog reunion featuring the P.H. Phactor Jugband, Charlatans and others, as well as a soundtrack of period P.H. Phactor Jugband material and footage from the sixties.

You'll also find their version of Minglewood Blues on Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 (LP) and The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 3 (LP); Minglewood Blues, Merryjuana and Barefoot John on The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 3 (CD); and another cut, Rain Island, also features on the California Halloween (LP) compilation. ALBUM: 1(A) LOST IN THE COSMIC VOID
(Master Tapes 1973-1976) (Rockadelic RRLP 41) 2001

This album compiles previously unreleased material by a Cleveland, Ohio band. This retrospective compilation may interest those into freaky, spacey, electronic seventies psych/avant/prog. According to the liners, all bar two of the ten tracks were improvised and recorded in one pass. It's certainly 'out there, somewhere'. Side one has structured songs and appealing acid leads whilst side two is more of an electronic mayhem. Just 500 copies were pressed and some collectors rate this highly.

None of this Cleveland outfit's material appears to have been released during their existence.

Woody Leffel had been in several other local Ohio outfits - Renaissance Faire, Black Rose, Granicus and Believe. (VJ/MW)

45: In Awhile/
You've Done Me Wrong (Skifful no # (Rite 15587/8)) 1965

Known originally as The Vondels after their frontman, a change of name was required following his departure. Their new choice has a quaint, Anglophile ring to it and so did their sound. Smith & McIntosh's In Awhile (sic) is a folkish Merseybeat offering which found favour many years later with the compilers of Highs In The Mid Sixties Vol. 21 (LP), Fuzz, Flaykes, & Shakes Vol. 7 (LP/CD) and Psychedelic States: Ohio Vol. 3 (CD). Roger McIntosh penned the accomplished minor-mood flip, which has considerable Beatlesque charm.

Ron Skinner left to join Jerry and The Others. The band moved in a hard-rock direction and lasted into the early seventies. (MW/GG/David Jaffe/VJ)

45s: Reach Out/Evolution (Nasco 002) 1969
Universal Soldier/Dance Of Love (WRN WRN-45-101) 1970

Formed in Milwaukee in 1967 by the Milewski brothers after the break-up of the Richochett(e)s, their first single is well-regarded for the acid etched Evolution. Erik's Lindgren' description can't be topped - "Excessive flanging, searing guitar leads and heavily echoed drums add up to one far out enchanted musical journey". The 'A' side is a cover of the Four Tops' Reach Out (I'll Be There).

The band was together for around five years although latterly the personnel were apparently very fluid.

Evolution has been compiled on A Heavy Dose Of Lyte Psych (CD), Psychedelic Experience (CD), The Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 2 (LP) and Acid and Flowers (CD). (MW/GM)

Thanks to Mike Warth of Leighton Buzzard for drawing this album, which has attracted little interest from collectors to date, to my attention. It's a typical West Coast-sounding album with some nice female vocals from Cheri Gage, although most of the tracks feature harmony vocals. Mostly soft-rock it includes one good rocker, The Dancer. 45s: Hey Joe/Hold On I'm Coming (Wam 5948) 1966
Stay In My Life/You Don't Know Like I Know (Hamlin 2510) 1967

From the Youngstown, Ohio area, The Pied Pipers had quite a following on the local scene, and were second only in the pecking order to the Human Beinz. They played at teen dances locally and recorded at Wam studios in Youngstown (long shut-down) that cut many local bands.

Led by Dennis Sessonsky, who co-wrote Stay In My Life, the group lasted until 1970, and had many personnel changes. The last version, when they were known as The Pipers, also included Dick Belley, who had played with the Human Beinz.

Sessonsky was a bizarre character to be sure. He later metamorphosed into Dennis T. Menass, and then fronted Left End, the top Youngstown band throughout the seventies and early eighties. Left End also cut a few local singles and one album on Polydor.

The flip to their second single, You Don't Know Like I Know, was a Porter/Hayes Stax composition.

Compilation coverage to date has included: Stay In My Life and You Don't Know Like I Know on Everywhere Interferences (LP); Hey Joe on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 9 (LP) and Wyld Sydes Volume Six (CD); and Stay In My Life on Midnight To Sixty-Six (LP), Victims Of Circumstance, Vol. 2 (CD), Trip In Tyme Vol. 1 (CD) and Psychedelic States: Ohio Vol. 3 (CD). NB: α A-side shown as by The Montclairs, B-side shown as by Travis Pike & Brattle St. East; β shown as by Travis Pike's Tea Party.

Travis Pike was a veteran of bands as far back as 1959 (The Jesters) prior to forming the Tea Party. A prolific writer, he wrote numerous songs for the Tea Party that unfortunately were never released. The band's sole single was recorded at Joe Sawyer's AAA Recording Studio in Boston. In addition to composing music for and appearing on a local TV program, 'Here And Now', the Tea Party joined The Rockin' Ramrods on a promotional cruise for WRKO Radio. Despite a trip to California in 1968 to try and jump start the band's career, the Tea Party dissolved shortly thereafter.

45s: Bad Apple/You Satisfy Me (Mercury 72631) 1966
Do You Love Me?/Hey (Mercury 72706) 1967

Pilgrimage was from Long Island, New York. Bad Apple, is the pick of the crop - a thumpin' singalong punker. The flip, You Satisfy Me, is an R'n'B-influenced pounder, graced with rippling keyboards and the odd lead phrase.

The follow-up is not quite so impressive though their cover of Berry Gordy's Do You Love Me? is solid and probably inspired by the Dave Clark Five version.

Compilation appearances have included: Bad Apple on 60's Punk E.P., Vol. 3 (7"), Boulders (EP) Box Vol. 3; Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 3: Things Been Bad (LP & CD) and Victims Of Circumstance, Vol. 2 (CD); and You Satisfy Me and Bad Apple on Victims Of Circumstances, Vol. 1 (LP). 45: Valleri/Ol' Man River (Diamond D-231) 1967

ALBUM: 1(A) PINKINY CANANDY (UNI 73049) 1969

Produced by Mike Post, this is a strange concept album written and sung by Michael Chain which tells the adventures of Pinkiny Canandy, a super hero in pink clothes. Musically it's a mix of pop, pop-psych and rock with good guitars and unusual lyrics (Christopher Centipede, Mutual Indemnity Insurance Company etc.). One of the best tracks is Hello Hello (not the Sopwith Camel song).

The album came in a gatefold sleeve with two pages of Marvel-like cartoons. Prior to this project, Michael Chain had been in The Knack. (SR/MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) SOMETHING FISHY (Custom Fidelity CF-1452) 1965 R1

This San Marino, California band deployed a three-piece horn section which placed them somewhere between the normal surf outfit of the times and the garage bands beginning to emerge in this era. The album mostly comprised covers but there are a few originals. The instrumentals like Peter Gunn Theme and James Bond Theme are notable for their horns. There's a decent cover of Louie Louie and they deliver some raucous vocals on the garage material like Hitchhike and My Babe. Fittingly the album is presented in a cover with a piranha on the front. (VJ/MW)

	Naughty Girl/Cuttin' Out	(Back Stage 5001) 1966

These buccaneers operated out of New Orleans. They sound like a frat-party outfit on Big Boy Pete. Little Boy Sad is more garagy but can't top the Gants' version.

At the end of 1965 they backed local DJs C.C.Courtney and Lew Kirby in the guise of Their Singing Bodies and released a pair of singles under that name.

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl as These Guys Are Terrific (Eva 12023) 1984. (1) reissued on vinyl (Resurrection) 1984 with a black and white cover.

This is one of those gloriously rare garage albums. It contains nine covers in a somewhat pedestrian folk-rock garage style with vocals that occasionally stray into unknown keys - the strained and wavering 'harmonies' at the end of Bells Of Rhymney are worth the price of the reissue alone! Good clean fun as witness the 'for best results, remove the needle and play at 78 r.p.m.' tag!

The liner notes on the Eva reissue claim that the band came from Ohio, but this is incorrect as the album was recorded by four students who were based at Groton boarding school in Massachusetts. The school was a very strict place - with no radios allowed, and so whenever the band played they had a captive audience. Three members of the band are all cousins (all except Jerry Milbank) and still play together occasionally. Their album was recorded at Columbia Studios in New York.

Their version of We Gotta Get Out Of This Place has been compiled on Oil Stains (LP). (MW/AE)

45: Mr. White Collar Man/
When I See That Girl Of Mine (Wright W 6863) 1968

Poppy "garage" from Milwaukee, Wisconsin that sounds more like '65 or '66 and has too many sha-la-la's - it's nearer to teeny-pop sounds despite the moody keyboards. When I See That Girl Of Mine, is a cover of the Kinks and has popped up on Leaving It All Behind (LP). (MW)

45: Brighter Side/Cherry Road (Nottingham Disc Co) 1969

From Virginia, near Norfolk, this obscure group released a single with a good flip in the heavy garage style, with organ. Indeed, you'll also find Cherry Road on Aliens, Psychos & Wild Things Vol. 3 (CD). (SR/MW)

A group of punky rebels on the Richmond, California scene in 1966 this Plague have come to be regarded as a local legend by virtue of their exploits and tough image. They released no records but two members would end up in bands whose legacy has been preserved. Scott Donaldson joined Berkeley's Haymarket Riot (formerly The Livin' End) in late 1966. John Palmer had previously been in The Boys (with Randy Hammon) and would be in The Boys Blue and Lincoln's Promise before teaming up with Hammon again in the highly-regarded Savage Resurrection. Why Can't You Be True/
Through This World (Quarantined 2020) 1966
I've Been Through It Before/
(Clouds Send Down) Tears From My Eyes (Fenton 2070) 1966

This Lansing, Michigan outfit formed in 1964 and released three sought-after singles. Their finest moment I've Been Through It Before is a dramatic pounder with good riffs, a fine solo, and excellent use of fuzz throughout. Through This World exudes a fragile charm, encapsulating the innocent optimism of that time. Bassist Bill Malone was the chief songwriter and much of their material tended towards lighter, drippy garage-ballads.

The eighties bootleg EP gathers up their singles legacy with the exception of Badlands (was it that bad?) and is hard to find nowadays. The original singles are snapped up for silly money on the rare occasions that they resurface.

The Plagues became Plain Brown Wrapper shortly after the departure of Malone to The Frightened Trees in 1966. In the summer of 1967 Malone pulled up his roots and relocated to Studio City, California where he hoped to get into the movie business. Eventually he achieved his ambition and became a Hollywood director, best known for horror movies like 1999's 'House On Haunted Hill'. He has included a couple of songs by The Plagues in his film soundtracks/trailers and, in a 2008 interview, mentioned that his next film 'Parasomnia' ("a dark fairy tale") would include tracks and tributes to other Michigan garage bands. In the event he managed to feature a few, even writing them into the plot - the main character is searching for a copy of the Bossmen's She's The Girl For Me throughout the film? COOL!! The other tracks included were Bad Girl by The Bossmen and My Lovin' Days Are Through by The Sheffields.

Compilation appearances include: I've Been Through It Before on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 2: You Treated Me Bad (LP & CD), The Chosen Few, Vol. 2 (LP) and Michigan Mayhem Vol. 2 (CD); (Clouds Send Down) Tears From My Eyes on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 5: Nobody To Love (LP & CD); Why Can't You Be True on Destination Frantic! (LP & CD); and Why Can't You Be True, Through This World, I've Been Through It Before and (Clouds Send Down) Tears From My Eyes on *Scream Loud!!! This Lansing, Michigan rock band was previously known as The Plagues (line-up A). Their first foray, on a Fenton custom-label, featured You'll Pay, a bitter slice of girl-put-down invective which has reappeared on Let Em Have It Vol. 1 (CD) and Diggin' For Gold 7 (LP).

PLAIN JANE - Self Titled LP.

By their later singles they'd become a tight, funky rock band with a soulful sound. They lasted several years and a later line-up included Gary Story, formerly of Zookie And The Potentates. (MW)

45: Who's Drivin' This Train?/Num-Bird (Hobbit HB 42000) 1969

This pleasant and largely undiscovered dreamy rural-rock album benefits from a delightful clean-sounding production with superb harmonies and delicate yet funky melodies. Their dreamy organ sound, fragile harmonies and backwards fuzz guitar is best represented on tracks like Who's Drivin' This Train, You Can't Make It Alone and Mrs. Que. Others veer more towards pop, particularly the beautiful Silence and pleasant pop-rock of Not The Same. Certainly no lost gem, but its 10 cuts all are originals and the album's worth checking out.

45: Still In Love With You Baby/Exit Sticky Icky (JetSet 4296) 1967

This band met while attending high school in Santa Barbara, California. They played local battle of the bands, dances and club dates, eventually attracting the attention of The Surfaris' management team.

Interestingly, the flip side to their sole single, Exit Sticky Icky was originally written with the intention of using it as advertising for a soft rubber toy (the toy manufacturing company ultimately backed off the idea).

To capitalise on the single, the band spent a couple of months touring southern California. Their gimmick was playing with bags over their heads and in black capes. At the Univerity of California, Santa Barbara they played the world's longest song - literally hour after hour of Exit Sticky Icky (with members of Ernie and the Crabs aka Giant Crab and other friends helping out).

Still In Love With You Baby is compiled on Vile Vinyl, Vol. 2 (LP) and Vile Vinyl (CD). (SB/VJ)

Originally known as the Go-Mads, some members of this Orlando, Florida quintet were later in Cowboy (which also included Tom Talton and Tom Wynn of We The People).

Flower Girl is excellent Turtles-like garage-pop and was a local hit - it should be hauntingly familiar since it borrows heavily from The Easybeats' Friday On My Mind. The flip is noisy pop with grating falsetto harmonies.

The band used to play regularly at Winter Park Youth Center in Orlando.

Flower Girl was compiled in 1968 on the rare sampler album Bee Jay Video Soundtrack (Tener 1014) but has blossomed again on Psychedelic States - Florida Vol. 2 (CD). (MW/JLh/RM)

This band formed in 1962 in Moberly, Missouri as the Checkmates but changed name to Plato and The Philosophers in 1965 and lasted until 1970. The Thirteen O'Clock Flight To Psychedelphia (CD) retrospective features the band's story, from which the personnel is confirmed, and features fourteen tracks: the It single and many unreleased goodies - two versions of Thirteen O'Clock..., Wishes, the proposed third single Doomsday Nowhere City/I Knew, and seven others from 1968 onwards, which include some excellent heavy acid-punkers. Other artists feature on the CD - Something Wild, Smoke (Houston's ex-Nomads) and the Fortunes.

Their first single was a routine garage effort. You'll also find I Don't Mind, on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. 111 (LP). Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. 11 (LP) and Garage Beat '66 5 (CD) includes Thirteen O'Clock Flight To Psychedelphia. This Texas band originated from McAllen but were later based in Houston and played between 1965-70. Their music was a mixture of punk, folk-rock and rock'n'roll with their first two singles best described as garage-folk. By the time of their three singles for "123" they had become more rock-orientated. In 1970, they changed their name to P.O.E. making an album and a single for UNI. A decent album in a heavy-psych vein, Up Through The Spiral is a concept album based on the life of Edgar Cayce. The title track is a superb pop-psych tune and A Debt To Pay also exhibits some fine harmonies.

All of The Playboys Of Edinburg singles listed above are non-album.

The Williams brothers later recorded a single, When I Think Of You/Springtime (JSM 101), as James and Michael which was also leased to London (257) for nationwide distribution.

Baton Rouge, Louisiana was home to this teen band that came up with the pretty frantic I Gotta Be Goin', unfortunately Baby No More is a rather lame garage ballad with two left feet!

The single was produced by Nick Benedetto with his brother and recorded at on 14th August 1965 at La Louisiane Studio in Lafayette, Louisiana. Rebic was their label and the brothers also handled bookings for the band, getting them gigs all over the South, including Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and elsewhere. Nick remembers: - "We sometimes travelled with them while holding down day jobs and raising families. It was quite a time. They opened for Johnny Rivers, and played on the stage between showings of the Beatles movie "Help". When Moyse left, Wayne Chapman took over the vocals and another musician was added".

Compilation appearances have included: - I Gotta Be Goin' on Louisiana Punk Groups From The Sixties, Vol. 2 (LP), Sixties Archive, Vol. 3 (CD) and Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 15 (LP & CD); and Baby No More on Shutdown '66 (LP). (VJ/MW)

	Light Of Love/Good Kind Of Hurt	(Mercury 72800) 1968

Out of Detroit, Michigan this was a rather special all girl band in that it figured on bass a teenage Suzi Quatro. Suzi along with her friends and sisters used to attend Harper Woods clubs to watch local bands such as The Fugitives and Underdogs and one evening a comment to the club's owner Dave Leone that the current band playing "were crap" led to an invitation to do better. So it was that, towards the end of 1964 Suzi and her friends put together The Pleasure Seekers and trundled through versions of Loopy Lou, Louie Louie and Twist And Shout at the club. Leone subsequently offered them a one-off deal with his Hideout label, penning What A Way To Die - a crude homage to beer, whilst the band wrote the flip - an altogether more melodic folk-rocker.

The Pleasure Seekers soon found themselves playing gigs up and down the East Coast, from South Carolina to New York, playing everything from Teen Hops to Strip Clubs. In New York, future New York Doll Jerry Nolan even helped out on drums for a short while when Nancy Ball had to quit due to family pressure... In those days Rock'n'Roll was far from an acceptable 'career path'!

In 1967, the band signed to Mercury and released a more pop-soul orientated single - they also flew out to Vietnam to play for the troops there, but with the music scene rapidly changing and the emergence of the 'heavier' sound they decided to call it quits, with Suzi moving on to an outfit called Cradle.

The Pleasure Seekers singles are rare and obviously sought-after.

Another Pleasure Seekers' single, If You Climb On The Tigers Back/(Theme from) Valley Of The Dolls on Capitol (2050) from 1967 is almost definitely by a different outfit.

Thanks to Dave Tulloch/Faren Short and Jon 'Mojo' Mills from 'Shindig' mag for allowing us to plunder their info and help get the facts straight!

ALBUM: 1(A) DECEPTIVE LINES (Capitol ST-692) 1971 SC

This album is mostly comprised of typical early seventies progressive/hard-rock, with strong vocals, good guitar and quite a lot of woodwind. It may interest fans of the progressive/hard-rock genre.

This five-man band began playing under the name "Creedmore State" until Nicky and Arnie Ungano of the famed defunct New York City rock club of the same name took them under their wings and signed the band to Capitol Records under the name Plum Nelly. They either played with or opened for many famous acts such Bo Diddley, B.B. King, Buddy Guy, Jimi Hendrix, The Kinks, Savoy Brown, John Mayall, Fleetwood Mac, Rod Stewart and The Faces, Joe Cocker, Dr. John, Muddy Waters, Terry Reid and notably at Carnegie Hall with The James Gang.

The band recorded the album Deceptive Lines at Capitol East, November through December 1970 along with producer Kenneth Cooper. Guests on the album included Jeremy Steig (of Jeremy and The Satyrs) on flute and The Sweet Inspirations were featured on the background vocals of Lonely Man's Cry. The Sweet Inspirations were led by Cissy Houston who is Whitney Houston's mum. They also were Elvis Presley's and Aretha Franklin's back-up singers during this period. Dave Bash Johnson played congas on the song Carry On.

POLYPHONY

POLYPHONY - Without Introduction... LP.

The group toured the US during the early seventies and relocated in Los Angeles in 1974. It was at this time that John Murphy replaced Bob Feit, who went on to become Tina Turner's bass player.

Plum Nelly disbanded in 1976. It was during this time that Walker formed the first incarnation of "The John Earl Walker Band," circa late seventies to early eighties.

In the late seventies, Walker and Murphy played clubs such as Gildersleeves and The Electric Circus and in the early eighties performed as The Rockers with more of a new wave sound.

At present John Murphy still plays with Walker in The John Earl Walker Band, a New York blues outfit. Coincidentally he replaced bass player Peter Harris in Walker's band yet again, in 2001.

This act should not be confused with the Texas-based outfit that later became known as Mother of Pearl. (VJ/EHs)

Brown Eyed Handsome Man (Warner Bros. 5475) 1964
Roll Over Stephen Foster/
Girl From The North Country (Valiant V-729) 1965
Don't Say Why/Walk A Lonely Mile (Valiant V-737) 1966

These may be two different outfits - normally one would associate Valiant with L.A. acts so why does this crop up on a New England compilation? There was certainly a Plymouth Rockers in L.A. in 1966 playing the Whisky A Go-Go, comprising the personnel listed and the Warner Bros single was produced by David Gates indicating L.A. again. Who knows - an itinerary troupe or just another compilation cock-up?

Who cares anyway - decent garagy folk/rock'n'roll beatsters is where they were at. Don't Say Why (an Addrisi brothers composition) is a great fuzzy pop-punker, whilst the flip is excellent folky-beat-pop and sounds remarkably like the early Association stuff - (L.A. again!). This single was produced by Don Dalton and D. Moore.

You can also check out Don't Say Why on New England Teen Scene, Vol. 2 (LP). (MW/SR)

45:	Life Beyond The Clouds/Wondering	(Castle 111) c1970

Turn-of-decade keyboard dominated rock from Camden, New Jersey that should appeal to prog-rock fans. The single was recorded at MSI studios in Camden, New Jersey and both tracks were written by Sanson/Siganuk. Wondering is rather fragmented by the time and mood changes. Life Beyond The Clouds has some solid riffin' interrupted by lighter passages that may work for some listeners. The band sounds like they want to let loose, but never do, even on the solos. (MW/DJe)

Here's a pop-beat outfit from Phoenix, Arizona. Their cover of John Sebastian's On The Road Again is snappy and competent whilst I'm Glad I Knew You is excellent Beatlesque beat. Their next single, a folk-rock-pop Sloan-Barri cover backed by an up-tempo version of the Beau Brummels' classic, proved popular enough to be picked up and released by Tower in November 1966. Not strictly garage, they remain uncompiled to date, but shouldn't be overlooked by those who enjoy good sixties beat and pop. (MW)

What You Done Done is a strange combination of rough 'n' ready rock with The Association, which leaves the impression that maybe they could have achieved more than they did on this cut. Pennies is just as intelligent, has nice vocal harmonies and a shrewd arrangement. Some unexpected discordant effects towards the end are very pleasing and lift the song into the category of interesting flip-sides. (MK/MW)

Let Me In is a brutal garagy hard-rock item from Youngstown, Ohio. Rock City does not figure on their album, which is a very important collectors' item for hard-rock fans. There's lots of driving, sometimes fuzzy guitar on tracks like Mr. Destroyer, which recalls Black Sabbath, Live To Work which features some decent guitar work, and the finale title track Let Me In, which is marred by the obligatory drum solo. Bowleen has some interesting guitar and percussion and ends with the sound of a flushing toilet. Unlikely, though, to interest psych fans.

They recorded beyond the time span of this book. In addition to Steamroller (Peppermint 1180) 1979, which had a lyric insert and has been reissued on CD (Monster 016) 2005, there's also a later test pressing Live At Snug Harbor, Chittaqua, New York (Cleveland Recording Company), which circulated without a cover and is rarely ever seen. 	My Mind Goes High/ Knowing You, Loving You	(York 404) 1967	-
	Come Back Baby/Feelin' Down	(Decca 32318) 1968	-

NB: There's also another single He's My Best Friend/? (?). Both sides are written by Don MacAllister. The 'A' side He's My Best Friend is actually really catchy. There's also a retrospective CD, The Poor (Rev-Ola CRREV34) that comprised alternate recordings of their classic psych-pop/folk rock repertoire, including some songs never before released. Also included are extensive liner notes with involvement from band members

Another interesting group, The Poor came from Colorado. Not only did they include Nebraskan Randy Meisner, who as you probably all know was later in Poco and The Eagles, but Tom Shipley and Mike Brewer (of Brewer and Shipley fame) both wrote for the group.

Formed in late 1963 out of the ashes of The Soul Survivors, John Day left before the singles were recorded and returned to Denver. His replacement was Randy Naylor who was likewise replaced in late '67 by Veder Van Doren (ex-Moonrakers). The band also got to open for Buffalo Springfield in December 1966.

Once Again and My Mind Goes High were composed by Mike Clough & Mike Crawley, originally of folk/comedy act The Back Porch Majority; the duo branched off as M.C.2 (aka M.C.Squared) and released their own version of My Mind Goes High.

She's Got The Time (She's Got The Changes) is usually considered their best effort. Tom Shipley wrote it and evidenced by this they played a kind of folk-pop with lots of hooks and melodies, refined vocals and chiming guitars. She's Got The Time was also covered in the U.K. by a group called Afex. The song was popular around the Midwest and in search of fame and fortune the band relocated to Los Angeles, where they worked as The North Serrano Blues Band.

Of their other recordings, Mike Brewer wrote Feelin' Down, Allen Kemp wrote How Many Tears, Naylor composed Love Is Real and Meisner penned Come Back Baby.

Whilst in L.A., Jim Bell of the Ballroom was also involved with the band to the extent that Curt Boettcher produced some material for them and was introduced to future Millennium member Joey Stec through them... Randy Naylor also co-wrote some songs with Boettcher during the Ballroom period, whilst Meisner, Young and Shanahan were also employed by Boettcher for his Millennium projects.

The band split in 1968 when Kemp and Shanahan went on to join Rick Nelson's Stone Canyon Band. The retrospective CD released by Rev-Ola is the best way to check out the band now. It brings together the two Soul

POOBAH - Let Me In LP.

Survivors singles with the quartet of Poor singles and adds Study In Motion #1, which appeared on the soundtrack of the film 'Hells Angels On Wheels'.

John Day went on to play with Two Guitars, Piano, Drum and Darryl, the group formed by ex-Daily Flash Don MacAllister and Craig Tarwater with former Dynamics drummer Ron Woods and Iron Butterfly singer Darryl DeLoach.

Curiously many unusual guitar riffs used by various incarnations of all these guys up to and including The Eagles were apparently inspired by their drummer Pat Shanahan's attempts to play various cliche Rock'n'Roll riffs!!

Compilation appearances have included: - She's Got The Time (She's Got The Changes) on Highs In The Mid Sixties, Vol. 18 (LP) and Shadows Falling (CD); She's Got The Time (She's Got The Changes) and My Mind Goes High on Psychedelic States: Colorado (2-CD); How Many Tears and Come Back Baby on Fading Yellow Vol. 2 (CD); and Feelin' Down on Every Groovy Day (LP). Bouncy, twee, saccharine pop by a chirpy male trio from Detroit, whose sense of fashion is almost as dire as this album. A Michigan outfit whose privately-pressed relaxed folky/jamming album is hard to track down. It was recorded at Uncle Dirty's Sound Machine Studios in Kalamazoo, home of John Drendall & B.A. Thrower and Magi. The opening cut sounds like it belongs on the first Mighty Baby album. (CF)

Hailed from Michigan and Michigan Mixture, Vol. 1 (LP) showcases their single cuts: - Once Upon A Time, which has some pleasant woodwind and Hello, a keyboard-driven song, which has its moments.

One historically significant fact that has come to light is that the Magenda single represents the first released waxing of Marvin Lee Aday, known to the world as Meat Loaf. 5,000 copies were pressed in all so it's not very rare - but no doubt there'll be a stampede for any copy that appears and its price will soar.

45: Psychotic Reaction/13 O'Clock Theme (HBR 500) 1967

This was actually the work of Mouse and The Traps recording under a pseudonym with the singer Jimmy Rabbit and without Bugs Henderson or Doug Rhone on lead guitar. The single also appeared on a French EP issued on Vogue (18099). The other two tracks were by an outfit called TV and The Tribe Men. Incidentally, Jimmy Rabbit was actually known as a big-time AM DJ in Dallas; singing was only a side project for him.

Psychotic Reaction has been compiled on Pebbles, Vol. 1 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 1 (CD), Pebbles Box (5-LP), Songs We Taught The Fuzztones (2-LP & 2-CD), Trash Box (5-CD), Great Pebbles (CD) and Garagelands 2 (LP). POWDER - Biff! Bang! Powder CD.

ALBUM: 1 BIFF! BANG! POWDER (Distortions DR 1015) 1993

NB: (1) also issued on CD (Distortions DR 1015) 1996 with 15 bonus tracks including side projects by Ray Columbus and Art Collection.

Hailing from San Mateo on the San Francisco peninsula, Powder evolved out of The Art Collection, who teamed up with visiting New Zealand singer Ray Columbus for the demonic garage fuzz thrash, Kick Me - which is joined on the album by the then unreleased and far more commercial Snap Crackle And Pop. Both songs were taped at the start of 1967. The next five tracks on the album were taped after Columbus' departure, when the band's live set confused audiences who were used to the blossoming psychedelia of the time. By early 1968 the band had evolved into the altogether more satisfactory Powder, whose entire recorded legacy (16 tracks) appear on the vinyl mentioned above (mostly from an aborted album taped at Hollywood's Gold Star Studios in 1968). The final four tracks wrap up the story with some post-Powder recordings from 1969 by Thomas and Richard Frost, who later went solo.

They had one previously unreleased cut Gladly included in the flexi that came with 'Cream Puff War 2'. (VJ/GG)

	Children Ask (If He Is Dead)/ She Is The Color Of	(MGM K 13815) 1967

This is a strange one indeed. Whilst She Is The Color Of is a whimsical pop ballad, the topside is difficult to bag - it could be described as early MOR-ish Iron Butterfly with its quasi-religious keyboard doodlings similar to Doug Ingle. Add to that deep manly vocals like Ingle (again) or Sean Bonniwell, religious lyrics and occasional fuzzy guitar and... well, it's touted as 'psych' by specialist dealers - but make up your own mind!

Robin Johnston recalls: - "The band was originally called The Wild Ones, and we were from the South Bay, mainly Torrance and Hawthorne, having started out as a surf band in the very early sixties. We worked our way into being one of the house bands at the Hullabaloo in Hollywood, playing there with some of the biggest acts in the world. The other house bands were The Palace Guard, The Yellow Payges and The East Side Kids. The Hullabaloo was owned by Gary Bookasta, who was the manager of The Palace Guard and us, and I think The Yellow Payges. He worked very hard to mould all of us into hit bands and brought in professional songwriters to give us songs to record. Gary later bought KROQ radio station, but I don't know where he is now, maybe in Washington, D.C., as a lobbyist."

Power of Zeus
THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO ZEUS

POWER OF ZEUS - The Gospel According To Zeus CD.

"Children Ask and She Is The Color Of were written by Bernie Schwartz who is given credit on the single, but also by Morgan Cavett. We were presented the songs and rehearsed them at The Hullabaloo and recorded them at Paramount studios on Santa Monica Blvd., I think in the spring or early summer of 1967. The original title was Children Ask If God Is Dead, but we were told we couldn't use the name 'God' on the radio like that so we had to go back in and re-record the lyrics to say, Children Ask If He Is Dead. We then did a summer tour from southern to northern California with The Standells and The East Side Kids. On the tour we passed through San Francisco and Haight-Ashbury, right in the middle of The 'Summer Of Love'."

"Then, a small-time DJ from L.A. joined the Navy and became stationed at the Naval Base in Biloxi, Mississippi, and had taken our record with him where he started playing it on the air. It got some response so in November of '67 we went to Biloxi for four weeks and played there in clubs, also in New Orleans, including a couple of TV spots."

"Then we came back and played at the Hullabaloo for two more months and then broke up because of the draft, the bass player and I both going into the military."

"We had a good time back then, and as I look back now, we were only 16, 17, and 18 years old, so young and naive."

Children Ask (If He Is Dead) has been compiled on Garagelands, Vol. 2 (CD). (MW/SR/RJn)

ALBUM: 1 THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO ZEUS (Rare Earth RS-516) 1970 R1

NB: (1) was also released in Germany. (1) reissued on vinyl (Xian 1) c2002. (1) later counterfeited on vinyl with a slightly changed back cover (Rare Earth) 2005. (1) reissued on CD (Akarma AK 318) 2005. (1) reissued on CD (Buy Or Die BOD 109) 1995.

Power of Zeus came from Detroit, Michigan. Their heavy keyboard, guitar-dominated album is becoming a minor collectable and may interest some readers, though I certainly wouldn't recommend it to garage or psych purists. They did not record any singles for this label.

It Couldn't Be Me has been compiled on White Lace & Strange (CD) and In The Night can also be found on Up All Night (CD). (VJ/NK)

Powers of Blue (NY)

ALBUM: 1 FLIP OUT (MTA MTS-5002) 1967 SC

45s:	Good Lovin'/(I Can't Get No) Satisfaction	(MTA 113) 1966
	Cool Jerk/You Blow My Mind	(MTA 118) 1967

This was a New York City studio project featuring Hugh McCracken, a session guitarist, who later did work for Paul Simon (1975), Henry Gross (1976), Paul McCartney (1971) and Gary Wright (1970-71), to name but a few.

A regular on the New York sixties scene he was in several groups and released two singles on Congress as Hugh McCracken and The Funatics in 1965 and 1966. Power of Blue was a folk-rock group with a garage/psychedelic sound and brass. Flip Out consisted of instrumental covers of some of the 'hip' sounds of the times - Paper Back Writer, The Midnight Hour, Cool Jerk, Bang Bang, Got My Mojo Working, The Tracks Of My Tears and Satisfaction. The covers are almost entirely devoid of fuzz. A sort of Duane Eddy goes garage! Not recommended.

You Blow My Mind is a passable garage punk instrumental and has recently been compiled on the Everything You Always Wanted To Know... (CD). (MW/VJ)

An obscure outfit from Jacksonville, Florida whose Miss Dove has resurfaced on Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 3 (CD).

They are credited on the CD track listing and liners as The Powers Uv Purple despite the depicted single label showing that they were credited as The Blues Uv Purple (though this was a sticker over the original band name). Anyone know the story behind this? (MW/MM)

	The Zeke/Quit Talkin' 'Bout Him	(Pep 102) 1965

NB: A French EP on Barclay (70890) features the four tracks from the first two 45s.

This raw L.A. punk band came from the Hollywood area. They are best known for their version of Bo Diddley's Who Do You Love? The Preachers gave it gritty treatment with snarling vocals and a wild chorus.

According to Pebbles, three of these guys went on to the final line-up of The Vejtables (after Jan Errico and Ned Hollis had left) to record the excellent Shadows/Feel The Music psych-punk single and five other unreleased tracks. Richard Fortunato co-wrote both tracks on the single and was one of the three. He'd later turn up in the post-Bees W.C. Fields Memorial Electric String Band, ESB and Fields and may have been in The Bees too.

Rudy Garza recalls: - "Hal Tennant did all of the guitar leads on all the records and the initial line-up gave us our best sound. I always thought of the band as a hard-rock blues band. Punk hadn't been invented then. The band's line-up was pretty stable, except for vocalists. After Richard Fortunato we switched to a guy named Burke. He didn't last too long as his voice was too pure and we soon hired John English. This gave us our punkish sound and punkish lyrics. When we broke up Hal joined the W.C. Fields Memorial Electric String Band not Richard. I think Richard joined The Vejtables. Just before we broke up The Preachers recorded Moanin' (a jazz tune done in a rock style) and Just Don't Complain (another punk tune written by me and John English). The label, Moonglow then released this as John English III."

The Moanin' compilation compiles the three singles they recorded as The Preachers and one further one as John English and The Lemondrops.

Compilation appearances include: Who Do You Love? on Pebbles, Vol. 1 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 1 (CD), The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 1 (2-CD), Pebbles Box (5-LP), Punk Classics, Vol. 5 (7"), Acid Dreams - The Complete 3 LP Set (3-LP), Acid Dreams Epitaph (CD), Trash Box (5-CD), Straight From The Garage Vol. 5 (EP), Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 1: Jump, Jive & Harmonize (LP & CD) and Garage Beat '66 3 (CD); and Stay Out Of My World on Project Blue, Vol. 3 (LP), Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 3 (LP & CD) and Garage Beat '66 3 (CD). 	α	Inspiration/ Hallowed Ground	(Righteous Enterprises RE-1003) 1966

NB: α 'A' side is the same version.

A different outfit from Birmingham, Alabama who released their singles on a label run by the Righteous Brothers. Mike Markesich reports that their strongest track is Inspiration, a Dylan-inspired rant, and that Hallowed Ground is "a big production number supposedly used in a movie soundtrack (but you can't believe everything you read on labels!)".

Group leader David Keller acted as producer and arranger alongside producer Steve Norris (another band member?) and became a promoter and booker of local bands, including The Omen & Their Luv.

Dedicated is a slow soulful rendition of Dedicated To The One I Love, whilst the flip is upbeat sax-y pop.

Inspiration has been compiled on Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 2 (CD). (MW/MM/PRd)

NB: There's also a French EP with picture sleeve: Farmer John/Cross My Heart/Anymore/Feel Like Dancing (Warner WP 1437) 1966.

This outfit from San Gabriel, California predates the psychedelic era, but may be of interest to readers in view of the inclusion of Farmer John - their most famous song - on several compilations. Dressed in matching suits The Premiers were atypical of their era.

Farmer John appeared on the compilation East Side Revue, Vol. 1 (LP) (Rampart 3303). East Side Revue Vol. 2 (LP) included their Get On This Plane. These two albums were later available as a 2-LP set East Side Revue (Rampart 3303-3305) 1969.

Larry Tamblyn (of The Standells) produced at least the last two Faro singles. John Perez later played for the Sir Douglas Quintet.

Retrospective compilation appearances have included: Farmer John on Nuggets - Original Artyfacts From The First Psychedelic Era 1965-1968 (2-LP), Nuggets Box (4-CD), and The West Coast East Side Sound, Vol. 3 (CD); Get On This Plane on Boulders, Vol. 2 (LP), Psychedelic Experience (CD), The Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 1 (LP), The West Coast East Side Sound, Vol. 4 (CD) and *Where The Action Is! 2 EVERY LOVING DAY (Recorded Publications Company RPC Z-50171/50172) 1972 R2

From Boston, Massachusetts Prentice and Tuttle was a druggy garage folk duo. Their songs are reported to be mostly short and starkly arranged with some piano and 12-string acoustic guitar. Just 400 copies of each album were pressed according to a label discography. (VJ/GG)

Preparations (?)

45: Nobody But You Girl/
That's When He Remembers (Mainstream 720) 1970

Mainstream completists beware, as this features devastatingly ill-advised calypso-meets-soul-trash on Nobody But You Girl with some of the worst horns in history. The flip is just simply chaotic and banal, which in this case is a deliverance... (MK)

Pressed Down, Shaken Together and Running Over (?)

ALBUM: 1 PRESSED DOWN, SHAKEN TOGETHER
AND RUNNING OVER (Almond Tree 20423) 197? SC

This good Christian psych group's album is presented in a fine sleeve. Some cuts are featured on the Holy Fuzz compilation. Some group members went on to play with Selah. The label was based in Ohio, which may be a clue as to this band's origins. They continued recording beyond the time frame of this book. (SR/VJ)

45: I Know/
Many's The Slip Twixt The Cup & The Lip (Philips 40466) 1967

An unknown act from Brooklyn, New York left this flower-power offering during the 'Summer Of Love'. I Know is a sultry folk-rock jangler with harmonica; it seeks to address the generation gap, with harmony and understanding of course. Check it out on Byrds Won't Fly Today (LP). (MW)

PRESSED DOWN, SHAKEN TOGETHER AND RUNNING OVER - Self Titled LP.

Preston (MI)

45: This World Is Closing In On Me/
Waterfall (orange vinyl) (Sound Patterns 110) 1967/8

This single is the work of a Detroit, Michigan group. This World Is Closing In On Me, is rather interesting, a sort of haunting piece of psychedelia with some orchestration. This 'outfit' was persistent to say the least - the single was later released on three other labels, all as by Chris Carpenter (Oceanside, Sidra and United Artists). The Preston version is much hotter, with the fuzz guitar and mysterious organ higher in the mix.

Preston/Chris Carpenter would appear to be Preston Carnes - Waterfalls was co-written by P.Carnes, who produced both sides; This World was written by L. Drake who arranged both sides. Among Carnes' earlier singles was Someone/Romancing Barbara (Astro 3006, 1963) on which he was backed by Lenny (Drake) & The Thundertones.

You can also check out This World Is Closing In On Me on Magic Carpet Ride (LP), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 11 (LP), Slowly Growing Insane (CD) and Sixties Archive, Vol. 6: Texas/Michigan Psych (CD). (VJ/MW/KBn)

ALBUM: 1 THE PRETTY PEOPLE (Crestview CRS-3056) 1970 SC

Housed in a green and red "psychedelic" cover, this album was the work of a large group (two female singers and five men) singing light pop-psych in the style of Free Design or The Association with songs like Song Rider, Hard Luck Stories, Just For Today and Lady Melinda. Recorded at Sound Factory West, Hollywood, their album was produced by Randall Wood and all their material was original.

A short-lived label, Crestview also released the album by Victims Of Chance. (SR/VJ)

Nancy Priddy is a beautiful blonde California singer and the mother of actress Christina Applegate. She sings in a folk-psych/soft-rock style, with tracks like Epitaph, Ebony Glass and Mystic Lady.

Her voice can also be heard on the series of Mort Garson's "Signs Of The Zodiac". (SR)

ALBUM: 1 PRIDE (Warner Bros. WS 1848) 1970

NB: (1) repressed 1998.

Primarily remembered (and cursed by many) for hijacking The Electric Prunes and turning them into a faceless concept band with Mass In F Minor and Release of An Oath, David Axelrod was to continue in this vein for a couple more years with a trilogy of albums before this release. An acoustic sound is to the fore and a decidedly Spanish feel, it's rather stretching the term psychedelic but for those who enjoyed the feel (and pretentiousness) of Mass this album could be of interest. Tracks include Proud Sorrow, The Death Of Juan Diaz, The Truth, In The Wilderness, Worthless Pleasures and Song Of The Pirate. David Axelrod also produced a single for Moorpark Intersection and David McCallum albums for Capitol. (MW/JFrVJ)

45: When You Made Love To Me /
Shadows Of A Day Gone By (Sock-O PRS-45-2002) 1967

This singoe is an obscure Brooklyn outfit's gift to posterity. When You Made... is a gloriously simple but effective garage ballad with tambourines, bells and chimes to the fore and a restrained guitar solo - check it out on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 2 (2-LP & CD) where it's better described as "...great Eastern sound to the guitar, chimes blending well with a heavily staggered stepping crescendo chorus". Disappointingly the flip is a Coasters-style lounge-ballad.

The Pastor brothers were the sons of jazz bandleader Tony Pastor. (MW/RM)

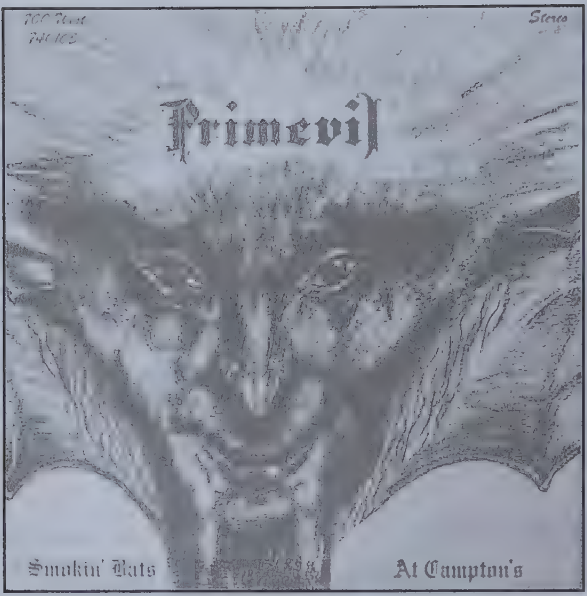
PRIDE - Self Titled LP.



PRIMEVIL - Smokin' Bats At Campton's LP.

This is an example of seventies hard-rock at its best with some superb twin lead guitar work from Larry Lucas and Jay Wilfong. Some of the tracks move into progressive rock territory. The band came from Indiana and the album appeared on the small 700 West label, which also issued Zerfas and Sequoiah.

This band was also responsible for the anonymous Buccaneer album and singles released circa 1980. (VJ/CF)

Primrose Circus (CA)

45:	P.S. Call Me Lulu/In My Mind	(Mira 246) 1968

Primrose Circus was a hopelessly obscure but rather good L.A. pop group judging by this sole single. Perhaps they were a studio group. P.S Call Me Lulu, is a decent enough harmony pop effort, whilst In My Mind really is a very good ballad.

Compilation appearances have included: P.S. Call Me Lulu on Mindrocker, Vol. 10 (2-LP) and Nuggets Vol. 5 (LP); and In My Mind on Sixties Punk Ballads Sampler (LP) and Sixties Archives Vol. 5 (LP). (VJ)

45:	Shoulder Of A Giant/Exit	(JRJ 2115) 1965

This outfit came from Mankato in southern Minnesota. Their single was recorded in an old schoolhouse in 1965. 1,000 copies were made originally, with a later repress of 5,000. It's the flip side, Exit, an energetic punk-style instrumental, which now attracts interest. Shoulder Of A Giant was a bit of a bummer.

Eddie Helder went on to a solo career releasing two singles in the early seventies. Bob Lee and Steve Christiansen both later moved to Las Vegas, whilst Bob's identical twin Ron still lives in Mankato.

You can also hear Exit on Mondo Frat Dance Bash A Go Go (CD), The Midwest Vs. Canada (LP) and The Arf! Arf! Blitzkrieg 32 Track Sampler (2-CD). (VJ/MW/CT)

ALBUM: 1(A) DREAMING THE MAGIC OF YOUR MAYA (Akashic 22) 1968 R4

This album was recorded in Paris when Daevid Allen (after leaving Soft Machine) teamed up with a group of Americans. The six-track sojourn is dominated by flute with spasmodic vocals reciting poems. Other backing includes guitar and occasional Jews harp. The album is reported to have been released in New York and the 'band' did not survive the Paris riots of that year. (VJ)

	Gone/You're My Love	(Philips 40379) 1966

Here's some decent garagy frat-beat from a bunch of students at Iowa State University, Ames. Georgianna is an early Critters' track whilst Killer Joe is a lightweight Louie, Louie-style shuffler; the second single covers two popular party movers. The Wand single couples two garage-frat faves; both are performed with verve and rockin' competence.

You're My Love is catchy garage, full of throbbing organ. It has been compiled on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 5: The Cave (LP & CD). (MW)

	Jewelry Lady/I'm Looking At You	(Tee Pee 35/6) 1967

Led by the talented Doug Yankus, this Appleton, Wisconsin outfit formed in 1966. Doug's previous groups included Ritchie Dino and The Dukes (Ritchie Dino was a stage-name Yankus adopted), The Versatones and The Strangers From Digil. 'Digil' was the name given to the basement room in the Yankus household that was used for music, parties and band practice.

Chuck Posniak was previously in The Memories. He left Private Property Of Digil in mid-1967. His elder brother Al Posniak had started the Target and Tee Pee labels after leaving the Golden Catalinas.

Their singles mix beat, folk-rock and multi-part harmonies with a quirky aura. On Look At Me the harmonies are unsettling and deliberately off-key. The melodic and jangley Destination Nowhere is a stand-out despite the Four Seasons-style falsettos. Patch Of Brick is a haunting and sombre ballad with interesting time changes, marred by an annoying glitch on the master tape, whose passage of hiss seems worse on the CD than on the original single. The Sunshine Flames and Jewelry Lady singles are probably their strongest, comprising upbeat Byrdsian folk-rock.

Private Property Of Digil folded in 1968. Doug Yankus formed Soup with Dave Faas and Doug Griffith. They released one single and a sought-after album, that have been reissued on the above CD with the Private Property Of Digil singles. They lasted until the mid-seventies.

Doug Yankus later formed Soft Touch and the Doug Yankus Band. He has appeared on recordings by John Hiatt, Ry Cooder, Roseanne Cash, Tracy Nelson, and Mother Earth amongst others. He passed away in 1982 due to complications arising from diabetes. The Soup CD is dedicated to his memory with proceeds going to the Diabetic Foundation.

Compilation coverage has included: - Sunshine Flames on Every Groovy Day (LP); To My Friends on Badger Beat Chronicles (LP); and Princess on Leaving It All Behind (LP). (RM/SY/MW)

Venturini and Leonetti had previously been in the Soul Survivors and, according to the liner notes; Privilege from Philadelphia was formed to mix the influence of Hendrix with the Isley Brothers and The Soul Survivors. The resulting album has its moments, especially because of its good guitar parts with loads of effects (fuzz, wah wah etc.). Tracks like Purple Dog and Traitor also have effective vocals with a good rhythm.

T. Neck was a subsidiary label of Buddah. (SR)

45: Tailspin/Chain Reaction (GRT 17) 1969

From Philadelphia, this was one of a handful of Philly bands picked up on a scouting trip by the Los Angeles label. A great psych single with eerie organ and a swirly climax with sound effects. Both sides were composed by Gary Brauner and Steve Carpenter.

PRIVILEGE - Self Titled CD.

Mike Kuzmin suggests in his 'Sounds From The Woods' book that this could be the same Steve Carpenter who had put out two solo singles: You're Putting Me On/Something Good Is Happening To Me (Brunswick 55322) 1967, and Am I Lost/Sweet Talk (Impex 368) 1968.

From Rockford, Illinois this band released an extremely rare album on their own label. It contains eight tracks. They are mostly hard-rock, although some of the songs are blues-tinged. Among them are a cover of The Steve Miller Band's Living In The U.S.A. and the traditional Rock Me. The most psychedelic track is Carol. Some collectors like the lead guitar and organ interplay. (VJ/GG)

	Heard You Went Away/Call Out My Name	(Laurie 3396) 1967

Formed around 1966 and originally known as The Gas Company (also line-up 'A'), this group were based in Fort Lauderdale, Florida. Heard You Went Away, composed by The Birdwatchers' Bobby Puccetti, is Pet Sounds cloned harmony-pop. The equally summery flip was penned by The Nightcrawlers' Chuck Conlan.

Kirkpatrick had earlier been in the Aerovons. Kirkpatrick and Terry's next outfit was The Game in 1970. Ex-members of Proctor Amusement Co. and The Game regrouped in the late seventies as The Crane.

Jeff Lemlich's sixties Florida book 'Savage Lost' (Distinctive Publishing, ISBN 0-942963-12-1) reveals the line-up details and that there may be an album's worth of unreleased material from 1968 on a Criteria Studios acetate.

Lutzy turned up in Maypole who put out a fine album and single on Colossus in 1970. He would return to later incarnations of The Progressions. Skip Harris had previously been in a teen band with Doug Lewis and would rejoin him to form The Peppermint Rainbow, who enjoyed success in 1968-9 with several singles and an album on Decca. (2) is a collection of live and studio tracks recorded from 1966-71. 125 copies were pressed. (2) reissued on CD (Akarma AK-245) 2001.

Proof's two albums are amongst the rarest blues rock records from the USA. Only a couple of copies of their second have ever surfaced. Proof was an Alaskan band.

5th Anniversary Phonograph Record is a sampler produced by Sloan for the band and the Proof family and it is extremely rare. Containing "snapshots" of the various line-ups of the band, it begins with a July 1966 live track and traces the evolution of the band to mid-1971. At each stop on the journey, Proof is revealed to be purveyors of gritty blues-based rock. It is the 1970-era material that will have the most appeal to readers of this book, with Leavin' Trunk and the lovely City Line being the pick of the offerings on this engaging album.

The first Proof album, recorded in concert during 1970 has great versions of Love's Made A Fool Of You, Highway 61 Revisited and Ridin' On The L + N. Much of Proof's early repertoire consisted of covers, a direct reflection of Gary Sloan's interest in record collecting. That Proof's two albums have such a strong collector appeal is therefore appropriate; they were assembled by one!

Gary Sloan continues to record and has produced many albums which fall outside the scope of this book. Gary Sloan and Clone - Gary Sloan And Cloan (Proof Records No. 3) 1979 was cassette-only; Harmonitalk (Proof Records No. 4) 1980 contains a fantastic extended track called Together Again that features several former Proof members and may be their finest moment; South Side Blues (Proof Records No. 5) 1981; Nightraid (Proof Records No. 6) 1983 was issued on album and cassette; Harmonitalk/South Side Blues (Proof Records No. 7) 1985 was a cassette-only reissue of his 1980/1 albums; Techno-Blue (Proof Records No. 8) 1987 was cassette-only; This One's For Us (Proof Records No. 9) 1988 was cassette-only and shown as by Southside Blues; Iditarod Blues (7" single) (Proof Records 002) 1988; Blue Shoes (Proof Records No. 11) 1992 was made available on CD and cassette. It was reissued in 1996 with some tracks re-recorded, Skull (Live) (Proof Records No. 12) 1994 was CD and cassette; Polar Bear-Hug Blues (Proof Records No. 14) 1995 was CD and cassette, and Live Arkansas To Yugoslavia (Proof Records No. 15) 1997 was cassette only. Many Proof alumni appear on these later releases, and both Blue Shoes and Skull feature legendary axemen Freddy Robinson and Harvey Mandel on extended jams that will have you double-checking the recording dates!

Thanks to Akarma you can now hear these recordings without taking on a second mortgage! (CF)

Gene Smiltneck was a local dance/concert promoter on Michigan's Upper Peninsula scene and set up the Peninsula label to promote two bands on his roster of regular bookings.

Escanaba was home to both beneficiaries, The Prophets Of Doom and The Riot Squad. A single by the latter was the first to bat and featured two covers of popular hits from the teener and Brit beat years. The Prophets Of Doom were more adventurous and contemporary. 	A Little Bit Of Love/Come To Me Girl	(Kapp 2087) 1970
	Some Kind Of Wonderful/ They Call Her Sorrow	(Kapp 2097) 1970

Four friends in West Allis, Wisconsin got together and formed a group in 1962. They played a brand of upbeat teen-pop which acquired an R&B flavour over the next few years. Around 1966 they expanded to an eight-piece with a vocalist and brass section, including Tony Gazzana and Jerry George from Milwaukee's Triumphs. By the time they came to record their debut single in 1967 however, they had reverted to a quartet.

The breezy teen-pop follow-up was their commercial peak, eventually climbing to No. 49 in Billboard after a few months of hitting hot spots in several regions. The rush to find a follow-up and cash in on the success with an album inevitably led to the perennial pitfalls. The band were wanting to go in a heavier, rock direction (they'd moved onto playing Cream and Hendrix material in their live shows) yet the producers and label wanted more teen-pop and bubblegum chart fodder to cash in on their investment. Bearing this in mind, it comes as no surprise that the album doesn't work.

PROPINQUITY - Self Titled LP.

This scenario and the band's full story is recounted by Brian Lake in Gary Myers' book 'Do You Hear That Beat'. Tied to a five year contract and having reached an impasse with both producer and label, the band chose to forego the pleasure of making further recordings in an incompatible style. They returned to the clubs and touring, finally splitting at the end of 1972.

Managed by Buddy Eisen, owner of the chain of Beachcomber clubs on the East Coast (hence the label name), this Virginia outfit formed in late 1966 and released their sole single a year later, after the departure of original front-man Willie T.. Crying For Her is like a garage take on a big production ballad - impassioned vocals, dramatic swirling keyboards and just a hint of the Zombies. Watch Out is a beaty belter with a catchy refrain and defiant mood.

Formed in Norfolk, Virginia in 1964, the Psychos’ debut single didn’t appear until their final year. Bacon and James had appeared on other local acts recordings by then, notably on Workin’ For My Baby - a local hit for Lenis Guess in the summer of ‘66. Black River #3 is a slow folk-rocker with wailin’ harp, waltzing rhythm and pastoral vibe. It can be heard on Aliens, Psychos And Wild Things (CD) which documents the Tidewater sixties scene in Virginia and, in addition to all the info above, notes that this band mastered a somewhat unique skill - skateboarding whilst playing!

The flip is an upbeat organ-dominated number that sounds more like ‘65 than ‘68. (BHr/ST/MW)

NB: (1) also released as a 2-CD (Frantic Records 1313) 2002.

Here's an amazing late sixties rock band from Sacramento, California. The core band originally formed in 1964 as The Jaguars and played concerts using this moniker but did not record. During 1965, the line-up shown above was fixed and they made their first recordings as Moss and The Rocks. One of the two singles by this band was made at Ikon Studios in Sacramento, which at the time was home to engineer Eirik Wangberg. Readers of this book will recognise at least two of the projects that Wangberg handled at Ikon, the single by The Oxford Circle and the album by Glad. The relationship between Moss and The Rocks and Wangberg continued for over three years, during which time Wangberg relocated to southern California and helped the group record two remarkable albums of British-influenced rock that have to be ranked amongst the finest ever produced in the State. Their release is the basis for the band's inclusion here.

During 1966, Moss and The Rocks adopted what are now considered quintessential "punk" pretensions; the more aggressive music and the unorthodox fashion sense. As they moved their local campaign into high gear, they changed name to the more appropriate Public Nuisance, which surely must have cost them some concert opportunities in the relatively staid community of Sacramento! The band spent a great deal of time and energy on visual propaganda during this period, staging photo sets and producing rather provocative handbills and holiday greeting cards for fans on their mailing list. In time, the band was invited to record a demo for Fantasy Records. Sessions took place at Fantasy's studios in San Francisco during 1967 that resulted in a finished master. Sadly, a recent search of the company's archives proved fruitless and the demo appears to be lost. It was eventually apparent to the group that the label wasn't interested in pursuing a contractual agreement, however.

In 1968, Public Nuisance recorded a new demo on a four-track machine operated by Eirik Wangberg at his new center of operations, Sound Recorders in Hollywood. This is an album-length recording, produced by the band that makes up disc-two of the Gotta Survive double set. In even a cursory review of this music, it is apparent that Fantasy made an enormous blunder in letting this band get away! Punishing fuzz guitars, pummeling drums - it's like someone commanded The Savage Resurrection to record a follow-up to The Who Sell Out! Aside from a cover of The Beatles' I'm Only Sleeping, the material is all original and is not to be missed by any and all fans of late-sixties rock. Time Can't Wait sounds like a '66 punk single side with better production; Pencraft Transcender has thick fuzz reminiscent of the Canadian Plastic Cloud album; Darlin' and Katie Shiner have a distinctly British underground feel that readers will associate with the Chocolate Soup For Diabetics UK compilation series. For a self-produced demo tape, it's a phenomenal achievement. Wangberg thought so, too - and in the course of playing it for visitors to the studio, brought it to the attention of producer Terry Melcher (Paul Revere and The Raiders, The Byrds) who envisioned Public Nuisance as (indeed) an American-made British rock band. He had the group back to Sound Recorders and under the watchful eye of Wangberg in 1969, with a simple prime directive: make a British rock album. This new recording (disc one of the double set) is every bit as powerful as the 1968 demo. Love Is A Feeling and Small Faces are violent freakbeat like Creation/Who/Pretty Things, while Evolution Revolution could fit on Tomorrow's album. Strawberry Man is pleasant power-pop until the last minute, when it explodes into a maelstrom of druggy pyrotechnics. The only noticeable difference between the two sessions is a hint of a British accent on the vocals on this later recording. None of the material from the 1968 demo repeats here - this is a completely original album-length master that, due to Melcher's self-imposed exile following the Manson incident in August, was shelved and forgotten. Not long after, the band split.

PUBLIC NUISANCE.

PUBLIC NUISANCE.

Dave Houston opened a recording studio in the seventies, producing a number of albums that fall outside the scope of this book. One band that readers may be familar with, The Twinkeyz, did all their records with Houston. Ron McMaster works for Capitol Records and is responsible for remastering albums by Badfinger, The Beach Boys and the Blue Note jazz catalogue amongst others. Eirik Wangberg turned knobs on a number of projects that readers will be familiar with (Paul McCartney's Ram album, John Mayall, Peacepipe, Joan Baez) before returning to his native Norway and (presumably) abandoning music-oriented pursuits. A Los Angeles outfit whose pounding punker Now You Say We're Through can be heard on Back From The Grave, Vol. 7 (2-LP). You Don't Have To Be Lonely has also been compiled on Quagmire Volume 4 (CD). Strangely enough there was an early sixties outfit of the same name in San Antonio, Texas (four singles on the Menard and Gallant labels).

John Greek, formerly of the Wailers, would go on to The Sacred Cows and Beautiful Daze. (VJ/MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) PUFF (MGM SE-4622) 1968

45: Looking In My Window/Rainy Day (MGM 14040) 1968

NB: (1) 'A' side is a non LP track.

This band's album, which reflected the psychedelic era in some of its music, is beginning to interest some collectors. Another example of the 'Bosstown' sound produced by Alan Lorber (Ultimate Spinach, Chamaeleon Church) and recorded in New York on August 26/27th, 1968, this pleasant psych-prog album is of note since Puff was formed out of the ashes of The Rockin' Ramrods: Vin Campisi and Henderson, as well as Ronn Campisi (who wrote all the songs but doesn't play on the album), were all previously in this group.

Housed in an awful sleeve (photographed at Phil's Thrift Shop Fur Annex!), the album contains well-structured songs with good vocals and harmonies and occasional guitar leads (especially on Dead Thoughts Of Alfred). A light jazz influence is evident, with baroque-jazz pointillist piano lines on Trees and echoplexed flute textures on the trance-like I Sure Need You.

The Big Beat compilation The Best Of The Rockin' Ramrods includes the entire Puff album plus the non-album single - 11 tracks in all.

In 1982, Jim Mandell would release on Elektra a solo album in the mould of Billy Joel No More Illusions. Ronn Campisi is now a publications designer; Vin Campisi works in record distribution; Bob Henderson became a recording engineer; Jim Mandell a L.A. studio musician; and David Allen Ryan later played with Sha Na Na.

Compilation appearances include: Vacuum, Go With You and Looking In My Window on The Best Of Bosstown Sound (2-CD). Their commercial harmony-pop effort (and non-album) Looking In My Window also reappears on Bring Flowers To U.S. (LP). (VJ/MW/SR/LP)

NB: (1) reissued officially on CD (Gear Fab GF-143) 2000, with three bonus cuts - a 1971 live version of What's Right For Me, and two demos from 1970.

45: Just Like You/Slumberland Blues (J & S 00002) 1970

Schuller was clearly the creative force in this Fitchburg, Massachusetts band. He either wrote or co-wrote with Belliveau every track on their album. This album contains some tasty guitar on I Don't Know Who To Blame and thundering organ on What's Right For Me.

They were not a garage or psych band as such but were influenced by Cream, Procol Harum and other late sixties bands. It's a unique record in that it is an unabashed portrait of the band's music.

Belliveau's next outfit would be Brother Fox And The Tar Baby.

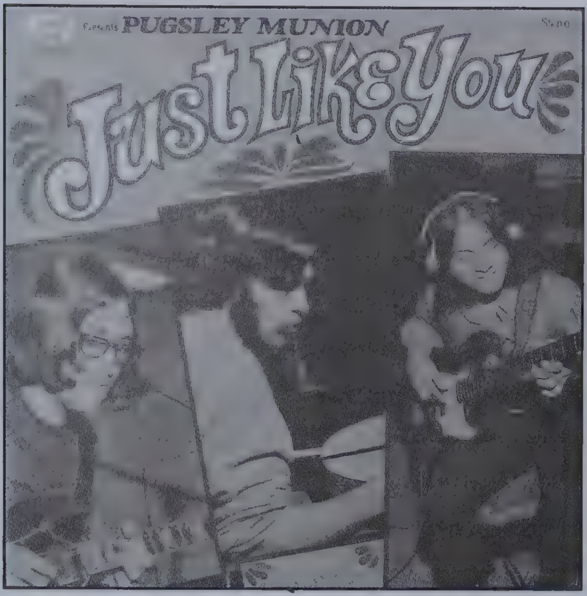
The value of the record has dropped considerably due to a sizeable find some years ago. In the 'States this album is considered to be in the SC rather than R2 category. Copies acquired from the band in the 1980s-1990s were often supplied with an 8 X 10 press photo.

Recently, Gear Fab reissued the album with notes from John Schuller, who reveals that the band was formed in 1969 as Mask until it was found that another band had registered the name. He points out the initial album jackets came with "3 In 1 Records" printed on the spine. The title was to be Three In One, but the label lost the original artwork, dropped Kelly's last name and retitled the album after the single that had been released. Worst of all, the band learnt that the label was putting out the album using the rough session mixes (which they expected to mix and redo some bass and vocal parts) but were unable to stop its release. The Gear Fab CD adds three bonus cuts - two 1970 demos and a live What's Right For Me from February 1971 featuring bassist Gary Ianuzzi.



PUGSLEY MUNION - Just Like You LP.

Schuller reports that all three original members remain active on the music scene: he has his own band, produces/engineers local Massachusetts acts and has worked with members of Boston and Heart; "Ducky" Belliveau is an in-demand pedal steel session player, working and touring with many well-known acts including Terence Trent D'Arby and J.Geils' Peter Wolf; Ed Kelly remains the choice drummer for area bands' projects and gigs. Another Woman/My Old Boy (Poison Ring 711) 1969

From New Haven, Connecticut The Pulse evolved out of The Bram Rigg Set and The Shags, and were originally known as The Pulse Of Burritt Bradley. The track, Burritt Bradley, is a surreal slice of psychedelic madness, which can also be found on the Beyond The Calico Wall (LP & CD) compilation.

By contrast, their album is a furious heavy rock affair and rated highly by some collectors.

Tommy Violante left in 1969, although the band soldiered on until '72, playing mostly rehashed Cream-type stuff.

The excellent Gear Fab label is currently researching a legitimate CD release of The Shags material. (VJ)

Another Pulse, this one from New York City and produced by Herman Gimbel (Sacred Mushroom) and Orrin Keepnews, a respected jazz producer. Musically, it's a decent early seventies hard-rock group with driving organ and fuzz guitar. All their material was penned by their leader, Carlo Mastrangelo (who also played with Dion and The Belmonts!), sometimes helped by Kenny Sambolin or Jimmy Demitrack. It's probably one of the few hard-rock albums listed here which features a kazoo solo! (SR)

A West Coast group formed by Harvey Mandel, Paul Lagos (ex-Kaleidoscope) and Sugarcane Harris (ex-Don and Dewey and Frank Zappa band), with Victor Conte and Randy Resnick. Their album was recorded live at the Fresh Air Tavern in Seattle, with some overdubs added later at a couple of L.A. studios. Produced by Skip Taylor (who also worked with Canned Heat), it includes a long version of Eleanor Rigby and several soul-rock tracks, largely instrumental. The album may interest those who like early seventies blues-rock with a large dose of soul. Apparently the band was quite a spectacle live and had a penchant for extended soloing and improvised ensemble sections.

Mandel, Conte, Resnick and Lagos kept on working with Sugarcane Harris on several of his solo albums between 1972 and 1975. All these musicians, bar Conte, can also be found on several albums of John Mayall recorded between 1970 and 1975. (SR)

45: All In My Mind/What Cha Gonna Do (Dunhill 4232) 1970 104

A San Francisco outfit whose album ranged from hippie-rock with blues and an occasional rural hippie sound to more lightweight flower-power. It's a kind of mixture of Cold Blood, Jefferson Airplane and The Mamas & The Papas. The 10 tracks include some superb fuzz guitar, heavy blues riffs and rhythmic support throughout. There are some fine lead vocals by Pegge Ann May, similar to Grace Slick but stronger, deeper and with different timbre. The better tracks are The Lord's Prayer, Too Scared To Go and Hard Times. Bob Bohanna had earlier been with Morning Glory. It spent two weeks in the chart with a best position of No. 195.

You can also explore All In My Mind on Undersound Uppersoul (LP). (VJ)

45: Oh-Bah-Um-Dee-Dum/When I Saw Her (Roulette R 7046) 1969

45: Brains In My Feet/If You Like It That Way (Alley AS 1049) 1969

NB: This single was "reproduced" in 2008 as part of the Garage Greats series.

This mysterious band came from Jonesboro, Arkansas. Their over-the-top garage-psych opus Brains In My Feet, from April 1969, is notable for interludes of sustained keyboard whine and vicious fuzz similar to Animated Egg, guaranteed to evoke a cry of "turn that racket down" from even the most tolerant parent/partner; doubtless that is why it has remained so popular down the generations! The flip is a good slow psychedelic folk number.

Brains In My Feet can also be heard on World Of Acid (LP), Glimpses, Vol. 4 (LP), Psychedelic Minds Vol. 1 (CD) and there's a previously unreleased instrumental version on Lost Souls Vol. 1 (CD). (VJ/MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) TRIBUTE TO JIMI HENDRIX
(Stereo Gold Award MER 340) 1971

NB: The above release is a U.K. one. The album was also issued in Germany (on Sonic) and in Canada (Summit). Another Canadian pressing (Stereo Gold Award GA-40), manufactured by Arc Sound Ltd., Toronto, exists, but this edition does not include the Palamatoon track. (1) reissued on CD (Fallout FOCD2021) 2006.

According to the sleeve notes to Tribute To Jimi Hendrix, leader and Hendrix acolyte Alex Boggs hailed from St. Louis, Missouri and is joined by two sidemen from New Orleans, hence their inclusion in this book. However, the bulk of the tracks on this album were also issued on a Germany-only album Jeff Cooper and The Stoned Wings, so it's possible the personnel listings on both albums are fictitious. One track, Palamatoon, also appears on Funky Junction's album Tribute To Deep Purple (Stereo Gold Award MER 373) 1973, featuring UK band Thin Lizzy, Dave Lennox and Benny White. Can anybody confirm if the two versions are the same?? Curiously, Palamatoon is omitted from one of the Canadian pressings of the album...

Lashings of heavy guitar psych featuring decent, though sometimes leaden, covers of some Jimi classics. Whether this could "possibly fill the void left by Jimi" was optimistic beyond doubt - a worthy tribute but lacking something in the Fire department by trying to be too faithful and reverent, right down to the vocal mannerisms. It should still have appeal for staunch Hendrix fans, completists and air guitarists.

Compilation appearances have included: Acid Test on Lycergic Soap Vol. 1 (LP), Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 (2-LP), and Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 6 (CD); Are You Experienced? on The Stars That Play With Dead Jimi's Dice (LP); and Patch Of Grass on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 3 (CD). NB: α shown as by "The Ark".

A North Hollywood outfit who produced some wonderful, strident fuzz-garage rock. The name of Mark Landon should be familiar to all; he went onto The Music Machine, so it's unlikely that he featured on the second or third singles. Tryon later played with Lamp Of Childhood and had a short stint with W.C. Fields Memorial Electric String Band/Fields.

Their singles are worth obtaining. The final one as The Ark is stunning - Poverty Train is a powerful rendition of the Laura Nyro song with Animals influences and tour-de-force vocals. Daily Reminder is reminiscent of Clear Light - a tight, driving rocker with baroque flourishes, unexpected stop-starts and time changes, topped off by a superb guitar solo.

Both sides were first showcased on Incredible Sound Show Stories Vol. 8 (LP) and more recently all six single cuts appeared on Just For Kicks Vol.1 (CD) along with a pair of unreleased Love covers, Can't Explain and No Matter What You Do. Daily Reminder appears under the alternate title Looking Glass. Unfortunately the cuts on the CD came from singles played on a turntable which was operating fractionally faster than 45rpm, although this is noticeable only if you happen to have the originals.

Finally I Know What I Am has been compiled on Northwest Battle Of The Bands Vol.2 (CD) and One Of The Bunch on The Lost Generation Vol.3 (LP). (MW/MD)

Hillside was the custom label for the McKenzie Studio in Columbus, Ohio; this trio of releases promoted not just the local bands but also the studio's sideline in buying, trading and renting instruments and equipment (amps, mikes, speakers etc.).

The garage-folk-rocker Wish You Didn't have To Go kicks off like the Knaves' The Girl I Threw Away, then throws in some echoed vocals and a brief waspish solo; check it out on Byrds Won't Fly Today (LP). (MW)

45s:	On Broadway/Rain Come Down	(Boss 009) 1966/7
	Count Back/Soon	(Boss 010) 1967

Starting out as a sextet called The Spades, by 1967 this Winter Haven, Florida band had slimmed down to a quartet and adopted a more original moniker.

Their finest moment is Count Back, a unique and stunning example of garage-psych. Pulsing with spacey effects (including a short wave radio tuned to cosmic noise), rapid-fire drumbursts and distorted vocals, it culminates in a passage of nightmarish whispering that dissolves into an alien miasma.

One memorable highlight for the band was their appearance at the Palm Beach Pop Festival, where they did a turn immediately after Spirit on the main stage that would also accommodate the Stones later that evening. Unfortunately nothing more made it onto vinyl, although the band lasted until 1971.

Tom Nay now lives in Sarasota Florida and is in realtor, Halsey Lafrandre lives in Auburndale, Florida and Jon Lafrandre still lives in Winter Haven. Thirty years on Jon and Halsey LaFrandre were still playing together in the local band Second Nature.

You can also hear Count Back on Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 2 (LP), Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 2 (CD), Off The Wall, Vol. 1 (LP), Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 2 (CD), Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 2 (CD) and Garage Beat '66 3 (CD). (VJ/MW/RM)

ALBUM: 1(A) PURPOSE (ABC ABCS-662) 1968

Similar in style to Group Therapy, Puzzle and Vanilla Fudge, this was a psychedelic/bluesy-soul quintet from New York with five black members. Two tracks, Hippie Chick and Hog For You Baby, were compiled on Tom's Touch, an album dedicated to Tom Wilson productions.

Both songs are good examples of psych-soul. (SR/NK)

ALBUM: 1 PURPOSE (Boardman Records 452-109) 1966 ?

A Christian rock musical written by J.Phillip Landgrave, who later became a music theory professor at the Southern Baptist Seminary! Oddly enough, if the album offers some muzak tracks, it also contains some good garage and hip rock tracks. For curious collectors! (SR)

NB: α shown as by Strimbling Blimbles.

From Blackwood in New Jersey, this band was originally known as Chris & The Crystals. As the Pur'Swa'Der...s, they produced garage-pop and garage-soul singles. 40 years on these turn up more often with Northern Soul dealers for very silly money, so they may be only of marginal interest here. The highpoint of their career was winning through to the finals of the 1967 'National Battle Of The Bands', held at Ridge Arena. They are preserved on the resultant album with a performace of You've Lost That Lovin' Feeling.

In 1969, they had one last shot, as the The Strimbling Blimbles. (MW)

45: Hey Medusa/Make The Children Happy (ABC 11181) 1969

Blues-influenced outfit Puzzle from Washington D.C. sometimes had a psychedelic taint to its music. Some of the tracks feature fuzzy guitars, strange hooks and are quite creative. Produced by Eddie Kramer, the album has its moments, on tracks like Hey Medusa, Got My Head Right Yesterday and Working For The Rich Man.

Zack and Johnnie had previously played together in Wild Honey and Zack was previously with Lawrence and The Arabians, The British Walkers, and the Reasons Why. In the seventies he moved onto the Cherry People and Nils Lofgren's band.

Not to be confused with another Puzzle led by John Livigni and Joseph Spinazola who issued two albums of white soul-rock with horns on Motown in 1973 and 1974 (Puzzle and The Second Album).

Hey Medusa can also be found on Some Songs Stuck In My Mind (CD). (VJ/MW/SR)

A studio-only outfit from New York whose sole single was produced by the ubiquitous Artie Kornfeld in the fall of 1966, Quadrangle included Jay Fishman and Michael Konston.

She's Too Familiar Now is a wondrous slab of resounding Invasion-inspired teen-punk. Take some Alan Price keyboard moves and the bass-line from The Animals' We Gotta Get Out Of This Place, then add strong, bawling vocals and rampaging guitars... and you have a classic sixties nugget.

It's become more familiar now thanks to compilation appearances on Chosen Few Vol's 1 & 2 (CD), The Chosen Few, Vol. 2 (LP) and Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 1 (CD). (VJ/MW)

45: I'm Going/Sad Eyed Lady (Tema PXT-150) 1968

Cleveland, Ohio was this mob's stomping ground. Previously known as The Trohls, they named themselves after Quantrill's Raiders, a notorious band of Confederate irregulars responsible for the Lawrence Massacre in 1863 and who included outlaw brothers Frank and Jesse James.

45: Mockin'bird Hill/We're All Going To Leave This World Someday (Berkshire Harmony BH0001) 1970

Describing their sound as "folk country rock", Quarry were at home in rural Berkshire County, Massachusetts. Featuring close harmonies, acoustic guitars, and flute, their sound has a blissed-out hippie aura which owes more to clean fresh air than any chemical substances. They had played at Woodstock (on the free stage) and toured with the Grateful Dead. Things were about to happen; the single was a taster for the album they'd recorded but the band split shortly after its release and the album never appeared.

Guitarist/singer David Carron was from Pittsfield, Massachusetts. He formed The Marksmen in 1964 and his next outfit was Wheastone Bridge Band (not to be confused with several similarly named bands), who released one soft-rock single in 1968 - Petals Fall/Cloudy (Epic 5-10396). Post-Quarry, Carron and Velika were in country-rock band Shenandoah. (MW)

NB. (1) reissued on 2-LP set (Sundazed LP 5250) 2008. (1) reissued on CD (Sundazed SC 11203) 2008 with eight bonus tracks.

This Los Angeles band had evolved out of The Berries, latterly known as The Human Jungle, under which name they released two singles - Gorilla Milk/World's Tallest Pygmy (Double Shot 112) in 1967 and City Girl/Let Me Love You (Whiz Masters 603) in 1968. City Girl can also be found on The Magic Cube (CD).

Their rather inconsistent album was not one of the best on the label. It was produced and engineered by future Neil Young producer David Briggs, and there are some good fuzz leads on Fragments, Ask Me No Questions and Flowing Robes. The more psychedelic tracks are The Tree and Fields Of Love.

Tetragrammaton Records was a wing of Cosby's budding empire known as the Campell-Silver-Cosby Corporation in Beverly Hills. From '65 to '69 Quatrain was a regular attraction on the Southern California scene, working as the house band at the popular Topanga Corral and up and down the Sunset Strip.

Senneville went on to play for Simon Stokes and The Nighthawks. (VJ/MW)

45: I Got Trouble/Gypsy Lady (ABC Paramount 11172) 1969

From New York, their album was a "Super K" production by Kasenetz-Katz, with a psychedelic side and a bubblegum side. Among its better tracks are 4th Dimension and Seance and overall it's worth hearing.

One of the tracks, The Seance started when Jeff Katz came into the studio whilst the engineer was trying to get a volume and EQ level. As usual, the band were goofin-off - playing dissonant jibberish to irritate and annoy the engineer, but Jeff thought that THAT SOUND was just what he was looking for to finish the album...

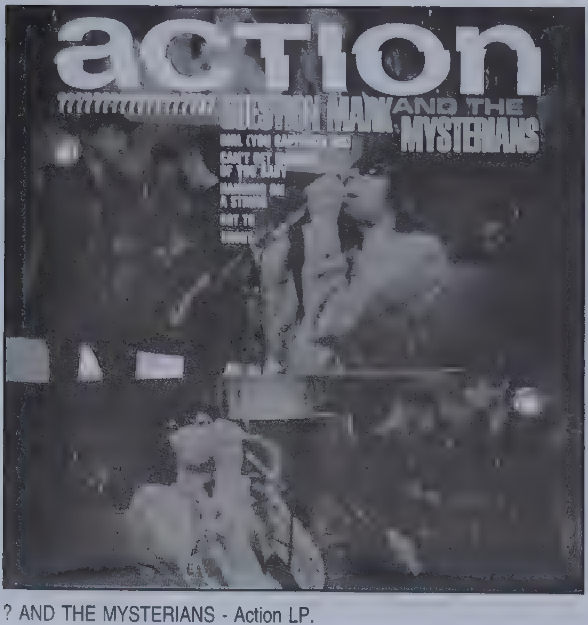
Question Mark (Rudy Martinez) was born in 1945 and raised in Saginaw, Michigan. He claimed (and still claims) to be a Martian who lived with dinosaurs in a past life, and he never appears in public without sunglasses. ? and the Mysterians was perhaps the first band to be described as 'punk rock', and also may be the first Latino rock group to have a general audience hit record in the United States. The group named itself after the 1957 Japanese science fiction film 'The Mysterians', in which aliens from the destroyed planet Mysteroid arrive to conquer Earth. The band was initially based in Corpus Christi, Texas where their Pa-Go-Go single was issued. Soon after, they moved their base of operations to Flint, Michigan where 96 Tears was picked up by Cameo for national release. A relentless 'punk' two note organ sound ran throughout the record which quickly became a classic of its genre making No. 1 in the U.S. and No. 37 in the UK. The band enjoyed some subsequent chart success but was never quite able to recapture the magic of 96 Tears or shake off the 'one hit wonder' tag, although it wasn't quite true. Robert Martinez and Larry Borjas were also original members of the band but they were in the U.S. Army when the first album was recorded.

Splitting in 1968, Martinez has made various attempted reformations. In the early seventies the band reformed with a different line-up comprising two guitars and without their trademark keyboards. Rock critic Dave Marsh coined the term "punk rock" to describe their sound in a 1971 article in 'Creem' magazine. Singles were issued in 1972 and 1973 and new demos were recorded with Kim Fowley in 1978.

The original line-up held a reunion concert in Dallas, in 1984 with Robert Martinez on drums once again, as Eddie Serrato had become ill with muscular dystrophy. A recording was made which was released by the ROIR label entitled 96 Tears Forever: The Dallas Re-Union Tapes. Then, in 1997 the group reformed again to headline the 'Cavestomp' garage rock festivals. 'Cavestomp' featured many old sixties garage and psychedelic acts that had reformed. The Mysterians quickly established themselves as one of the best of these. They gigged sporadically throughout 1998 and 1999 and made two visits to Europe, where, in November 1998, they played to a capacity crowd at the "Wild Weekend" garage rock weekend in London. They followed with a second, longer tour in summer 1999 and also made an improbable appearance at the Royal Festival Hall classical music venue as part of the "Meltdown 1999" music festival.



? AND THE MYSTERIANS - Action LP.

Unable to secure the rights to their own master recordings so they could re-release their now out-of-print albums 96 Tears and Action officially they re-recorded their original 1966 album and released it again on the Collectables label in 1997. Do You Feel It Baby?, a live album, followed on Norton Records in 1998. A new studio album More Action was released in 1999.

In 2000 the band embarked on a collaboration with guitarist and rock promoter Gary Fury. This led to a series of live concerts featuring ? and the Mysterians with a backing band led by Fury featuring musicians from other garage bands in the New York area. In 2001 the band's original line-up also played at the very first Little Steven's Underground garage live event. Two years later they played what was billed as the final 'Cavestomp' show at the Polish National Home in Greenpoint, Brooklyn, New York, where they co-headlined the show with The Vagrants.

Tragedy struck Rudy Martinez when fire destroyed his farm in Clio, Michigan and he lost his much-cherished breeding dogs (Yorkies). This led to a wave of new interest in the band and documentary film 'Are You For Real' has been made about the band's years in the music business. The band still gigs around the Michigan area.

Heavy passionate Cleveland pop-blast collectable mainly as this was one of Eric Carmen's pre-Raspberries ventures, following his stint with Cyrus Erie. The 'B' side in particular points towards the Stones-influenced stompers that would feature heavily in The Raspberries' repertoire.

Michael McBride had been in Cyrus Erie with Eric Carmen and would be called on again for the Raspberries fourth and final album. The band is also featured on the Revolution Soundtrack (UA 5185) with two tracks: Babe I'm Gonna Leave You and Codine. There have been a number of Quicksilver compilations including: - Hit Road (IM 048-81 424) 1973; Anthology (2-LP) (Capitol 11165) 1978; The Best Of.. (Capitol CDL-57263) 1990 and again (Capitol 09463-30908-2-8) 2005; Ultimate Journey (a U.K. compilation) on vinyl (See For Miles SEECD 61) 1986 and on CD (See For Miles SEECD 61-A) 1986 and First Album Demos (a bootleg which also includes live material from 1976). There's also a 31-track, 2-CD set Sons Of Mercury 1968-1975 (Rhino R2 70747) 1991. All of these contain a fair selection of their material. There is also an excellent 'live' album, Maiden Of The Cancer Moon (Psycho 10) 1983, which contains material from a 1968 concert at the Fillmore East in June 1968 and from a Pacific High recording studio broadcast also of 1968, which included a complete version of Gold and Silver. Unreleased, Lost Gold And Silver (Collectors Choice/EMI-Capitol Music CCM-109-2) 1999 is a 2-CD set, but note that the first duplicates the Maiden Of The Cancer

Moon album. Who Do You Love? (Disky Communications S1 905177) 2002 is a later compilation. At The Kabuki Theatre (2-CD) (Charly SNAD 556) 2007 gives an official release to a set previously only available as a bootleg. The following five live recordings will also excite their fans: Live At The Avalon Ballroom San Francisco 9th September 1966 (Bear BEARVP 105 CD) 2008, Live At The Avalon Ballroom San Francisco 28 October 1966 (Bear BEARVP 106 CD) 2008, Live At The Fillmore Auditorium San Francisco 4 February 1967 (Bear BEARVP 107 CD) 2008, Live At The Fillmore Auditorium San Francisco 6 February 1967 (Bear BEARVP 108 CD) 2008 and Live At The Carousel Ballroom San Francisco 4 April 1968 (Bear BEARVP 109 CD) 2008. Castles In The Sand (Charly SNAP 297 CD) 2009 gives an airing to a session recorded in Corte Madera, California in late 1969/early 1970.

Quicksilver were another of the finest San Francisco bands. Like The Grateful Dead their music was instrumentally orientated. It was led by the twin guitars of Gary Duncan and John Cipollina in true virtuoso style. Their main musical influence had been Bo Diddley. Prior to forming the band each of the members had played either independently as folk singers or as part of a band. They appeared on the Soundtrack to the film Revolution, although by the time the album was released Murray had left the band to go to Hawaii and study the sitar. Dino Valenti was also to have been included in the group but inconveniently he was busted and indisposed somewhere in a California jail. Incidentally, Elmore and Duncan had both earlier played together in an unsuccessful group - The Brogues.

Quicksilver contributed two tracks to Revolution. Codine was recorded by many other Bay Area groups, including The Charlatans. This was arguably the finest version of the song, with Duncan's vocals very much to the fore. Their second song, Babe, I'm Gonna Leave You provided a promising glimpse of the fine guitar work to come. The group soon developed a cult following in the Bay Area and were always in demand for 'live' gigs. Wary, perhaps, of the fate of some of their contemporaries, they seemed in no hurry to win a recording contract. Indeed, they were one of the last important San Francisco bands to sign up. Eventually Capitol made them the right offer and their two debut albums can be regarded as the purest examples of the San Francisco Sound in this era.

QUICKSILVER MESSENGER SERVICE - Shady Grove LP.

QUICKSILVER MESSENGER SERVICE - Just For Love LP.

The first album contained some fine material. The outstanding track is probably the melodic Bo Diddley derivative Gold And Silver, one of the most melodic guitar suites ever, featuring some gorgeous ringing guitar work. Most of side two was taken up with the long, ambitious composition The Fool which again featured adventurous guitar work from Duncan and Cipollina. Other tracks such as Light Your Windows and Dino's Song featured mellow vocal harmonies. The drug influence in their music was clear too.

Some of Quicksilver's albums have astonishing covers. Happy Trails is possibly the best of all. Many critics also regarded the album as one of the best rock, let alone, psychedelic rock, albums ever made. A 'live' recording side one is composed entirely of the Who Do You Love? Suite, a guitar masterpiece. However, this is overshadowed by Cipollina's decisive, cutting work on some of the songs on side two, particularly Mona.

Meanwhile, Dino Valenti, who wrote the classic hippie anthem Get Together, had been released from jail and started gigging and writing songs, eventually recording a solo album for Epic in October 1968. In January 1969 Valenti persuaded Duncan to leave the group and accompany him to New York to form a band called The Outlaws. But they failed to find the personnel they wanted and returned to rejoin the band a year later.

With Duncan gone, Elmore, Frieberg and Cipollina were left in limbo for a while until pianist Nicky Hopkins, having left Jeff Beck, joined the band. As a foursome they recorded Shady Grove, but without Duncan their distinctive twin guitar sound had gone. The album was disappointing in comparison to their two earlier gems, although it still contained some fine songs. The virtuoso keyboard playing of Nicky Hopkins on tracks like Joseph's Coat and Edward the Mad Shirt Grinder was particularly noteworthy. Also of interest were the sleepy slow acid-influenced compositions like Flute Song and Flashing Lonesome. The sentiments of the title track - Let's Quit The Pressures of City Living For Greener Pastures - were an essential part of the hippie philosophy.

"I used to walk on the city streets
Now I wander far and wide
I never found my happiness
Till I moved to the countryside..."
and later in the same song:
"If you've been watching the city streets
They don't seem to get much greener
But I know where we're going to
Our heads will feel much cleaner..."
(from Shady Grove)

With both Valenti and Duncan in the band, they got back on the road as a sextet and started work on their fourth album Just For Love. However, Nicky Hopkins left the band in July 1970 before its release to join The Rolling Stones and do session work. This album, and part of the next, was recorded in Hawaii. The group was dominated more and more by Valenti's laid-back vocals - you either love them or hate them. Unfortunately, the diminished influence of Duncan and Cipollina meant the demise of their celebrated acid-rock guitar sound. This cost Quicksilver many of their previously diehard fans. Nevertheless, in its own way Just For Love was a fine album. The opening and closing track Wolf Run was a successful attempt to re-create the sounds of the jungle, whilst Just For Love also in two parts, following and preceding Wolf Run, demonstrated Valenti's vocal dexterity. Among the tracks sandwiched between these were two classics. The drug song Fresh Air:-

"Have another hit of California sunshine..."

was also performed by the band in the Last Days Of The Fillmore Soundtrack. But over-shadowing it was the mellow Gone Again (an early insight into the laid-back West Coast music of the seventies?).

The follow-up album What About Me marked the arrival of Jose Reyes (congas, vcls) and was also Cipollina's last with the band. The title track poses the question of how the U.S. Establishment could come to terms with the growing rebellion of American youth:

"I feel like a stranger
In the land where I was born
And I live just like an outlaw
I'm always on the run
And though you may be stronger now
My time will come along
You keep adding to my numbers
As you shoot my people down..."
(from What About Me?)

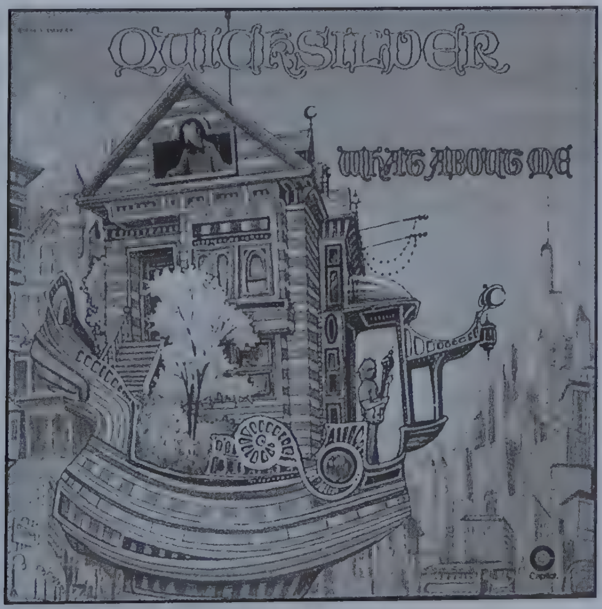
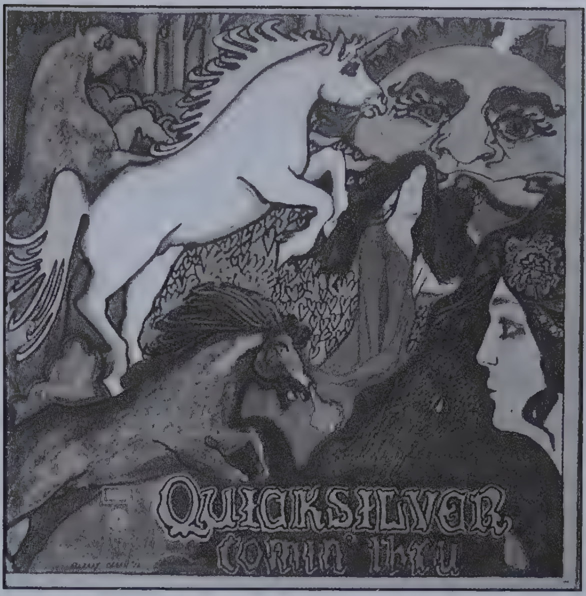
It also contained two beautiful love songs Baby, Baby and Long Haired Lady which, together with All In My Mind, captured Valenti's vocals at their best. As Valenti's influence increased, Cipollina's, unfortunately, diminished, with the rather lame instrumental Local Colour his only credit on this album. This probably influenced his departure in October 1970. In the fall of 1971, however, he started a new group, Copperhead, which recalled the kind of sound associated with the early Quicksilver - rock and roll with intricate instrumentals and a trace of harshness. This included Jim Murray and Nicky Hopkins for a while. Copperhead successfully captured this sound on their 1973 Columbia album, particularly on tracks like Roller Derby Star, Kibitzer, Spin Spin, Wang Dang Do and the excellent Making A Monster.

September 1971 brought further disaster for Quicksilver when David Frieberg was convicted for marijuana possession for the third time, fined $200 and jailed for two months. He did not rejoin the band after his release, but did session work, playing on Mickey Hart's solo album Rolling Thunder before ending up with Jefferson Airplane. When Frieberg became involuntarily indisposed the band was halfway through a new album. Mark Ryan (ex-Country Joe and the Fish) was brought in to replace Frieberg on bass and Chuck Steaks was introduced on organ.

This line-up recorded the band's next two efforts, Quicksilver and Comin' Thru, which showed it to be a mere shadow of its former self. Three years later, in 1975, Duncan, Cipollina, Frieberg, Elmore and Valenti got together for an unsuccessful reunion album Solid Silver. Nonetheless, Quicksilver's acid guitar sound on those first two albums was the finest to come out of San Francisco and their next three albums also contained some excellent material.



QUICKSILVER MESSENGER SERVICE - What About Me LP.



QUICKSILVER MESSENGER SERVICE - Comin' Thru LP.

There have been a number of compilations of their material. Sons Of Mercury 1968-1975 was the first retrospective CD of their material. It contains in excess of 30 tracks and is housed in a beautiful psychedelic slipcase package. Alternatively Ultimate Journey contains most of their classic songs. Unreleased - Lost Gold And Silver contains a complete live show from 1968 (which was also released on Psycho as Maiden Of The Cancer Moon) as well as a host of previously unreleased studio demos and alternate takes, and rare singles. This was pre-Dino Valente, so there is plenty of stunning jamming featuring the twin lead guitars of John Cippolina and Gary Duncan.

At The Kabuki Theatre (2-CD) gives an official release to a set previously only available as a bootleg. It captures what proved to be the final show for the classic Quicksilver line-up of Cipollina, Duncan, Elmore, Frieberg and Valenti. It's a loose, rambling set, originally broadcast on San Francisco's KMPX radio. The featured tracks include Fresh Air, Cobra with some superb dual guitar work, What About Me, Call On Me, Pride Of Man, Mojo and their live favourite Mona. Also featured are four tracks from a previously unreleased studio rehearsal with Nicky Hopkins on keyboards.

Five previously unreleased live recordings appeared in 2008 courtesy of the Jefferson Starship/QMS archive. They all predate the release of their debut album and preview the band's distinctive sound. Interestingly, they already feature versions of their classic numbers like Gold and Silver, Mona, Pride Of Man, Codeine, Babe I'm Gonna Leave You, Who Do You Love, The Fool and You Don't Love Me. The April 1968 concert previews their jamming inclinations with the 41-minute meandering The Jam. Serious Quicksilver fans should love these additions to their catalogue.

Castles In The Sand (CD) gives an airing to a session recorded in Corte Madera, California in late 1969/early 1970. It's a jam session that contains early versions of new songs like Senor Blues and Subway are mixed with standards like May You Never Be Alone and I Know You Rider. The line-up includes Valenti, Elmore, Freiberg, Hopkins and probably Duncan and the session is felt to date from after the release of Shady Grove but prior to the release of Just For Love, so it almost certainly dates from between October 1969-April 1970.

John Cipollina went on to play in numerous other Bay Area bands. Born a chronic asthmatic, he also suffered from emphysema in later life and tragically died after being admitted to hospital during 1989. David Frieberg went on to play for Jefferson Starship. Dino Valenti underwent surgery for an AVM (arterovenous malfunction) in the late eighties. He died suddenly at his home in Santa Rosa, California on 16 November 1994.

There is still a Quicksilver line-up on the road that has toured the UK in July/August 2008 and again in November 2009. Including David Freiberg and guitar maestro Gary Duncan, they also feature female vocalist Linda Imperial, which sounds a bit strange to us diehard Quicksilver fans.

Compilation appearances have included: - Got My Mojo Working and The Fool on The California Christmas Album (LP) and Smokestack Lightning, Pride Of Man and Gold and Silver on California New Year (LP); Pride Of

Man on Psychedelic Visions (CD); Pride Of Man and Dino's Song on Rock A Delics (LP); a live version of The Fool on Ptolemaic Terrascope 30 (CD); Bears on Ah Feel Like Ahcid (CD); and Light Your Window, Codine and a previously unreleased demo version of Who Do You Love on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD plus book). ALBUM:	1(A)	QUILL	(Cotillion SD-9017) 1970

Boston's Quill played on the Saturday at Woodstock as the opening set, although gremlins meant they didn't make it onto the movie. Still two cuts from their set, including That's How I Eat that highlights their blend of proto-prog and boogie, did make it onto the Rhino 40th Anniversary box set.

At present their album is very minor psychedelic/progressive item but it could grow in significance. The opening cut Thumbnail Screwdriver is a fine guitar progressive and The Tube Exuding captures the band at their most psychedelic. Compared to these the final track on side one They Live The Life is very disappointing. On side two, Yellow Butterfly is a slice of mellow psychedelia, but the remainder of the record is rather ordinary.

The band came from Massachusetts and the two Coles attended Mount Hermon Academy where they were in prep-rock outfit The Knights from 1964 to 1965, appearing on their Off Campus album. (VJ/MW/AH)

ALBUM:	1(A)	RUN LIKE A DEER	(F.E.L. Church 7101-M) 1967 SC

Subtitled "Folk-Rock Psalms", this album is one of the first attempts at creating Christian folk-rock, aimed at "the young Christians of the Sixties". The liner notes say that "the music roams from folk sound to lush, smooth Beatle-like harmonies, to hard-rock sound". Their definition of hard-rock was clearly not the same as Led Zeppelin's, but the album is interesting overall. (SR)

45:	I Knew/(It's) Been A Long Time	(Capito 2022) 1966

Believed to be a Michigan outfit but this has not been confirmed. I Knew is choppy 1963-4 Merseybeat but with vocals in an earlier, teener style. Teener vocals feature again on the flip but on top of echoey surf/instrumental sounds with clean, sharp Shadows-like guitarwork. Again the sound is 1963-4 yet the oddest thing about this hybrid single is that it's from 1966, stuck in its own time warp. Both sides were written by Donald McCants who arranged and produced them with one Larry Capito, who lent his surname to the label and publishing company. (MW)

This name was used briefly by The Intruders in 1965 to record the above single. They did not gig under this name and by the end of the year had become The Dearly Beloved. I Got A Girl was recorded at Audio Sound Recorders in Phoenix, Arizona and began with a fifties style intro leading into a sixties love song with wild leads and four-part harmonies. An alternate take of the song from 1966 appears on the album Rough Diamonds: History Of Garage Band Music, Vol. 6 - The Dearly Beloved and Think Of The Good Times (LP). There's also a previously unreleased version on The Tucson Sound 1960-1968 (LP). (VJ/MW)

45s:	Take Me To L.A./You Come On Like A Train	(Deltron 895) 196?
	Trip/Love	(Great Lakes) 196?

Heavy rock three-piece Dick Rabbit came from the Saginaw/Flint area of Michigan. The flip side to their first single, You Come On Like A Train, is a hard-rocker with some good guitar work. Take Me To L.A., isn't quite as heavy and has quite a commercial slant to it. Their second single, Love, captures the band at its most psychedelic and demented, but Trip is rather disappointing by comparison.

Compilation appearances have included: Take Me To L.A. and You Come On Like A Train on Michigan Mixture, Vol. 1 (LP); Love and Trip on Michigan Mixture, Vol. 11 (LP); and You Come On Like A Train on Sixties Archive, Vol. 6: Texas/Michigan Psych (CD). (VJ/KBn)

Rabon and Wright were previously in The Five Americans and stayed together when their old group disbanded. Produced by Rabon and Robin Hood Brians, this album offers only original compositions, lying between early seventies rock-pop and country-rock. Not bad, but nothing really important.

One of the songs, Texas Sparrow, was re-recorded in 1973 by Gladstone, another Texan group featuring Randy Fouts.

Michael Rabon also produced the second album by Jon and Robin. (SR)

ALBUM:	1	STAINED GLASS WINDOW	(Sycamore Music SM248) 1978 R1

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Radioactive RRCD175) 200?

Released on a private label out of Chicago, this album is an acoustic loner/downer folk offering with unusual pessimistic lyrics. Vocally Racine sounds influenced by Bob Dylan, particularly the strong folky protest feel of a young Dylan in To The Night Sky From A Summers Meadow and Morning Mirrors. To The Man With The Buttons sounds influenced by Neil Young's Sugar Mountain. There are elements of Led Zeppelin's Misty Mountain Hop in After All Has Been Drawn. The stand-out track is the title track with its infectious rhythm and heartfelt vocal. Some collectors rate this album highly. (SR/VJ)

THE RACKET SQUAD
CORNERS OF YOUR MIND

THE RACKET SQUAD - Corners Of Your Mind LP.

From Apollo, Pennsylvania this band was previously known as The Fenways and released numerous singles between 1964 and 1966 including some with other acts (Tawny Sims, the Vogues) and under assumed names (Townsmen, Four Chaps). Certainly no teenage garage combo, they look like a bunch of seasoned session men cobbled together and told to try and look and sound 'groovy'!

Technically competent, they at times lacked that certain passion. Covers include (Just Like) Romeo And Juliet, No Fair At All (Association) Let It Out (Let It All Hang Out) (Hombres), Get Out Of My Life Woman and Little Wing (Hendrix). The latter track is probably one of their best if you ignore the vocals - a mellow version with fine non-distorted guitar. Their second album is the stronger of the two. The Minstrel has good effects and a certain charm, Sweet Little Smoke is quite a successful sensitive ballad, the title track is a good slice of pop-psych and You Turn Me On is a reasonable attempt at the same. Ain't Nobody Gonna Love You and Suburban Life raise the tempo, but the reprise to Get Out Of My Life Woman is simply awful.

Sonny Di Nunzio went on to Sebastian.

Mark Radice, a forgotten folk-rock and pop singer with a significant output, was born on 23rd November 1957 in Newark, New Jersey. His father (Gene Radice) was a well known recording engineer who worked with Jimi Hendrix, Velvet Underground, Lovin' Spoonful, The Cowsills, The Mamas & The Papas, The Tokens, Vanilla Fudge and many others.

Mark signed to RCA in 1964 and released the singles: Wooden Girl, Richest Man In The World and Natural Morning. In 1967 he signed to Decca and released 10,000 Year Old Blues which included 20-year-old Steven Tyler (then Tallerico). He moved on to Paramount Records in 1970 and released his eponymous album, which featured the song Hey My Love that was later covered by Dion. In 1973, he backed Donovan on his "27 Tease" tour, producing some of the record and handling keyboards, backing vocals and guitars.

In the mid-seventies Radice switched again to United Artists. His Ain't Nothin' But A Party featured Brass Construction and included the hit single If You Can't Beat 'Em Join 'Em. In 1978, he joined Aerosmith on keyboards and backing vocals during their "Draw the Line" Tour and he played keyboards and backing vocals on their Live Bootleg album. He's remained active in the music business, working as a writer for EMI for most of the eighties. In 1993 he released Store In A Dry Cool Place (Bottom Up Records 122593-2) 1993. This century has seen Generation Why (CD) (2004) and Stay Tuned (CD) (2007). In 2006, he started work on a book that features stories of working with all the artists he worked with, entitled 'I Could Write A Book'.

Save Your Money and Wooden Girl have been compiled on Fading Yellow Vol. 3 (CD): and Three Cheers (For The Sad Man) has resurfaced on Fading Yellow Vol. 6 (CD). (SR/VJ/MR website)

This was a Los Angeles-based mid-sixties studio project. Randy Myers was Jackie DeShannon's brother and she wrote and produced both tracks. It's an aggressive folk-rocker, which is rather discordant and suffers from slightly inadequate vocals.

My Group And Me has subsequently been compiled on Pebbles, Vol. 10 (LP) and you'll also find For Old Times Sake on Destination Frantic Volume 3 (CD). (VJ/BG)

Pacheco was from New Bedford, Massachusetts, but formed this band in New York whilst attending Hofstra University. Four Days Of Rain is a top-drawer folk-rocker with vibrant vocals and dramatic guitar chords - sounds more like San Francisco than New York. It's been compiled on Byrds Won't Fly Today (LP). The flip's lighter airy folk-pop. Hate... continues in the lighter vein, but Parade... returns to form with Airplane-like vocals and more intense guitar. Immensely appealing, hear for yourselves on The Electric Coffee House Vol 2 (CD).

Pacheco went on to the folk-rock group Euphoria. (MW/CF)

For those into the "OMmmmmmm" region of the psychedelic spectrum, Nik Raicevic's Head album may be on your wavelength. We're talking electronic, synthetic psych inspired by narcotics, although in more recent times it has acquired an "ambient" tag and some of his later albums tend to be described as "electronica".

Head was recorded at Gold Star Studio in Hollywood and pulls no punches - "the sound of numbers for soaking in soft dreams. Sweet moments and private notes making a rhyme into a habit. An album that creates the ultimate environment for the smoke generation. Taste it." In case anyone had still not cottoned on, the three meditative Moog drones were christened Cannabis Sativa, Methedrine and Lysergic Acid Diethylamide. The enclosed 16-page A4-size coloring book of black, inked doodles was for listeners to "find something colorful to do with your hands". Hmmmmm. (MW)

45: Why Did You Rob Us, Tank?/
Sewer Rat Love Chant (Liberty F-55930) 1966

Both sides of this fabulous single feature chiming Eastern-infused folk-rock-garage-fuzz-psych at its best. Their story has been unearthed and retold by Steve Krikorian on Sundazed's excellent retrospective, which features the single cuts plus 10 previously unreleased live tracks, captured for posterity by Neil Hopper in 1966 at Fresno's Rainbow Ballroom. Alongside raw and vibrant covers of The Byrds (It's No Use), Animals (I'm Gonna Change The World) and Them (Baby Please Don't Go) are renditions of Why Did You Rob Us, Tank? and Sewer Rat Love Chant plus some striking originals, where loutish swagger vies with exotic quasi-psychedelic melodies.

Formed in Fresno, California in 1963 as the Vibrants, an instrumental quartet, by 1966 they'd switched to their more rakish name and added a keyboard player. Encouraged by promises from connections, they recorded a demo which was cut to the acetate listed above. This six-song 12" disc includes early versions of Sewer Rat Love Chant (here titled Sewer Rat Love Theme), Prisoner Of Chillon, All Night Long, and Don't Need You. These are all different, earlier recordings than those appearing on the Sundazed collection and remain unreleased. When school finished for the summer, they struck out for the bright lights of Los Angeles, They did secure some gigs and released their single in November, yet success remained elusive. By early 1967 reality had set in and the band split.

Shapazian and Scott formed New Life with Don Whaley (Cindermen) and Phil Reed, and took some RP material with them (Only For Our Minds). Van Maarth and Olson formed Admiral Strange. Krikorian returned home; some years later he returned to L.A. with a new identity, eventually carving out a successful career as Tonio K.

Sewer Rat Love Chant is also on Beyond The Calico Wall (CD) and Ah Feel Like Ahcid (CD). (MW/PS)

ALBUM: 1(A) RAIN (Project 3 PR 5072 SD) 1972 R1

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Sunbeam SBRCD5054) 2008 with an ultra-rare bonus track.

Rain was a Philadelphia band that evolved out of Rock Island, whose 1970 album had successfully blended psychedelia, acid-rock and R&B.

Rain's album, recorded in New York under the watchful eye of Enock Light during 1971 may interest those into early seventies U.K. progressive rock like Yes, Genesis etc. It exudes shades of light and dark, jazzy signatures, oodles of keyboards, the odd guitar solo and harmony vocals. Not many American bands embraced the prog-rock genre - this outfit occasionally bask in it though they tend towards lighter moods rather than heavy pomposity. It was barely promoted at the time and passed unnoticed, but over time it gradually acquired a cult status. An A&R rep from Atlantic expressed an interst in their work and when Project 3 found out they suspended their contract and Atlantic lost interest.

Soon after they replaced Ric Crinitti with a new vocalist/songwriter and bassist Carmine Lauro and adopted a new moniker of Positron. They recorded about 10 songs but nothing made it onto vinyl.

Frank Schallis died in 2000 and Mike Kennedy died of cancer in November 2006. Ric Crinitti went on to become a session player in Philadelphia and was later in a glam metal band called Cinderella. Cobb Bussinger developed an interest in synthesizer programming, relocated to Los Angeles and began composing for feature films and TV.

The Sunbeam CD reissue includes detailed historical notes, rare photos and an ultra-rare non-album bonus track, Springtime. (MW/CF/VJ)

RAIN - Self Titled LP.

Rainbow was a short-lived Los Angeles-based project. Their album has a great cover. The contents incorporate several different styles. All the music is written by W. David Mohr and much of it is heavy with lots of fuzz guitar reminiscent of Iron Butterfly. It ranges from heavy-soul (I Just Want To Make Love To You); hippie-pop (Leaf Clover); a West Coast sound which seems in places distinctly similar to Fever Tree's San Francisco Girls (well-spotted, Max!); pretentious pop with lots of keyboards (Midnight Candle); and gimmickry with lots of sound effects (Does Your Head Need Straightening?) to the very pleasant After The Storm, which has some delightful soothing piano. The band was basically a studio-only project by a bunch of students from the New York suburbs. Both albums are excellent soft-rock with touches of psychedelia, particularly the first one, which is beginning to become a minor collectable. Both albums have a good combination of fuzz guitars and keyboards that combine to create a sound not too dissimilar to Tangerine Zoo with an added Anglophile psych-pop feel. By the time Sunday Funnies was released in 1969, the band had split. The album blended Beatles and Dylan covers with some band originals. (VJ)

This is religious rock very much in the same mould as Agape. The original front cover quotes from the book of Revelations and depicts Christ surrounded by seven candlesticks. There are some naff country tracks on this extremely rare album which does have some good tracks. What might interest readers is the fuzzy guitar work on Someone You Need and the more melodic guitar work on Get Ready and I've Got The Rebirth.

From Springfield, Illinois their single was released in the fall of 1967 on the same Peoria label as The Coachmen (early Dan Fogelberg) and Suburban 9 to 5 (early Gary Richrath). Subterranean Sunset is a strange and disjointed slab of psychedelic rock that kicks off with a bubbling cauldron of keyboards and fuzz guitar. It then veers off into strident hard-rock territory before fragmenting with a trippy break and floating flute interludes. A joint is a pre-requisite here.

Drummer Best was later with Big Twist And the Mellow Fellows and Dr. Hector and The Groove Injectors. (MW/Roger Maglio)

Do You Feel It (Lee no # (matrix 867L-9178)) 1967

Lower-profile Michigan garage out of Traverse City. The Lee single features some decent fuzz guitar work, but the Phalanx single is their best. Tell Her No is not the Zombies classic but a bittersweet garage-ballad with sultry vocals punctuated by the odd blast of rasping fuzz. The flip is more overtly Searchers-influenced jangly garage-beat sounds with keening harmonies. The Phalanx release is a true nugget.

The band changed their name to Rain (as if there weren't enough around already) and in 1968 line-up 'B' recorded She Is A Friend, which remained unreleased until it appeared on the A-Square (Of Course) compilation CD in 2008.

A great pop-punk-psychedelic outfit, Rainy Daze came from Denver, Colorado. Only the first single appears on their album, which is recommended. They first formed in 1965 when they specialised in playing beat and R&B and they were a regular attraction at local frat parties. Almost unbelievably they were unearthed by Phil Spector who signed them to a management contract and a giant publicity campaign was planned but never really materialised.

A year or so later That Acapulco Gold appeared on the local IP label and Frank Slay, a local producer, bought the rights and released it on his Chicory label. However, it was quickly leased to UNI and became the band's best known song making the No. 70 spot. Although they never again equalled this commercial success they continued to make some excellent singles. One of the best, a beautifully crafted piece of pop-psych was originally released as Fe Fi Fo Fum, but was almost immediately withdrawn and reissued with a different title Blood Of Oblivion, even securing a U.K. release (Polydor 56737).

Tim Gilbert, the main songwriter, also released a solo single Early October/If We Stick Together (UNI 55045) 1967 - a folkie offering which has been compared to Tim Buckley. He would go into song writing and his compositions (with J. Carter) would appear on the Hardwater (fellow Coloradans The Astronauts in disguise), Yankee Dollar, Horses and Strawberry Alarm Clock albums.

Their album includes the first single and Discount City, a kind of bluesy honky tonk, which was the 'A' side of their third single. Aside from an almost four-minute medley of Shake, Knock On Wood and Respect, other notable songs include a pretty good cover of Stephen Stills' For What Its Worth, a fuzzy Taxman-like song called Weatherman and an Eastern-style slice of psychedelia, Snow And Ice And Burning Sand. However, the album's finest moment was In My Mind Lives A Forest (the flip to their first single) - an exquisite slice of pop-psychedelia. Recommended.

Compilation appearances have included: Absurd Bird on Kicks & Chicks Vol. 1 (LP); Make Me Laugh on Of Hopes And Dreams & Tombstones (LP) and Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 7 (LP & CD); That Acapulco Gold on Psychedelic Visions (CD); In My Mind Lives A Forest on Psychedelic Archives, Vol. 6 (double cassette box) and Acid and Flowers (CD); and Fe Fi Fo Fum on Highs In The Mid Sixties, Vol. 18 (LP) and Fading Yellow Vol. 6 (CD). ALBUMS: 1(A) RAMATAM (Atlantic SD 7236) 1972
2(B) IN APRIL CAME THE DAWNING OF THE RED SUNS (Atlantic SD 7261) 1973

Mike Pinera was of Blues Image and Iron Butterfly fame and Mitch Mitchell was the ex-Jimi Hendrix Experience drummer.

Their first album, recorded in Florida, was mainstream rock which veered towards hard-rock and jazz-rock in places. There's a good guitar solo from April Lawton on She's A Woman and also a brass section.

After the first album Pinera departed for The New Cactus Band and later formed Thee Image. The second album, recorded by new line-up (B), is much better. It was recorded in New York. Highlights include The Land/Rainy Sunday Evening, an imaginative melancholic song in a progressive style with great string orchestration; I Can Only Love You, a fast tempo song with horns and a great guitar solo by Lawton and Stars And Stripes Forever, which has a carnival-like orchestration. There are also a couple of hard-rockers and some fine fifties style material like Rhinoceros. (VJ/GG)

NB: (2) reissued on vinyl (Rada MO-6901) 197? (3-LP) in a standard cover.

Richard Alpert (Ram Dass) was born in 1931. He studied psychology, specializing in human motivation and personality development. He received an M.A. from Wesleyan and a Ph.D. from Stanford. He then served on the psychology faculties at Stanford and the University of California, and from 1958 to 1963 taught and researched in the Department of Social Relations and the Graduate School of Education at Harvard University. During this period he co-authored (with Sears and Rau) the book 'Identification and Child Rearing', published by Stanford University Press.

In 1961, while at Harvard, he collaborated with Timothy Leary, Ralph Metzner, Aldous Huxley, Allen Ginsberg, and others, to pursue intensive research with psilocybin, LSD-25, and other psychedelic chemicals. Out of this research came two books: 'The Psychedelic Experience' (co-authored by Leary and Metzner, and based on The Tibetan Book of the Dead, published by University Books); and 'LSD' (with Sidney Cohen and Lawrence Schiller, published by New American Library). Because of the controversial nature of this research, Ram Dass was dismissed from Harvard in 1963.

Ram Dass continued his research with a private foundation until 1967 when he travelled to India, where he met his Guru (spiritual teacher), Neem Karoli Baba. It was there he studied yoga and meditation, and received the name Ram Dass, which means 'servant of God'. As well as writing several books he made recordings. The Evolution Of Consciousness is a spoken word version of one of his books 'Be Here Now'. Love Serve Remember is the easiest to find and features hippie-folk style songs. A box set of mystic and religious folk music (one album contains only spoken word), it was issued in a black and white cover with a booklet and produced by Ram Dass. It was recorded in part at WBAI in New York City and contains phone calls, Ram Dass reading from the Third Chinese Patriarch of Zen, The Gospel According to John, the Ramayana, and music. (VJ)

	I Remember/You Know I Love You	(Fenton 2014) 1965

Formed in 1961 by a 13-year old Tom Carter, this Kalamazoo, Michigan band released several singles on local labels and performed on the teen night club circuit. Carter composed/co-composed almost all their early output - initially instrumentals before they graduated to cute early-sixties teen-pop with the addition of a female vocalist.

By 1964, the personnel had stabilised with line-up 'C' above. The next year they released a single on the now-revered Fenton label - the top side features Sonny and Cher style vocals and background chimes. Both sides were composed by Boggs, who'd taken on the mantle of main songwriter as they embraced post-Invasion styles.

At the start of 1966 Stevens, Hey, Boggs and Clelland left en bloc to form The Soundsations. Tom Carter soldiered on but no further records appeared.

The reissue of the Soundsations' album Shout reunites them by adding the complete recorded legacy of The Ramrods (15 tracks).

They have two instrumentals: War Party and Blue Steel compiled on Eastern PA Rock - Part One (!961-66) (LP). (MW/RM)

	My Way Of Thinking/The Truth From My Eyes	(Sun 398) 1965
	Just Like You/I Need A Vacation	(ABC 12394) 1977

This Memphis group had started around 1962, but college split the band in 1966 soon after they'd released their singles. They were part of the same scene as The Devilles (pre-Box Tops), The Gentrys, The Scepters and Tommy Burk and The Counts. With the Jesters, they were one of the few garage outfits on Sun (Rossini had recorded several solo singles on Sun and as part of the duo Toni and Terri). Their first single was produced by Sam Philips. On the second, My Way Of Thinking is a rip-off of the Kinks You Really Got Me and was written by Donna Weiss (later co-writer of Bette Davies Eyes). The group was very popular locally and a tentative tour of the South was planned but finally collapsed.

Members got back together again in the late seventies and even got to release another single. Randy Haspel went on to become a successful songwriter for Rufus Thomas, George Jones and Moe Bandy, while Bob Simon worked in the Memphis studios. In the nineties, the group was still playing occasionally in the local clubs.

The 24-track Big Beat compilation includes their singles and many previously unissued tracks that they recorded with Sam Phillips or his son Knox.

You can also locate My Way Of Thinking on Boulders, Vol. 9 (LP) and Ya Gotta Have Moxie, Vol. 2 (2-CD). (MW/RHI/SR/VJ)

Confusion came out in the 'Summer Of Love' in Birmingham, Alabama - poppy psychedelia with FX, straight pop on the flip. The Vacuum could be described as a psychedelic novelty; it's a tame pop tune until the vacuum cleaner solo kicks in, pursued by war siren and bugle, and culminating in a freak-out. Strange as that might sound, it's one of the more normal cuts on the weird'n'wonderful Only In America (CD) compilation, which opted for the longer version; it's also on Fuzz, Flaykes, & Shakes Vol. 6 (LP/CD). TOM RAPP - Sunforest LP.

After Pearls Before Swine, Tom Rapp started recording under his own name, although his first solo album was largely comprised of re-recordings of songs from his earlier albums (hence its title). In some respects then this is a Pearls Before Swine 'best of'. It includes the definitive and orchestrated version of These Things Too.

Produced by Peter Edminston, the second was recorded in Nashville with many of the famed Area Code 615 studio musicians helping out, but is rather disappointing, although it contains new songs and uses another Breughel The Elder painting on its sleeve.

His third solo album, Sunforest marked a return to form, containing some good tracks.

Fans of Tom Rapp will also be interested in a tribute album For The Dead In Space, including Fit And Limo, Bevis Frond, Mourning Cloak and even an exclusive track by Tom Rapp himself. More recently Tom Rapp has performed at Ptolemaic Terrascope's 'Terrastock III' and released a fine solo album, A Journal Of The Plague Year (Woronzow) 1999.

A live version of The Jeweller form April 1997 appears on Terrastock (CD). (SR)

	Come And Take A Ride In My Boat/ Take Me To This World Of Yours	(Attack AR-1403) 1966

Still somewhat of a mystery group, this New York or New Jersey band, discovered by producers Jeffrey Katz and Jerry Kasenetz - later to be acknowledged as two of the originators of "bubblegum" music - was presented as an Ohio group since it was believed at the time easier to break a record out of the Midwest. After recording the instantly likeable Louie Louie rip-off Beg, Borrow and Steal, the band supposedly grew reluctant in giving any more control to Katz and Kasenetz, and were shortly thereafter dismissed by the producers - but not before leaving behind at least nine additional songs, all included on the Collectables release.

The band's second single, Come And Take A Ride In My Boat was re-titled and recorded by Every Mothers' Son as Come On Down To My Boat and became a huge hit for them. For the Rare Breed it seemed another case of almost, but not quite.

Aside from Beg, Borrow and Steal (reportedly, Katz and Kasenetz would later take a true Ohio group, Sir Timothy and the Royals, and re-release the exact same single under the band's new moniker, The Ohio Express), the CD includes a cover of The Grodes' I Won't Be There, the garagey Where Are You Going To, and two Monkees-ish songs: Bad Girl and City Girl.

Beg, Borrow and Steal has been compiled on Rhino Record's 1998 Nuggets Box (4-CD). (MDo/SNs/DJ)

	I Talk To The Sun/Don't Blow Your Cool	(Cool As A Moose Fr-3250)	1965

From Gainesville, Florida - this outfit started out in 1962 as The Playboys, changing their name to The Rare Breed in 1965. I Talk To The Sun, is a melodic garage-power-popper with swirling keyboards and prominent bass. The band later signed with Mainstream Records, but nothing ever came of the deal.

Carter moved to West Palm Beach and joined The Eighth Day. Jimmy Garcia went on to become an attorney in Houston, while McDaniel became an occupational therapist at Auburn University.

The correct title of I Talk To The Sun is actually I Talked To The Sun, the title was messed up on the label! The band also backed soul singers Gene Middleton (on D&B) and Linda Lyndell (on Volt), who did the original version of What A Man, the song made famous three decades later by Salt 'N' Pepa/En Vogue.

Compilation appearances include: I Talk To The Sun on Psychedelic States - Florida Vol. 1 (CD) and Destination Frantic! (LP & CD); and In The Night on Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 3 (CD). (MW/JLh)

A mediocre white soul-rock band in the style of Vanilla Fudge with long versions of soul hits (e.g. 20 minutes of Get Ready). Their records are not recommended but were successful enough to allow Tamla Motown to launch a rock label imaginatively called Rare Earth for other white rock acts like Power Of Zeus or Xit. Rare Earth was, of course, based in Detroit, Michigan. Their records sold well commercially, resulting in several hit albums and singles. Rod Richards left in 1971 to form Road with Noel Redding. The band kept on recording during the seventies.

There are a plethora of compilations to choose from.

Rasputin and The Mad Monks operated out of Lawrence, Massachusetts. On 16th December 1967, they cut a four track demo. Three of the tracks: - Don't Let The Sun Catch You Crying, The Rain, The Park and Other Things, and See You In September were pretty sluggish and will be of little interest to readers. NB: α was a Danby's Men's Shops promo-only release. β The flip side was shown as by SRC.

Out of Ann Arbor, this was one of Michigan's top sixties bands. Essentially an R&B outfit, they often covered popular songs and Respect was actually a minor U.S. hit in late 1966, after it was leased to Cameo Parkway for nationwide distribution. They signed to the Crewe label for an album, which may become a minor collectors' item before long.

A recent discovery has been a Fan Club album that did not come in a cover. It's reported to consist of three pre-Invasion instrumentals from 1964, alternate takes of some of their singles and a six-minute garage-psych jam.

The flip side Out In The Streets was the same song as Sing minus the vocal track.

The 2-CD set on Big Beat includes many of their finest moments, including versions of The Kinks' I Need You and Holland-Dozier-Holland's Leavin' Here as well as demos, rehearsal tracks, cuts from their recently discovered fan club album and their early promo single. The set is accconpanied by comprehensive sleevenotes that are full of memorabilia.

Compilation coverage has so far included: Feelin' Lost on The Cicadelic 60's, Vol. 2 (LP) and A Journey To Tyme, Vol. 2 (LP); Feelin' Lost, Sing and Leavin' Here on Mindrocker, Vol. 11 (LP); Turn On and Little Girls Cry on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 5 (LP); Little Girls Cry and I Need You (alternate take) on Michigan Mayhem, Vol. 1 (CD); Respect on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 4 (CD) and Michigan Rocks, Vol. 1 (LP); I Need You on Boulders, Vol. 2 (LP); and Respect, Sing!, Leavin' Here and I Need You on Michigan Brand Nuggets (LP) and Michigan Nuggets (CD). In addition Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 5 includes their rarest recording, a promo single for Danby's Men's Shop. Their cover of the Kinks' I Need You (a different song to the previous one mentioned) is on Nuggets Box (4-CD). Finally Let 'Em Have It! Vol. 1 (CD) features Look What You're Doin' (To Me Baby), the unreleased track Poor Dog and Gloria, from a rare Fan Club album. (VJ/MW)

The Rats (OH)

NB: α reissued (Norton 840) 2002.

This was actually the work of an Akron, Ohio group called The Decades who'd released a spacey instrumental single Come On Pretty Baby/Strange Worlds earlier in 1963. Rats Revenge is an awful, crudely recorded, garage punker, which you'll either love or loathe.

You can also check out Rats Revenge (both parts) on Back From The Grave, Vol. 1 (LP) and Garage Kings (2-LP). (VJ/MW)

45:	Psychedelic Movement/ She's Forever On My Mind	(Mobie 3430) 1968

THE RATIONALS - Self Titled LP.

Psychedelic Movement is a decent acid-rocker which would be great were it not for trilling female vocals; likewise the flip is let down by the vocals (male this time). It turns out that The Ravelles was a professional six-piece "show-band" with Jefferson Airplane pretentions, rather than some spotty teen garage/psych band, which explains why this single doesn't quite gell. From the impressive-sounding Iron Mountain on Michigan's Upper Peninsula, they were also known as Sainte Jon's Academy.

Psychedelic Movement is also on Brain Shadows Vol. 2 (CD), Psychedelic States: Illinois Vol.1 (CD) and Sounds Of She (CD). (MW/SS)

	β	Calamity Jane/Now She's Gone	(Rust 5123) 1968

The debut waxing by this Pinellas County, Florida quintet hit the stores in the summer of '66. Reaching For The Sun is moody jangley folk-punk with yearning harmonies - this has resurfaced on Psychedelic States - Florida Vol. 2 (CD).

The second single features a couple more tunes from Al Schweikert. Bright 'n' breezy pop with an RKO-radio-blip intro and some fuzz is slightly marred by some brass. The flip is an introspective lovelorn ballad with keyboard doodlings. Calamity Jane was co-composed with Karl Lamp with whom Albert Schweikert also composed The Tropics' classic As Times Gone?

The Ravens were managed by A.J. Perry, who was 'the' regional concert promoter at the time. They opened for every major act that came to town during that time, including The Hollies, The Yardbirds, The Who, Hermans Hermits, Blues Magoos and Sonny and Cher.

Kent Pearson: "Albert Schweikert and I reformed the band after it had split up in 1968. Shortly before the band ended for good, Albert left and we brought in Charlie Bailey and Tommy Angarano, both from St. Petersburg bands The Tempests and Pink Anacin. At that point, we were doing lengthy and complex arrangement in the style of Vanilla Fudge, as well as copping some of the styles of New York's The Child. The band broke up for good in late 1969. At that time, I relocated to Boston, put the bass behind me and began playing guitar with The Soul Blenders, Buck, and later, the band which was to become John Butcher Axis. I'm still performing with The Electric Blues Band, as vocalist-guitarist."

Some members went on to form Manitoba who released a couple of singles on RCA in the early seventies. For more on the sixties Florida scene, pick up Jeff Lemlich's 1992 book 'Savage Lost' (Distinctive Publishing, ISBN 0-942963-12-1). (MW/KPn)

NB: (1) reissued on Rockadelic (RRLP 15.5) 1994 with a different cover design. More recently it was reissued by the band, again in a newly-designed sleeve (Owl-Raven Jams) 2007.

Another Raven, from Ohio, who's highly-rated and ultra-rare album had a reissue by Rockadelic in 1994. It consists of five hard-rock tracks with some blues leanings and slight psychedelic overtones. The title cut is a powerful blues-rock jam that took up most of side two. No personnel details unfortunately. (VJ/GG)

45s:	Feelin' Good/Green Mountain Dream	(Columbia 4-44988) 1969
	Children At Our Feet/ Here Come A Truck	(Columbia 4-45163) 1970

Originating from Buffalo, New York Raven recorded a good and rare live blues-rock album in 1967. After an undistinct album and a brace of singles on Columbia, which had moved into Blood, Sweat and Tears style, they broke up. Gary Mallaber (or Mallabar) would later join the Steve Miller Band and also have a successful career in the Californian studios, whilst James Calire would play with America.

Of the other members, Tommy Calandra passed away in 1998, Jim Calire's son Mario plays (or played) with Jakob Dylan's band the Wallflowers, Gary Mallaber has been working with local musicians in Buffalo recently and Tony Galla now successfully performs old Italian love songs.

They may be responsible for an earlier single as The Raven's - Farmer's Daughter No Turning Back (Sahara 112) 1966 - which has been described as a "Diddleyesque harp wailer". (SR/PF/MW)

The above killer organ/fuzz track was by a Waynesboro, Tennessee band and recorded in June 1968 at the Kecoata Studio in Wayne County, Tennessee. Just Like I Want Her has resurfaced on Back From The Grave, Vol. 8 (2-LP), where Tim Warren tells us that the band originally formed in 1965 and played around mid-southern Tennessee and northern Alabama for a few years, until their wild, fast-living lead singer was killed in an auto accident. They then reformed with three new members, including Caldwell Davis Jr. who had previously led The Missing Lynx who'd issued the killer two-sider Hang Around/Louie, Go Home in 1967. College and Vietnam signalled The Ravenz demise not too long after the release of the above single. (VJ/GG/MW)

A Richfield, Minnesota group The Rave-Ons formed in the early sixties as the Knights. Around 1964 they became The Rave-Ons and embraced the Invasion sounds. They released three quality singles, mainly original compositions, before breaking up in 1967. Members went on to Jokers Wild, South 40 and T.C. Atlantic. Dick and Larry Wiegand would achieve success with Crow, releasing four albums and a pile of singles. Larry remains an in-demand bassist - in 1996, he worked with the reformed Canoise on their Plugged In CD.

Whenever, Love Pill and I Want You To Love Me feature on the mid-sixties Bud-Jet label Minneapolis sampler albums Top Teen Bands, Vol. 1 (LP), Top Teen Bands, Vol. 2 (LP) and Top Teen Bands, Vol. 3 (LP) respectively. Baby Don't Love Me is on Root '66 (LP) and an unreleased 1965 Lonnie Knight composition I'll Come Back To You has resurfaced on Project Blue, Vol. 5 (LP). Everybody Tells Me can also be found on Suburban Life (LP), Quagmire Volume 5 (CD) and Trip In Tyme Volume 5 (CD); Love Pill was also featured on Too Much Monkey Business 4 (LP); and The Line figured on Party Party Party (CD).

It has been confirmed by Lonnie Knight that they are NOT the Rave-Ons who feature on several Columbine label albums including The Now Sounds Of Today (CRH-14) 197? This was a Hollywood label that specialised in song-poem music and employed the services of mainly local area acts. Any information about the Columbine Rave-Ons would be appreciated.

NB: α also issued as DJ promo featuring mono and stereo versions of Everything's Fire (Smash DJS-15).

A Brooklyn, New York outfit, whose Mother Nature is a catchy and uplifting psych-pop tune with crisp production, cool fuzz, thrumming bass runs, great percussion and a swirling Middle Eastern influenced break. The band achieved an unusual sound by using an electric accordion rather than an organ. Mother Nature was also issued on a one-sided 6" 33rpm laminated cardboard picture disc (Leaf/Smash no #) in 1967; presumably this was a freebie in a teen magazine.

All songs on the above singles were composed by M. and D.Jimenez.

Named after their school, the band was based in Starkville, Mississippi and was the result of a merger of earlier bands who played on the UOM campus. They played folk-punk with a psychedelic tinge. It's Not Real has a Dylan-type blues harmonica, while the flip has a mod-pop feel.

Californian singer/songwriter Bob Ray was influenced by Donovan and similar artists. Produced by Johnny Rivers during his psychy period, his album is rather mellow but nonetheless pleasant. Arranged with flute and strings, songs like City Of Toys, Money Tree and Smog Song will clearly be of interest to fans of melancholic singers. Bob Ray was backed by the usual group of L.A. session musicians: Hal Blaine, Larry Knechtel, Jim Horn... NB: α shown as by Burch Ray and The Walkers.

Itinerant performer Burch Ray Palmer originated from Miles City in Montana. After graduation, he started "The Walkers" rock'n'roll band. His parents bought him a guitar and he decided to go by his first and middle names on stage, so the band became "Burch Ray and the Walkers". Apparently their name came from a Duane Eddy record, The Walker and from always breaking down in Joe Konkright's '56 Chevy and having to 'walk' all the time. Line-up 'B' joined in 1962 and Wayne Kurtz joined in 1964. Although most of his material falls outside the remit of this book, one track has found favour with garage collectors. In the mid-sixties he recorded Love Questions, a dramatic teen-beater with ringing guitar, at Ray Ruff's studio in Amarillo, Texas. It was released first on the Sully label and later on Ruff. It certainly merits a place on the excellent Fuzz, Flaykes And Shakes, Vol. 5 (LP & CD) compilation.

RAW HONEY - Ragweed LP.

Burch was a member of the Montana National Guard, so in 1967 took some time off from music to attend officer's school in Fort Benning, Georgia. In the fall of '67, Burch, Wayne and Gary, along with Bill Brown, formed a Walkers band that could play a mixture of rock and country on a major night club cicuit.

Burch Ray released an album and several singles on the Yellowstone label in the seventies. (MW/VJ)

From Bremerton, Washington, The Raymarks played a pretty standard sort of R&B with lots of raw guitar and organ. They were originally known as The Orbits and changed name to The Galaxies in 1962, but this had to be changed again in 1964 when they learnt of the better-known and similarly named Tacoma-based band. Their first record was a re-make of Cannonball Adderley's Work Song. Their finest moment, though, was probably Louise, a pretty standard R&B howl.

The band ended when Huff and Selvidge were drafted in 1966 but Spotts went on to form The Icemen and was later in The Wailers and Crome Syrcus. Greg Pettit also went on to play in Superband.

Gail Davies went on to have a country music career during the seventies and eighties and is still actively singing and recording albums. She was born in Oklahoma but raised in the Pt. Orchard - Bremerton, Washington. She also sang with The Coming Generation and a few other small time groups during her high school days at South Kitsap. She moved to Los Angeles in 1967 and eventually settled in Nashville in 1975.

Compilation appearances include: Louise on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 - Knock You Flat! (LP & CD), Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 (CD), Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 14 (LP) and The History of Northwest Rock, Vol. 5; Louise (cassette); I Believed on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 4 (CD); Work Song on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 16 (LP); Hard Times (previously unreleased) on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 (CD); the previously unreleased No Name on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 3 (CD); and Feelin' No Good (also previously unreleased) on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 4 (CD) and on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 3: I'm Walkin' Babe (LP & CD) along with Dr. Feelgood and Walking Down The Street (also unrleased). The Raymond John Michael Band (RJM), named by its founder Ray Graffia, Jr. was formed in 1969 when Graffia left the New Colony Six. They recorded three singles (or more?) on the Ivanhoe and London labels and disbanded in 1971. In addition to Graffia, the band included two of further original New Colony Six members, Craig Kemp and Chic James. RJM's sound was heavier than the NC6, yet retained the harmonious sound of the former group. Let There Be Love was written by the Bee Gees and Rich Kid Blues was penned by Terry Reid. Unreleased RJM tracks includes such songs as Gwendolyn, Bobby And Georgia, I Confess (a new version of the NC6 classic!), I Can't Believe That We're Alone, I Never Dreamed, People In Search Of and Splendid Friends/Dining In Film. This ultra-rarity is just outside the time-span of this book but sounds like it's from the early-mid seventies. The dual-guitar rural-rock group came from New Orleans originally but relocated to Mississippi and subsequently toured across the south before setting to work on their album. It was recorded live in their living room, with nothing remixed or overdubbed. As a result, it has a very intense atmosphere that has made it a favourite with collectors. This was a campus band from the University of Missouri's Engineering School at Rolla. In My Grave can also be found on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. 1V (LP). Its best point is some enthusiastic guitar work. (VJ)

1-A/Do That Thing (Ablaze 662) 1966
Do That Thing/1-A (Cameo C-446) 1966

Reactors came from the Suffolk area of Virginia. Their debut has a pre-Invasion flavour, coupling a cool saxy frat-jerker with a slow last-dance ballad. They updated their sound considerably for the follow-up which was picked up by Cameo Parkway. Do That Thing is a natural progression from She's A Queen, still retaining a frat flavour but incorporating beat and dance elements and relegating the sax to a background role.

Of most appeal here is 1-A, a moribund folk-rocker with swirling keyboards on the theme of the Vietnam war, destruction and death - reaired on Aliens, Psychos And Wild Things (CD); and Do That Thing has resurfaced on Destination Frantic Volume 2 (CD).

Latterly the band included bassist Steve Hicks who'd move on to the Hustlers, a Sandston, Virginia outfit who changed their name to Short Cross around the turn of the decade. (MW/BHr/ST)

NB: (1) contains two tracks by The Readymen: Shortnin' Bread and Disintegration.

45: Surfer's Blues/Shortnin' Bread (Bangar 665) 1965

The Readymen, from Minneapolis, weren't the only rock 'n' rollers willing and able to slam into the old folk/children's song Shortnin' Bread but their version is the most gone. Perhaps it's got something to do with the air in Minneapolis that makes people sing with such a raw growl as can be heard in The Trashmen's Surfin' Bird and The Novas' The Crusher.

You'll also find Shortnin' Bread on Pebbles Vol. 4 - Various Hodads (CD) and Born Bad, Vol. 5 (CD). (VJ/GG)

45: Sea of Reality/The Man (Rev 119-68/120-68) 1968

An example of one of the numerous Jefferson Airplane clones that blossomed as part of the 'West Coast sound' replete with Grace Slickesque vocalist stridently belting it out, especially on the up-tempo flip. Sea Of Reality is a very slow atmospheric dirge with suitably tiresome lyrics. (MW)

Rear Exit (CA)

45: Excitation/Miles Beyond (MTA 132) 1967

Sixties punk outfit Rear Exit was from the San Francisco area. Basically we're talking an amalgam of psychedelia and punk, with Excitation similar in style to The Music Machine and Miles Beyond having some neat chops and changes. There were rumours of a retrospective album of their material but we can't confirm that it appeared.

Compilation appearances have included: Excitation and Miles Beyond on Psychedelic Moods - Part Two (LP & CD), 60's Punk E.P., Vol. 3 (7"), Boulders Punk (EP) Box and Crystalize Your Mind (CD); and Miles Beyond on Garage Beat '66 3 (CD). (VJ/MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) THE AGE OF REASON (Georgetowne TRS 1002) 19?? R2

NB: (1) labels show band name as 'Reason', whereas it often appears on dealer lists as Age Of Reason.

On a Washington DC label, this band is thought to have come from Virginia. The album is now rare and sought-after by collectors. It kicks off with the band's own individualistic cover version of Bob Dylan and Rick Danko's This Wheel's On Fire, which is probably their magnum opus. Like most of the album, the music is very keyboard driven - Sony Bono's Bang Bang and Ike Turner's I'm Blue get similar treatment. It also contains a couple of originals with Bill Manning and Tommy Dildy's Letter To Home the pick. It starts with some cool bluesy piano but then becomes very country-influenced.

On the album, the late Danny Gatton is credited as playing on at least two cuts. Many years later Billy Windsor was the singer in Gatton's band that gigged around Washington DC in the late eighties/early nineties. Terry Gorka was also in The Telstars. (VJ/ED/MW/CF)

45: Melinda/Don't Be That Way (Sound Track 2000) 1966

Based in Temple north of Austin in Texas, this group was managed by a Waco businessman Carl Sachs who tried hard to promote their single, but due to a small pressing and limited distribution it never took off. If Melinda was an unmemorable ballad, the flip was a 13th Floor Elevators- influenced rocker. The band split in the autumn of 1967 when Schwertner left to fill the vocal spot in the newly formed Lavender Hill Express. Later still, he was reunited with Dolan and Inman in Plymouth Rock. In the short-term Inman, Dolan and Miller played in a blues trio called Feast Of Stephen which later evolved into South Canadian Overflow.

Compilation appearances include: Don't Be That Way on Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 1 (LP & CD), Flashback, Vol. 1 (LP), I Was A Teenage Caveman (LP), Acid Visions - The Complete Collection Vol. 1 (3-CD), Austin Landing, Vol. 2 (LP) and Psychedelic States: Texas Vol. 1 (CD). (VJ/MW)

This was a different outfit, from Syosset, Long Island who formed at Syosset High School. Their first two singles were great dynamic pop-punk, kind of Monkees-style garagy-pop.

Al Stegmeyer's younger brother played bass in the Billy Joel Band between 1975-1990.

NB: (1) some copies with photo insert. (1) also issued in Canada (Columbia MS 3176) 1969. (1) reissued on CD (Fallout FOCD2047) 2007.

This was an interesting and rather imaginative Pittsburgh-based act judging from this album. There's lots of interesting string arrangements, Kiki's seductive vocals and for the most part strong material, although side two becomes more experimental. Obviously not for garage fans, but if experimental psychedelic/progressive rock is your niche this minor collectable may be of interest.

Kapner had previously played with Group Image and was later in Country Joe and The Fish. Ilene Rappaport, Ilene Novog and Ernie Eremita were later known as Chunky, Novi and Ernie, a late seventies Los Angeles-based band. This latter act released three albums on Warner Bros which are reputedly very eclectic and progressive in nature. Ilene Rappaport (aka Chunky), later became Lauren Wood who has had some top hits like Fallen on the 'Pretty Woman' soundtrack.

All the members of Rebecca and The Sunnybrook Farmers were old high school friends. (VJ/SBn/RB)

	2	REBIRTH	(Lefevre Sound MLSP-3100) 1970 R1
	3	REBIRTH	(Avant Garde 135) 1972 R1

This Christian rock outfit came from Harrisonburg, Virginia. The release on Avant Garde compiles material from their two privately pressed albums; four tracks from the first and eight from the second. It also sounds like a couple of the tracks were either re-recorded or had some post-production work done to improve the overall sound.

The liner notes claim that "many people have repeatedly asked us for a record which they can give to their teenagers to play along with regular pop artist albums. We feel that what is needed is music with a good rock sound, that stimulates thought, and has a Christian message." Since this is one of the better Christian rock albums we've heard, that's actually a pretty good description. With largely original songs, most of it features a rather conventional folk-rock sound. Material such as Everybody's Talking (one of two covers), Laughin' On The Corner and The Way That I Feel sported some nice group harmonies and pretty if lightweight melodies. The results were occasionally a little too Up with People-ish for our tastes (Lancaster County), but for the most part the group's religious beliefs were understated, making for a set that mostly managed to avoid the usual in-your-face-sinner bombast one associates with so much of Christian rock. Highlights include the unexpected and totally atypical rocker Into The Light and an interesting contemporary update of the traditional hymn They'll Know We Are Christians. (VJ/AGI)

ALBUM: 1(A) 1968 A.D. BREAK THROUGH (Fredlo 6830) 1968 R2

The Rebs were a high-school sextet from Bellevue, Iowa. They played local "sock hops" and teen dances, alongside acts such as Grandma's Rockers, without intending to turn "professional". Band member Ken Keil recalls: "We had fun. We weren't good, but we had guts. None of us went on to professional musicianship, but some of us, including myself, still play."

Just 200 copies of this album were pressed and it was impossible to locate until around 50 copies were found a few years back. Evidently songwriting wasn't one of the band's strengths, as their album consists of generally inferior cover versions of many of the popular songs of the era - sometimes little changed from the original, whilst some bear the band's own interpretation. The vocalist is powerful and particularly suited to ballads - so the magnum opus is arguably the cover of The Classics IV hit Spooky, but among the other songs to get The Rebs treatment were My Back Pages, Lady Madonna, Mony Mony, Dream Dream, Sugar And Spice and Chains and there's an almost laughable version of Eddie Cochran's Summertime Blues.

Although not an essential part of any garage or psychedelic collection, it is well worth a few spins and will shortly be reissued by the band on CD.

What became of the band? Well, Ken Keil is now a physician living in West Monroe, Louisiana; Glen Kilburg works as a building contractor and is based in Seattle, Washington; Craig DeGear lives in the Milwaukee area and is a school counsellor; Jerry Till is a business man in Dubuque, Iowa; John Herrig also lives in Dubuque, Iowa and is a real estate agent; Steve Norpel resides in Bellevue, Iowa and Gerald Hyler, who was an unofficial part-time member, is a school teacher in Correctionville, Louisiana. Recurring Love Habit (CA)

45: A Day In The Life/Faiola Brothers (Buddah 4) 1967

This is a brave attempt at the Beatle's Pepper classic backed by a slab of toytown pop with some fuzz guitar. Previously noted as a San Francisco group; however evidence points to this being from New York since it was produced (and the flip composed) by John Linde & Pete Antell. They had started out as leader/drummer and guitarist respectively in The Chants, a doo-wop/vocal group from Long Island; latterly known as The American Twisters, the band fizzled out before the English Invasion. The pair teamed up as songwriters and producers in New York, initially handling vocal groups, then moved into the burgeoning pop and folk-rock markets. Around 1965 Antell launched the Bounty label, under Elektra's wing, and released several solo singles; he also arranged and produced the Dynovoice single by Sky. Linde came to prominence as producer of Vanilla Fudge; he worked a lot with Shadow Morton and his other credits of interest here include Erik & The Smoke Ponies, Gross National Productions, Group Image and Outrage. (MW)

These young buccaneers were far from the coast, in landlocked Blue Ridge, northern Georgia. Recorded in Atlanta, their sole single appeared on the same label as Little Phil & The Night Shadow's 60 Second Swinger and local rivals The Mondels.

Go On Leave has just about all the classic garage-punk ingredients; frantic beat, pumping bass, fuzz outbursts, girl-put-down lyrics, and raw vocals. 45: The Dum Dum Song/Love Unreturned (Laurie 3319) 1965

This Beatlesque band's tragic story is finally told on the Dionysus album. Briefly...

Formed in 1964 in Wildwood, New Jersey by composer and drummer John Spirit and his school-friend Mike Burke, they were joined by the Bocelle brothers. In 1965, they released their debut single; it went nowhere. They recorded several other tracks but their producer was unable to get the band a recording contract because they sounded too much like the Beatles. Following his departure, the band was 'sponsored' to the tune of $10,000 by a society dame referred to (for legal reasons they say) as Madam X. The contract they signed gave her exclusive management over them for 10 years. They did get to release an album and several singles, but under another name. They were not allowed to play on the studio recordings and the material was selected for them - just four of the 12 tracks on the album were Spirt-Burke originals. Apparently, even after it flopped and madam lost interest in the band, she refused to release them from the contract, effectively gagging them.

So, at long last, the real Redcoats emerge. Seven Rappaport-produced tracks (including both single sides) and five of the unreleased cuts that the band produced from their sponsorship. Some scars and bad feelings are in evidence (or is someone still gagged?). The story is told by the band's first producer, Steven Rappaport. Still peeved at Laurie's lack of effort perhaps, he refers to them as "a small New York label". More glaringly, absolutely no mention is made of the new identity that the band donned for their 'major label' releases. Okay okay, for those who don't know, check out the Sidekicks. (MW)

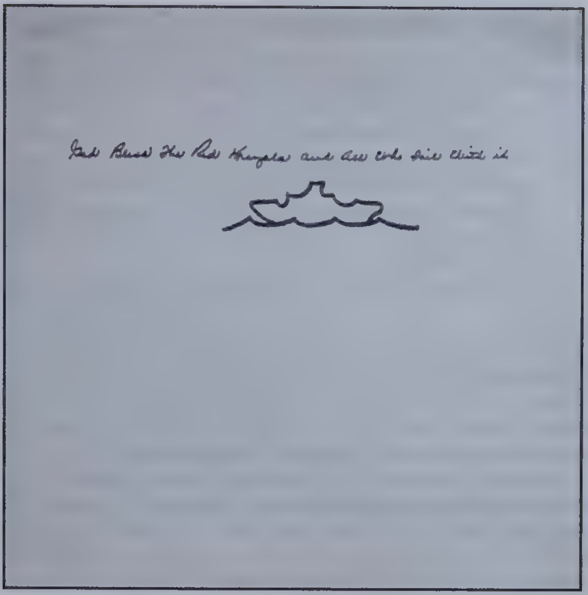
There is also a very strange, live album recorded in 1967, (B) Coconut Hotel (DC 62) 1996. Singles 1968-2002 (Drag City DCCD257) 2004 is a 21-track selection.

Red Crayola was established in Houston in September 1966. Line-up 'A' was very much embryonic. They began playing straight rock numbers like Hey Joe but by December 1966 they had developed the improvised music style - the freeform freak-out - that they are best remembered for. All interested parties were invited to perform in their shows and in effect a companion group (known as The Familiar Ugly) was established. When International Artists invited Thompson, Barthelme and Cunningham to record their debut album in March 1967 The Familiar Ugly were featured in the freeform freak-outs between each track. Quite aside from the freak-outs the album included some very strange material - formless and improvised, the psychedelia of tracks like Hurricane Fighter Plane (which Roky Erickson played organ on), Transparent Radiation (which Roky played harmonica on) and Pink Stainless Tail was very different to that of other Texas bands of the era. On stage, too, the Red Crayola was very much an acquired taste. Lacking natural rhythms and structure their music was practically impossible to dance to. They were once paid 10 dollars (to split three ways) and asked to leave a gig at the New Orleans House in Berkeley after 20 minutes! They were, however, invited to play at the Berkeley Folk Festival in the summer of 1967. Once again their performance did not go down well and the band fell apart with Thompson spending time in New York and Los Angeles. One of their live performances was released in the nineties as Coconut Hotel, but it isn't recommended unless you're into avant-garde/ambient noises.



God Bless The Red Krayola and All Who Sail With It

RED CRAYOLA - God Bless The Red Krayola And All Who Sail With It LP.

In 1968, Thompson and Steve Cunningham returned to Texas and along with a new drummer Tommy Smith, who had briefly played with Bubble Puppy, began recording their second album, which consisted of numerous one and two minute tracks of simple but experimental acoustic weirdness. They were now spelling Krayola with a k. Surprisingly perhaps, this album was even less successful than their first and the band became dormant for many years. They did apparently record a double album with guitarist John Fahey but the tapes were lost.

Mayo Thompson has continued to enjoy an active solo career. He fronted a short-lived group called Saddlesore and recorded a solo album. He met Jesse Chamberlain in New York in the winter of 1974/75 and later reformed Red Krayola with Jesse as a two-piece. This line-up gigged in London in 1978. The band was signed by Radar who reissued (1) and (2) and put out Soldier Talk, an album of new wave material. On this the two-piece was assisted by Lora Logic and Pere Ubu. Indeed Thompson went on to join Pere Ubu until they temporarily dissolved. Thompson has also worked as or with Art and Language who straddle his other projects, indeed Art and Language assisted on their fourth album Black Snakes which is full of Thompson's dramatic vocals and included Allen Ravenstine (of Pere Ubu) on sax and synthesizer.

Red Crayola has continued to record prolifically in the nineties and noughties.

Compilation appearances have been confined to: - Hurricane Fighter Plane on Austin Landing (LP) and Born Bad, Vol. 4; Hurricane Fighter Plane (demo) on Acid Dreams Vol. Two (LP); plus five cuts on the Epitaph For A Legend (2-LP) compilation. Two - Nickle Niceness and Vile Vile Gross - were previously unissued. The other three were different recordings of Hurricane Fighter Plane, Pink Stainless Tail and Transparent Radiation. They do also have Hurricane Fighter Plane on a 7" flexi-disc (Radar SFI.347) issued in 1978. The other three cuts are by the 13th Floor Elevators. They also have one cut Pink Stainless Tail on a 7" promotional release (Radar SAM-88) that came out the same year. Copies were given away at a 1978 reunion concert along with the magazine 'Howdy From Texas The Lone Star State'.

Jesse Chamberlain is also a member of Necessaries and Steve Cunningham later played for Malachi. (VJ)

ALBUM:	1(A/B)	RED MOUNTAIN AND THE CHOSEN FAMILY	(Rockadelic RRLP 41) 2003

Red Mountain was the house band at The Chosen Family commune at Rancho Olompali in Novato, California in 1968-69, after The Grateful Dead had moved out. The site is now a State Park, but from the mid-sixties to the early seventies it was (much to the chagrin of the residents of upscale Marin County) a notorious hippie haven and magnet for runaway teenage girls who managed to misplace their clothing shortly after arriving.

Red Mountain held daily rehearsals in the loft of a barn on the property, the hay loading doors flung wide open to the communal landscape. A few informally-recorded reel to reel tapes reveal the band as purveyors of a primitive, evil, distorted blues sound; tailor-made for the Rockadelic label. No awards will be given for high-fidelity here, but the San Francisco sound is so thick that it renders most professionally-recorded albums from the era impotent by comparison. The retrospective album has extensive liner notes documenting the communal debauchery and a lovely nude cover.

Red Mountain recorded a demo at Berkeley's Sierra Sound Labs in 1969 that got them an invitation to make an album in Los Angeles with the producer Roger Dollarhide (Randy California's Kapt. Kopter And The Fabulous Twirly Birds) and they left Rancho Olompali in the fall of 1969 to pursue that opportunity. The next chapter in the band's history was also documented by Rockadelic (see Born Again entry). (CF)

This California group mixed CSN&Y harmonies and West Coast guitars with good folk and country. The highlight of their album is an excellent and long cover of the Youngbloods' Darkness, Darkness beginning with Indian chants. All their other songs were written by Danny Wilder and Mike Ballew (who later played with Rusty Wier). It was produced by Al Schmitt. Originating from Texas, Lucky Floyd was previously in The Sparkles. A native of northern Texas, Mike Ballew moved to Los Angeles in the sixties. His first band there was The Brothers, who released at least two singles on White Whale in 1967; his next outfit was Think who released two singles on Columbia in 1968-9 and included contributions from Danny Wilder, so presumably they evolved into Red, Wilder, Blue. That marked Ballew's rock phase; 40 years on he's still performing but has long since returned home and to his roots - Texas country music (SR/MW)

Here's an aggressive surf-oriented instrumental combo from Bethseda, Maryland - check out Don't Call Me Flyface on the Signed, D.C. (LP) compilation. Led by Tom Guernsey, they evolved into The Hangmen, who also included Bob Berberich. The Hangmen quickly re-recorded two Reekers songs, The Girl Who Faded Away and What A Girl Can't Do, although you can still find the original acetate version of The Girl Who Faded Away on Garage Dreams Revisited (EP).

Tom Guernsey would turn up post-Hangmen as the writer and producer of the sole single by another Montgomery County band The Omegas, featuring fellow Reeker Joe Triplett.

In 2007 Tom Guernsey produced a 24-track retrospective CD, with some recent recordings thrown into the mix. It includes both sides of The Omegas single and the original What A Girl Can't Do plus six cover versions. (VJ/MW/BE)

Cool garagy sounds from the Mississippi Delta. When You Brought Me You is a catchy soulful pop number with raw heartfelt vocals and atmospheric keyboards. Why Can't Time Stand Still is a haunting beat ballad.

Sid Herring of The Gants occasionally deputised on vocals. The band lasted into the seventies and eighties and got together again in 1999 for a celebratory gig in Clarksdale, Missouri with the Curb Service Band featuring ex-Gants Johnny Jennings and John Freeman.

	α	Words/Worryin' Kind	(Penthouse 502) 1966
		Russian Spy And I/Bald-Headed Woman	(Dot 16970) 1966

NB: α also released in the UK (CBS 202247) 1966.

One of a few Regents around at the time, this bunch was based in L.A. The Reprise single is an average folk-rock ditty backed by catchy beat-pop with harmonica. Their subsequent efforts are definitely meritorious - kicking off with a swinging version of Eddie Cochran's classic, backed by a handclapping brassy version of a popular song covered by the likes of the Sinners, Kim and Grim, Starlets and Kaleidoscope.

Next up, came a great cover of Words, which was also recorded by The Monkees and The Boston Tea Party. This deep-throated version adds a quick burst of fuzz and a touch of Eastern promise, whilst the flip is good rockin' beat-pop. A Mike McDonald wrote Worryin' Kind and both sides of the Reprise single. He may have been a band member but he is not THE Michael McDonald, who didn't migrate to L.A. from Missouri until 1970.

Russian Spy... is solid pop-beat with a touch of humour - also a hint of novelty in the Russian-dance-meets-Dick Dale guitar-break that sounds better than this lame description can convey. Bald... is a raucous party blast too.

Compilation coverage has so far included: Words features on Killer Cuts! (LP), That Driving Beat Volume Three (CD) and Quagmire Volume 6 (CD); Worryin' Kind on Acid Dreams, Vol. Three (LP) and Quagmire Volume 5 (CD); and Russian Spy And I is on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 9 (CD). 45:	My Soap Won't Float/The Sinking Violet	(G&G #305) 1967

The Regiment formed originally as "The". Wayne Pursell had been one of the founding members of The Shadows Of Knight and formed this act whilst at the University Of Illinois in Urbana. Wayne: - "Instead of just saying 'The' people would say 'the The' or they would spell the letters. This didn't have the right ring to it so I changed the name to something less clever and more commercial, The Regiment. The band wore old World War I army uniforms and easily became the most popular local band at the university inside two years. This became a problem, because I had quit the previous band to study at the Univ. and found that I was working every day with the band and had no time to study. So, I had to quit The Regiment, too".

All the band members originally came from Chicago, (with the exception of a lead guitar player from Falls Church, West Virginia) and Joe Ream had earlier played in The Rip Tides. Before Wayne quit in late 1966, he wrote My Soap Won't Float, which the band later recorded and released in the summer of '67.

My Soap Won't Float is definitely worth checking out, with its way out lyrics. It's been compiled on Pebbles Vol. 22 (LP), Pebbles Vol. 10 (CD), Pebbles Box Record 2 (CD), Acid Dreams Epitaph (CD) and Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP). (MW/MM/WP)

45:	Don't Care What They Say/Mini Skirts	(Rondon 2119/20) 1968

Here's a very obscure folk protest outfit from Wisconsin. Don't Care What They Say is actually an anti-protest song exhorting the virtues of fighting for one's country in some faraway paddie field. It's pretty awful but you'll find it on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 10 (LP) and Quagmire Volume 3 (CD). Highs In The Mid Sixties, Vol. 15 - Wisconsin, Part 2 (LP) and Quagmire Volume 5 (CD) include the flip - a put down of mini-skirts! ALBUM: 1(A) RELATIVELY CLEAN RIVERS (w/photo insert) (Pacific Is PC 17601) 1976 R3/R4

NB: (1) issued in two different sleeve designs. One has lyrics printed on the inner gatefold, the other doesn't. (1) counterfeited on vinyl in a gatefold sleeve and on CD (Radioactive RRCD020) 2003.

Former Beat Of The Earth leader Phil Pearlman assembled this band in the early seventies and eventually recorded this magnificent rural-rock album in 1975. The Relatively Clean Rivers album stands with the very best albums of the era, possessing a purely American sound and walking confidently past the shadow of its previous incarnation. Amazingly well produced for a private pressing, it is the very antithesis of his earlier releases that could be classified as garage (at a stretch, perhaps - they are not without a certain tangible sophistication). No measurable degree of time or expense was spared in the creation of the Relatively Clean Rivers album, which took over a year to assemble and is the most flawless snapshot of the California seventies underground scene you will ever hear.

While it should be easy to describe the sound the band produced, it most definitely is not. There are moments where they sound like The Grateful Dead at their most ethereal, for example like Box Of Rain from American Beauty; but other tracks on 'Rivers are utterly psychedelic in the Damin Eih way (although this album smells more like thai stick than acid). The Persian Caravan is as Eastern as the title suggests; Pearlman's collection of ethnic instruments used by the band to good effect. The lyrics are both funny and thought-provoking, especially when addressing religion:

"Could I believe if I had nothing to gain?
Would I walk away to paradise,
Or keep on playin' the game?"

Famed poster artist Jim Evans was enlisted for the cover, which must be seen to be believed. Imagine a cross between The Chocolate Watch Band's No Way Out and one of those dayglo head shop posters and you'll have some idea. (Some of Evans' other music-oriented commissions include The Cosmic Travelers album cover, the movie poster for A Sea For Yourself, and The Allman Brothers' Wipe The Windows album cover.)

There were two pressings of the album (500 each) and Pearlman hand-distributed them throughout California for a couple of years, even leaving copies on college campuses (under trees, on benches, etc.) and used a special technique that he referred to as "reverse shoplifting" to get them into record shops (use your imagination!).

Of the (known) private pressings that Phil Pearlman was involved with, Relatively Clean Rivers is the easiest one to acquire and is recommended to anyone even remotely interested in seventies music. (CF)

From San Antonio, Texas this band featured members from MacArthur, Highlands and Edison High schools. Despite being only aged 13-16 they played all over Texas and in and around San Antonio, opening for Roy Orbison in Corpus Christi, and at the premier of The Beatles 'Hard Day's Night' film at the Texas Theatre in downtown San Antonio. They also played at the Joe Freeman Collisium Rolling Stones concert, along with a few other 'unknown' British groups including Gerry and The Pacemakers, as Jim Frizzell recalls: - "That was before they had released any music in the U.S. so nobody had heard of them yet... We had a great time backstage talking to each other, they liked our Texas accents and we like their British accents... go figure".

Other gigs included performing at the Grand Ol' Opera in Nashville with Minnie Pearl, Little Jimmie Dickens, and a few others.

Jim: - "We also did lots of sock hops for Disc Jockey Rickey Ware and Bruce Hathaway (KTSA), Teen Canteen and Officer Clubs around S.A. We played lots of Proms and Senior dances in just about every small town within 300 miles of San Antonio."

Jim Frizzell later joined The Chayns. (IT/JF)

45:	Painted Air/In The Morning	(Askel 112) 1967

Formed in San Angelo, Texas, as a foursome of 14-year-olds in 1964 called The Boys, they had changed their name to The Remaining Few and stabilised into line-up 'A' by 1966. They were the house band at San Angelo's top 13th Hour club for two years. Their single was produced by Ron Newdoll and only 300 copies were pressed. Painted Air was brilliant garage psychedelia, commencing with a screeching intro which gradually slows down in tempo. The lyrics are sung to minimum instrumentation with each verse sandwiched by further screeching guitar work.

The flip, In The Morning, turns out to be a moody garage ballad with a melody reminiscent of Gerry and The Pacemakers' Ferry Cross The Mersey.

They spent some time in San Francisco before disbanding in 1970.

Compilation appearances have included: Painted Air on Acid Dreams, Vol. 1 (LP), Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), Acid Dreams Testament (CD), Austin Landing, Vol. 2 (LP) and Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 12 (LP); and In The Morning and Painted Air on The Human Expression And Other Psychedelic Groups - Your Mind Works In Reverse (CD). A highly-regarded Massachusetts punk band, The Remains was originally known as Barry and The Remains. They had quite a reputation in the Boston area in the late sixties and opened for The Beatles last tour in the summer of 1966.

The Sundazed A Session With retrospective is an album's worth of demos they recorded for Capitol in May 1966. The demos had earlier been released by Eva as Live In Boston but the only thing 'live' about it is that the tracks were recorded live in the studio in one take. The Eva version included fake applause and isn't recommended - get the Sundazed issue instead... Strong covers and one stellar original, Why Do I Cry, prove once again that The Remains were one of the very best. It also contains a never-before-heard version of Walkin' The Dog plus five more alternate/rehearsal tracks.

Briggs and Tashian were later part of an embryonic Flying Burrito Brothers line-up and Barry was also connected with Chirco who released one rather rare album The Visitation on Crested Butte. He's still an active musician on the folk circuit and has published a book 'Ticket To Ride' - his diary of The Beatles last U.S. tour on which The Remains were a support act.

Although Billy Vera wrote Don't Look Back The Remains made it their own. The song was also recorded by The Instincts, (to be found on New England Teen Scene Vol. III) and by The Rising Storm on their Calm Before album (also featured on Endless journey - Phase 1). A couple of The Remains' original tunes have also been covered, including I Can't Get Away From You - in 1967 by Don Craine's New Downliners Sect (hear it on Voyage Through The Sugarcube) and The Cynics on their 1986 LP Blue Train Station. Why Do I Cry was also covered by Australia's Vyt and The World (Ugly Things Vol. 2).

In 1998 Barry, Billy, Vern and original pre-Beatles-Tour drummer Chip Damiani were invited to Spain, where they still enjoy a fanatical following, for a reunion event. This was followed by the Cavestomp '98 event nearer to home in New York City in November and it turned out to be a warm-up for a historic homecoming at the Paradise Club in Boston on 20th March 1999. Headlining with a reformed Lost and The Rising Storm, this was the ultimate Boston tea-party.

The Remains were in smokin' form, tight and rockin', with Barry's vocals in fine fettle. The band seemed to get as much of a buzz as the 600+ sell-out crowd, whose age-range attested to their timeless appeal. They included several covers (My Girl Sloopy, Lonely Weekend, Walkin' The Dog, My Babe and for an encore I'm A Man) but most importantly many of their best originals (which Barry pointed out they'd not performed live very often) - Why Do I Cry, a wonderful Thank You, a stunning Ain't That Her, and All Good Things. Of course Billy Vera's Don't Look Back was reserved for the climax of a truly memorable gig for all concerned.

the Remains
THE REMAINS - Self Titled 10" EP.

35 years after their final studio recordings, the reunited Remains brushed off the cobwebs, relit the torch, and laid down some new material true to the spirit of their sixties legacy. The Movin' On (CD) (Taxim TX 2073-2 TA) 2003 contains a dozen cuts of tight, rockin' beat infused with the occasional country twang.

In 2010 there is still a very tight, live version of this band on the road.

Compilation appearances have included: I Can't Get Away From You on Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 3 (LP), Don't Look Back on Nuggets - Original Artyfacts From The First Psychedelic Era 1965-1968 (2-LP) and Nuggets Vol. 12: Punk Part Three (LP); Don't Look Back and Why Do I Cry on Nuggets Box (4-CD); Why Do I Cry on Garage Beat '66 2 (CD); Talking Bout You on New England Teen Scene Vol. 2 (LP); Heart on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box); You've Got A Hard Time Coming on The Essential Pebbles Collection Vol. 4 (CD); and Don't Tell The Truth on Sugar Lumps 2 (CD). 	α	Always Love You/(Everything Is Alright) She's A Women	(Astral Projection 117) 1970/1

NB: α mis-spells Woman as Women.

A late sixties band from Sault Ste. Marie in Michigan's Upper Peninsula. Their March 1969 debut on Marquette's Prinnceton label features two Larry McGahey songs. Sparse and subdued, dominated by sax and keyboards rather than guitar, they sound much earlier and are garage in spirit, if not in sound. Neither offered any hint of what was to come later that year... the amazing bad-trip garage-psych monster, In Wyrd, which has resurfaced on Michigan Mixture Vol. 1 (LP) and Psychedelic Experience Vol. 3 (CD). They released a third single and carried on until at least 1972 with further personnel changes. See Steve Seymour's (SS) 'Rock'n'Roll Graffiti' book/website/blog for much more on them and the UP scene.

P.S. Apologies for partial confusion, in earlier editions, with a different Renaissance Faire (note the E suffix) from Cleveland, which included Russ Koberna (formerly of Parma's Kicks Inc.) and Woody Leffel (later in Granicus and Pi Corp). (MW/SS)

		She's Your Find/Raving Blue	(Cambridge 121103/4) 1966

This Grand Rapids, Michigan quartet started out in 1963 as The Renegades IV. By the time of their second release they'd expanded to a quartet and were duly billed as The Renegades V; by the time of their final single in the summer of 1966 they'd stopped counting.

The second single on the Fenton custom label 'Dubonay' uncorks the frantic rocker Wine, Wine, Wine featuring some wild surf guitar.

Fitz Green was later in Owl.

Compilation appearances include: Autumn Night on Best Of Michigan Rock Groups, Vol. 2 (cassette); Wine Wine Wine on Wild! Wild!! Wild!!! (EP), Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 6 (LP) and Scream Loud!!! The Fenton Story (2-CD); and She's Your Find on *Let 'Em Have It! The Renovations (CA)

45:	Thanks To Him/As We Danced	(Angel Town 101) 1966

The Renovations were runners-up in a San Francisco Bay Area radio station KEWB 'Battle Of The Bands' contest in 1965. It led eventually to a recording contract and a single on a local San Carlos label, released in September 1966. Both songs were written and produced by Bob Relf, of Bob and Earl and Harlem Shuffle fame. (MW)

ALBUM:	1(A)	IN RESEARCH	(Flick City FC-5001) 1967 SC

45s incl:	I Don't Walk There No More/Juicy	(Flick City 3005) 1967
	Can You Baby/Lip Smackin' Good	(Flick City 3007) 1967

This folk-oriented band was based in Hollywood, California. They recorded for Flick City Records who only issued four albums, were connected to cult figure Kim Fowley and whose records were distributed by MGM. The album is mediocre.

Aside from the above-mentioned album, they recorded three singles. One of these, I Don't Walk There No More is notable for some catchy guitar work and growling vocals.

I Don't Walk There Anymore has been compiled on Highs In The Mid-Sixties Vol. 3 (LP) and Wyld Sydes Volume Five (CD). (VJ)

The Restless Feelin's (?)

45:	Hey, Mama, You've Been On My Mind/ A Million Things	(United Artists 50053) 1966

This single was a sole major label outing for this obscure outfit. You could check out A Million Things on Glimpses, Vol. 3 (LP). (VJ)

The Restless Knights (KS)

A Wichita, Kansas band The Restless Knights cut a medley of songs which has resurfaced on Hipsville, Vol. 2 (LP). It was previously unreleased. (VJ)

Retreds (MA)

45: Black Mona Lisa/Johnny Be Good (R&T RP 6601) 1966

This cool five-piece from Acton, Massachusetts was originally known as The Avanties. A very blues-influenced outfit they developed a strong local following in eastern Massachusetts. Their parents loaned them the money to press and record the single in a small basement studio in Newton, Massachusetts. Their bluesy ode to a local femme fatale Black Mona Lisa can also be heard on Back From The Grave, Vol. 7 (2-LP), whilst the flip - a re-spelt cover of Chuck Berry's old nugget can also be found on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 11 (LP & CD). (MW)

Reunion Band and Friends (KY)

ALBUM: 1 OCEAN OF LOVE (Living Love Productions) 1977 SC

From Kentucky, this band played folk with exquisite female vocals and cosmic lyrics. It features many of the same performers appearing on the Love Band's The Oneness Space album. (VJ)

Revelation (?)

ALBUM: 1 REVELATION (Mercury SR-61301) 1970

45: Paper Chase/This Is Your Life (Mercury 73152) 1970

A mellow hippie sextet dressed in colourful tie-dye saris, adorns the cover of this album which features mixed male/female vocals and tracks like Psalm 150, Beyond Myself, Someone Is Standing Outside and Pocketful Of Keys. (SR/VJ)

The Revelation (CA)

45s: Kiss Your Mind Goodbye/Dorplegank (Combine 11/12) 196?
Cotton Candy Weekend/
Wait And See (Music Factory MU 412) 1968

The first single listed above by this obscure California outfit is bouncy, almost 'toytown', Anglophile pop-psych - with both sides, written by Duke Baxter. More groovy but heavier pop-psych sounds abound on the Mike Post-produced Music Factory single where Baxter shares writer credits with arranger Kerry Hatch.

Kiss Your Mind Goodbye and Dorplegank have been compiled on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 11: Hydrogen Atom (LP & CD). (MW)

That's How Strong My Love Is/
Out Of Sight (Jim Ko 41105) 1966
Something Good About Living/Little Girl (Jim Ko 41106) 1966

This band was based in Chicago between 1965-67. Les Kummel and Chuck Jobes, both went on to New Colony Six and Freddie Glickstein also later played with Flock. The 'A' side of their third single, was also coupled with the 'B' side of their 4th, and issued by L.A. label "RPR" as by The Shady Days.

Les Kummel sadly died in an auto accident on 19th December 1978.

Compilation appearances include: Little Girl on Pebbles Vol. 7 (CD); and You Don't Love Me No More on Hipsville, Vol. 2 (LP) and Teen Blast Volume #1 (CD). (VJ/MW/BSw)

Reverbs (GA)

45: Lie In The Shade Of The Sun/I Got The Need (Repro 425) 1968

From Georgia, this outfit didn't have any connection with the Connecticut act that put out an album entitled Chalk-Up in 1965.

You can also hear Lie In The Shade Of The Sun on Everywhere Chainsaw Sound (LP), Victims Of Circumstance, Vol. 2 (LP & CD) and Psychedelic Experience Vol. 4 (CD). (VJ/MW)

The Mojo Workout! a 2-CD retrospective (Sundazed SC 11097) 2000, collects 44 tracks from their earliest years with Columbia, 1963 to 1965. It contains 15 unreleased cuts and rehearsals plus a couple of alternate versions served up with live studio takes, early 45 and LP cuts. There's also a 55-track 2-CD collection including ten previously unreleased cuts. The Essential Ride '63-'67 was issued on the Rock Artifacts label in 1995 and contains 20 tracks, five of which are alternate previously unreleased versions. It has also appeared in the U.K. on Columbia (480954 2). Edsel have also issued a compilation entitled Kicks (Edsel ED 123) 1983 and there is also a fine 2-LP bootleg called Rarities (Raring Records D-539). Also relevant is Greatest Hits Live (Remember) 2006. Hungry For Kicks: Singles and Choice Cuts 1965-69 (Rev-Ola CRREV284) 2009 compiles 16 of their hits and a splattering of album tracks.

Paul Revere formed his first band in Boise, Idaho in 1958 soon after getting kicked out of school. He originally called them The Downbeats but later Paul Revere and The Raiders. Whilst he owned a drive-in restaurant he befriended an 18 year old bakery delivery man Mark Lindsay whom he eventually recruited to his band on vocals. In the spring of 1959 Paul headed for L.A. with a taped arrangement of an instrumental called Beatnik Sticks by his band. He was turned down by several companies but eventually got a contract from a guy who owned a pressing plant and put out recordings he liked on his own Gardena label. Later in April 1961 Gardena released an instrumental that made it into the national charts. However, the following year Paul was drafted and the group fell apart.

PAUL REVERE & THE RAIDERS - Something Happening CD.

When he returned from service Paul decided to change his base to Portland, Oregon. Mark Lindsay joined him there but the other band members couldn't so he set about forming a new line-up (B). Eventually they got a manager Roger Hart who eventually got them signed to Columbia as its first rock act. They soon moved to L.A. and became regulars on the show 'Where The Action Is', which put them in the public eye. Just prior to their move to California they had also begun wearing the uniforms they became famous for, for the first time. They also hired the services of former Beatles publicity agent Derek Taylor and their albums were benefiting from first class production by the likes of Terry Melcher (the Byrds' producer) and Bruce Johnson (of The Beach Boys). From 1966, when they burst into the national charts with Just Like Me and Kicks (one of the first anti-drug songs) until well into the seventies, they enjoyed considerable chart success. In later years they underwent several personnel changes. Although they began in the garage tradition, their exposure following their signing to 'Where The Action Is' killed off their underground appeal pointing them in a pop direction.

Here They Come! blended their garage roots with a pop sensibility. Midnight Ride included their cover of Barry Mann and Cynthia Well's anti-drug song Kicks and their do a fine version of Boyce and Hart's I'm Not Your Steppin' Stone that pre-dated The Monkees' hit with this on the flip side.

Raiders' members Drake Levin, Mike Smith and Phil Volk all later played in Brotherhood and Friendsound. Levin also played with The Cosmic Travelers. Pierre Ouelette went on to Don & The Goodtimes and Aesop & The Fables, whilst Charlie Coe had earlier played in Jack Eely & The Courtmen. Lindsay and Alliso also recorded two singles as The Unknowns.

In 2001, the Raiders released a new CD Ride To The Wall 2001 with three new songs and nine re-recordings of classics - profits from the CD go to Vietnam Veterans 'Ride To The Wall' foundation. They followed it with a second volume in 2005.

Hungry For Kicks: Singles and Choice Cuts 1965-69 draws from 16 of their hits including their garage-punk classic Kicks, Just Like Me, Go Home and the dreamy Louise and is accompanied by an informative booklet with lots of photos.

Compilation appearances have included: Steppin' Out and Just Like Me on Nuggets Box (4-CD); Steppin' Out on Nuggets, Vol. 12: Punk Part Three (LP); Over You and Just Like Me on Nuggets, Vol. 8: The Northwest (LP); Like Charleston on Out Of Sight! (LP); Kicks and Shake It Up on Sixties Years, Vol. 2 - French 60's EP Collection (CD); Kicks and There She Goes on The Best Of Beat, Vol. 3 (LP); Kicks on Wild Thing (2-LP); Mojo Workout, Shake Rattle And Roll and Linda Lu on The Hitmakers (LP); Kicks and Night Train on The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 2 (LP); Hungry on Born Bad (Songs The Cramps Taught Us), Vol. 2 (LP); Hungry and Just Like Me on *Frat Rock! 45s:	α	Let Him In/Take A Lesson From Jesus	(A&M 1293) 1971
		One Too Many Goodbyes/ To No One In Particular	(Kama Sutra 550) 1972

NB: α may be by a different group.

Revival was an early seventies rock group with psychy touches. Judging by the cover of their only album, it may have been a Native American group like Redbone or Xit. (SR)

	Good Lovin' Woman/ Land Of 1,000 Dances	(Ty Tex TT-128) c1966
	I Love Lovin' You/Green Unicycle	(Ty Tex TT-131) c1967

Like Me is pleasantly jangly folk-pop like Beau Brummels whilst the flip is a haunting moody folk-rock dirge with a melodic structure loosely modelled on House Of The Rising Sun. If the later singles are up to this standard they are well worth acquiring. The third single was apparently released as by Stan Gorman and The Revolvers. They hailed from Tyler, Texas. (MW)

45s:	Call On Me/Intruder	(Mainstream 717) 1969

Here are four heavy slices of a soul-blues amalgam that do not offer anything which has not been done better elsewhere. Only Call On Me, an atmospheric blues-ballad, cries for attention. Three of the four were written by members of Big Brother and The Holding Company. (MK)

Assembled by Doors/Love producer Paul Rothchild, this Los Angeles outfit was largely composed of ex-members of well-known bands and is hence regarded as one of the first 'supergroups'. In fact they evolved out of Elektra Records Project Supergroup, formed between November '67 and February '68. Danny Weis and Jerry Penrod were from the Iron Butterfly, Michael Fonfara the Electric Flag, Billy Mundi the Mothers Of Invention, and Doug Hastings the Daily Flash and (briefly) the Buffalo Springfield.

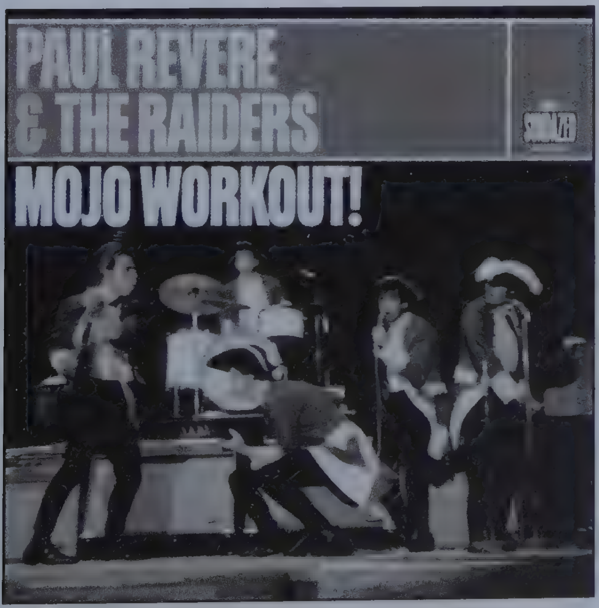
As a result of this pedigree and some strong early live performances, expectations amongst the L.A. cognoscenti were high and Elektra quickly financed the band to the tune of $80,000 (big money in 1968). Recorded in live takes, their debut album garnered favourable reviews in the music press at the time, but tends to get slagged off today as a fairly nondescript blend of blues/jazz/funk/gospel-tinged late sixties rock. One short catchy instrumental Apricot Brandy was a minor hit single, later used by the BBC as a Radio One programme-link. After this debut however, things started to go downhill.

Jerry Penrod left soon after to be briefly replaced by Danny Weis's brother, Steve, and finally by Peter Hodgson. In fact Hodgson had been the original bass player, but was only with the initial line-up briefly.

Their second album met with a muted commercial and critical response and Mundi, Gerber, and Hastings soon quit (Gerber releasing a solo album in 1971 on Shelter records.)



PAUL REVERE & THE RAIDERS - Mojo Workout! 2-CD.

The revised line-up released a follow-up album in a similar vein (and to similar indifference) and the band decided to leave Elektra (against Jac Holzman's wishes). The band split in October 1971, but reformed with slightly different personnel in July 1972 as Blackstone and moved to Canada. Fonfara, Finley, Hodgson, and Leishman were all Canadians and in the sixties had played together in a Toronto band, Jon and Lee and the Checkmates. In 1972, they released an album On The Line (produced by Paul Rothchild) on a Canadian label (GRT 92301025). Hodgson rejoined after having had spells with David Clayton-Thomas and Jackson Browne. Leishman and Edwards came in from The Duke Edwards Cycle, whilst Crooks had played on Dr John's autumn 1969 tour alongside ex-member Doug Hastings. He later played with White Cloud and Loudon Wainwright III.

After a number of personnel changes Blackstone became the Blackstone Rangers and ended up backing Lou Reed in the mid-seventies, with Michael Fonfara becoming Reed's right-hand man for a number of years.

Weis left in late 1970 and replaced Buzzy Feiten in The Rascals. Hastings left in June 1969 and joined Pam Polland. He later did sessions with David Ackles, Danny O'Keefe and Bill Cowsill. Tomlinson came in from Montreal bands Milkwood and Damage. He later played with Bearfoot.

Weis and Tomlinson later played with Rick James before his Motown deal and Weis also led Bette Midler's 'Rose' band.

Compilation appearances have included: Apricot Brandy and I Need Love on both Kings Of Pop Music Vol. 1 (LP) and Elektrock The Sixties (4-LP); and Apricot Brandy and The Pledge on Hallucinations, Psychedelic Underground (LP). (LP/NW)

EMMITT RHODES - Self Titled LP.

The Emitt Rhodes Recordings (1969-1973) (2-CD) (Hip-O Select B 0012926-02) 2009 selects from his four albums and includes his non-album single Tame The Lion.

45s:	You Take The Dark Out Of The Night/ Fresh As A Daisy	(Dunhill 4267) 1971
	Live Till You Die/Promises I've Made	(Dunhill 4274) 1971

	Take You Far Away/Golden Child Of God	(Dunhill 4303) 1972
	Golden Child Of God/Tame The Lion	(Dunhill 4315) 1972

The Californian Emitt Rhodes began his recorded career with the Palace Guard in 1964 before forming the Merry-Go-Round in 1966. His four solo albums will interest readers who like well crafted pop-rock similar to early Paul McCartney. The first was recorded with the assistance of Drake Levin, Hal Blaine, Don Randi, Emil Richards, Lyle Ritz and the three other members of the Merry-Go-Round. It spent one week at No. 194.

The Dunhill albums were recorded by Rhodes alone, playing all the instruments on most of the tracks. Of these his eponymous album was the most successful commercially, spending 20 weeks in the Top 200 and peaking at No. 29. Although he recorded no further albums after Farewell To Paradise he continued to write and demo new songs.

The Emitt Rhodes Recordings selects from his four albums and also features the non-album single. His eponymous album in particular stands out for its beautifully crafted pop and the material from it is really the centrepiece of this compilation. (SR/VJ)

This very home-made record, recorded 1970-71 is an acquired taste, to be sure. The brackets in the above line-up indicate guest players. Side one is all covers, including Mr. Spaceman, Victoria, Time Of The Season and others, all very strangely interpreted. Side two is all originals where the band's true dementia is revealed on tracks like When I Feed My Prize Hog, Nice Spot In The Dark and Avon Girl. Not for all, but definitely all for some of you weirdos. File next to Underground Failure, Hot Poop or Crazy People as a point of reference. They hailed from Kendall Park, New Jersey and the album wasn't issued with a cover.

ALBUM: 1 TO ANYONE WHO'S EVER LAUGHED AT SOMEONE ELSE (2-LPs) (w/inserts) (No label #RR1) 1974 R4

This hippie folk-psych album is extremely rare and seldom seen. The lyrics are very emotive and deal with issues like parenting and his need to be loved. Only 550 limited and numbered copies were reported to have been issued and it came with two inserts. (GG)

Ronnie Rice (and The Gents/Silvertones) (IL)

Very selective 45s:

	Tell Her/I Want You, I Need You, I Love You	(IRC 6931) 1965
	La Do Da Da/Warm Baby	(Quill 106) 1966

NB: first 45 shown as by Ronnie Rice & The Silvertones, others shown as by Ronnie Rice & The Gents.

This Chicago-based artist released several singles during a career which spanned at least from 1962-78. They were mostly pop or country singles but Pebbles, Vol. 22 (LP) includes one of his recordings, I Want You To Be My Girl, which may interest readers being a cover of the Frankie Lymon and The Teenagers' hit done garage style. Our friends in Chicago will also no doubt remember him primarily in his other role as a member of the excellent New Colony Six.

Warm Baby and La Do Da Da from 1966 can also now be heard on The Quill Records Story (CD). (VJ/MW)

This five-piece hailed from Newark, New Jersey. They actually enjoyed minor chart success with Open Up Your Door. The follow-up Nasty flopped but You Can Make It was a rather appealing high energy garage-punker, which is usually considered their best effort and also the hardest of their singles to find.

45: No Place I'd Rather Be/Bo Diddley (Uni 55027) 1967

NB: Shown as by Emil Richards and The Factory.

Born in Connecticut in 1932 as Emilio Joseph Raddochia, Emil Richards was one of the best vibes and percussion players operating in the Hollywood studios. Apart from his countless rock and pop sessions (notably with The Factory, Russ Giguere and Ry Cooder), he also recorded some albums with his group, the Microtonal Blues Band. A disciple of the Maharishi Yogi and a master of weird and exotic instruments, Emil Richards was primarily a jazz player fascinated by Indian music and odd rhythms.

His late sixties albums may interest some curious readers, especially Journey To Bliss, subtitled a "Meditation Suite in Six Movements" with cuts like Mantra, Bliss, Maharimba and the 18-minute title track. Really innovative and faithful to its title, this album was produced by Bob Thiele, who also worked with Salvation, Eden's Children and John Coltrane.

The Uni album was recorded with Bill Plummer and Dave McKay and also combines psych, jazz and experimentation.

Richards is one of these jazz players who were interested by Indian music and crossed over to the rock scene. He can be compared to Bill Plummer, Charles Lloyd or Gabor Szabo (they all played together on some albums). (SR)

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Retro Disc RDI 33036) 2008.

Some mystery surrounds this album, which is a guitar-based hard-rocker with a couple of excellent tracks. The Arizona album was produced by Mike Condello and the cover features four photographs of Condello guitarist (and future Tubes guitarist) Bill Spooner, so presumably "Warren S. Richardson Jr." is either Spooner's real name, or a curious inside joke. (CF)

Born in Seattle in 1950, Karl Richey moved to San Francisco in 1963 and began playing folk and blues in the coffee houses. His only album was issued on the small Studio 10 label (which also released Day Blindness) and is a pleasant bluesy folk album graced by his warm voice and good harmonica. Except for a cover of Nat Adderley's Work, he penned all the tracks: Stoned Livin' ("all the food in the house has been seasoned with pot"), Mary Jane, Fast Last Night, Pussy Cat etc. Pleasant, but getting hard to find.

Richie's Renegades came from Lynn, Massachusetts. Winning a 1966 'Battle Of The Bands' won them a contract to release their sole single on Polaris. Don't Cry, a mid-tempo punk ballad with some nice backing harmonies, has since been compiled on Psychotic Moose And The Soul Searchers (LP) and Tymes Gone By (LP). From Los Angeles, this act is best remembered as featuring a pre-Doors Ray Manzarek. They played at the Turkey Joint in Santa Monica and at the Port O Call in San Pedro, where they once supported Sonny and Cher. Four of the six songs were original compositions, written and sung by Ray Manzarek. The Aura label was a subsidiary of World Pacific.

In September 1965 they returned to the studio, with Jim Morrison and John Densmore in tow and recorded a six-song demo acetate. Shortly after, Ray Manzarek's brothers left the band and The Doors were born. (RFn)

NB: α shown as by Nooney Rickett and The Nooney Rickett Four. Both tracks also released on a French EP with a picture sleeve (Colpix 8007 M) 1966. The other side of the EP was by Gamma Goochee.

From Los Angeles and previously known as the V.I.P's (with Arthur Lee), Nooney Rickett (the name of the band and their leader) recorded two tracks which appeared on a domestic single and a rare French EP in 1966. Penned by Rickett and Poole, Bye Bye Baby is strongly reminiscent of the Beatles and Wayne Fontana, while Maybe The Last Time is a cover of James Brown. He also had numerous solo singles throughout the sixties (on MGM, It, Capitol), some of which are described as 'Presleyish' or 'northern soul'.

The band existed between 1964-7 and also appeared in two movies, 'Pajama Party' and 'Winter A Go Go'.

Their occasional singer, Joni Lyman, also sang with The Joel Scott-Hill Trio.

Compilation appearances have included: Bye Bye Baby on Mindrocker Vol. 12 (LP), (This Is The Time) on Garagelands Vol. Two (CD) and Psychedelic States: Indiana Vol. 1 (CD); and She's Not There on 12 Groovy Hits, 12 Florida Bands (LP). (SR/SBn/TomFunk/MW)

Losing You (Quill 102) 1966

Find Another Boy/Don't Waste Your Time (Continental 500) 1966
Find Another Boy/I Don't Want You (Destination 629) 1966

NB: There's also a much later 45 on a reissue label credited to AR and The Rockin' Ricochettes: Rock On/Carl's Rockabilly Roll (PS) (Mean Mountain 1424) 1982.

This Milwaukee-based outfit released some decent pop-beat recordings. The Destination single is good mid-sixties teen-beat with a nod towards other area artists like The Robbs and Chicago harmony popsters like the Cryan' Shames and Saturday's Children. Tom Tourville's Wisconsin book pointed out that they became the Picture, and put out one great psychedelic single on Nasco.

The Continental single was a different version of Find Another Boy, recorded by a group called 'Mickey, They and Them', which included the Milewski brothers and Neuhofer. They were by then in the Ricochettes so someone decided to credit it to the better-known group.

When several members were called up, the Milewski brothers and Stevens formed The Picture. Stevens was drafted in the summer of 1968 before that group recorded. In the eighties he formed a new Ricochettes, releasing one single in 1982 and an album as Ar Stevens and The Rockin' Ricochettes - Ain't Rock And Roll Pretty (Ottertail 1235) 1985.

Further details can be found in 'Do You Hear That Beat', the definitive book on Wisconsin fifties and sixties rock by Gary Myers (Hummingbird, 1994, ISBN 0-9643073-9-1), who kindly permitted us to use it.

Gotta Find Somebody (20th Century Fox 6694) 1967

The work of an obscure band the record was composed by John Hill and Don Cochrane. Previously thought to have emanated from Arizona, the Hill/Cochrane connection makes Pennsylvania a more likely source of this maelstrom of pumping electronic psych (other artists they arranged/ produced include Bill Soden and TR-5). Gotta Find Somebody is pop with a hard edge.

This is another of those albums that are part of the University of Rhode Island year book series. It's presented in a cover that shows a sea dragon threatening a village at the edge of the world. Stan Bonaccorso was from San Jose, Califonia and started playing folk and rock'n'roll in the mid-fifties, when he graduated from guitar to electric bass. He was in several outfits (Original Galaxies, Ernie and The Fanatics, Royals) before relocating to Hollywood in 1963. Soon after his arrival an agent pointed him to an audition. Dick Gabriel (sax/keyb'ds), Bill Lynn (drums) and Keith Johnson (gtr) were looking for a bassist; Bonaccorso got the nod but they quickly discovered that he was in a different musician's union to the rest of the band; adopting a stage name of Rex Paris got around that potential pitfall. The group became Richard and The Bowmen and decked themselves out in Robin Hood attire.

Drummer Bill Lynn had also been playing since the mid-fifties. In 1960, he became the session drummer for Paramount in Nashville, where he met and played with Elvis Presley. He would continue to play for him occasionally throughout the sixties.

Richard and The Bowmen started playing at clubs on Sunset Strip. Here they encountered the nascent Sonny and Cher, who asked Dick Gabriel if he and his band would like to be their road band. Without consulting the others, Gabriel turned them down; unimpressed, the other three took their leave.

In 1964, with Beatlemania in full swing, the trio had the mop-tops and could also sound like the Fab Four - so they adopted the name Dead Ringers. In the late summer they found guitarist Tom Crockett to complete the format and drop the "Dead" from their name. Their first single in 1965 did little and they brought in Tommy Rettig (an actor who played Jeff in the 'Lassie' TV series) as co-manager. Several tracks were laid down but none were released until the brief chance to record a theme for a new soap opera resulted in the rush-recording of Never Too Young, with Larry Bropsky filling in for an out-of-town Bill Lynn. This would be their second release in 1966 and was credited to the TR-4 (Tom Rettig 4). Though a cool pop tune, The Ringers' version was ultimately rejected by the TV company in favour of a song composed by the show's producer's nephew!

THE RISING SONS - Self Titled (Israphon) CD.

Crockett was replaced by Indelicato in 1966 and their third single appeared soon after. Daydream is an excellent swingin' garage rocker with mean licks; the flip is a soppy last-dance ballad. Indelicato left in 1967 and The Ringers were back to the original trio. Four more tracks were recorded before Rex decided to leave in 1968 and was replaced by David Turner. Two more cuts were laid down - Bandsong and Another Day - then they departed for a tour of Central and South America.

They eventually wound up in Peru, where they became a regular attraction at clubs and on TV. Signed by the Virrey label to produce an album, they used the two 1968 cuts and added some reworkings of earlier recordings; it was released in 1970.

Soon after they returned to the US David Turner joined Poco; Johnson and Lynn carried on until 1972, occasionally rejoined by Paris. Bill Lynn who'd earlier played with The Champs, was a highly successful staff drummer for ABC Paramount Records in Nashville. In 1964, he began working often with Elvis Presley, and appeared in a handful of the King's films. In the seventies, he did studio work with Dallas Smith of Liberty Records.

As to the music: they may have played covers live but their recordings appear to be all originals. Mersybeat is to the fore on their earlier mop-top shakers (Mersey Bounce) and beat ballads; they also took on pre-beat teen-pop (Graduation Doll), a brief hi-five to the surf scene (Never Too Young) then moved on to Stones-like raunch (Let It Be Known), fuzz-garage (Ask Me No Questions) and pop... like a documentary of the pre-psychedelic sixties.

The CD retrospective contains 22 tracks, just about all their recorded output; the album version features their 10 best 1965-1967 garage/beat recordings for garage purists. Both contain the band's full history from which this entry has been composed.

As Tr-4, Let It Be Known has also resurfaced on The Night Is So Dark (LP) and as Ringers You Gotta Try figured on Back To Peru (2-LP). (MW/MDo/WV/BLn)

Escanaba, Michigan was home to this Riot Squad, whose covers single appeared in December 1967. It was the first release on the Peninsula label and preceded that of local rivals The Prophets Of Doom.

There's a strange time-tunnel effect going on here. Apart from some waspish fuzz guitar, their version of Richie Valens' Come On Let's Go sounds like a cross between pre-teen Everlys and Buddy Holly. They may have been a long way from Liverpool but they render a haunting and faithful version of Gerry & The Pacemakers' 1965 hit ballad with pre-pubescent vocals.

45: Candy Man/
The Devil's Got My Woman (Columbia 4-43534) 1966

This California band, which formed in L.A. in April 1965, has assumed legendary status because many of its personnel went on to far greater things. For example, Gary Marker recorded a single with Sound Machine and an album with Fusion; Ed Cassidy was a founder member of Spirit; Kevin Kelly later joined The Byrds for a while and Cooder and Taj Mahal both had very successful solo careers.

Although their single version of Candy Man is good, it's the flip which is the killer cut, featuring the now familiar slide guitar of Cooder and Taj Mahal on lead.

The band also recorded an album for Columbia, which was not released at the time, although it has subsequently been pirated twice, and posthumously released by Sony on CD. Produced by Terry Melcher, who was also responsible for one Columbia's hottest acts, The Byrds, their recordings are a melting pot of rock/folk/electric blues and old-style country blue-grass.

Presumably, when Columbia pulled the plugs, the band split up.

Compilation coverage has also included Candy Man and The Devil's Got My Woman on Mindrocker, Vol. 7 (LP); and the previously unreleased Take A Giant Step on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book). (VJ/SR/MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) CALM BEFORE... (Remnant BBA-3571) 1966 R5/R6

NB: Just 500 copies of (1) were pressed originally. (1) reissued on vinyl (Eva 12012) 1984 in a different cover. (1) was made available again as an exact legal reissue on Stanton Park (SRE-001) 1992 and on CD with their 1983 re-union (Arf! Arf! AA-034) 1992.

Also relevant are: - Alive Again At Andover (Arf! Arf! 007) 1983, a limited edition of 1,000, which captures their 1983 reunion; and Second Wind (CD) (Arf! Arf! AA-083) 2000, which gathers together new studio and live material.

45: FROZEN LAUGHTER (Stanton Park STP-021) 1993

NB: a double single set featuring two new songs, the Arthur Lee tune Signed D.C. and Trying To Fool, plus two bands doing covers of previous Rising Storm tracks.

Recorded whilst the aforementioned were attending Phillips Academy, Andover, Massachusetts the Calm Before... album was an ultra-rare collectors' item prior to its reissue. It's easy to see why. The album contains fine versions of hard-rockers Don't Look Back, In The Midnight Hour and Baby Please Don't Go, alongside Arthur Lee's A Message To Pretty and a number of self-penned compositions, such as the driving I'm Comin Home and slow, sensitive numbers like Frozen Laughter and The Rain Falls Down. This is an album of variation and contrast and the recent Stanton Park/Arf! Arf! reissues are recommended.

Alive Again At Andover was a reunion concert recording and is surprisingly good. Brought back together for the 15th Reunion of Andovers' Class of '67 10 of their gymnasium gig numbers are captured plus a version of Baby Please Don't Go from their first reunion stint at the Flowermarket Cafe, Boston in October '81. The original line-up is intact bar Todd Cohen whose place is filled by the ubiquitous Andy Paley. Unlike other reunion albums which cash in on past glories this one stands up well on its own and, although these guys had done nothing in the music sphere since graduation, the spirit and fun of those heady days is reincarnated.

THE RISING STORM - Calm Before... CD.

In 1999, the original sextet again minus Todd Cohen, but with Aram Heller (Mr. Stanton Park) bounding into the bassist role, had the chance to appear on the same bill as Boston legends The Lost and The Remains. The latter were one of the 'Storm's inspirations of course, as their cover of Don't Look Back testifies. Naturally they grabbed the opportunity with aplomb, indeed they played for free.

Despite some pre-gig nerves they proved to be the perfect openers of this historic event on Saturday 20th March 1999 at the Paradise Club in Beantown and they set the tone for what turned out to be a magical and memorable evening. Opening with their own I'm Coming Home, the half-hour set comprised many of the upbeat numbers from their album. The Rockin' Ramrods' Bright Lit Blue Skies, Signed T.T. and Baby Please Don't Go went down very well - another original She Loved Me with its Charlie Rockwell Hammond organ solo and great vocal arrangements was outstanding. It was a performance full of fun, vibrance and enthusiasm which quickly infected and was appreciated by the audience. Having played their part, the buoyant members joined the 600+ throng with as much eagerness to await the appearances of The Lost and The Remains.

The Second Wind CD gathers together new studio material (primarily from 1992 and 1998 sessions) with live renditions of Midnight Hour and Baby Please Don't Go. Other covers are Signed D.C. and John Lee Hooker's Don't Look Back. The remainder are originals, split between strong rockers and the Storm's trademark haunting, melancholy folk-rockers.

Compilation appearances have included: Frozen Laughter on The Magic Cube (Flexi) and Unknown Legends Of Rock'N'Roll (book); the previously unreleased To R.S. - Who Won't Know on New England Teen Scene, Vol. 3 (LP); A Message To Pretty on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 8 : Love Covers (LP & CD); Baby Please Don't Go (live) on *The Arf! This quintet's members hailed from LaSalle, Peru, Oglesby and Tonica, Illinois. In 1968, they contributed two tracks, Little Girls and The Girl Made Good, along with five other local acts, to the sampler album A Psychedelic Six-Pack Of Sound (LP).

The liners note that the band formed in 1965 and appeared at the Illinois State Fair in 1967, placing 9th out of 90. Certainly they provide some of the best moments on this album, thanks to the songwriting skills of Phil Clark, although psychedelic they are not.

Little Girls is a fine '66-sounding pop-punker with a short fuzzy solo and a solid swinging beat that brings to mind early Creedence. The Girl Made Good is a classy minor-mooder reminiscent of The Cyrkle or The Critters.

Phil Clark remembers: "It was a stark recording setting. On a cold winter evening we set up in a 'storage room studio' located in the back of a meagre storefront musical instrument shop in the town of Streator, Illinois.

Our two songs were recorded in single takes after a 10 minute warm-up using three microphones and a single track. We were in and out in less than an hour, as was the other band that was leaving as we came in. John Prey had electronics training and built what was at the time a very advanced fluorescent strobe light system for our performances. We wore fluorescent capes and did covers of popular psychedelic songs, Kinks and Yardbirds etc. After taking a few decades off to raise a family and teach in the public schools, I'm now writing songs again." 45: Things/Hour Girl (Decca 32218) 1967

A pop-psych single worthy of your attention, Things is an up-tempo outing with some neat backwards guitar. Hour Girl is a mellow folk-psych ballad. Both sides were written by Peter Kerezman and Things can also be heard on Fuzz Flaykes & Shakes, Vol. 1 (LP & CD). Hour Girl has been compiled on Fading Yellow Vol. 2 (CD). The band had come together in New York City. Pete Feller lived in Rockland County, a northern suburb; Tom Fitzpatrick was from the Boston area, attending Columbia University; Jimmy Cahn was in New Rochelle New York in Westchester County, another northern suburb; Bob Azzarello was from Northport, Long Island, suburb east of New York City, attending New York University; Peter Kerezman grew up on 161 St. and Broadway in Upper Manhattan, a few blocks from the George Washington bridge.

Peter Kerezman recalls: - "We played a lotta frat parties and some dances around Columbia University, some bars and clubs in the suburbs, and rich kid private parties. Our biggest gig was the Clairol Caravan, summer of 1967. A total of 33, I think it was, free concerts w/fashion show in various parks of the five boroughs, sponsored by Clairol, Inc. If you look at a fiche (or a copy if you got one) of 'Time' magazine for June 30, 1967, you can see a Clairol Caravan photo on page 21. Jimmy Cahn's on the right, dancing with amateur fashion model Patsy Sabline. I'm the guy with the eyepatch (car wreck) all the way on the left, bangin' on a D-21. Still got that guitar but I lost the eye patch."

"The Decca-supplied producer was Milt Gabler, and our former manager Bob Prescott brought in his own guy, Steve Hammer to 'help out'. The record did not do very well for us, to put it mildly (less than 1,000 copies sold). I did quite a few demo sessions on bass for other folks, but nothing else was released. Me, Jimmy and Bob stuck together for quite a while but didn't achieve much due to lack of focus. I'm now the owner of a small bicycle shop in a rural community deep in southernmost Texas, still playing bass and guitar in the clubs occasionally". (MW/PKm)

45: Why/Comin' On Back To Me (Cameo Parkway 109) 1966

This Birmingham, Alabama group was originally known as The Hard Times. A change of name was precipitated, due to the national exposure of the San Diego Hard Times on ABC-TV'S 'Where The Action Is', when they were recording their second single (with Terry Knight producing) at Frankford Wayne Recording Labs in Philadelphia. An acetate exists of two tracks, Why and No Name, credited to the Hard Times; both would appear on the eventual Cameo Parkway single, as by the Rites Of Spring - No Name having become Comin' On Back To Me with the addition of vocals.

Why is a melodic folk ditty with music-box chimes; Comin' On Back To Me is a stomping, hand-clapping, hook-laden fuzz-popper and the stronger cut from our viewpoint. Compilers agree; it's on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 5 (CD) and Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 1 (CD).

Confusingly there were other, unconnected Rites Of Spring around in the sixties who released singles: The King In Your City/Happy Feet (La Fra # unknown) by a group thought to be from Massachusetts; and an MOR harmony-pop outfit of unknown locale - If You Let Me Make Love To You Then Why Can't I Touch You/Gettin' Into A Good Thing (Generation 113) 1969. NB: (1) 12" mini-album issued in paper sleeve printed on one side, with a hole in the centre through which the label can be viewed.

Here's a very rare North Carolina release. Easter, Holsapple and Stamey all followed this short-lived venture with prolific careers in power pop as performers and producers - and each of them are now quick to dismiss their Rittenhouse Square record as garbage. Truth be told, this is an interesting guitar/progressive effort that will be universally favoured over their later work by readers of this book.

RITTENHOUSE SQUARE - Self Titled LP.

Rittenhouse Square plays an infectious hard-rock, comparable perhaps to Big Star at their heaviest, or to the loud up-tempo material that SVT produced at the end of the decade. This is unpolished, though - and it is probably the raw character of the record that has led the band to dismiss it in recent years. Ignore the warnings and check it out, if you get the chance... but don't hold your breath waiting for the band members to reissue it! (CF)

A rare Californian surf single, deserving an inclusion here as Surfers Rule was written by Kim Fowley, while She's Gone is a Bruce Johnston and Terry Melcher song. Coincidentally, Fowley and Johnston/Melcher would later record as The Rogues in two different groups! (SR)

	Wind Me Up/Marlow's Theme	(Enterprise 9097) 1974

This was a horn-rock band from the University of Arkansas in Fayetteville, Arkansas. They released two albums on Enterprise, the subsidiary rock label of Stax. Their sound was rather specific, with the nice guitar solos of Fuzz Foster, a gritty lead singer, a dynamic rhythm section and a prominent horn section (very irritating on some tracks). Produced by Tim Riley and recorded at the famous Ardent Recording Studios, their first album contains some good tracks, notably Some Other Man, So Many Things, If You Can and the nine minutes of Lamp Of Love.

The engineers were all active members of the Memphis scene: John Fry (the Ardent Studios owner), Richard Rosebrough (later in Alamon and Big Star) and Terry Manning (also playing moog, ex-Avengers and Lawson and Four More).

Their second album, released under a shortened moniker, contains The Pimp Song and Roll Another Joint-Fuzz. (SR)

ALBUM:	1	REALIZATION	(Liberty LP-12372) 1968

This singer/guitarist found fame and fortune during the early sixties after intensively playing in the California clubs where he developed a specific "sing along" style. Like several other older Californian musicians (Sonny Bono), Ventures, Pat Boone...), he also recorded his psychy album, with covers of Dylan, Scott McKenzie, James Hendricks (Lamp Of Childhood)) and a fair and surprising version of Hey Joe.

Rivers kept on recording but all his other albums are clearly outside the scope of this book. He also produced the sole album by Bob Ray. (SR)

	Dolly Nighttime/Lo	(Fete Greats Of 1967 No #) 1968

This one spans quite a bit of territory, musically speaking. It starts off in the garage zone with some of their tracks from 1967, but most will be standing in line for the long psych freak-out of Let Them All Excite You, that's easily on par with any of those West Coast jam bands of the time. The album features tracks (most of them previously unreleased) from 1967-1971 by this Trenton, New Jersey band. Overall, this record leans more to the later sixties stylings, some of the material like Understanding Is Hard To Come By is quite bluesy.

Four of the cuts on this album - Let Them All Excite You, Understanding Is Hard To Come By, Dolly Nighttime and Lo - were previously recorded on a Hagens studio one-sided acetate album. Two others - Holding For Me and Now were from a 1967 Capitol New York City Studios acetate.

They also went under the name of River Styx Blues Emporium. (VJ/MW)

From Buffalo, New York they were previously known as The Mellow Brick Rode, who released one single in 1968 - Don't Put All Your Eggs In One Basket/Other Side Of This Life (United Artists UA 50333).

On their 1970 album they come across as a club/covers band with occasional Vanilla Fudge mannerisms in their heavyish treatments. They tackle the Zombies' She's Not There (one of their better offerings and a minor hit), Buffalo Springfield's Mr. Soul and Rock'n'Roll Woman (credit points for good taste if not the results) and Sly Stone's Dance To The Music, Love-itis (tough R&B pop also done by The Sonics). Despite occasional heavy or fuzz guitar noises it's a patchy album - on the down side, they deliver a funky brassed-up version of garageband fave I Can Only Give You Everything and an up-tempo lounge-style Taste Of Honey. The album spent two weeks in the chart, peaking at No. 199. (VJ/MW/CI)

Recorded by a group of students from Akron in Ohio, You Rub Me The Wrong Way is a good example of the influence of the British beat movement on mid-sixties American bands. They were previously known as the Hard Road and the Lemon-Lime single may have been released under that name.

They were no relation to the Road on Kama Sutra or the UK/US Road featuring a certain Noel Redding.

ROAD - Self Titled (Natural Resources) LP.

		I'll Make It Up To You/Take Me	(Reprise 0418) 1965
		Tell Her You Love Her/ Goodbye (Yellow Wax)	(Morocco 001/2) 1966
		Pretty Me/Baby Please Don't Go	(Morocco 121) 1966
		Pretty Me/Sleepy Friend	(Morocco 122) 1966

This band hailed from Fresno, California. Their debut single is a catchy beat-folk-rocker notable for crisp upfront percussion, backed with a melodic beat ballad with some barely audible fuzz.

Beat Rocket's retrospective album contains one side of seven studio tracks (three unreleased) plus seven live tracks preserved by the band's No. 1 fan Neil Hopper. The studio material is predominantly Invasion-inspired folk-rock, with a strong Searchers/Beau Brummels influence, occasionally topped off with fuzz. The live material includes their own Goodbye and I'll Make It Up To You, and shows off the band in meaner and rockier mood - especially on a great version of the Animals' Don't Bring Me Down, a rocking Train Kept A Rollin', and a bluesy take of Baby Please Don't Go.

Samuelian's story and Hoppers' photos, tied up neatly by Jud Cost's notes, round off a fine package.

The band's drummer Stephen Heitkotter issued a rare hard-rock album in the early seventies.

Compilation appearances have included: I'll Make It Up To You on Prisoners Of The Beat (LP); and Goodbye, an average folk-punk effort, on 60's Punk E.P., Vol. 3 (7"), Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 1 (LP), Boulders Punk EP Box (Vol. 3) and Garage Beat '66 6 (CD). (VJ/MW/AP)

From New York City, this band described their music as a cross between "the Rascals, Vagrants, and Animals... a real bluesy sound". Strangely When I Look At You is a slow smoochy affair, whilst the flip contains harmonious garage pop with guitars buried in the mix. The Brahma label was owned by George Tobin, the band's manager.

Formed by Adams and Prust in 1966 at the University of Southwestern Louisiana in Lafayette, they were initially known as the Pete and The Playmates, later the Batmen, before settling on the Roamin' Togas and a stable line-up in 1967.

In 1968 the band was whisked off to Bakersfield, California to record an album. Just one single resulted and that wasn't even released under the band's name, but as by the Black Box. The band folded in 1969 after most of their equipment was wrecked in a road accident.

The three Donaldson brothers began performing as a group at the start of the sixties. After three singles under a variety of names, several drummers and the loss of guitarist Gonia to the draft, the line-up settled on the quartet (the brothers and Craig Kampf) that would produce some very enjoyable music over the next several years. A dynamic amalgam of harmony-pop and folk-rock with garagy pretensions, they were Milwaukee's answer to The Monkees or Paul Revere and The Raiders and, like the aforementioned points of reference, a borderline inclusion here. Purists may look down at these mid-sixties 'pop' outfits but don't forget that the golden age of garage and psychedelia was a memorable epoch for pop too (so there!) - just tune into any 'golden oldies' station. The Robbs would become Cherokee in the early seventies.

A detailed history of the band is in the book 'Do You Hear That Beat' by Gary Myers (Hummingbird, 1994, ISBN 0-9643073-9-1), which graciously provided the early single and personnel details.

ALBUM:	1	ANTELOPE FREEWAY	(Impulse AS-9207) 1970

Howard Roberts was an established jazz guitarist who released this interesting album in 1970. Produced by Bill Szymczyk and Ed Michel, it is a good example of "psychedelic instrumental jazz". Mostly instrumental and "Made Loud to be played Loud", it contains lots of excellent guitar parts using different effects (Energy Bow, Ring Modulator...) mixed with various instruments. The result is interesting, mixing jazz, psychedelic and free form music. Best tracks: Five Gallons Of Astral Flash Could Keep You Up For Thirteen Weeks, Dark Ominous Clouds, That's America Fer Ya and De Blooz.

Billy Roberts is the folk-singer who wrote Hey Joe, one of the most covered songs of the sixties (Leaves, Hendrix, Ant Trip Ceremony to name but a few). He seems to have recorded very few albums. Produced by Allan Pierce and recorded in San Francisco, this album from 1975 is rather disappointing, with a first side clearly country-oriented and a second side quite patchy, with some good guitar on the title track. His main interest relies in the musicians involved: his backing group, Grits, featured Peter Albin from Big Brother and The Holding Company and the guests included John McFee from Clover (on "peddle steel guitar"!), Leo Collignon and Bobby Flurie.

Aceves and Flurie would later work with Barry Melton. (SR)

Possibly from San Francisco, this was a typical hippie outfit. Don Robertson wrote all their highly meditative and mystic tracks: Dawn, Where, Why, Gateless Gate, When, Belief, with strong oriental and religious influences and use of various noises (birds, bells etc.). Their album was released on Limelight, a subsidiary of Mercury which specialised in experimental albums: Beaver and Krause, Fifty Foot Hose, Mecki Mark Men. Don Robertson kept on recording meditation records and logically became a pioneer of the "New Age" movement in the eighties. ALBUMS:	1	AND HIS MANY HAND BAND	(Gypsy Frog) 1973
	2	MANCHILD	(Gypsy Frog 61974) 1974

New Yorker Chris Robison has several music connections. He was in the touring band Steam, fronted a New York band called RPM, was in the final line-up of Elephant's Memory, in The Velvert Turner Group, and he recorded with the likes of Keith Richards, John Phillips, Gene Simmons, Paul Stanley, Link Wray, Robert Gordon and John Lennon; and he later had his own band Stumblebunny

Chris Robison and his Many Hand Band is noted nowadays as being among the first albums to contain openly gay songs. Chris sang all the vocals and played all the instruments on this privately pressed album. Manchild is another rare private pressing which blends melodic rock, folk and hard-rock. The rock is mostly on side one and the folk on side two. (SR/VJ)

45: Hole In My Pocket/Rockets (White Whale WW 270) 1968

NB: double-sided promo copies of Hole In My Pocket exist, with deep red colour label.

The Rockets are in fact the first version of Crazy Horse, the "classic" backing-group of Neil Young. From California, they managed to get a record deal in 1968 with White Whale, the Turtles label. Produced by Barry Goldberg (who knew Notkoff from the recording of the Electric Flag's The Trip), their only album is a now minor collectable. All the tracks on the first side were composed by Danny Whitten (except a Talbot /Molina song) and the second side was written entirely by the Whitsell brothers.

A mix of rock and West Coast vibes, the best tracks are probably Hole In My Pocket (later used by Goldberg for one of his solo albums), Pills Blues and Let Me Go. The vocals are not always outstanding but the guitar and electric violin parts are good. The lyrics of Pills Blues are quite explicit about their habits...

In 1969, Whitten, Talbot and Molina met Neil Young, began playing with him and became Crazy Horse. Everybody Know This Is Nowhere, the first album they recorded with Young contains the superb Running Dry (Requiem For The Rockets) with Notkoff's haunting violin. Crazy Horse, their first "solo" album, with Cooder, Lofgren and Nitzsche, is excellent too. Whitten died of an heroin overdose in 1972 and the following Crazy Horse albums are best avoided.

Notkoff was also involved with Heavy Balloon.

You can also check out Hole In My Pocket on Happy Together - The Very Best Of White Whale Records (CD).

45: Super Stuff/The Wind Is My Keeper (Revise 300) 1967

Originally called The Ravin' Blues, the entire band came from Camden, Arkansas except for drummer Steve Claunch (from Memphis, Tennessee). Their rare and sought-after single features the immediately appealing Super Stuff, recorded at Sam Phillips Studios in 1967.

In total the band recorded four tracks in Memphis between 1966-67, with one session in Sonic Studios (1966) and the other at Sam Phillips'. The two unreleased tracks Rainy Daze and You Got Me Signed have finally resurfaced along with the singles on the Bacchus Archives EP. All have been lovingly restored and presented with a full history of the band.

Other Rock Gardens include the post-Fredric outfit also known as Garden with two singles on Capitol, and an unknown bunch with one single - Sweet Pajamas/Perhaps The Word Of Giving (B.T. Puppy 536) 1967.

Super Stuff has been compiled on Pebbles, Vol. 13 (LP) and Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 13 (LP & CD); and you'll also find The Wind Is My Keeper on Byrds Won't Fly Today (LP). (VJ/MW)

A California hippie-rock trio, Rockin Foo released their first album on the same label as Sapphire Thinkers and Randy Holden. Housed in a rather intriguing sleeve with a black and white front cover with the ying/yang symbol and a seagull and a back cover with a Chinese ideogram, the music on offer was primarily soft rural-rock. The overall result sounds a bit like a lightweight version of Morning. The second album was more of the same, and neither album made any impression with the buying public. Both albums were produced by Les Brown, their drummer.

They were also involved with the 1973 A Sea For Yourself soundtrack album, contributing two tracks. (SR/CF)

NB: α shown as by The GTO'S.

This Boston band started out playing instrumentals, backing Freddie Cannon early in their careers. Indeed, he went on to produce their first single, an instrumental Jungle Call. They became the house band at the Surf Ballroom on Nantasket Beach on Boston's South Shore for a while. Later they progressed through influences ranging from The Beatles, punk, folk-rock, psychedelia and soft-rock. One of their cuts She Lied pursued a popular theme of American garage bands in this era - the lying and cheating of their girlfriends.

Bright Lit Blue Skies and Mr. Wind were written by Ron Campisi and covered by The Rising Storm on their album.

The group figured on early tours with The Stones and The Kingsmen and made an appearance in a rock'n'roll exploitation movie, 'East Is East'. They also appeared on another single: Baby, Baby, Go Go/East Is East (Claridge 308) 1966 backing Casey Paxton.

They later became Puff and released an eponymous soft psychedelic album on MGM (SE-4622) in 1969.

Compilation coverage has so far included: She Lied on Pebbles, Vol. 8 (LP); I Wanna Be Your Man, Bright Lit Blue Skies and Mr. Wind on Bay State Rock Vol. 1 (LP); and Bright Lit Blue Skies and Can't You See, misleadingly on the The Best Of Bosstown Sound (2-CD) - both tracks are from 1966 and The Rockin' Ramrods predated the Bosstown hype. An unreleased track, Merry Go Round can also be found on New England Teen Scene, Vol. 3 (LP) and Wild About You has resurfaced on The Lost Generation 3 (LP). (VJ/MW)

	I Said No More/Oh What A Change	(Gold Dust 302) 1968

A quintet from Birmingham, Alabama The Rockin Rebellions released a total of four singles. They played across the Southeast, opening for big acts including the Who, Herman's Hermits, Young Rascals, Mitch Ryder, Billy Joe Royal and the Union Gap. In 1967 they won the coveted Southeast Region Title at the 'Atlanta Battle Of The Bands', beating off competition from Georgia, Florida and the Carolinas. Lead singer Lovoy's younger brother Al performed the same duties in the Swingin' Lamp Liters.

By My Side is on Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 1 (CD) and Don't Let Go on Wyld Sydes Volume Seven (CD). By My Side is a jerky upbeat number with pumping cheesy keys and nimble pickin'. (MW/RM)

	King Of The Jungle/You Ain't Gonna Cry	(Lee C. 970) 1966
	Urban Meadows/Down	(Tener T1015) 1967

Florida faves in the Sanford/Orlando area from 1964 to 1969, a couple of members were later in an outfit called Yak. Their debut Go Away is a chiming and charming folk-rocker, perhaps influenced by the Byrds' debut album and especially Here Without You.

Their second single, King Of The Jungle, was a novelty song that actually charted very high in Florida... it was a takeoff on a character that was a cross between George of the Jungle and Tarzan.

With street and storm effects, stately head-swirling organ, evocative lyrics and haunted vocals, their third effort, Urban Meadows, is both impressive and intensely addictive. Comparisons to Procol Harum's Whiter Shade Of Pale are inevitable but, given a vote, this'd get mine every time. Down, a cantering power-poppin' punker has a U.K. mod/freakbeat flavour. It's no wonder that the Tener single is much sought-after.

The Yak was Charlie Lytle's band after the Rockin' Roadrunners. They were a very popular band because they were one of the first bands in Orlando with a drummer with a double bass kit.

Compilation appearances include: - Go Away and Urban Meadows on Psychedelic Crown Jewels Vol. 2 (2-LP & CD); Down on Yeah Yeah Yeah (CD) and Psychedelic States - Florida Vol. 2 (CD); and Go Away on Total Raunch (CD). (MW/RM/SMR)

45: Because We're Young/My Only Love (Woodrich WR-1249) 1965

Because We're Young, a superb brooding R&B punker based around a solid I'm A Man riff, features moody sax interwoven with some cool but raw guitar-work and builds slowly in intensity without crossing into rave-up territory. My Only Love is one of those reverb'n'jangle lovelorn garage ballads that have started to find favour on compilations. The Rocks are thought to have come from Alabama but this is unconfirmed. Songwriter credits of Walter Sims (Because...) and Randy Duck/Johnny Harbin may help establish this, if they were band members.

Woody Richardson's predominantly gospel and country label recorded in Nashville and featured some other garage bands, also showcased on the The Cicadelic '60s - Vol. 7, the Shadows and the Shandells Inc.. According to the liner notes these singles were pressed in limited quantities (about 500) and were not distributed or sold by the label but by the bands themselves at gigs.

There's another single by The Rocks on White Cliffs 239 circa 1966 featuring Who Do You Love, flip title unknown. The same band?

Because We're Young has been compiled on Yeah Yeah Yeah (CD), Bad Vibrations, Vol. 1 (LP) and The Cicadelic '60s - Vol. 7 (CD). (MW)

A California band whose single is highly-rated by collectors. Is That Your Halo? is an intensely menacing punker that rumbles into Yardbirds' rave-up territory at the bridge where incendiary leads battle with rasping harmonica; State Of Your Mind is an almost equally powerful acid-punker - truly a double-whammy of a single. The personnel listings shown above were culled from the songwriting credits and are thought to be band members. The producer was Norm Flint, a late sixties San Francisco disc jockey.

You can hear both sides on Fuzz, Flaykes & Shakes Vol. 4 (LP and CD). (MW/VJ/CF)

45: Last Night/Do Your Thing (Rockwell BCS-101/2) 1972

A really obscure hard-rock single which is worth seeking; it has a soupcon of funk and some sublime guitar passages.

Gene Sculatti gave Gray Newell the lowdown on this Yountville, California band which had evolved out of the Nomads - "A band from Yountville or Napa that was around in 1964-5 was the Nomads. They were what we used to call a "hair-hat band," which meant they played the old R&B and frat-rock (Louie Louie, Woolly Bully) that their fans - guys who still wore their hair in modified pompadour style, as opposed to surfer, side-parted, or post-Beatle hair - really dug".

In the noughties, Jim Stanley of Napa's Transatlantic Winkham Chiken No. 5 recalled - "One of the early Napa groups was the Nomads; Jimmy and Kenny Lloyd, and later Ernie Rodriguez. They changed their name to Rockwell while I was in the army, and when I came home on leave all of a sudden Rockwell was "it". They played at the Fillmore Auditorium with Don Ellis the jazz group, as far as I know the only Napa group to play the Fillmore. By that time I think Kenny Lloyd was gone, he got religion and became a minister or something. They were at the High School Reunion and Rockwell played a couple of years ago. I am surprised their name isn't out there more as they were really good". (MW/GN)

From Seattle, Washington they started out as The Imperials. Jeff LaBrache: - "The Imperials had much the same cast - Alan Parks, Dan Denton, Jeff Beals, Jim Wolf and myself. We did one record through Jerry Dennon (Jerden Records), but we were in our early teens, and it's not very good."

Their second single, as Rocky and The Riddlers, Flash And Crash is a real bone-crunchin' punker and for fans of the very rawest, aggressive punk only. The follow-up, Riot City, is a frantic guitar-organ instrumental.

After recording these three mid-sixties singles they changed names again to The City Limits.

Jeff Beals also played with The Kingsmen and Ric Ulsky later joined The Association in 1974. Jeff LaBrache later played with West Coast Natural Gas and Indian Puddin' and Pipe.

The picture sleeve reveals this Quincy, Illinois quintet decked out in space-age tunics, featuring a bassist who appears to be smaller than his guitar. From their name and garb one might expect Telstar-like instrumentals but their single reveals them to have been recent convertees to the Beatles, to the extent that She Cares salutes the mop-tops with a final resounding chord like A Hard Day's Night.

Until recently a mysterious figure, Sixto Rodriguez was born in Detroit, Michigan in 1942 to Mexican immigrant parents - his first name chosen because he was their sixth child. Possessed of a distinctive voice, Rodriguez was a singer/songwriter steeped in the folk and blues traditions of his times and comparisons with Dylan and Donovan are inevitable and not undeserved. However, a profoundly working class upbringing in this industrial - and musical - heartland helped to make his work quite unique.

In April 1967, he recorded five original songs for the local Impact label. His debut single, I'll Slip Away (later re-cut in the mid-seventies) was an atmospheric number with considerable commercial potential, the flip side, You'd Like To Admit It, a contrasting folk-rocker in which the singer berated an ex-girlfriend for going off with a 'hick'. Unfortunately it became Impact's penultimate release before the label went under. Of the remaining tracks Forget It would later be re-recorded for his first album and To Whom It May Concern for the second, but the intriguingly titled That Discoteque remains unreleased in any form.

Undaunted, two years later Rodriguez found himself signed to the newly founded Hollywood label, Sussex (Bill Withers' first label), and the classic Cold Fact album emerged as their first release. Recorded in 1969 and skilfully produced by two other Impact refugees, Mike Theodore and Dennis Coffey, it opened with the trippy but dark Sugar Man. Over a subtle backing of acoustic guitar and electronic effects Rodriguez's lyrics were starkly honest:

"Sugar man, met a false friend
On a lonely dusty road lost my heart when I found it it had turned to dead black coal.
Silver magic ships you carry
Jumpers, coke, sweet Mary Jane
Sugarman, you're the answer
That makes my question disappear

Sugarman, 'cos I'm weary
Of those double games I hear."

The themes of many other songs on the album can be gleaned from the titles alone: Crucify Your Mind (drugs), This Is Not A Song, It's An Outburst: Or, The Establishment Blues, Inner City Blues and Rich Folks Hoax (social unrest and political apathy), but there were also beautiful, bittersweet love songs in Forget It and Jane S. Piddy. Rumour has it (although Rodriguez has denied the connection) that Like Janis was inspired by Janis Joplin. The brutally direct Only Good For Conversation stands out as a great fuzz rocker, but for the most part the album gives prominence to Rodriguez's acoustic guitar and powerful lyrics.

Coming From Reality, which was recorded at London's Lansdowne Studios, came in a striking die-cut gatefold sleeve. However, despite featuring some excellent musicianship - especially the lead guitar work courtesy of ace session man Chris Spedding - it somehow contrived to be less interesting than its predecessor. The most immediately striking tracks are undoubtedly those where the band is in full flight - Climb Up On My Music and Heikki's Suburban Bus Tour for instance - but the more restrained acoustic numbers repay repeated listening. Sandrevan Lullaby - Lifestyles (the title is a conflation of the names of Rodriguez's two daughters) and Cause were both subtly orchestrated and their lyrics echoed the dark emotional themes of the debut album.

Three further tracks recorded in the mid-seventies - a new version of the Impact single I'll Slip Away, Can't Get Away and Street Boy - were each the equal of any of his previous works, but none were released at the time. After neither album made any impact in the States, Rodriguez seemed to simply disappear. That, however, was really only the beginning of the most extraordinary phase of his career. When, in 1970, some enterprising folk at Festival Records imported 400 copies of Cold Fact to Australia they rapidly sold out. The album was subsequently issued by A&M in 1971 and, as its fame spread, it gradually acquired a cult following amongst the disaffected youth both there and in countries like New Zealand and South Africa. When it was finally issued on CD in those markets it went platinum and Rodriguez was so well known by the beginning of the eighties that he even toured Australia with Midnight Oil. After disappearing into temporary obscurity once more - during which increasingly bizarre rumours circulated about his demise - he recently travelled to South Africa for a sell-out stadium tour. Both albums have subsequently been reissued in all formats in those countries, while a CD Rodriguez: At His Best (Blue Goose VPCD 6748) collects together highlights from both albums and adds the three unreleased mid-seventies tracks for good measure.

You can also hear I'll Slip Away on The Best Of Impact Records (CD). (TF)

ALBUM: (selected)	1	PHANTASY	(ABC S-610) 1967

RODRIGUEZ - Cold Fact CD.

Although Roe (who was born in Atlanta, Georgia) is best-remembered for bubblegum smashes such as Sheila, Sweet Pea and Dizzy, he also made some intriguing experimental pop in the sixties. This lost 1967 pop-sike classic features immaculate support from the team responsible for the landmark Millennium and Sagittarius albums, as well as members of the Goldebriars and Goldenrod. Fans of adventurous pop and sunshine psychedelia will enjoy Phantasy.

	Universal Soldier/Lost Little Girl	(ABC Paramount 10723) 1965

	When The Sun Shines In The Mornin'/ Love (That's All I Want)	(ABC Paramount 10814) 1966
	All The Good Things/ Pleasing You Pleases Me	(ABC Paramount 10871) 1966

Tommy Roe's backing band put out the above singles and was not reticent about their British Invasion-style 'folk-rock' influences to the extent that you'd swear they were The Searchers! They were based in Clearwater, Florida.

The Roemans formed in November 1963 with the original name Lanny and The Impressions. In early 1964 an A&R man from ABC Paramount heard the group playing at a "Clearwater Star-Spectacular" concert and signed them to the label. Since Paramount already had a group named 'The Impressions' they changed their name to The Romans. A few weeks later ABC hooked them up to Tommy Roe... and so naturally they changed the spelling of their name to The Roemans.

The group toured the globe but eventually suffered the same demise as many groups of the era, with members having to be replaced due to the draft. By 1970, only Bertie Higgins (drums) and Bob (Bo) Glover (guitar) from the original line-up were left and the group dissolved totally that year.

Bertie went on to a solo career and later achieved fame in 1982 with a huge hit, Key Largo. Bob (Bo) bounced around the country leading different groups, one of the most intriguing names being 'Bojicada', a latin flavor band in the vein of Santana and a southern rock group named 'Bo and Arrow' in the late seventies. Bo went on to a solo career and recorded albums titled After The Lovin' and a Gospel album Amazing Grace. Both Bertie and Bo are still performing and writing.

Barry Oakley, who replaced Joe Pappalardo after he was drafted in 1966, was later in The Second Coming and The Allman Brothers Band.

Don't can also be heard on Quagmire Volume 3 (CD). (MW/BGr)

From Ely, just south of Cedar Rapids in eastern Iowa, this outfit was originally known as The Do's and Don'ts. A very clean cut band they recorded a number of records including I Wonder on Zorch Records circa 1966. This commercial pop song, which with better promotion may have charted, can also be heard on the Dirty Water (LP) compilation. (VJ)

ALBUM: 1(A)	ROGER AND WENDY	(Horny R17WI) 1972 R3

NB: (1) reissued on 12" vinyl (Acme Records) 2009.

This Christian folk-rock album mainly comprises Dylan and Beatles covers with a few originals. It was presented in hand-made covers.

They took the stage names Roger and Wendy Becket when involved in the Theatre Company of Boston and for several off-Broadway plays and used them for much of their musical careeer before reverting back to the Penney surname.

The couple had earlier been two of the quartet Euphoria who recorded a sunshine pop album in the style of The Mamas & The Papas in 1969. Then in the mid-seventies they recorded as Bermuda Triangle. (VJ)

Wanted: Dead Or Alive can also be heard on Kim Fowley - Underground Animal (LP & CD), Pebbles Vol. 8: Southern California 1 (CD), Pebbles, Vol. 17 (LP), Trash Box (5-CD) and Best of Pebbles, Vol. 2 (LP & CD). (VJ)

This classy punk band came from Lafayette, Louisiana. Their debut, Put You Down, is revisited on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 7: Get A Move On!!! (LP & CD). I Don't Need You, a typical punk screamer, is on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 8 (LP) and Acid Visions Vol. 6 (CD) (Spalax).

They changed their name to The Dry Gins for one single, produced by the Greek Fountains' Cyril Vetter. You're Through is re-aired on The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 1 (2-CD), She's A Drag was dug up for Back From The Grave, Vol. 8 (CD) and Back From The Grave, Vol. 8 (2-LP). The Rogues (NE)

45:	Summertime/Anything You Say	(Action 100) 1966

Omaha in eastern Nebraska was home to this band. Summertime was a much recorded ballad, but it's the flip, Anything You Say, which may interest readers. A typical post-British invasion, pre-punk recording, pressed in Minneapolis, you could check it out on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. II (LP) and Wyld Sydes Volume Five (CD). (VJ/MW)

45s:	Night Time/No Lies	(Boss City 160) 1969
	Tobacco Road/Heavy	(Boss City 166) 1970

This New London, Connecticut band produced a late-but-great screeching up-tempo blast of Tobacco Road with some wicked guitar throughout. It's almost on a par with the Blues Magoos rendition. The flip is a brief up-tempo workout. (MW/MM)

The Rogues (WI, Brookfield)

45:	Good Lovin'/Set Me Free	(Talent Associates No #) 197?

This Rogues was from Brookfield, Wisconsin. The two covers on this single are competently executed in a straight garage-beat vein. Apparently it dates from the seventies but has a very sixties sound and feel. A live and lo-fi rendition of Good Good Lovin' was featured on the 1966 Milwaukee Sentinel Rock'n'roll Revue (LP). (MW)

The Rogues (NY)

45s:	α	You Better Look Now/Train Kept A Rollin'	(Audition 6110) 1966
		Say You Love Me/Secondary Man	(Thunderbird 507) 1967
		Should You Care/The Rest Of The Way	(Thunderbird 511) 1967

NB: α was reissued in the early eighties on Moxie (M 104).

From Buffalo, New York this act was previously known as The London Fogs. Their You Better Look Now, a haunting folk-rock garage ballad, was covered in 1982 by Rochester, New York's Chesterfield Kings on their debut Here Are album. The flip, a cover of Train Kept A Rollin' is also excellent. Secondary Man is a pastiche of Beatlesque psych-pop with a finale of backwards and other strange effects.

Compilation appearances have included: The Train Kept A Rollin on Pebbles Box (5-LP), Pebbles, Vol. 4 (ESD) (CD), Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), Acid Dreams Epitaph (CD), Trash Box (5-CD) and Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 14 (LP & CD); You Better Look Now on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 5: Nobody To Love (LP & CD) and The Cicadelic 60's, Vol. 5 (LP); and Secondary Man on Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 2 (CD). From L.A., Bruce Johnston and Terry Melcher also recorded some surf-pop singles as "Bruce and Terry" and produced several surf groups. Their studio group The Rogues deserves a mention here. Everyday is a catchy and up-tempo adaptation of the Norman Petty/Hardin song, with a trace of the Louie Louie riff, which missed the Top 100 by just one place. Roger's Reef is an instrumental with wild B3 organ a lá Dave "Baby" Cortez. The son of Doris Day, Melcher is mostly known for his production work with The Byrds, Paul Revere, The Rising Sons, Gentle Soul... He also released two West Coast/country-rock albums in 1974 and 1976. Johnston joined the Beach Boys and also had a solo career. (SR/MW/VJ)

This uncompiled gem came from a teen-garage quintet out of Tulsa, Oklahoma. It's On Again is a superb garage-ballad - delicate minor-chord jangle from the Bryan MacLean school of wistfulness. Too Good is fine garage-beat driven along by metronomic strumming, understated riffs, good harmonising, and topped off with a winning keyboard solo. A Top 40 rock band from Shreveport/Bossier City, Louisiana The Rogue Show enjoyed an eight-year stint (1967-1975) performing at schools and colleges all over Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, and Arkansas. They did find time to release three singles, all covers except for band original Make Me Over Again (credited to Roman Gorky - a collage of parts of their surnames). A Christian rock trio from Oregon Rohrbacker, Hendren and Kingen ranged from hard to melodic rural-rock on their album, which is mostly notable for its good lead guitar work. This outfit ranks amongst the best on the sixties Mexican-American scene in East Los Angeles, frequently referred to as the East Side Sound (other top dogs being Cannibal and The Headhunters, Thee Midnighters and The Premiers). The Romancers were led by prolific songwriter Max Uballez who composed nearly all of their material and plenty for other East Side bands - including Get On This Plane (Premiers), Nau Ninny Nau (Cannibal and The Headhunters) and Beaver Shot (Atlantics).

Their finest moment is Love's The Thing, a tremendous pumped-up punker with strong raw vocals and raging guitars that races to a breath-taking halt. Count Five's producer Irwin Zucker liked it so much that he struck a deal with Romancers' producer Eddie Davis, resulting in the single being put out again as by the Smoke Rings, first on Prospect and then on Dot. Pump up the volume on this one. She Took My Oldsmobile is another fine punker.

Ballads were also part of their repertoire - My Heart Cries appears on the compilation East Side Revue, Vol. 1; and That's Why I Love You appears on East Side Revue, Vol. 2. These two albums were reissued in 1969 as a 2-LP set East Side Revue.

A California comedian, whose inclusion here is deserved partly because of the subjects of his sketches: - drug busts, banana smoking (!), the Vietnam War, religion, riots and other counterculture subjects. He also deserves an entry because his albums use a lot of music between or during his dialogue.

Produced by David Briggs (then the in-house producer of Tetragrammaton and in charge of Summerhill, Quatrain etc.), the two albums mentioned above reveal some surprisingly good versions of Shake, Mojo Workout and Land Of 1000 Dances treated in a very energetic way.

NB: α shown as by Merging Traffic.

All togged up in their togas this Little Rock, Arkansas five-piece certainly cut a dashing figure - the drummer must've had lots of female admirers or a large bass drum! I'll Find A Way is a decent Searchers/Byrds inspired garage ballad but the flip is the showpiece here - a bouncy mid-tempo piece with evocative keyboard and a very short neat guitar solo but all underpinned by the earliest example of 'phasing' discovered to date, and it all comes off superbly - hats off to Little Rock.

Their remaining singles are relatively disappointing after this: The second is a pleasant Zombies-inspired minor-mooder backed by a party mover with funky strutting. The third is a crooning lounge ballad and the flip is a brassy James Brown style number a-la Ninety Nine And A Half. The band evolved into The Merging Traffic and released one final soul-infused single.

Other My label releases that are now attracting collectors' interest include those by the Egyptians, Culls, Spires Of Oxford and Dutch Masters. Pick'em up while you can.

	Midnight Reader / Be Sincere/The Grass Is Greener	(Tener 1024) 1966

Originally formed in 1959, the first Starfires broke up in 1963 but Whitney and Brown formed another group and retained the name. Shortly after, this Tampa/Auburndale, Florida band became Ron and The Starfires to prevent confusion with the numerous other Starfires, including one in north Florida.

Their 1965 debut Why Did You Cry, re-aired on Psychedelic States - Florida Vol. 2 (CD), is a tender beat ballad. They'd release another single on Eric Schabacker's Tener label the following year. An otherwise unavailable cover of Neil Diamond's Solitary Man turned up on the rare 1968 label sampler album, Bee Jay Video Soundtrack (Tener 1014).

Carl Chambers would join We The People in the late sixties. The band lasted until around 1970; some members were later in Cinnamon. (MW/JLh/RM)

The Rondells (KY)

From Louisville, Kentucky this band had one track on the rare The Louisville Scene (LP) compilation, circa 1966 (Rod 'n' Custom 3001). The song in question, One More Chance takes the riff from Just Like Me and adds a Zombies flavour. A rather raw haunting punker, you can also find it on Highs In The Mid Sixties, Vol. 22 (LP). Don't Say That You Love Me (ABC Paramount 10690) 1965

Parking.. is a strange hybrid - hot-rod pop ala Surf City with Beach Boys' harmonies, although it's from New York rather than California; unusually it features harmonica and has a guitar solo from Merseyside rather than L.A.. The teener-ballad on the flip has lush harmonies, very reminiscent of The Critters. Released in July 1965, both songs were composed by Dannemann & Dawes and the latter song signposts the direction they would pursue the following year as The Cyrkle. (MW)

Lose Your Money, is a Moody Blues cover with some Texan grit added, and Lost My Love Today, a folk-country pop number.

45: The Maid/Pipeline'66 (Cycle J01211651/2) 1965

This outfit from Indiana was known in earlier garage incarnations as The Blue Flames and The Rendezvous. The Maid can also be heard on Back From The Grave, Vol. 7 (2-LP) but it's a pretty routine rock'n'roller. The instrumental Pipeline'66 has also resurfaced on Strummin' Mental, Vol. 5 (LP).

The band finally folded in 1968. (VJ/MW)

Trip So Wild has resurfaced on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 5 (LP & CD), Turds On A Bum Ride Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD) and Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 (2-LP). (VJ)

NB: α by Buzz and Bucky, also released in the UK (Stateside SS428). β by The Daytonas.

Produced by Bill Justis and based in Nashville, Ronny and The Daytonas were fronted by John "Buck" Wilkin (aka Ronny) and Buzz Cason. Although based very far from California, the group released several songs which can be compared to the best sides of the Beach Boys or Jan and Dean. Benefiting from the excellent songriting skills of Wilkin, they got a national hit in 1964 with G.T.O., still a hot-rod classic. Their subsequent singles sold quite well too and they became so popular that several fake "Ronny and the Daytonas" were touring in the Southwest.

Although their most successful period was 1964/65, when they were signed to the local Mala/Amy label (also in charge of The Box Tops), they kept on recording for RCA until 1968. Their line-up was not very stable and, in 1967, some of The Daytonas became The Hombres.

In 1969, when the group finally broke up, John Buck Wilkin formed the short-lived American Eagles. He would also release two interesting solo albums and do a lot of session work with rock and country acts. Buzz Cason became a well-known producer and worked with The Hangmen, Us Four, White Duck and Jay Bentley. (SR/EW/CF)

45s:	I'll Be The One/Believe In You	(Etiquette 14) 1965
	Bound To Lose/Gimme A Break	(Mustang 3008) 1965

This band is probably most notable for the involvement of Wailers' axeman Rich Dangel, although despite their Northwest connections, they were in fact based in L.A. Their first single was weakish British Invasion-inspired beat but both sides of the second are worth a listen and you'll find them on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 14 (LP). We're talking Mersey-influenced rock here.

Billy Webb and Larry Thompson had both earlier played with the Bobby Fuller Fanatics, whilst that group was still back in El Paso in the early sixties. They later moved to Los Angeles, as did Rich Dangel (from Tacoma) circa mid-1964. When they met up they formed The Rooks in Los Angeles, whilst Dangel's ties with the Tacoma, Washington scene got the group their first release on Etiquette.

A second single followed on the same label as the Bobby Fuller Four. Just after its release Dangel quit, due to an argument with Richie. Dangel and Johnson then played in The Time Machine, and Dangel later re-emerged in 1969 with The Floating Bridge. The Rooks carried on, were joined for a period by a lead vocalist Brady Sneed (a dancer on 'Shindig!') and latterly appeared on Paul Revere and the Raiders' "Happening '68" TV show. After they split, they followed Dangel back to the Seattle area. Webb and Randy Fuller joined Dewey Martin and "Sarge" West in the New Buffalo Springfield.

40-odd years on... Billy Webb resides across the street from Randy Fuller in the eastern Los Angeles County area. They still play together, most recently in The Bobby Fuller Drive. Plans are afoot to team up again with drummer Larry Thompson, now based in Tacoma and tour under this name as a Bobby Fuller Four tribute band of sorts.

Compilation appearances include: Believe In You and I'll Be The One on Required Etiquette (CD); Bound To Lose and Gimme A Break on Highs In The Mid-Sixties Vol. 14 (LP); Bound To Lose on Wyld Sydes Volume 9 (CD); and Gimme A Break on Wyld Sydes Volume 8 (CD). (MW/DR/MM/BTs/LTn)

A mid-sixties Los Angeles-based combo, their vinyl zenith One Of These Days consists of glorious jingle-jangle garage folk-rock which spirals up and down your vertebrae. The overlooked flip is a melodic folk-rock ballad with harmonica and rather reminiscent of Fenwyck - a great single.

'The Roosters' was the name given to the various line-ups of the house band at San Diego's Cinnamon Cinder club beginning in the late fifties. The two versions listed above are significant to this book as they spawned important local bands: Sid Smith was with The Brain Police, and then joined Roy Head's band. Jack Pinney and Jerry Raney were the most steadfast members of Glory, thought to be San Diego's longest-lived underground band, lasting from 1967 until Raney formed The Beat Farmers in the eighties. Pinney was also the original drummer with Iron Butterfly. (CF/MW)

From Dallas, Texas came this blues-punk single written by Rudy Wyatt, who may have been a band member. Later in 1966 the band returned as The Wyld with a new recording of Lost One. The band originally hailed from Greenville, South Carolina but recorded the single in Texas under the guidance of Major Bill Smith, a colourful character behind many fine Texas outfits (Jades, Larry and The Blue Notes, Elite, Electric Love, Livin' End, Ron-Dels).

Born in September 1940, Rose grew up in Washington D.C. and was part of the quasi-folk singing movement of the late sixties, which was heavily influenced by Bob Dylan. Prior to launching his solo career on Columbia Rose was a member of The Big Three along with Mama Cass Elliot.

His debut album made quite an impression, being a powerful singer his gritty voice was well suited to his bluesy themes. His songs too were full of drama and contrast and his best known song Morning Dew was covered by several other artists in the era. The album also contained an arrangement of a traditional song called Hey Joe, which was subsequently covered and made internationally famous by Jimi Hendrix. Typical of his style too was Come Away Melinda, also on his debut album, which was taken to a wider audience by its inclusion on the compilation, The Rock Machine Turns You On (LP).

Among the other songs he remade in his own particular style are Morning Dew and Come Away Melinda. He also penned many original songs, and continued to write and perform up until his death in September 2002. In the last decade of his life he lived in London and teamed up briefly in an unsuccessful duo with Tim Hardin. He performed at the Royal Albert Hall in London, and on the prestigious Jools Holland show on the BBC.

Four members of this lightweight pop outfit came from California and the other was from West Virginia. The band was based in the Los Angeles area. Their best known song Next Plane To London, with Diana De Rose on lead vocal made No. 17 in the U.S. charts. It was written by Kenny Gist Jnr. (aka Kenny O'Dell).

The album, which is certainly not psychedelic although I've seen it described as such, contains a cover of Bob Dylan's She Belongs To Me and two nice Gene Clark compositions Till Today and Long Time. One of its better cuts is February Sunshine, a bright'n'breezy piece of flower-pop, which had been a minor hit for The Giant Sunflower. Their second single was non-album.

THE ROSE GARDEN
ATCO

THE ROSE GARDEN - Self Titled LP.

The Rose Garden's roots were in a teen act formed by Bruce Bowdin, John Noreen and Jim Groshong in around '64. They chose an "anglophile" name, The Blokes, to reflect their repertoire of Beatles covers and, by 1965, had recruited 15-year-old Bill Fleming on bass. Bill remembers: "The guys had been heavily influenced by the Byrds about this time. We literally had every Byrds tune from their first three albums in our repertoire. John was an accomplished 12-string guitar player."

Sometime in late 1966 or early 1967 Jim Groshong met Diana De Rose, in Hollywood and she asked him to join the band that she was in at the time. Instead, Diana ended up joining The Blokes. Bill: "With her came a fellow named David Hanson who fancied himself as a manager. He got us a lot of non-paying gigs in Hollywood and eventually through him we met Kim Fowley. We hung out at his place, but none of us ever lived there that I was aware of. The guys still lived at home with their parents. It is possible that Diana may have stayed there for brief periods of time."

"Dunhill Records, who I think was run by Lou Adler at the time, had recorded February Sunshine with a band called Giant Sunflower - Everything was flower-power at that time - but the band was not under contract. When the song started to climb they need a band to go with it, so we became Giant Sunflower, but that only lasted for about a month. We felt that we would probably get sued and really preferred to make it on our own, so we left that arrangement."

"Through David the manager we then met Charles Greene and Brian Stone. They had "discovered" Sonny & Cher and had produced some early songs for Buffalo Springfield. Their promotional man was Pat Pipolo, and Kenny Gist, Jr. (Kenny O'Dell) was a relative of his - that's how we got to record Next Plane To London."

With Next Plane To London riding high in the charts, Rose Garden began the promotional circuit... They had aleady played many of the local clubs such as Gazzarri's on the Strip (with The First Edition that later sent Kenny Rogers on his way to fame), Bito Lito's, The Cheetah (with Eric Burdon) - described by Bill as "a weird truly psychedelic place that was on a pier on Santa Monica Beach".

"We did most of the teen TV shows: 'American Bandstand' was the only national show, but there were many local and syndicated shows: 9th Street West (with Canned Heat), Groovy, and The Woody Woodbury Show (with Bobby Vee). These were all Los Angeles shows, and usually local shows in many of the towns where we toured."

"We were booked on many package tours and played several dates with Tommy James and The Shondells, Neil Diamond, The Box Tops, The Association, Chuck Berry, Little Richard, Glen Campbell, Ohio Express, Billy Joe Royal, Jay and The Techniques, Canned Heat, and Stone Poneys at various times. New Year's Eve 1967 in Fort Worth was particularly memorable with both Chuck Berry and Little Richard being on the same bill. Most of these tours went through the South, Southeast and Midwest states, probably because our agent was based in Texas..."

When the second single didn't make it and with friction between Diana and the other band members reaching critical mass, the band broke up in late 1968. They later reformed in 1969 without Diana and Bruce (he had married and moved to Texas), with Bill Fleming's brother Ed joining as drummer. But after a few local gigs they split for good.

John Noreen went on to be a respected studio musician in Nashville, playing steel guitar for virtually everybody there. He also toured with Highway 101 (a country act) in the eighties, was a member of John Davidson's nightclub band in the seventies, and was in a band called Rotondi. Bruce Bowdin settled in Texas. Jim Groshong played solo in small clubs in southern California and Bill Fleming has been a Police Officer in the Los Angeles area (NOT LAPD!) since 1973.

Bill: "We were approached about a big sixties revival three day festival to be held in southern California about ten years ago. Bruce was in Texas, but agreed to participate; Jim, John and I got together, but then John had a commitment to finish a tour with Highway 101. Jim and I thought that John's 12-string was too important to our sound, so that ended that."

Here's Today can now be heard on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book). (VJ/BF)

The work of former Eternity's Children member, the 'A' side, to the second single, A Railroad Trestle... is a Chips Moman-produced track presumably cut in Memphis. Its flip-side is a mono mix of the track from the Eternity's Children debut, but released here as by Charles E. Ross III.

ROTARY CONNECTION - Peace CD.

The 'split' debut single, the immediate solo follow-up and the parallel release of Laughing Girl with Eternity's Children's Blue Horizon single (Tower 498), all point to a marketing campaign, which probably aimed at launching a solo career for Charles Ross III on the back of the more familiar Eternity's Children moniker. A Chicago area outfit. It's surprising that Rotary Connection is not better remembered given their substantial recording output. They were fronted by Minnie Riperton, who embarked on a solo career after their demise until her premature death on 12 July 1979, aged just 31.

They played a combination of psych, funk and progressive rock with smooth soulful harmonies. Their early albums made some commercial impression and they also enjoyed three minor hit singles. Their tripped out version of Silent Night on their third album Peace featured some inspired free-form guitar work. Song includes a variety of highly original cover versions such as Respect, Burning Of The Midnight Lamp, The Weight and Tales Of Brave Ulysses. Hey Love concentrates more on complex group compositions. On offer is a blend of guitar, vocal harmonies, orchestration and funky backing.

Jim Donlinger and Jim Nyeholt left to form Aorta in 1970 and were joined shortly after by Tom Donlinger. Then, after their demise in 1970, Mitch Alliotta and John Jeremiah became two thirds of Alliotta-Haynes-Jeremiah. There was a brief reunion in 1975 as New Rotary Connection.

NB: α is a connected 45 - the 'A' side is by "The Forvus featuring Brooke Chamberlain with the Rovin' Flames", whilst the flip is "Brooke Chamberlain with the Forvus and the Rovin' Flames and Harvey Swadnungle"!!

A Tampa, Florida band whose best known song How Many Times, is a typical punk protest song bemoaning girlfriends and society. Composed by Uncapher and Delise it would later be covered by the new psychedelic outfit Plan 9 on their Frustration album.

The Rovin' Flames singles are uncommonly elusive. Love Song #.6 also appeared on the very rare Bee Jay Video Soundtrack sampler album (Tener 1014) in 1968.

They also backed The Forvus, featuring Brooke Chamberlain, on their sole single.

Hardy Dial was also in The Outsiders/The Soul Trippers as had his replacement, John DeLise, who would go on to Those Five.

	α	You Can't Sit Down/ You Really Turn Me On	(Smash S-2102) 1967

NB: α flip with Barney Pip.

The Rovin' Kind came out of Chicago - the compilation Early Chicago (LP) contains their recording from February 1967 of a nice laid-back John Sebastian song, I Didn't Want To Have To Do It. All five members were later in Illinois Speed Press (which was really the same band) and David, Bartoli and Pappalardo all had brief spells as back-up musicians for H.P. Lovecraft. Kal David had earlier fronted The Exceptions. Avoid the first single - it's insipid soul - Four Seasons inspired stuff. Their subsequent covers are competent but not that inspiring, sad to say.

The band was briefly known as The Gentrys. In 1965 with the assistance of Billy the Kid Emerson they cut an acetate single at MBS studios: Doo Doo Pah/Everybody. Everybody was later recorded as the 'A' side for the first Rovin' Kind single. The band also cut two versions of a radio jingle for Wrigleys chewing gum, which exists on acetate.

Compilation appearances have included: My Generation and She on Oh Yeah! The Best Of Dunwich Records (CD); My Generation on The Dunwich Records Story (LP); Girl and Didn't Want To Have To Do It on *If You're Ready - The Best Of Dunwich... ALBUM: 1(A) ROXY (Elektra EKS-74063) 1969

Formed when Segarini and De Cocq left Family Tree, Roxy's album is very disappointing. Although the musicianship is competent, the songs are not inspired, the lyrics quite dumb and Segarini's vocals not really good.

All the songs were written by Segarini except "I Got My Friends" by Randy Bishop and the album was produced by John Haeny.

After this failure, Bishop and Segarini formed The Wackers.

This act started life as support band for vocalist Dick Hodge in the Omaha-Council Bluffs area of Iowa in 1961. The following year they progressed to becoming the houseband at the Milrose Ballroom, just outside of Omaha. At this time they were a surfing band. Over the next few years their music and line-up underwent considerable changes. Brad Star left the group to go to college and was sadly later killed in a water skiing accident. In early 1965, they headed for Chicago and recorded Suicide, which had a frantic guitar break and some atypical harmonica playing and is now a garage classic. The flip was a tasteless number complete with sound effects of nails being driven in and dirt thrown out on the grave. Originally titled One Pine Box a printing error at the pressing plant titled it One Pink Box!

THE ROYAL GUARDSMEN - Snoopy And His Friends LP.

They changed name to The Unlimited for a second single. Feelings, has a thundering beat backed up by slashing guitar, screaming vocals and pounding organ - it's worth hearing. When this failed to make any impact they changed name again to Bobby and Dave for a folk-rock number with a funky soul routine on the flip.

Their retrospective album contains their three singles, eight reasonable cover versions and an interview with band leader Bob Everhart.

Compilation appearances have included: Suicide on The Midwest Vs. Canada (LP), Back From The Grave, Vol. 3 (LP), Back From The Grave, Vol. 2 (CD) and Gathering Of The Tribe (CD); and Feelings as The Unlimited on The Midwest Vs. The Rest (LP). (VJ)

This novelty-pop sextet came from Ocala, Florida. Classic 'one-hit wonders' their gimmicky tribute to Charles Schulz's famous cartoon character sold over three million copies worldwide. It made No. 2 in the U.S. and No. 8 in the UK, where it was released on Stateside. What followed was largely predictable and relatively unsuccessful although Return Of The Red Baron made No. 15 in the U.S. and No. 37 in the UK. Their debut album made No. 44 in the U.S. Album Charts and their third effort made No. 46. As their popularity declined their final effort could only managed the 189 spot. The R&B tinged pop songs from their first single were perhaps their best efforts before they were labelled with the corny Snoopy tag. Baby Let's Wait was reissued in 1968 and made No. 35 in the U.S. charts.

Compilation appearances include: Leaving Me on Mindrocker, Vol. 10 (2-LP); Baby Let's Wait on Nuggets, Vol. 4: Pop Part Two (LP); and Om on Buzz Buzz Buzzzzzz, Vol. 1 (CD). (VJ/SR)

Love Me (Mala 508) - from 1965 which, apart from the clue in the title, is probably a different outfit, most likely a Memphis studio project, due to the involvement of Buzz Cason.

Based in Houston during 1967-68 this band, which was later known as Electric Rubayyat, included Galindo who had briefly been bassist with the 13th Floor Elevators and Bill Hallmark who'd played with Golden Dawn. A later recording of If I Were A Carpenter, which was produced by Fred Carroll, can be heard on Endless Journey - Phase Three (LP) and Epitaph For A Legend (2-LP). Ever, Ever Land a folk-rocker can also be heard on International Artists Singles Collection (LP).

Craig Malek writes: A friend played If I Were A Carpenter on KTRU in Houston around 1992, Bill Hallmark called in and said that he had never heard it before, 'though he remembered recording it at Gold Star in Houston. The band only lasted a few months, and was Houston/San Antonio based. Bill recently moved back to Austin from Kemah and was at least until recently, active in the music business'. (VJ/CM)

45: Deserted Cities Of The Heart/
Sunshine Of Your Love (GRT 1) 1968

The Rubber Band was an L.A.-based studio group that didn't perform or travel. A Michael Lloyd (West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band/Smoke) creation it actually consisted of the same personnel as The Smoke.

All four of their albums comprised cover versions of some of the original artists' best known songs.

Their fuzzy interpretation of Strange Brew on Cream Songbook is certainly worth hearing.

Tucked away on the Hendrix Songbook is a Michael Lloyd composition Rubber Jam. On this album they took the intricacies of the star's songs and laced them with classical undertones utilizing brilliant harmonies, killer guitar, violin, viola, oboe, celli, horns and various string instruments.

Their third album, Beatles Songbook, was produced by Stan Farber who later worked with Frantic. Entirely instrumental, some consider it a total waste of vinyl, with the use of neo-classical orchestrations and clarinet.

Manic Depression from the Hendrix Songbook has also been aired on the Hendrix tribute compilation The Stars That Play With Dead Jimi's Dice (LP). (SR)

45: Forever Friday/Below Up, Above Down (Richlin 101)1967/8

This high school group came together in 1967 in Russellville, Arkansas. Their legacy is a 1,000-copy private-press single, featuring a pair of Sheppard-Chestnut originals: Forever Friday is lively Byrds-meet-Merry-Go-Round jangle-pop; Below... is fuzzy pop-psych. Both sides are on the Collectables compilation The Human Expression And Other Psychedelic Groups - Your Mind Works In Reverse (CD), whose liners reveal that Sheppard became a recording engineer and opened a studio in Dallas and on Psychedelic States: Arkansas Vol. 1 (CD). This soulful-pop band came from Alabama, probably Tuscaloosa. Led by Tippy Armstrong they lasted well into the seventies and Armstrong went on to play on many sessions in Muscle Shoals, Alabama, backing artists ranging from Wilson Pickett to Roy Orbison. Sadly he died at the age of 32.

John Wyker later played in the seventies Elektra band Sailcat who had a hit with Motorcycle Mama. A The Rubber Band song Let Love Come Between Us was also a big hit for James and Bobby Purify, the soul duo from Pensacola, Florida.

Bill Connel, drummer of the Allman Joys, played on the later Rubber Band recordings.

They may also be responsible for another single - Plastic Soul/Let's Sail Away (ABC Paramount 10849) 1966. (MW/JLh)

This super-rare album was recorded by a New Orleans garage band. Although it contains several great cuts, more than half of the album comprises uninspired filler where primitive heavy rock (with the obligatory post-In-A-Gadda-Da-Vida drum solo) alternates with lounge sounds. (CF/SR/MW/MDo/TH)

These psychedelic punkers came from Michigan. The above single is speculative, as both cuts: - Confusion and The Painter appear on Michigan Mixture, Vol. II (LP) and Confusion was released on a single by Mid-Town, and has also resurfaced on Michigan Mayhem Vol. 1 (CD) and *Let 'Em Have It! A Louisville, Kentucky band whose early blues rocker Walking The Streets Tonight was penned by Doug Sahm. The group formed in 1965 when Steve and Jim McNicol and Chris Hubbs left The Oxfords. Some time after their first single, Jim, Doug and Chris departed for military service and were replaced by Paul Cunningham (bs) and Fred Baker (keyb'ds). They weren't with the band for long before leaving to form their own band. Mike Hornei (bs) and Eddy Vernon (keyb'ds) then came in as replacements. Not long after they recorded a second single. Stay With Me was only moderately successful, but a local DJ advised the band to flip the record over and when they did it climbed to No. 1 on the local charts. This helped secure them a contract with the Nashville-based Amazon label who re-released You, I which now made the Top 30 nationally.

In 1969, they recorded an album, which is quite good. The best tracks, King and Queen Of The World and Wendegahl The Warlock are dominated by heavy organ work and veer towards the progressive genre. Three singles were also released on the same label, although they were all taken from the album. (Although curiously Stay With Me isn't listed on the sleeve). Their first one You, I is a frantic and catchy 'heavy' rock number with some raucous distorted guitar - a sort of up-tempo poppy Blue Cheer (?!).

After they split in 1970, Jim McNicol formed Lazarus who recorded an album (Amazon 1001) in Nashville the same year. Steve and Jim later teamed up with their younger two brothers to form, you'll never guess, the McNicol Brothers. The younger McNicol then formed a band with a younger Hubbs, called The Weads, no doubt to compete with their elders. They had one single on the Trump label.

Steve McNichol reformed The Rugbys around 1988 with three original members, and garnered a good reputation for performing carbon copy covers in the Louisville area. They carried on playing until 2000.

The CD compilation on Gear Fab is well worth checking out with the powerful, fuzz-laden psych-rocker I Gotta Find A Way the finest moment.

A surprisingly obscure Lincoln Park, Michigan band considering that The End is a really superb organ/guitar-led psychedelic punker with great vocals. The flip, Take My Love... was a cover of the Blues Magoos' song.

This was essentially an instrumental rock group from Norwalk, California whose album is now a minor collectors' item and who charted with Boss, a surf instrumental. However the flip of this, Don't Need You No More, is a putdown song with vocals. Musically and lyrically this single is a precursor of the garage-punk sound of the mid-sixties which is why I've included the band here. Check it out on Highs In The Mid Sixties, Vol. 20 (LP).

Hey-Did-A-Da-Do and the previously unreleased Clap Hands both figure on It Came From The Garage (CD). Boss has also resurfaced on Born Bad, Vol. 4 (LP). It provided the riff for The Cramps' Garbageman. (VJ)

From Omaha, The Rumbles were undoubtedly Nebraska's top sixties band. They started out as Rich Clayton and The Rumbles, a surf band. Their debut release was actually a double-sided surf instrumental. By the time of their third single they were calling themselves The Fabulous Rumbles. Echoing Past was another instrumental. From 1969 onwards they operated under the name Rumbles Ltd. LP (3) collects all their singles from 1964-70.

Three of their cuts: - Fourteen Years, Hey Lenora and Push Push can now be heard on the cassette compilation Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. 1. Other compiled cuts include I'll Be Gone on Soma Records Story, Vol. 3 (LP); The Echoing Past on Soma Records Story, Vol. 2 (LP); Fourteen Years on Tymes Gone By (LP); It's My Turn To Cry on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 9 (CD); and Everybody's Talking and The Truth Hurts More Than Lies on Storm In The Garage (3-CD box).

They reformed in 1980 (line-up B) releasing a single and two albums. (MW)

45: Hold Me Now/Without Her (Gemcor 5002) 1965

A Los Angeles-based mid-sixties punk band, Hold Me Now is very punkish, the flip more flower-folkish and very L.A.-sounding.

Guitarist Eddie Burkey also released a pair of instrumentals, on Gemcor 5001. Given the reputation of rock drummers, it may come as a surprise that Norman Prinsky went on to became an academic, rising to the heights of associate Professor of English, with many publications to his name.

The intro to this San Antonio outfit's garage-inspired single is rather unusual, with pounding drums, booming bass and slide guitar building to a crescendo - before switching to a typical 'girl-put-down' type punker, with some rock 'n' roll guitar.

(selected)

NB: Several other singles and one LP released, but not relevant here.

Merrilee Rush from Seattle, Washington is best known for the top 10 U.S. hit Angel Of The Morning. She was also responsible for creating an underground classic, Reach Out.

An intense gothic re-working of the Holland-Dozier-Holland song made famous by the Four Tops, it's slow, tense and has a pervading atmosphere of fear and evil. The sound is not unlike early Procol Harum and culminates in an amazing guitar solo in the style of Robin Trower. The arrangement is even more astounding when you consider how out of character it is compared with the country-flavoured material she recorded before and after this record. The song reached No. 79 in the U.S. Charts and stayed just outside the top 40 in Australia.

Merrilee Rush and Neil Rush had earlier been in The Statics and Pete Sack hit the skins in The Trolley. Mike Robbins and Vern Kjellberg also played in The Liberty Party.

You'll also find It's Alright and Party Song on Girls In The Garage, Vol. 8 (LP). (TA/DR/BSe)

Originating from Merrimack County (Portsmouth), Tom Rush came out of the flourishing Boston and Cambridge folk scene. Influenced by Eric Von Schmidt, his first three albums are excellent examples of blues-folk, Rush's rich and clear voice being backed up only by Fritz Richmond from the Jim Kweskin Jug Band. Rush then got signed to Elektra and his first album for his new label was more of the same, but with a stronger backing, notably John Sebastian and Felix Pappalardi.

The big breakthrough occurred with his next album Take A Little Walk With Me, produced by Mark Abramson, with a side of rock and blues songs with Al Kooper (also credited as Roosevelt Gook on piano), Harvey Brooks, Langhorne and Gregg, basically the same group used on Dylan's Highway 61 Revisited. The versions of Who Do You Love or Love's Made A Fool Of You are excellent and Tom Rush was also present on the album What's Shaking with Paul Butterfield Blues Band, Al Kooper, Lovin' Spoonful and Eric Clapton.

TOM RUSH - The Very Best Of Tom Rush: No Regrets CD.

Produced by Arthur Gorson, 1968's The Circle Game was his first fully arranged album but some of Paul Harris' orchestrations now sound a bit dated. The best moments were his long version of Urge For Going plus two songs by the then unknown Joni Mitchell. The CD reissue of this on Rhino also includes single versions of Something, Urge For Going and The Circle Game. Rush also helped the career of James Taylor and Jackson Browne by singing their Something In The Way She Moves and Shadow Dream Song. Interested readers should try to get the Classic Rush album which compiles the three Elektra albums. Tom Rush then moved to CBS and started working with Trevor Veitch, the gifted Canadian guitarist of Three's A Crowd and Warren Bernhardt (ex-Jeremy and The Satyrs/Tim Hardin). Tom Rush contains several good songs with fine electric guitars, notably Drop Down Mama and Fred Neil's Wild Child, but also some slow country-rock numbers.

The three subsequent Columbia albums were increasingly mellow and Rush's contract wasn't renewed and his career halted. He returned in 1982/1984 with two albums on a small label and apparently disappeared again, to return again.

In 1999, Columbia/Legacy released a Tom Rush retrospective album that covers his recorded musical history from 1962 until then, including tracks recorded for Columbia, Elektra, Prestige and his independent years. The 17-track compilation, The Very Best of Tom Rush: No Regrets, includes as a bonus a brand new Tom Rush composition, River Song, which featured vocal contributions from Grammy winners Shawn Colvin and Marc Cohn.

He has continued to be active since the millennium. A live CD, Trolling For Owls released in 2003 and published by Tom's Nightlight Recordings, captures Tom's complete performance and includes, for the first time, some of the spoken stories that have endeared him to audiences. In 2005, a DVD How I Play (some of) My Favorite Songs showed him playing 10 of the memorable songs and guitar arrangements that have long made him one of America's most beloved performers. Then, in 2009, he recorded his first studio CD in 35 years, What I Know. It was produced by Jim Rooney and includes original material, as well as harmonies by Emmylou Harris, Bonnie Bramlett and Nanci Griffith. Rush still resides in New Hampshire.

Who Do You Love can also be heard on Kings Of Pop Music Vol. 2 (LP); and Milk Cow Blues figures on the Follow That Music (CD) in the Elektra book. (SR/VJ)

Rush Hour (IL)

45:	Set Me Free/Before I Die	(Philips 40592) 1969

Set Me Free is a dreamy and somewhat doomy re-work of the Kinks via Vanilla Fudge, with some heavy guitar. The flip adds some phased drums to a keyboard dominated sound but retains a dreamy feel. Overall, this is above-average late sixties pop-rock from Chicago. (MW)

45:	Can't Get You Out Of My Heart/ Look At Me	(Ye Old King 1000) 1966

Lynbrook High schoolmates Chuck Laskowski (Faine Jade) and Nick Manzi had been writing and playing together around Long Island, New York, since 1959. They had been involved in various groups including The Cavaliers in 1962 and were playing as a duo in local pubs and clubs when they were signed to Laurie Records as writers and occasional studio musicians in 1965.

In 1966, they formed The Rustics with Chuck's brother Jeff on drums and bassist Davison from East Rockaway. Manzi would form Bohemian Vendetta the following year and still be on hand to provide a backing band for Chuck on his subsequent solo recordings as Faine Jade.

The upbeat garage-beat Can't Get You Out Of My Heart is featured on Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 1 (CD); and you'll also find Look At Me on Wyld Sydes Volume 4 (CD). (MW)

ALBUM:	1	BECKY RYAN	(Blossom 101) 1977 R3

This Santa Barbara, California artist recorded three albums that were only sold at local juice stores and she painted the covers herself! CRGMC is short for Colorado River Gold Mining Company. The musical menu is acoustic folk with Ryan's attractive vocals, decent melodies and minor chord progressions. They are worth investigating but often mistagged as 'acid folk-psych'. (VJ)

Mitch Ryder and The Detroit Wheels blended the Motown-soul sound with over-revved midwestern rock & roll. Mitch Ryder's (born William Levise) gutsy soul shouting and superhuman screams were some of the most electrifying sounds to charge AM radio in the mid-sixties, landing somewhere between The Rascals' Felix Cavaliere and Wilson Pickett. The Wheels sported two strong lead guitarists in Joe Cubert and Jim McCarty (later in Cactus and Detroit), and they were pushed along by one of the great unsung rock drummers of all time, John ("Johnny Bee") Badanjek.

It was producer Bob Crewe who signed the band to his New Voice label, releasing a string of high-octane rave-ups in Jenny Take A Ride (#10), Little Latin Lupe Lu (#17), Devil With A Blue Dress On - Good Golly Miss Molly (#4), Sock It To Me Baby! (#6), and Too Many Fish In The Sea (#24). In spite of all the hits and visibility, Mitch Ryder and The Detroit Wheels were victims of the era, making loads of money for Crewe and New Voice, but ending up broke. Around 1969 Ryder retreated to Detroit, where he formed the band Detroit: recording one fine album (Detroit, (Paramount PAS-6010) 1971) before fading out of the public's gaze. The echoes of Ryder's music lingered on in the Motor City madness of the MC5 and the guitar sound of Alice Cooper, whilst Ryder himself has become an influential cult figure for a generation or two of rock bands and fans alike.

More recently Ryder hit fine form with some outstanding tunes on his Mellencamp produced album in 1983 called Never Kick A Sleeping Dog. Of these, Prince's When You Were Mine is noteworthy, as is a classic duet with Marianne Faithfull, Thrill's A Thrill plus a tremendous cover of Solomon Burke's Cry To Me... Mitch Ryder has also had a number of releases on the German Line record label since 1979 and he continued to record throughout the eighties. He is still touring to this day.

Rev-Up: The Best Of Mitch Ryder And The Detroit Wheels compiles their uncomplicated, raucous, good-time, foot-tappin' rock and included Little Latin Lupe Lu, which was a significant frat anthem of its time.

Compilation appearances have included: - Long Hard Road on Michigan Rocks, Vol. 1 (LP); Turn On Your Lovelight on Sound Of The Sixties (2-LP) and Sixties Archive, Vol. 1 (CD); and Little Latin Lupe Lu on Sundazed Sampler, Vol. 1 (CD). (VJ/GMh/RAd/SR)

John Rydgren (WA)

ALBUMS: 1 LET ME TAKE YOU TO THE KINGDOM (Hosana 72873) 1973 R2
2 CANTATA OF A NEW LIFE (Sirl) 1967 R2
3 WORDS OF YOUTH (Concordia 79-9066) 1968 R2
4 SILHOUETTE SEGMENTS (2-LP) (American Lutheran Church 8-8531) 1969 R2

NB: (4) reissued on vinyl (Mystic) 199? There's also a radio programme disc, Silhouette (Lutheran) 196? (R2).

John Rydgren was born in North Dakota on 14 February 1932, but he grew up in Seattle. In 1958 he graduated with a divinity degree from Pacific Lutheran. University in Washington and became an ordained Lutheran minister. He was one of the first people to use rock music in religious radio programs. In Minneapolis he taped a Christian rock show called 'Silhouettes' from a church basement.

Let Me Take You To The Kingdom successfully puts religion to an attractive folk-rock background with good guitar and multi-layered harmonies with occasional flute, organ, bass and drums. The album was issued in two different covers; one with a landscape drawing and the other with a portrait.

On side one of Cantata Of A New Life Rydgren deals with the confusion of youth in modern society and how Christianity may hold the answer backed by a musical mass. Side two contains variations of 'Silhouettes' show.

Words Of Youth consists of two person dialogues featuring himself and Herbert Brokering with a hip girl and boy who are subjected to religious messages.

Housed in a colourful psychedelic gatefold cover, Silhouette Segments is a strange 2-LP set with tracks like Personality Doll Of The Week, Hippie Version Of Creation, Plea Of A Lonely Girl, Music To Watch Girls By, Hippie Version Of The 23rd Psalm, Groovin' On A Saturday Night, Rinky Dink, Search It Out, Transistor Father and Dark Side Of The Flower (with sitar). Particularly striking is Rydgren's otherworldly voice - incredibly slick, velvety, deep, hovering a mere fraction of a tone above Lurch. Equally important is the background music, culled from instrumental artists of the time such as Bob Crewe, The Brass Ring, The Tijuana Brass, The Electric Prunes, Cannonball Adderley, and several snippets of unidentified easy listening, psych-rock, lounge pop, et el. It sounds a bit like the "word-jazz" spoken word records of Ken Nordine, but with psychedelic and pop music instead of a jazz background. Its purpose was to turn hippies onto religion.

There's also a radio programme disc, Silhouette which comprises songs by popular artists of the day with vocal interludes where Rydgren interviews his clients on issues including the church, Christianity and the like. Overall all his albums are pretty strange.

In 1970, John Rydgren left WABC/fm to produce religious and socially slanted radio/TV programs. He moved to L.A. in 1972 and eventually hosted a programme called 'Heaven Is in Your Mind.' In 1982, he suffered a debilitating stroke while on the air, which left him with a form of dyslexia, forcing him to relearn reading and speaking from the third-grade level. With therapy he was able to broadcast again, but he died in Los Angeles on 26 December 1988, aged 56, after suffering a heart attack. (SR/VJ)

45: Break Away Girl/Yellow Fellow (Minaret MIN-131) 196?

This band operated for several years in the Cincinnati, Ohio area. Their single, which sounds circa 1967, is melodic pop-rock. Both sides were composed by group leader Larry Goshorn. Their album, which comes housed in a stunning "mushroom" art cover, finds the band playing a heavy blues style which proves an efficient vehicle for Goshorn's distorted guitar leads. The music is all original except for a cover of Ray Davies' I'm Not Like Everybody Else. This album is often advertised as psychedelic rock, which it isn't!

Larry Goshorn issued a rare private press album of folk guitar music circa 1971, and later played with The Pure Prairie League, and briefly with Kingfish. (VJ/CF)

ALBUM: 1(A) WHOLE EARTH RHYTHM (Anna Chakraborty's Musical Sewing Machine Record Co. MSM 101) 1970 R2

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Uni 73116) 1971 with a different cover design (SC).

This band came from Fairfax, California. Their album was released originally as a private pressing with a primitive black and white cover design. The cover art was re-done for the later Uni reissue, which appeared in a more elaborate colour sleeve. This is an album of Eastern music sung in English and Hindi. Band leader Peter Van Gelder (previously with The Great Society) had journeyed to India "to soak up the dreamy and vaporous atmosphere" and, apparently, learn to play the sitar properly. The original pressing is a significant collectable from the Bay Area scene and is recommended to anyone appreciating Eastern sounds of a traditional nature.

They have a cut, I Give You Johnee compiled on Electric Psychedelic Headswirlers 7 (CD). (CF)

NB: α featured in Billboard magazine, but did not chart. Both sides of this 45 were non-LP. The 45 is unconfirmed.

Folk-pop-psych is one label that's applied by dealers and collectors to this duo on the few occasions that their releases have surfaced. Recorded in Denver, Colorado their medium-rare album is appealing folkish pop with orchestration and a few tape effects. Certainly the front cover is more psychedelic than the music. Some copies were issued with a poster insert. The first two singles feature tracks taken from the album, but the third listed is probably chronologically earlier and both sides are non-album.

David Rea: - "Sage and Seer started in 1966. Don was 16 and I was 15. We played only original material our entire four-year career (except in rehearsal, where we warmed up with The Beatles' When I Get Home.) I sang lead on most of the songs and Don played lead guitar and sang harmony. Don's lead vocal on the album was I've Cried, a song he pretty much wrote alone. Songs I wrote alone included Candle and She Died Again. The two songs I remember us really writing together were Be Still When You Cry and Pictures On A Sunday Afternoon."

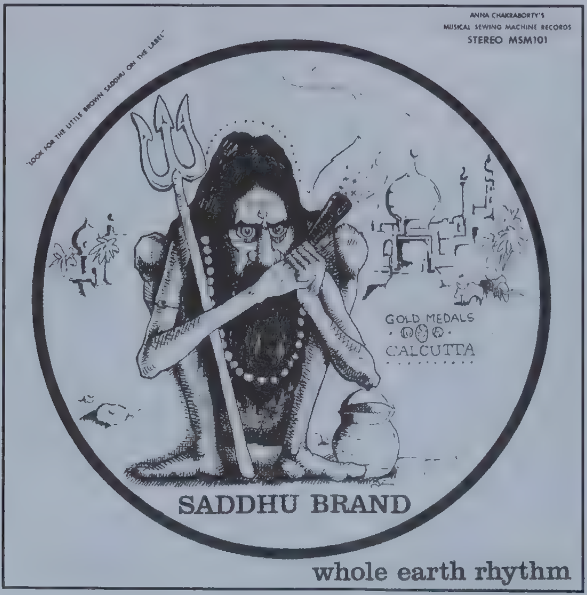
"We were supposed to record our album in L.A. six months before we finally did. When we got to L.A. with the rep from our label, we motored off to an appointment at Warner Bros. only to discover our chosen producer had just suffered a nervous breakdown. We had to go home, dejected and embarrassed, not knowing what our next step would be. I decided to take matters into hand, so I went off to find an arranger who could help us with the instrumentation. His name was Dan Goodman. (I recently saw his Web site. He's recording a jazz guitar CD of his own.) Then we pretty much made the decision to produce the thing ourselves, with Al Davis as the named producer. Al worked for our label and was a classically trained trumpeter. He always helped us notate our songs. When the album came out, the label went bankrupt and the inventory found its way to a creditor, who distributed it as a budget cut-out, I guess."



SADDHU BRAND - Whole Earth Rhythm LP.

"When Sage and Seer broke up in 1970, Don and I went our separate ways. I moved to Mexico and performed with a Mexican rock band in the town of San Miguel de Allende, then returned to the States as a solo artist. I recently began recording on my own again in Los Angeles, produced by Mark Governor. I've also written music for television commercials and make my living as a creative director."

"Over the years the album, which we always thought could have been a lot better, found a small following from adventurous people who took a chance on buying an unknown entity. I've received calls over the years from people who've tracked me down. People in Texas and Seattle and New York. One caller owned a record label in Seattle and wanted to buy the master of the album. Unfortunately, that disappeared when the company went bankrupt. She then said should I ever start recording again, she'd like me to consider her label. At the time I wasn't contemplating recording again. I lost her number. Now I'm recording again (slowly, it's expensive the way I do it) and I don't know who she was. Isn't life strange?"

The David Rea in this band is not the same guy who became a backing musician for Gordon Lightfoot. (MSk/CF/MW/DRa)

Sagittarius was a studio group created by producer Gary Usher (who had earlier produced albums by The Byrds, Gene Clark, Chad & Jeremy, The Millennium and The Peanut Butter Conspiracy). Curt Boettcher helped with the arrangements and Terry Melcher was also involved in the projects. Both albums were of particular interest for their high degree of orchestration and polish. In this respect, they were ahead of their times.

Glen Campbell and Bruce Johnston (later of The Beach Boys) were involved in the first single, My World Fell Down, which came from a bunch of John Carter demos intended for Chad & Jeremy, who refused to cut the vocal... Usher made the backing track a bit freakier (i.e. adding more stops and starts, using The Firesign Theatre) and recorded it himself. Glen Campbell sings lead on the recording with Bruce Johnston and Terry Melcher providing backing. It's possible that Chuck Girard and some other Beach Boys etc. are in there too, although only Bruce and Glen are on the contract card for the session. My World Fell Down received considerable airplay in New York, although it failed to make the Top 40.

Their second single Hotel Indiscreet was arranged by Boettcher for outrageous multipart vocals and also features the writers Jim Griffin, (later in Bread), Michael Z. Gordon and The Firesign Theatre... Another couple of tracks on the first album were created by similarly unique associations, featuring the nascent Millennium and such unlikely figures as Angelo Badalamente (of "Twin Peaks" fame) as players and writers... the remainder being basically a combination of unused Ballroom tracks, and new songs which were worked up for the Millennium and consequently bumped up to "Grandiose Stereo" mixes. The singles are entirely and radically different versions to the album ones... with the first two minus the 'sound collages' in their album form.

The second album was recorded on Usher's own Together label and contained some beautiful love songs such as Will You Ever See Me, I Still Can See Your Face and I See In You. More coherent in theme though not as immediate as the first, ecology and religion/philosophy are to the fore, as they were in Usher's next project, Celestium, which carried the sound and themes of Blue Marble into a more somber, almost Krautrock vein... kind of like Gary Usher meets Bowie's Low!

The non-album 'star' tracks Virgo, Libra and Pisces are weird 'n' wonderful instrumental freak-outs full of Eastern promise. Pisces can also be found on the Everything You Always Wanted To Know... (CD). You can also hear My World Fell Down on Nuggets-Original Artyfacts From The First Psychedelic Era 1965-1968 (2-LP), Nuggets Box (4-CD) and Excerpts From Nuggets (CD); and the single version of The Truth Is Not Real has been included on *Where The Action Is! ALBUM: 1(A) SANITY RESTS IN THE ABILITY TO FLY (w/lyric insert) (No label 30101-2) 1972 R2

This local Ohio studio project was coordinated by Saiger. Most of the tracks fall into a progressive folk category, and some sound like mid-seventies Pink Floyd. The closing track on the album, Epic (Aren't We All) sounds like a druggy Americanised version of Fat Old Sun; the lyrical phrasing being particularly similar to Roger Waters' performance. Overall, a very interesting album 'though probably too eclectic for wide acclaim. (CF/SR)

NB: α shown as by Endel St. Cloud In The Rain. β shown as by Endle.

Endle St. Cloud formed in Houston, Texas in 1968. Their single that year was released under the name Endel St. Cloud In The Rain. Black joined from The Lost And Found, D.F. Potter had been with East Side Kids and Melinger with The Iguanas. Their album's two strongest tracks: - Come Through and Professor Black had first appeared on a Lost And Found single which Black presumably persuaded them to re-record. The album is sequenced with a series of surreal piano and vocal vignettes introducing each of the album's eight tracks. These cover a wide ranger of styles from vaudeville, pop, country and rock. The second single credited simply to Endle was taken from it. Their first single, a non-album release, is one of the more sought-after International Artists singles. After this project Endle St. Cloud teamed up with D.F. Potter, James Harrell and others to form Potter St. Cloud who issued an album on Mediarts in 1971.

Compilation appearances include: Tell Me One More Time (What's Happening To Our World) on Austin Landing (LP); and Tell Me One More Time (What's Happening To Our World) and Quest For Beauty on International Artists Singles Collection (LP). (VJ/MW)

Sainte Anthony's Fyre is an unexceptional Grand Funk-influenced hard-rock guitar driven album. The guitar's OK but the material is very unimaginative with Lone Soul Road probably the pick of a poor bunch. It's more an album for hard-rock fans than garage or psychedelic enthusiasts.

The band was based in New Jersey. It had several line-ups. 'X' above is the one that played on the album.

Born in Canada in 1941, Buffy Sainte-Marie is a Cree Indian folksinger/songwriter who was involved in the folk revival of the early sixties and the various movements for the rights of the Native Americans. An excellent writer, her songs have been covered by several groups, especially Codine (Charlatans, Quicksilver Messenger Service, The Wizards From Kansas), Until It's Time For You To Go, Now That The Buffalo's Gone or the anti-war Universal Soldier (Donovan).

Her first few albums may interest some readers, as she played guitar, piano and mouth bow, was backed by good musicians (Bruce Langhorne, Eric Weissberg, Monte Dunn) and even experimented with electronic scores (on Illuminations). Her voice, a powerful soprano with a heavy vibrato, is however quite disconcerting.

She also played on the soundtrack of Nicholas Roeg's Performance with Mick Jagger, Randy Newman, Jack Nitzsche and Ry Cooder (Warner Bros BS 2654) 1970.

After 1972, Buffy Sainte-Marie turned country, trying to change her image and subsequently her records are out of the scope of this book.

They had two cuts:- Good Lovin' and Papa's Got A Brand New Bag on the 1966 compilation Where It's At: 'Live' At The Cheetah (Audio Fidelity) (LP) and according to its liner notes were working on a film 'Step Out Of Your Mind'. SAINT STEVEN - Self Titled LP.

In 1967 Steve Cataldo had joined Front Page Review, a Bosstown band produced by Alan Lorber. Much was recorded but nothing was released during their lifespan and the material gained holy-grail status amongst collectors, due to the Saint Steven connection and rumours of links to Ultimate Spinach. It wasn't until the release of Front Page Review CD in 1996, Mystic Soldiers (CDWIKD 166), that myth was unravelled. The Spinach connection was squashed (but there was actually another connection - see below).

This was his next venture and the album is an interesting mix of folk-protest sounds with a mellow psychedelic sheen, interesting use of moog, animal sounds, and some amusing political rally extracts. It is unusual and prized by many collectors (and dealers) although not as overtly psychedelic as might be expected from some of the rabid descriptions bandied about... don't expect another Ultimate Spinach. It was based on home demo tapes that Cataldo had recorded up in Cape Cod then taken around all the majors in New York. In the liners on the Eclectic reissue, Cataldo recalls this particular musical odyssey, the meeting with John Turner (who christened him Saint Steven), the recording of the album at Fine Studios, and the theft of his original demo tapes. Each side of the album bore a title - 'The Bastich' and 'Over The Hills' - and the album is occasionally titled thus in discographies and by dealers. In 1971, Whalefeathers covered The Bastich on their second, self-titled album for Nasco.

The Eclectic reissue adds two bonus cuts from 1966, which predate Cataldo joining Front Page Review. My Sunday Love and Where Has The Time Gone To? were recorded in Dorchester, Massachusetts with a line-up that included Ian Bruce-Douglas. This is the real link to Ultimate Spinach and explains, perhaps, those earlier erroneous suppositions.

In the mid-seventies, Cataldo formed the punk band Nervous Eaters; he and they were still going strong more than 30 years on.

Ay-Aye-Poe-Day has also been compiled on Sixties Archive, Vol. 8 (CD). Note that Inside The Coloured Heaven and Moon In Blue, credited to Saint Steven on Filling The Gap (4-LP box) are actually by the Front Page Review. More miscredited Front Page Review tracks turned up as 'bonus cuts' on the reissue of the One St. Stephen album, due to years of supposition and mistaken association between that Ohio band and Saint Steven (there was and is NO connection). NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (No label) 199?. (1) reissued on vinyl (Akarma AK 092) 1999. (1) reissued on CD (Gear Fab GF-117) 1998.

This group seems to have originated from Caldwell, Idaho. The title cut is certainly the highlight with lots of extended guitar and keyboard (organ and synthesizer) instrumentation. If you like early moog work done with enthusiasm this is a bit of a corker. More for fans of progressive rock, though. All the material was written by the band.

The album was recorded on 2-Track, in a bar called "Red Barn" in Caldwell during 1971, which was temporarily turned into a studio. The mini moog used was serial no. 1023, (according to A.R. Moog, this was the 23rd Moog to be manufactured)... The album had a limited edition 'pirate' reissue a while back, but it has also been reissued officially on vinyl by Akarma and on CD by the Gear Fab label. The liners reveal that at the time of the CD reissue Steve Towery was working in Caldwell at the family business, Matt Wilson was teaching and producing from his home studio in Nampa, Idaho and Mike Snead was playing with various lounge bands in Brookings, Oregon and doing some studio work with Jim Klahr.

You can also hear one of the album's stronger tracks Bare Tree on Gear Fab's Psychedelic Sampler (CD). (VJ)

Sandy Salisbury is best known as a member of Ballroom, Sagittarius and Millennium. He released three solo singles of sweet pop confectionery with the help of other musicians from the talented Curt Boettcher clique. An unreleased 1968/9 album eventually appeared as the Sandy CD on Poptones in 2000. He also spent time in the UK in 1970 and recorded a single as The Naked Truth - Two Little Rooms/Rag Doll Boy (Deram 85061).

The follow-up Falling To Pieces (CD) selects 22 cuts from the 100 or so that Sandy wrote during his Millennium period. The self-deprecating "king of sappy music" thought that no one else liked them but he would discover later, to his dismay, that Boettcher wanted first dibs on them for future projects and had told the publisher not to put them out. It seems that Curt B. wasn't such an "innocent face" after all.

Everything For You (CD) is a 25-track collection of demos and pre-production records from 1967-68 was intended for future Millennium recording projects, but which has only now seen the light of day. As one would expect, there are some lovely melodic West Coast pop recordings on offer here. (SR/VJ/MW)

45: Sleep/Animal (Cadet Concept 7024) 1968

Originally from Texas, Roger Salloom and Robin Sinclair moved to Chicago to take a part on the local blues scene. The first album, which is a very minor collectors' item, was recorded there in 1968 for the Chess subsidiary Cadet Concept. The killer cut is a drug song called She Kicked Me Out Of The House Last Night (After This One). It features freaked-out vocals, a full organ sound and some good psychedelic guitar work. Salloom wrote seven of the eight tracks, the last one Griffin being authorised by Robin Sinclair, a powerful female singer.

Recorded in Nashville and produced by Charlie McCoy, Wayne Moss and Norman Dayron (Michael Bloomfield's manager), their second album, Salloom-Sinclair is more country-rock than psychedelic and includes both sides of the single listed.

When the group disbanded, Roger Salloom went back to Texas where he formed Roger Salloom and the Vest Pocket Players, releasing an album on a local label. In 1983, he recorded Would You Like To Meet Someone on Yellow Plum Records. Robin Sinclair went on to become the lead vocalist of Gold from 1971 to 1973, appearing with them at Winterland and Fillmore. (AT/VJ/SR/RCI)

Led by songwriter/producer Rod McBrien, this New York City-based bubblegum group named their sole album for Buddah Records in 1968 after their local New York hit Finders Keepers, which made No. 105 on Billboard in May 1968. Tommy West (whose real name is Tommy Piccardo), sang vocals on the one-off minor hit as a favour. The song featured a chirpy chorus of taunting children and a Jay & The Techniques-style vocal arrangement. The other bubblegum offering is a remake of Loop De Loop. McBrien penned some other cuts with former Valrays saxophonist Johnny Giametta, while the remainder included an Anders & Poncia cover, Whence I Make Thee Mine (which was a hit for The Innocence), You Baby (by Mann/Weil and made famous by The Ronettes) and some songs featured Janie Brannan and Kathy Weisberg, who'd relocated to New York briefly to become 'Salt Water Taffy Girls'. The title cut is certainly the album's highlight. Various studio singers passed through Salt Water Taffy - including Tom Brannon, Sam Dalessio, Sarah Daly, Osa Danem, Terry Stallings, Bobbie Jacobson, Mary Lou Gilbert Scott, Bob Waite and Al Messenger - with Giarrantano and Weinberg being the only two original members to remain in Salt Water Taffy throughout the group's existence (they fell in love and later married). A follow-up single with similar playground children chanting, Sticks And Stones, failed as did two additional singles pulled from the album. In 1970, the band switched to United Artists for another Anders & Poncia cover, Summertime Girl. Soon after that failed to make much impression the band split. McBrien formed his own company in the seventies, and wrote and produced music for advertising ever since, winning numerous Clio Awards. Giametta had a successful insurance business career. (VJ/SR)

45:	Think Twice/ Love Comes In Funny Packages	(ABC Paramount 11025) 1968

This San Francisco band was formed when former harpoon sharpener and garbage collector at the University of Washington Seattle, Al Linde, met Joe Tate, a cesspool driver and former student at the School of Mining and Minerology. Joe later met the group's drummer, Teddy Stewart, outside a bar in Sausalito. The other two members joined later. The band was featured in a series of three concerts in Golden Gate Park and eventually ABC offered them a recording contract.

The first album, released by United Artists in the UK, reflects the spontaneity of their music. Its front cover shows the converted bus they moved around in! The songs on the album are all originals ranging from hard-rock songs like She Said Yeah and Cinderellato to good-time songs like The Village Shuck, What Does An Indian Look Like? and the psychedelic Think Twice. Their second album was more experimental. There's some keyboard wizardry from Art Resnick on Handles Of Care and What'll I Do, the latter was the album's most psychedelic track; Salvation Jam was an experimental instrumental, whilst Come On Over Here veered towards country music.

Art Resnick recalls: - "I was the last to join the band in the spring of '68. That summer in San Francisco was, as you know, the apex of the times and everything that the hippie generation represented (and more) was

I had hitched a ride from Minnesota to San Francisco and got dropped off on some corner near Height Ashbury where I stepped into a phone booth to call the one phone number I had on a piece of paper. This had been given to me by my ex-University of Iowa buddy, David Sanborn. He was supposed to be hanging out there and maybe playing around town. It was the number of Teddy, the drummer of the New Salvation Army Banned. When I called, this guy (turned out to be Al the lead singer) picked up the phone and I asked for David. In the background there was a very loud rock band playing so after shouting the name David Sanborn a few times he finally said David had been there but was out of town with Paul Butterfield and who was I?"

"I told him I was a keyboardist from Minneapolis who had just arrived and David was the only person I knew. He said that they were a band on the scene and their keyboard player had, 'that morning', packed up his gear and moved back to Minnesota where he came from! Weird. Anyway, he invited me over and it turns out they occupied a house right on Frederick & Haight, within walking distance. When I arrived I was escorted in through a hallway into a room that was filled with posters and black light with two guys, each talking in one of my ears at the same time. Thus began my sojourn with the band. The rest is a somewhat risque history of Sex, Drugs, and Rock and Roll, and, oh yeah, rip-offs in New York's Fillmore East... There's some really funny stories about that, like getting busted by the New York City police right on stage in the middle of a set, for non-payment of the hotel room (which is when our management team decided to take off with our advance from ABC Impulse). Anyway that's another story."

"The band started out as The New Salvation Army Banned and the name change was made because the record company was afraid of being sued by Colonel Hartog of the Salvation Army, SF chapter. It was changed when we signed our contract (which ABC later broke, although they did have good reason)."

"All of our gigs that summer in San Francisco were notable since we were on the second echelon right beneath Big Brother and The Holding Co., Jefferson Airplane, The Doors, etc. We played gigs being the warm-up act (or following) all of the great bands. One time when we played for The Doors at the Winterland Arena when they came out and sat down on the stage in front of a TV and watched themselves on the 'Tonight' Show with Johnny Carson (I think, could be wrong about that - but it was some major network show) before a fully packed house of thousands. We also played the Avalon Ballroom with Chuck Berry, Janis Joplin, The Doors, and hosts of others."

"We also played, as part of a promo tour for our first album (which was incidentally produced by the way by Bob Theile - the producer of John Coltrane on all his ABC Impulse recordings) the Fillmore East and the Village Gate which was billed as from the Golden Gate to the Village Gate...."

"What destroyed the band was the fact that our managers left us high and dry in New York City, without a penny, absconding with our advance money (I think it was $10,000 if I'm not mistaken). Also, and probably the biggest reason for our gradual demise, is that members of the band acted so incredibly wild at the main offices of ABC in New York City when going there to meet all the top execs. It was totally insane! Wilder than any rock movie I've ever seen."

"The most exciting gig I can remember was the gig we played in front of over 10,000 fans at the Malibu Rock Festival. They were mostly high on acid and other psychedelic mixtures, and there we were on stage, outside in the sunny California afternoon, just following Canned Heat.... Seems like a dream now, but the feelings never die."

Teddy Stewart is thought to have become a postman in San Francisco. Art Resnick went on to record 12 albums, some solo, and some with rather well known jazz artists such as Benny Golson, Nat Adderly, Freddy Hubbard, Bobby Shew, etc. He was not the same guy as in Third Rail.

More Than It Seems also from their first album resurfaced on Baubles - Down To Middle Earth (LP). Another track, Think Twice has re-emerged on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD book). (VJ/ARk)

Salvation (?NJ)

This is a different band, possibly from New Jersey, whose I Don't Live Today is on The Stars That Play With Dead Jimi's Dice (LP). (VJ)

ALBUM: 1(A) SAM, HARD AND HEAVY (Atlantic SD 8271) 1971

Sam Samudio had previously been the leader of Sam The Sham and The Pharaohs. His only solo album is an excellent mix of blues, rock and soul, with an exceptional backing group: Jim Dickinson, Duane Allman, Charlie Freeman etc. Recorded in Miami and produced by Tom Dowd, the songs are five originals plus five covers (Boz Scaggs, John Lee Hooker, Doc Pomus, Randy Newman and Otis Rush).

The album is particularly noteworthy for the really long thanks section, totally different from the usual "Thanks to my dear producer": he thanks the people who rejected him because of the colour of his skin and texture of his hair, the people who broke his nose, the ones who mistreated him as a child, his friends the prostitutes...

Sam Samudio then apparently disappeared from the music scene, only to come back in 1982 on the soundtrack of The Border with Ry Cooder. He married the Memphis singer Brenda Patterson. (SR)

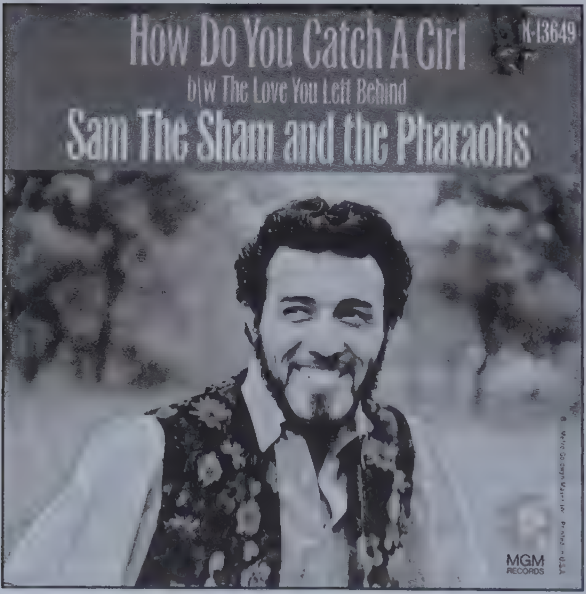
Sam The Sham, christened Samudio Domingo, was a Mexican-American who was born in Dallas, Texas. He formed this outfit with the Pharaohs (who were also of Tex-Mex origin and musical inspiration) in Memphis, Tennessee in the early sixties. Their early recordings included Haunted House, a cover version of Gene Simmons' novelty rock hit. Wooly Bully, a real sixties rocker was then leased to MGM in 1965 by Stan Kesler's Pen Records in Memphis. It gave the band a U.S. No. 1 and also reached No. 11 in the UK. The band relocated to Dallas and for a time was very successful indeed.



SAM THE SHAM AND THE PHARAOHS - How Do You Catch A Girl 7" Picture Sleeve.

Eventually the hits dried up and they disbanded in 1970. Ten Of Pentacles had essentially been a solo effort from Samudio and in the seventies he embarked on a solo career.

Wooly Bully is one of the Soundtrack songs to the 1979 MCA film 'More American Graffiti'. Earlier in 1965 the band had performed Monkey See Monkey Do in the Soundtrack to the 1965 MGM production 'When The Boys Meet The Girls', which was a weird re-make of the Gershwin brothers' musical 'Girl Crazy'.

There are four 'best of' CDs to select from. Sam The Sham's backing singers The Shamettes also made some recordings in their own right.

Compilation appearances include: Wooly Bully on Nuggets Box (4-CD), Nuggets From Nuggets (CD) and Frat Rock! The Greatest Rock'n'Roll Party Tunes Of All Time (LP & CD); A Long Long Way on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 6 (CD); and Ju Ju Hand on Texas Music, Vol. 3 (CD). (VJ/SR/JRi)

ALBUM: 1(A) SAND (Barnaby BR 15006) 1973

Produced by Ken Mansfield, this Oregon group mixed two fluid electric guitars with vocal harmonies like Crosby Stills Nash & Young. The musicianship is competent and all their material was original but is not strong enough to retain attention. The album was pressed on two one-sided discs to allow continuous play on an automatic record changer! The band had another album, a private pressing from about the same time.

In the eighties, a couple of the members were in FM-rockers Quarterflash. (SR/CF)

Greg Shaw informs us that they were originally from Belgium and migrated to L.A. This might explain how they picked up on Dis-Nous Dylan by Marseilles outfit 5 Gentlemen (compiled on Pebbles, Vol. 12 (CD)) and translated it into the cheeky folk-rocker Tell Us Dylan. The same track was reworked by U.K. outfit Darwin's Theory as Daytime (English Freakbeat Vol. 5).

Probably their most appealing single couples House Of Painted Glass, a novelty psych-pop number, with a cover of Paul Simon's Cloudy.

The group also had some of their songs featured on a soundtrack The Endless Summer (World Pacific).

Compilation appearances include: All Over Again and Always (I Will Remember) on Realities In Life (LP); House Of Painted Glass on U-Spaces: Psychedelic Archaeology Vol. 1 (CDR); and Tell Us Dylan on Highs In The Mid-Sixties Vol. 2 (LP). (VJ/MW/SR)

EP: 1 LIMITED EDITION (PS) (Mean 'N Low 77002) 197?

This rare EP with a picture sleeve is by a Houston, Texas outfit. It contains four original tracks: Cruiser, Head Full Of Reds, Cocaine Ragin' and You And Me, recorded live at Anderson's Fair Retail Restaurant, with slide guitar, juice harp (sic!), xylophone and mandolin. The music is a mix of folk, folk-rock and blues. 1,000 copies were pressed, so it's not very hard to find. Sanders also issued a full-length album in 1972 and a one-sided album in 1973. He now performs children's songs at primary schools. (SR)

These two solo albums are by the co-leader of The Fugs. Don't expect too much musically, as they mostly contain country-rock and folk-rock with sarcastic lyrics. Sanders' Truckstop slates attitudes on both sides of the hippie/straight divide and the topical humour of Beer Cans On The Moon has not aged well with songs like Henry Kissinger. (SR)

NB: α also issued in UK (Mercury MF 1036) 1968.

New York singer-songwriter Kenny Young was based in the Brill building and released many records under his own name and several pseudonyms from around 1963. He was the driving (or at least the writing) force behind many faceless New York pop/psych outfits including Marshmellow Highway, Moonshyne, Rasberry Pirates, The Seagulls and The Squirrels. He also spent time in the UK and his compositions have been covered widely.

He wrote and arranged both songs on their first single, which are strongly influenced by the Beatles. That Same Old Fat Man is quite interesting, with cello, bells and harpsichord and "Lennonesque" vocals, while the flip features an awful whistling part. This single was produced by Steve and Bill Jerome for Real Good Productions.

Fairy Tales Can Come True gave its name to the Fairy Tales Can Come True (CD). (VJ/MW)

The Good Earth is a rural-rock album with good-time rock and horns! The bulk of the tracks are penned by Minnich. There's an ecological feel to tracks like River Life, Father Love For Live and Tag Of An Indian Summer. Most of the songs have nice melodies and harmonies and some collectors feel the album is evocative of Poco's rockier moments. Born in Mexico in 1947, Carlos Santana came to San Francisco in the sixties and formed the Santana Blues Band, soon known as Santana. Greg Rolie, ex-William Penn Fyve, was their organist and the group began playing their mix of blues, funk and Latin rock at the Fillmore West in 1968.

In the beginning of 1969, their personnel changed. The young Mike Shrieve, ex-Glass Menagerie became their drummer and three Afro-Cuban percussion players reinforced the group. One of them, Marcus Malone, was soon sent to jail and wouldn't return until 1973.

A popular act, led by Carlos' characteristic guitar sound, Santana played Woodstock in August 1969 and soon after, their first album Santana was released and sold very well. The band also played at Altamont.

Many of the tracks on the 2-CD set The San Mateo Sessions, 1969 were instrumental in landing them their deal with Columbia. The opener Soul Sacrifice was recorded at the 'Woodstock' festival and has been released on various collections and bootlegs. The triple album set Soul Sacrifice includes many pre-Columbia demos mostly recorded live in their studios. Included are long work-outs of the title track and other subsequent classics like Coconut Grove as well as a version of With A Little Help From My Friends.

SANTANA - Abraxas LP.

SANTANA - SANTANA III LP.

In October 1970, Abraxas was published and soon reached No. 1 in the charts. Its highlights included Oye Como Va, Samba Pa Ti and their cover of Peter Green's Black Magic Woman. The Marti Klarwein sleeve obviously helped the success of this album.

For the third album, a new guitarist, Neil Schon, was added. Soon after that David Brown was arrested in a drug bust and Chepito Arias sent to hospital with serious health problems. Carlos Santana later turned mystic and became "Devadip", a disciple of the guru Sri Chinmoy. His subsequent albums fall out of the scope of this book.

Neil Schon and Greg Rolie would soon leave to form Journey with Ross Valory and George Tickner, both ex-Faun. Carlos' brother, Jorge, also had his own latin rock group, Malo, and later went solo.

Fried Neckbone and Home Fries is a 2-CD set that contains recordings that highlight Santana during the start of their successful career in San Francisco in 1968 including Coconut Grove Hawaii, Acapulco Sunrise, Jam In E, Hot Tamales, Soul Sacrifice and more. The detailed sleeve notes are written by Santana fan, Tony Morris, and include a collection of rare photographs. Mother Earth (CD) contains rare outtakes, live tracks and different mixes from 1969, just prior to their first album. This set includes the favourites Jingo, Soul Sacrifice and Evil Ways as well as other early jams. The Early Years: An Anthology includes some of their heavy organ-led numbers like Soul Sacrifice, Jingo and As The Years Go By. Ultimate Santana is a rather disappointing 18-song set.

Soul Sacrifice and Evil Ways both figure on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD book). (SR/VJ)

This folkie from New York City cut an outstanding psychedelic folk track in Rising Of Scorpio. The album is nowhere near as good but has its moments and is part of the same folk-rock genre. It includes an alternate mix of Rising Of Scorpio. It was produced by The Strangeloves' Richard Gottehrer. Phoenix was a subsidiary of Sire.

You can also hear Rising Of Scorpio on All Cops In Delerium - Good Roots (LP) and Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 3 (CD). (GG/MW)

45: I Love Ain't Makin' It No More/
Ask Yourself Why Babe (Mercury 72502) 1965

This fine folk-punk single couples a waltzing folk-rocker with what sounds like The Stones doing a Dylan number.

The Sapians were one of the best rock and roll bands in the Mid-Hudson Valley of New York. The original members (line-up 'A') recorded the single for Mercury and became local teen heroes when in September 1965 the Newburgh Board of Education refused to allow them to return to classes due to the length of their hair. Letters from Mercury executives fell on deaf ears as the band was kept out of school for one year. The last incarnation (line-up 'B') came to an end around 1969.

Pat Hearns went off to college in Florida where he recorded three albums under the name Patrick Hopney (Cosmic Rockout is available on CD). Ronnie Black went to live in Canada (he passed away in Vancouver in December 2000). He was only 52 years old.

Pat Hearns returned to the Newburgh area and at last report was working on recording some new material as well as a possible CD release of the single and some unreleased 1965 recordings. (MW/KM)

A very U.S. West Coast sounding group who seemed similar to Jefferson Airplane, Peanut Butter Conspiracy etc. on their album. They are thought to have been based in the Los Angeles area. The album contains some pleasant vocal arrangements/harmonies and nice touches of fuzz guitar and is recommended. It is becoming a minor collectable. (VJ/MW)

Anne Sarofeen, from the central New York town of Auburn, was a powerful bluesy rock singer, somewhere between Joplin and Ellen McIlwaine of Fear Itself. Her first album, co-signed with her backing group Smoke, reputedly contains several good bluesy psychedelic tracks.

Released in 1971, Love In A Woman's Heart should interest fans of West Coast bluesy rock, with some interesting guitar parts and impressive vocals, especially on Fire In Me, Confrontation and the cover of Jackie Lomax's hit Sour Milk Sea penned by George Harrison. This album was produced by Andy Wiswell and, except for the cover version; all the songs were written by Anne Sarofeen, Larry Slack or Bill Pevear. (SR/PMn)

45:	Mummies Curse/Cats Meow	(Goldband 1188) 1969

The sleevenotes to this album state that the band, which came from the South, had one of the greatest original interpretations of the new dimension of psychedelic sound! In fact, they were from Louisiana and it surely deserves a place in any chamber of the worst records ever made. The opening cut, Satan's First Theme, is so bad it's laughable. The vocals are practically spoken, 'Satan' punctuates these with a laugh that is so unconvincing it's pitiful and in response to the vocalist's assertion 'I'm The Devil', there's a chorus retorting 'he's the booger-man'. Not psychedelic, not garage, simply garbage and the subsequent tracks are only marginally better.

Freddy Fender may have had some involvement with this album. Although the cover art is quite arresting, it's best avoided, unless you have a perverse curiosity to hear how bad that opening cut is. Mummies Curse is not on the album. (VJ/MW)

45:	Makin' Deals/Lines And Squares	(Manhattan 801) 1966

From Fullerton, this was a raw sounding garage band whose single from May 1966 is regarded as a punk classic.

Lines And Squares was covered in 1996 by Italy retro-garage band The Others on their Dreams - The Woody Pad Recordings (LP). A year later Makin' Deals was covered by Satan's Cheerleaders on their Electraglide CD and The Cynics had a crack at it in 2002 on their Living Is The Best Revenge CD.

Compilation appearances have included: Makin' Deals and Lines And Squares wrongly compiled on Louisiana Punk Groups From The Sixties, Vol. 2 (LP) and also included on Sixties Archive Vol. 3 (CD); Makin Deals on Pebbles Vol. 2 (CD), Pebbles, Vol. 2 (LP) and Great Pebbles (CD); and Lines And Squares on Highs In The Mid-Sixties Vol. 2 (LP). 45:	When Will You Stay/The Next Boy	( ) 196?

NB: acetate, no commercial release known.

A Portsmouth, Virginia quartet called Dean and The Mustangs started out in 1962/3 performing instrumentals. With the British Invasion in full swing in 1964 they drafted in Eaton to replace a guitarist and became The Satellites. Shortly after, they cut two tracks at a local studio and this pairing kicks off the Tidewater sixties scene compilation Aliens, Psychos And Wild Things (CD). When Will You Stay is a robust punker based on the Kinks' I Need You riff. The Next Boy is a mid-tempo garagy ballad that infuses a Zombies mood with Searchers chordings and a hint of the emerging Dylan-derived folk-rock sounds in the chorus.

The Satellites time was up in 1966 when Dean Kohler was drafted but he'd be back again with two further singles, one solo and the other as The Electrical Banana - also featured on the Aliens, Psychos And Wild Things (CD) compilation. (BHr/ST/DSU/MW)

The name change was forced on the band by producer Dave Garrett because the Stones' (I Can't Get No) Satisfaction was riding high in the charts at the time.

The band split around the end of 1966. Rock Miller went on to achieve success as the owner of Harley Davidson Apparel. (VJ/MW/GM)

Deck Five/Christmas Sounds (Dunwich 144) 1966
Leave That Baby Alone/I Hardly Know Her (Dunwich 156) 1967

Popular in their hometown of Chicago and almost unknown elsewhere, the band was previously known as Dalek/Engam: The Blackstones, and as such, also recorded a version of You Don't Know Better.

Deck Five, is a rip-off of Dave Brubeck's 1961 hit Take Five and even includes a melody line from We Three Kings Of Orient Are. Nonetheless, it contains some nice three-part harmonies and some pleasing organ. You'll also find their otherwise unreleased recording of The Everly Brothers' song Man With Money on the Early Chicago (LP) compilation. This recording dates from an August 1966 session, which also produced their first single. Leave That Baby Alone, that was written by Randy Newman.

Jeff Boyan went on to join H.P. Lovecraft and relocated with them to California. He later played for Hezikah. Dave Carter also later played with The Cryan' Shames.

Retrospective compilation appearances have included: Deck Five on Mindrocker, Vol. 2 (LP); Wisconsin Electric Co. Radio Spot, Man With Money and Leave That Baby Alone on *Oh Yeah! 45: The River Of Styx/
In The Midnight Hour (Creative Productions no#) 1967

NB: acetate, no commercial release known.

Forming out of a band called The Vandals which included Allan Parillo, Mike Nowicki, and Bob Cianci, Saturday's Garbage were formed at Bloomfield High School, Bloomfield, New Jersey in September 1967. They took their name from their favourite post-Vandal rehearsal activity - kicking over people's garbage cans, and played the usual round of church dances, school dances, a few private parties, swim club parties, and the occasional teen dance club (e.g. Clay Cole's Disk-O-Teen and the Monkey Club).

Bob Cianci: "Our best gig was the end of season teen dance at Green Pond, New Jersey Community Centre, in August 1968. We had just experienced a couple of bad gigs, and the kids there loved us. Girls screamed, and the guys dug the Cream and Hendrix stuff. Bloomfield, New Jersey was and probably still is a real greaser town; lots of blue-collar types, and they never liked us at all. We had the longest hair, wore Mod clothes, and played hard-rock. We got hassled all the time for our appearance."

"We were never the most happening band around, because we played very little commercial material. We were true punks in that we did what we wanted: Rolling Stones, Yardbirds, Them, Animals, and later, Steppenwolf, Cream, Hendrix, Doors, Rascals, Vanilla Fudge, and toward the end, we began experimenting with jazzy stuff like Spirit."

In November 1967, the band recorded two tracks; River Of Styx - a strange number with Farfisa organ, a heavy drum beat and tortuous vocals; and a version of In The Midnight Hour. Bob: "The lyrics to River Of Styx were supplied by a guy named Ted Dunn who wanted to manage us. We wrote the two-chord riff, went into a studio and cut it, with In The Midnight Hour on the flip side. We only had one hour of studio time booked, but we did it. Ted had these big plans to pull us out of school and send us on tour but our parents said "no way!" and after our record was turned down by a few major labels, we never saw him again."

The band broke up in January 1969 after two members were busted for bringing marijuana to school. Bob: "Our parents called it quits for us. I had tried grass at a couple of gigs, and when my father found out, he dragged me to the barber for a very short haircut, one of the most humiliating experiences of my life. I still have never forgiven him for it."

"It's too bad it ended so suddenly. We were always good, but we were getting very good by the end. We copped the song Gramophone Man by Spirit note for note, and that's not an easy tune, with its extended jazzy thing in the middle. Gerry was a very accomplished keyboard player, and we had no trouble with it. I had been into jazz for years by then."

"Today, I'm still a working drummer and am proud to say, playing better than ever. I used to smash my drums up like Keith Moon, but have curtailed that activity. Mike played in band called Black Rose that had a single out on RCA records around 1974-75. He used a Gibson Melody Maker and used to throw it around a lot onstage-just short of smashing it. Gerry moved to California and may still be playing. He later switched to guitar, and became a very fine guitarist also. Just a natural talent for music. Jim gave up the bass and Allan hasn't been heard from in years."

"Mike, Allan, and I put together a new band in the summer of 1971 while I was in college, called Suicide. We played some old Elvis, Jeff Beck/Rod Stewart, and some other cover stuff, but it went no farther than the garage and I went back to college in September. I'd love to play with those guys again for fun someday."

River Of Styx has been compiled on Mindrocker, Vol. 8 (LP) and Attack Of The Jersey Teens (LP). (VJ/BCi)

ALBUM: (selected)	1	HEAVEN WAS BLUE	(Reality Records RS-55 DGP) 1978 R3/4

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Orange Double Dome) 2003 as a limited pressing of 300. (1) reissued on vinyl (Underground Masters UM002) 2005.

Heaven Was Blue comprises psych-folk with long tracks, acid guitars and odd vocals, it is highly regarded by some. The album opens with Reality, a dreamy mixture of rich guitar tapestries and nice folky hooks. The next cut In My Mind is a little heavier with fuzz chords, multi-layered guitars and a more cutting vocal style. There's also some great organ and booming bass. The side closes with two disappointing roots rockers. Side two comprises the side-long title track which is something of a psychedelic feast. Some collectors make comparisons with Revolver-era Beatles, but he more closely compares with Michael Angelo. The lyrics take some fathoming. The three psych tracks all deal with death, its consequences and meaning; and some have suggested that the album was conceived as result of Saucedo's shock at Elvis Presley's death in 1977. The album was presented in an attractive blue haunted house sleeve.

Saucedo was a well-known Elvis impersonator and other records exist that are outside the scope of this book. (SR/VJ)

Savage Grace

SAVAGE GRACE - Self Titled LP.

From Ann Arbor, Michigan Savage Grace evolved out of Scarlet Letter. Produced by Joe Wissert (Lovin' Spoonful, Flo & Eddie), the first album contains an excellent version of All Along The Watchtower and an interesting cover of Hymn To Freedom (an Oscar Peterson theme). The remaining songs were written by Ron Koss and Dear Lenore, Night Of The Hunter and Turn Your Head in particular, feature oriental percussion and interesting rhythms. Bernie Krause from Beaver and Krause also assisted on moog. The album climbed to No. 182, spending eight weeks in the Top 200.

Savage Grace 2 opens with Mother's Son, a Hendrix-inspired song and is more hard-rock than psychedelic. Both albums contain fine musicianship from John Seanor and Ron Koss, who later combined their talents on the album Seanor And Koss (Reprise 2091) 1972, in particular.

Both albums have been reissued on one CD from the master tapes as The Complete Savage Grace. The CD also includes the non-album Ivy as a bonus cut.

Richard Fowle told U-Spaces: "After Savage Grace, Ron and his family moved from Michigan to southern California. He backed John Sebastian (and can be heard singing on the "Welcome Back Kotter" theme) and worked with John Lennon on his Rock and Roll album. After his career as a musician, he worked on the road crew of several groups including Earth Wind And Fire and Little Feat (Ron and Bill Payne became great golfing buddies). Ron died after a heart attack in 2006." Larry Zack later became a session drummer and played with Warren Zevon and Jackson Browne. Al Jacquez was later with Lightnin'.

All Along The Watchtower has been compiled on Psychosis From The 13th Dimension (CD). (VJ/MW/SR)

45: Thing In 'E'/Fox Is Sick (Mercury 72778) 1968

This is one of the West Coast's 'forgotten' bands. Their album was a competent effort with tracks like Every Little Song and Talking To You containing some promising early psychedelic guitar work. John Palmer wrote (or co-wrote) all but one of the tracks on the album. Its closing cut Expectations features some fine Eastern-influenced electric guitar jamming. The single was taken from the album. Recommended by none other than Bevis Frond!

From Richmond, California the band was formed from members of two local outfits Button Willow (Hammon, Lage) and Whatever's Right (Myer, Harper) plus John Palmer. Randy Hammon, cousin of Oxford Circle/Blue Cheer drummer Paul Whaley, had been in the Boys with John Palmer, who'd then moved on to the Plague, Chico punk-legends The Boy Blues (of Coming Down To You fame) and Lincoln's Promise.

The Mod Lang CD reissue contains the entire album plus three rehearsals: - Thing In E, Tahitian Melody and River Deep, Mountain High - and a comprehensive history of the band.

The original group has reformed and has made several recent appearances in the Bay Area.

Compilation appearances include Fox Is Sick and Thing In 'E' on Electric Food (LP); Thing In 'E' on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD book) and Tahitan Melody on Timemazine #3 (CD), which came free with the fanzine. (VJ/MW)

This Anglophile rock group came from Tampa, Florida. Although the first single could have been sung by Cliff Richard, the second is truly nice, with big drums, ringing guitars and good vocals. Everynight was penned by Ware and Young, Little Miss Sad by the Addrisi brothers and the two flips by Barrington, who may have been a member of this little known group. 	Roses Are Red My Love/Quiet Town	(Duane 1049) 1966
	You're On My Mind/ The World Ain't Round It's Square	(Duane 45-1054) 1966

Operating out of Bermuda their album is a mixture of cover versions and impressive originals such as Quiet Town and The World Ain't Round, It's Square. Of the three cover songs, one is a fine version of The Animals's We Gotta Get Out Of This Place, the second is one of the weakest cuts, On Broadway and the third is bizarre, an English version of an Icelandic song, Ertu Med written and recorded by Thor's Hammer in 1965.

The Duane label was run by Eddy DMello, a Bermudan of Portuguese descent. Two other garage bands also recorded on Duane, The Weads and The Gents, as well as a funk album, Spacing Out by The Invaders.

Most of their single cuts have been featured on compilations including: No No No on No No No (CD) and Valley Of The Son Of The Gathering Of The Tribe (LP); Quiet Town on Oil Stains (LP); The World Ain't Round, It's Square on *Open Up Yer Door! 45s:	Can It Be/Now She's Left Me	(Summit 403) 1965
	Work It Out/I'd Rather Love You	(Orlyn 502) 196?

Named after the Plymouth Savoy they drove to gigs in, this band came from the Harvey district of Chicago. John Kluska wrote both songs on the Summit single. You'd need a small fortune to afford either of their singles as both are extremely rare. The fuzzy, distorted Can It Be with its rock'n'roll style vocals can also be found on Back From The Grave, Vol. 6 (LP). In addition, Now She's Left Me has been compiled on Quagmire Vol. 1 (CD) and I'd Rather Love You can also be heard on Project Blue 5 (LP). The Orlyn single is thought to date from circa 1967. ALBUM: 1(A) LOVE MINUS ZERO/NO LIMIT (mono/stereo)
(Mirrosonic AM-1017/AS-1017) 1966 R1

Touted as garage/folk-rock, in reality this rare album is a fruity-voiced, old-school folk duo accompanied by harpsichord.

Dylan is presented via the title track, Farewell and Mr. Tambourine Man; the Beatles' I Want To Hold You Hand gets the baroque treatment, as does Chim Chim Cheree from Mary Poppins. That latter track should be ringing alarm bells; yep, this is not rock, this is not even folk-rock - this is sedate, drawing-room acoustic folk, so buyers beware. 45:	There's Reasons Why/ Girl, You're Goin' Out'a My Mind	(Pepper 432) 1967

Len Renfro and Bruce Smith liked to sing with their girlfriends when they weren't playing with their Memphis, Tennessee group The Sands. As their vocal arrangements became more accomplished they started performing around town and were heard by The Gentrys' Larry Raspberry, who thought they should put out a single.

The Raspberry-produced single appeared at the end of 1967. It was well received - echoey harmonies over organ and tambourine. Both songs were written by Renfro and Smith. They split soon after when Renfro joined the Navy in the spring of 1968.

Renfro later married Kathy Thornton. Carol Ferrante would become Mrs. Larry Raspberry. The full story is in Ron Hall's book 'Playing For A Piece Of The Door: A History Of Garage & Frat Bands In Memphis 1960-1975'.

You can also check out There's Reasons Why on The Coffee House (CD) and Girl, You're Goin' Out'a My Mind has been compiled on Fading Yellow Vol. 3 (CD). (SR/MW)

Jim Scannell and The Believers (?)

ALBUM: 1 SONGS FOR THE BEAUTIFUL PEOPLE TO GET READY BY (People's Music PLP-7) 1969

This is a crudely recorded Christian folk album with electric instrumentation and flute, drum and tambourine accompaniment. There's the odd bit of saxophone too. The deep-voiced Jim Scannell penned all the words and music. Some songs are his solo efforts; on others he is backed by The Believers. Track titles include: Jesus Is His Name, I'll Sing My Praise To You Lord, Lord Help Us and My God - get the picture! (SR/VJ)

45s: Macaroni Mountain/Outside Woman (Mainstream 691) 196?
Mary Maiden/Timekeeper (Mainstream 696) 196?

From Ann Arbor in Michigan, this outfit would become Savage Grace. Like many Mainstream singles, stock copies are harder to find than white label double-A promos. Both Macaroni Mountain and Mary Maiden are pop-rock, not garage or psych. The former is lightweight, the latter piano-driven rockin' pop with keen guitar passages and use of wah-wah.

For confused collectors and dead-wax spotters: due to an error at the Columbia pressing plant, some labels for the Mary Maiden single were pasted onto a single by Paraphernalia - Sunny Days (And Good Good Living)/Sea Of No Return (Time 501). The Mary Maiden label has a matrix # ZTSP 144127, but if the number stamped in the dead wax is RJA144129, then you're listening to the Paraphernalia single, which was the next job on the plant's production line. Both their singles are thought to date from around 1968. (MW)

This excellent two-sider changed a Memphis high school outfit into local celebrities in the summer of 1965. After such a promising start it's a great shame that this was their sole release. They split in 1967; the following year Finley Brown reappeared in the Memphis Nomads.

Both sides of this outfit's single resurfaced on the rare 1982 French compilation Everywhere Chainsaw Sound (LP). Little Girls... reappeared in 2000 on Leaving It All Behind (LP) and later on History Of Garage & Frat Bands In Memphis 2 (CD). (VJ/MW/MM)

ALBUM: 1(A) A BOY AND HIS DOG (Warner Bros. WS 1756) 1968

Produced in San Francisco by Erik Jacobsen and Bob Rafkin (a folk guitarist who also worked with Tim Buckley, David Blue and Phil Ochs), the only album by Leonard Schaeffer should interest fans of Californian good-time music. The songs, all self-penned, are not outstanding but the arrangements and the backing group make them pleasant (especially The Artist and Smile On The Outside). More than for Schaeffer's voice (very similar to Norman Greenbaum's, another Jacobsen protege), the record is in fact interesting for the musicians involved: two Charlatans (Hicks and Olsen), Richard Greene (Jim Kweskin Jug Band, Seatrain), Bill Douglas, Dan Patiris, Mark Naftalin (Butterfield Blues Band, The Wizards From Kansas) and no less than four members of Sopwith Camel. 45: Pattern People/Before He Took You (Warner Bros. 7167) 1968

Warren Schatz was a little known but significant singer/songwriter/producer/engineer on the New York '66-'71 scene. Born in Brooklyn on 3rd November, 1945, Schatz originally performed as Ritchie Dean and had a hit with Goodbye Girl. He then organised a succession of groups for live dates and recordings and formed The Pendants, The Petrified Forest, The Warmest Spring, The Shapes Of Things and The Whispers. At the same time he was beginning to handle recording sessions as an engineer (Unspoken Word) and producer (Yesterday's Children and Banchee). In the early seventies he began singing under his own name and toured in Japan.

His CBS album was recorded in New York, Los Angeles and San Francisco. Schatz wrote all the material and produced it with session men (Jerry Cole, Hugh McCracken, Al Gorgoni, Pretty Purdie). Marred by too many female background vocals, it's better avoided. Schatz then went to Finland to record his second album, which is much better, particularly the fantastic version of David Crosby's Long Time Gone with lots of electric guitars. Strangely, this record was also pressed in Poland! (SR/MW)

I Need Your Lovin' has resurfaced on the Pennsylvania Unknowns (LP), Sick And Tired (LP) and Trip In Tyme Vol. 1 (CD) compilations. What we do know is that they hailed from the Port Richmond area of Philadelphia and that they were a quintet attending Drexel and Temple Universities when their single came out in February 1967. Another cut left over from this session that never got beyond the acetate stage was I'm Gonna Make It, which can now be heard on the Crude PA, Vol. 1 (LP) compilation. It combines the garage sound with group harmonies and has consequently been referred to as 'garage doo-wop'! (VJ/MW)

β Her Name Is Melody/I Go To Sleep (Warner Bros. 5867) 1966

Born in October 1945 in Hollywood, Bernard Schwartz took guitar lessons from the session musician Ray Pohlman in 1962 and through him met Sharon Sheeley, writer of hits for Ricky Nelson and other singers. He started writing with her and with Dale Bobbitt for various labels. In 1963, as Don Atello, he released his first single on Tide Records and a second one in 1964, this time as Bernie Schwartz.

Through Sharon Sheeley, he met Phil Everly and did a single for Warner Bros. on which Everly sang harmony and wrote the flip side, Sheeley co-writing the 'A' side with Jackie DeShannon. A second single was released using the same session musicians (Billy Preston, Jim Gordon, James Burton and the Everly Brothers) but this time under the name Adrian Pride. The 'B' side was a Ray Davies (Kinks) song.

Pursuing his songwriter career, Bernie Schwartz had his songs recorded by the Yellow Payges, Power and The East Side Kids in 1967.

In 1968, he formed Comfortable Chair but the group broke up after some concerts and one album produced by Krieger and Densmore from the Doors.

When Schwartz got his draft notice, he filed as a conscientious objector and was required to work at Goodwill. Sharon Sheeley called him up to tell him she had a new writing deal with CoBurt (Pierre Cosette and Burt Sugarman). Schwartz did three demos for them which ended up on his only album, The Wheel, which featured Euphoria's Wesley Watt and Bill Lincoln, in addition to Comfortable Chair member Gene Garfin. Produced by Schwartz and Euphoric Productions, the album contains 10 tracks, including a cover of Euphoria's Sunshine Woman which ends with one minute of fuzz and feedback guitars! The album also features good covers of Neil Young's Round And Round, Randy Newman's Think It's Gonna Rain Today, Fred Neil's Candy Man (with "frantic" guitar parts), former Stone Poneys' Kenny Edwards Follow Me and Gene Garfin's Lost My Wings. A really interesting album, especially if you like Euphoria.

Another Schwartz song was chosen for the soundtrack of "The Magic Garden Of Stanley Sweetheart" (MGM 1ST-20ST) 1970, which starred a young and unknown Don Johnson.

Schwartz later graduated from UCLA and went on to finish a master's degree program. He now teaches psychology, does seminars and writes books (the most recent is "Are You A New-Rotic?") (SR/GM)

45: Can't Get Blood From A Stone/
I'm Only Human (American AR 701) 1969

This single has a tough rockin' topside with vibrant guitar and 'proggy' keyboards. What makes this single noteworthy is I'm Only Human - an incredibly atmospheric piece of almost funky psych-prog with ethereal vocals. Whilst not to everyone's taste perhaps, it's quite unique.

The leader of this band, Kenny Jeremiah, had earlier achieved success with The Soul Survivors. After Scorpion broke up, he played in a Disco group called Shirley And Company (Shirley being Shirley Goodman of Shirley and Lee fame!) and then a Top 40 band called Full House. Kenny was last heard of playing the Casino circuit with a band called Jeremiah Hunter. Bobby Martorella went on to play drums for several soul recording artists, and Bill Nocella became a studio musician and worked in his father's music shop in the Philadelphia area. Rick Kissinger went into business for himself, and Joe Young later played in a Top 40 band on the Holiday Inn circuit.

I'm Only Human has been compiled on All Cops In Delerium - Good Roots (LP) and Psychedelic Experience (CD). (MW/PC)

According to Mike Kuzmin's 'Sounds From The Woods' Pennsylvania book they were originally known as the Corvairs and also released a single as The Elusives.

Their final single, Last Exit To Brooklyn, with its 'Gene Pitney'-like vocals, was a Top 40 hit in Chicago and possibly several other Midwestern cities.

	Devil's Daughter/Up There	(ABC Paramount 10834) 1966
	Easy/The Scoundrel	(ABC Paramount 10892) 1966

Boyle and Morrissey had started out with doo-wop group The Echoes, who achieved a No. 12 hit in 1961 with Baby Blue. The Brooklyn, New York duo formed The Scoundrels and released three fine garagy-beat singles in 1966. Up There is a great dance number, with plenty of reverb-injected fuzz, that got airplay and a brief interview on the US Army radio service program In Sound, compered by Harry Harrison; Come Home With Me by contrast is a dreamy harmony-pop.

In 1968 they signed up to Super K, the production line for commerical bubblegum-pop headed by the Kasenatz-Katz partnership, and were duly rechristened Lt. Garcia's Magic Music Box.

Compilation appearances have included: Up There on Punk Classics (CD), Punk Classics, Vol. 2 (7") and Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 2 (CD); and Come Home With Me on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 11 (LP) and Slowly Growing Insane (CD). (VJ/MW)

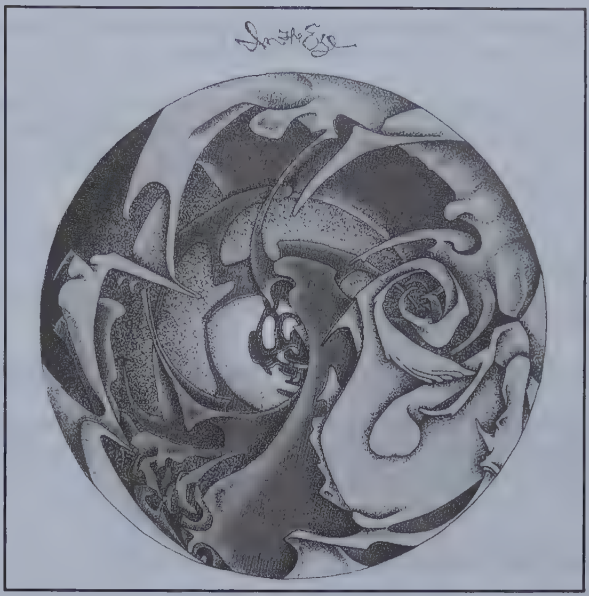
ALBUMS: 1(A)	IN THE EYE (w/insert)	(BRBQ 03) 1973 R1/R2
2( )	THE DANCER INSIDE YOU	(BRBQ 04) 1974 SC

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (w/insert) (OR 014) 1996 in a numbered limited edition of 375 copies. (2) was a Bob Lucas solo album.

More progressive than psychedelic, the first album is worth seeking out but the best tracks are the folky ones with soft female vocals like Junior, All This Waiting, Path Of Light and White Teeth. When the violin is in evidence they sound a little like the U.K. band Curved Air. The more upbeat cuts, like the title track and Prematurely (Fly Me Away), just don't come off so well. The album was recorded at Jack Gilfoy Studios in Bloomington, Indiana, which is where the band was from. At the time, columnist and Bloomington resident Michael Bourne gave them a very favourable review in Downbeat Magazine, which was their only brush with national exposure.

The band's personnel fluctuated wildly over the years and some members also backed Tina Lane on a couple of singles. Sophiea and Anderson later played in MX-80 who recorded a local EP Big Hits which resulted in larger label releases Hard Attack and Crowd Control. They eventually moved to San Francisco. Caroline Peyton went solo, releasing at least two albums (Mock-Up and Intuition). She later relocated to the West Coast, where she has recorded Celtic music and done major-movie voice-overs for animated features. Mark Bingham went on to form the Brain Sisters (in Bloomington) and played with New York art-punk band the Social Climbers. While in Athens, Georgia he contributed strings to a REM album (Automatic For The People?). He eventually landed in New Orleans as engineer of Boiler Room Studios.



SCREAMING GYPSY BANDITS - In The Eye LP.

The Dancer Inside You was a Bob Lucas solo album, although Bingham produced and engineered it (with Mark Hood).

Other BRBQ Records issues included Mock-Up and Intuition by Caroline Peyton. The 1975/6 Bloomington 1 (LP) compilation included both a Screaming Gypsy Bandits track and a Caroline Peyton track. The Bandits cut on this was taken from a legendary, never-released album called Kryptonite. A few acetates of this are also known to exist. (VJ/SR/CLn/EDn)

45: She Ain't No Good/Codine (Decca 31910) 1966

A Tujunga, California combo whose single was produced by Gary Usher. She Ain't No Good, is a cover of the U.K. Clique's song although it's a pretty lame effort. The flip is one of the weaker covers of Codine I've heard. They were later known as The Badd Boys.

Compilation appearances have included: She Ain't No Good on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 1 (LP), Pebbles Vol. 8: Southern California 1 (CD) and Pebbles, Vol. 4 (ESD) (CD); and Codine on Sixties Punk Ballads Sampler (LP) and Sixties Archive, Vol. 5 (CD). (VJ/RR/MW)

Seanor and Koss were previously in Savage Grace and kept on working together when their group disbanded. Their only album was produced by Shel Talmy and was recorded in Hollywood with John Sebastian and Kenny Altman (Fifth Avenue Band). It's quite a good rock album with decent vocals, guitar and keyboard parts, all the songs being penned by Koss or Seanor. (SR)

The Search is an obscure San Diego, California band led by the two Mannino brothers. The flip to their second single, Climate, is notable for its change of tempo. The top side was a punk-style cover of Mr. Custer. Compilation appearances include: Climate on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 3 (LP) and Fuzz Flaykes & Shakes Vol. 1 (LP & CD); and Mr. Custer on Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 2 (LP & CD). This rare religious rock album was the work of a Sacramento, California band. Many of the tracks feature lovely female vocals, although part of side two is more acoustic and folky with male vocals. Unless you're into singer/songwriting acoustic folk these are not as good. At its best the album is superb. A mystical atmosphere is created by the floating, melodic psychedelia of songs like When He Calls, So Many Things Have Got Me Down and The News Is You. Just listen and drift away.

The News Is You and You And I have been compiled on Holy Fuzz (LP). (VJ/CF)

After they quit New York's much loved Blues Project, Kulberg and Blumenfeld formed Seatrain in Marin County, California. John Gregory had previously played with Mystery Trend. However, it was Greene's virtuoso violin playing (he'd earlier been with Jim Kweskin's Jug Band) which dominated their debut album. Their next two efforts were recorded in London with ex-Beatle producer George Martin. By now, however, only Greene, Kulberg and writer Roberts survived from the original line-up. For Marblehead Messenger the remaining line-up was Larry Atamanuik (drms), Lloyd Baskin (keyb'ds, vcls) and Peter Rowan (vcls, gtr). This album was again dominated by Greene's excellent violin playing, particularly on the closing track Despair Tire and on the title track - a plea for pacifism:

"Take a message to the island
Take a message to the shores
Take a message cross the nation -
Put an end to war......"
(from Marblehead Messenger)

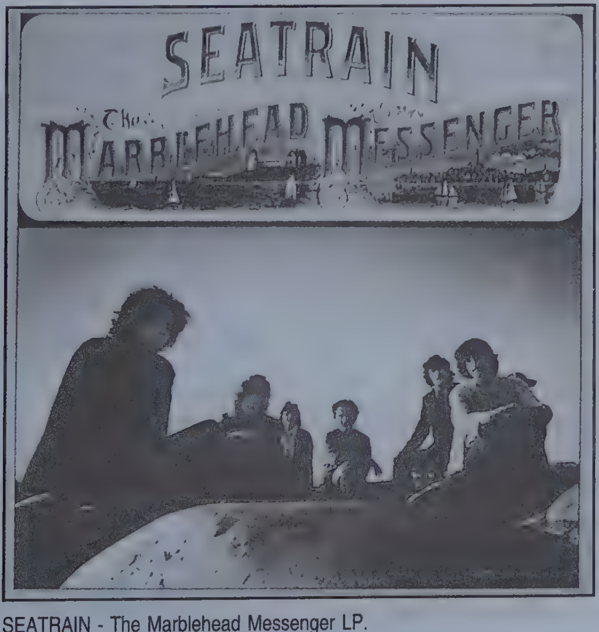
It also contained a number of other fine rock ballads, notably The State Of Georgia's Mind, Protestant Preacher, London Song and Mississippi Moon.

Perhaps it was its lack of stability which prevented the group from attaining the success one might have expected from the quality of its line-up. At any rate after one further album for Warner Bros, which included many session musicians, they passed on without much publicity or acclaim.



SEATRAIN - The Marblehead Messenger LP.

Red Shepard also recorded as Red Shepard and The Flock. Andy Kulberg passed away in January 2002.

The single version of Flute Thing has been compiled on From Burbank To The Bay Area (CD): and Portrait Of The Artist As ..Lady can also be found on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD book). (VJ)

A gifted songwriter, singer, harmonica and guitar player, John B. Sebastian began his career in the early sixties recording with Fred Neil, Tom Rush, the Mugwumps, Jesse Colin Young, Judy Collins and Eric Andersen. In 1965 he formed the Lovin' Spoonful and, when the group disbanded in 1968, he started a solo career and signed with two record labels, MGM and Reprise. The following legal battle didn't help to promote his records. He also worked with Mama Cass and wrote Broadway musicals.

In 1969, Sebastian was invited to the Woodstock festival and his song I Had A Dream is featured in the movie and on the record. Produced by Paul Rothchild, his first album was recorded with the help of Crosby, Stills and Nash, Buzzy Linhart, Harvey Brooks, Danny Weiss, Bruce Langhorne and Paul Harris but is very deceptive. The sleeve shows several pictures taken at Woodstock. Sebastian was obviously having a good time but the material is weak and the playing uninspired. The following album was live and also issued by MGM, which finally had to withdraw its records. Recorded with Mac Rebennack (Dr. John), The Four Of Us contains two good bluesy tracks but is very self-indulgent and better avoided.

Very active in the studios, Sebastian can also be found on records by Ohio Knox, The Doors (he plays the stunning harmonica on Roadhouse Blues but was credited as Gary Pugliese), Rita Coolidge and Aztec Two Step. John Sebastian recorded two other albums in 1974 and 1976. He had a No. 1 hit in 1976 with Welcome Back, the theme song to the 'Welcome Back, Kotter' TV show. This took on new life in 2004 when a sample from it became the hook for rapper Mase's Welcome Back hit. After his No. 1 hit Sebastian kept a low profile, and his solo career never obtained the success he had with the Lovin' Spoonful. He came back in the nineties to play jug band music with Fritz Richmond, the former Jim Kweskin Jug Band member.

Life & Times 1964-1999 (CD) is a good retrospective which rounds up most of his better moments. He is still touring today. (SR/VJ)

Don Sebesky was primarily a jazz musician and arranger who released these two albums with musicians equally at ease with jazz, rock or pop, like Joe Beck and Larry Coryell.

Released in 1968, the first album contains tracks like Somebody Groovy, Banana Flower, The Word, Meet A Cheetah, Big Mama Cass (about The Mamas & The Papas' singer) and is housed in a gatefold sleeve with psych cover art.

The following year the same musicians released a second album of mellow psychedelia under the name of "The Distant Galaxy" with covers of Lady Madonna and The Sounds Of Silence plus original material with "groovy" titles: Guru-Vin, Cosmic Force and The Distant Galaxy. (SR)

This band was part of San Francisco's 'second generation' movement along with It's A Beautiful Day, Indian Puddin' and Pipe and Black Swan. However, they were very much 'also rans'. Previously known as Buddy and The Citations, they actually originated from Chicago but had followed the group-goldrush to where it was happening.

Their album should be avoided by garage and psych fans, it's a below-par horn-rock effort. (VJ/MW)

45: I Feel Free/She Has Funny Cars (Steady HG 001) 1969

NB: Pressings on the Hourglass label, with the same HG 001 number, also exist.

Originally named The Blues Messengers and formed in the late-sixties in Sarasota, Florida the band relocated to Jacksonville in 1968 and changed their name to The Second Coming.

Dickey Betts had previously been a member of The Jokers (immortalised by Rick Derringer in his song Rock And Roll Hoochie Koo) with Dan Joe Petty (later in Grinderswitch). Berry Oakley had been a member of Tommy Roe's road band (ex-Roemans).

The single was financed by the band's manager to be used as a marketing tool. It was originally intended only to be mailed to clubs in an attempt to generate gigs, but was later pressed in fairly large quantities. The single is a good example of material they played live, covers of songs by Cream and Jefferson Airplane.

Larry Reinhardt left The Second Coming before the single was recorded to form his own band The Load. When The Second Coming broke up due to Oakley and Betts joining the Allman Brothers Band, John Meeks would join The Load, Reese Wynans would join Ugly Jellyroll and then reunite with both Reinhardt and Meeks in The Load. Later Reinhardt would briefly be a member of Iron Butterfly, then he and Reese Wynans would play together once again in Captain Beyond. Reese Wynans would eventually play with Delbert McClinton, Stevie Ray Vaughan and many others.

Faine Jade also had some involvement with this band, when following his Introspection album, he moved to Florida. (HS/MW)

A Minneapolis group, their first single is winsome melodic folk-pop. Because of the involvement of Warren Kendrick, in producing the single and composing To Keep You, someone assumed that there was a connection to The Litter and the track was duly featured on Eva's Litter - Rare Tracks (LP). Hmmphh! The flip Life.. is more akin to Peter, Paul and Mary than The Litter! Their follow-up Willow Tree was released as by Hexagon.

This Los Angeles band issued three excellent punky singles all written by Kenny Loggins, who it is thought was their leader. One of them, Let Me In, from July 1966 is on both Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 2 (LP) and Pebbles, Vol. 9: Southern California 2 (CD) and is recommended listening. You can also check out Hard Times, Let Me In, Floating Downstream In An Inflatable Rubber Raft and On Friday on Ain't It Hard (CD); and Floating Downstream? is also on Soft Sounds For Gentle People (CD).

Loggins went on to play in Gator Creek and later in the mid-seventies embarked on a successful solo career. (VJ/MW)

The Second Summers (?CT/?NY)

45:	Sad Vibrations/Remember The Days	(Conn 777/8) 1969

Here's an evocative garage ballad from May 1969 in Zombiesque mould from Connecticut or New York. Unfortunately it is backed by one of those silly UK-style 'music-hall' type pastiche songs, complete with kazoo and mock applause at the end. (barf). (MW)

The Second Thought (MN)

45s:	α	The Museum/Sad Little Eyes	(Brite Leaf 1801) 1968
		Get Ready/Slingshot	(Brite Leaf 1803) 1968

NB: α shown as by Jonny Rome and The Second Thought.

The Second Thought was a Minnesota band. The Museum was later included on the Changes (LP) compilation, a rare 1980 French compilation of sixties psychedelia from Minnesota. This is jaunty keyboard-dominated pop with the merest hint of music-hall, echoey vocals and ghostly outro, about uncovering old junk and heirlooms in the basement - "come on down and see 'em, it's a museum"! The flip is a slow, last-dance ballad with Four Seasons styled backing vocals.

This outfit, also known as 'Jonny Rome and The Second Thought', may have been a later incarnation of Duluth's Second Thought, who were formed out of The Devilles. The Duluth outfit's singles are listed below:-

45s:	When I'm In Love/If Only You Loved Me	(Gloria 777) 1966

The Sidewalk single is described as "popsike with horns" and involved Davie Allan. Both sides of this psychedelic pop outfit's second single featured in the film 'Wild In The Streets' and on the resultant soundtrack album (Tower ST-5099/Capitol SKAO 5099), which includes another offering by The Second Time, Sally Le Roy. Listen To The Music is also on Realistic Patterns 2: Wednesday Morning Dew (CD). The Sect was a quintet from Mesa, Arizona whose story is retold on the EP, which features mono and stereo versions of a pair of unreleased folk-rock punkers from 1966. Simply Sunday is a snotty diatribe with fuzz whereas Just Can't Win is a fatalistic, jangley lament. Soon after they split in 1968, Aldred, Martin, and Reed formed Bliss. (MW)

45: Pusher's Route/Please Don't Go (Audio Dynamics AD 105) 196?

NB: Initial pressing of the 45 labels show Pusher's Route as the 'A' side. This was an error and at the time Please Don't Go was 'pushed' as the main track.

Oxford, Massachusetts' Section Five recorded this single circa 1967. Pusher's Route, composed and sang by Donald B. Thayer, is outstanding lo-fi garage-folk-psych with one larynx-wrenching scream and occasional fuzz and reverb effects. Paul Tringuk Jr's similarly composed/sung Please... is by contrast a sad garage ballad.

Paul and Donny later worked together in another Massachusetts band, Pretty Poison with Louis Santoro and Jimmy D'Angelo. They had some local success for a few years before breaking up. Paul Tringuk also helped back his cousin, Kevan Michaels on two albums Transatlantic Connection and How Long Can You Rock, before retiring from the music biz. Donny Thayer moved to L.A. and went into acting.

Pusher's Route can also be followed on Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 3 (CD) or on Teen Blast Volume #1 (CD). (MW/KMs)

THE SEEDS - A Full Spoon Of Seedy Blues LP.

NB: α Hip-Pocket 4" (10cm) release in picture envelope. There are also three rare French EPs with picture sleeves on Vogue (INT 18022, 18077 and 18125).

Sky Saxon was born Richard Marsh in Salt Lake City, Utah probably in 1937 and moved to Los Angeles when he was (probably) 18 to pursue a musical career. He later claimed to have been a classical music fan and to have studied piano briefly at UCLA, but his first vinyl appearances were as an R&B singer, and he released several singles in 1963-64 under the pseudonym Little Richie Marsh. After spells in The Soul Rockers and The Electra Fires, he answered an advertisement for a vocalist in a new band put together by guitarist Jan Savage, drummer Rick Andridge and organist Daryl Hooper. He was successful, The Seeds were formed and they secured a deal with the GNP Crescendo label. They were extremely popular locally in L. A. where their records sold quite well. Their debut single Can't Seem To Make You Mine attracted some minor interest but made little impression nationally as did (You're) Pushin' Too Hard when it was first issued. Their music was raw and often simple, but Saxon's growling vocals and their pummelling repetitive rhythms gave them a unique sound. When the debut album was issued a local DJ gave Pushin' Too Hard extended airplay and it was reissued climbing to No. 36 in the Billboard Hot 100. Their second album was also issued in the U.K. by Vocalion. It opened with the vibrant Mr. Farmer which became their next single and featured rampant rockers like Rollin' Machine and Tripmaker and a few gentler numbers. The trance-like single Mr Farmer was another local hit, even though many radio stations banned it because of its druggy allusions. The Seeds were now hugely popular in L.A. and appointed a new manager, Tim Hudson who was apparently largely responsible for their nationwide success by pushing their flower-power aspect at the right time. In fact, much of their music was punky and only the Future album can really be called 'psychedelic'. This was an 'over the top' production and included a sheet of flowers to be cut out and pasted to the cover! It became the band's biggest seller, although it only rose to No. 87 in the Album Charts. The group also landed a cameo in Roger Corman's teen movie 'Psych Out', which starred Jack Nicholson in 1968.

Rick Andridge recalls that their next album, A Full Spoon Of Seedy Blues was never meant to be a Seeds album which is why they went by The Sky Saxon Blues Band moniker. They never played any of those blues songs at any concert and Sky has said he recorded it to try and break their contract with GNP. Rick: "I did it because I learned to love the blues. I still believe to this day that it is one of the best albums we ever did. Really great for a group of white guys."

The Seeds name returned for the Raw and Alive album and two of the new tracks, on this credible blend of old and new - Satisfy You/900 Million People Daily Making Love, were issued as a single in a full colour art sleeve. It flopped but has now become the band's most collectable item. Sadly after one further single, written by Kim Fowley, the band fell apart.

The band's demise came with the collapse of the flower-power culture in 1969, although Sky Saxon continued to record spasmodically. Saxon initially retreated into the Source Family, a religious sect formed by beatnik Jim Baker, alias Father Yod. He now became Sky Sunlight Saxon and recorded with a cult-related band that went by names such as Source, Yodship and Ya Ho Wha 13. Saxon also made recordings of his own, usually limited to mail-order release. He re-appeared for two disappointing singles using the name 'The Seeds' in 1971 - Bad Part Of Town and Love In A Summer Basket. Slightly later a privately pressed heavy rock single, Shuckin' and Jivin' (Productions Unlimited 22) surfaced.

In the eighties there was a revival of interest in the band's music. The UK-based Psycho label recruited Saxon to record the Starry Ride album, assisted by Mars Bonfire from Steppenwolf and members of Iron Butterfly and Fraternity Of Man. This was previously issued on an eight-track tape. Only 300 copies of the Psycho issue were pressed and it is now deleted.

He then formed Firewall with Bonfire and they recorded two neo-psychedelic albums. Later, in 1989, Saxon resurrected The Seeds to headline the 'Summer of Love' tour, which also featured Arthur Lee and Love and The Strawberry Alarm Clock.

The band returned again in 2003 with Red Planet (just 1,000 copies were pressed each in vinyl and CD). It features lots of fuzz guitars and great organ sounds very much in the vein of the early Seeds records. A further album Back To The Garden followed. In June 2007, he married Sabrina Smith, who also became his business partner.

The following year he released The King Of Garage Rock, a collection of his old hits and some cover versions. He also worked on new recordings with Billy Corgan of Smashing Pumpkins.

Sadly, on 25 June 2009 Sky Saxon passed away. He had been admitted to St David's Hospital, in Austin, Texas with an infection and died of kidney and heart failure.

All of The Seeds' albums have subsequently been issued in Germany by Line Records, including their 1977 compilation Fallin' Off The Edge (GNP 2107), which featured rare and previously unissued material, such as the superb Chocolate River and The Wind Blows Your Hair.

Other items of interest to Seeds collectors will be Eva's 1983 compilation New Fruit From Old Seeds/Bad Part Of Town and Starry Ride Sky Saxon (Psycho 29) 1984, a mini album. There's also a 1981 release Purple Electricity recorded live at the Cavern Club. The backing band includes members of Red Kross and The Primates.

Evil Hoodoo 1988 is another compilation. It contains all their best known tracks, but also includes the rare Chocolate River, previously only on a posthumous compilation and the Country and Western epic Fallin' Off The Edge Of My Mind. Travel With Your Mind is a CD compilation with many rare cuts/mixes and 1996 also saw the release of Flower Punk a 3-CD set. Raw & Alive and Rare Seeds is comprised of the Seeds' Raw And Alive album and the various flip sides and outtakes from 1965-1969. Pushing Too Hard: The Best Of The Seeds (2-CD) is a 49-track collection presented in a slipcase. Eight of these selections are live tracks, the rest are studio numbers.

Born in Dearborn, near Ann Arbor, Michigan on 6th May 1945, Bob Seger began his career with a school band, the Decibels in 1961. In 1963, he joined the Town Criers and later the Omens led by Doug Brown, the most popular Ann Arbor group. Backed by the Omens, he released a single as The Beach Bums and finally formed Bob Seger and The Last Heard.

Their debut single was released in May 1966 on the local HideOut label (owned by Punch Andrews) and sold locally more than 50,000 copies. With fuzz guitar, acidy organ and heavy percussion, East Side Story and Persecution Smith are excellent and soon Cameo decided to distribute the first two singles nationally.

THE SEEDS
FALLIN' OFF THE EDGE

THE SEEDS - Fallin' Off The Edge LP.

Sock It To Me, Santa was a James Brown inspired Xmas song and the flip side of the Beach Bums single was reused for the flip. The fifth single, Heavy Music, began to sell really well and was even issued in France.

Cameo however suddenly went bankrupt, provoking the end of the Last Heard. They were one of the first and best Detroit rock groups, with Seger's powerful vocals, good songwriting and excellent guitars and rhythm section. Bob Seger then signed with Capitol and formed the Bob Seger System with Honaker and Perrine, who also issued a solo album for Hide Out. Pep Perrine was also in the Town Criers with Seger.

After the demise of Bob Seger and The Last Heard, Seger, Honaker and Perrine formed the Bob Seger System. Their first single was released in January 1968 and was an excellent anti-war song backed with a fantastic tune about the prisons' death rows, with a memorable riff. It was a local success in Michigan but their second single sold nationally and reached No. 17 in the National Charts.

Their debut album Ramblin' Gamblin' Man is a good example of Detroit Sound psychedelia and is highly recommended. Its follow-up, Noah saw the permanent inclusion of Bob Schultz on keyboards (he had already guested on the first album) and the influential arrival of a singer/songwriter, Tom Neme. More psychedelic (the long Cats) and less structured, the album is somewhat disappointing and its sales were poor, prompting Neme and Schultz to leave the group. Tom Neme would come back in 1979 with the Barooga Bandits. Even today Bob Seger still refuses to reissue Noah.

Dave Watson then joined the group and the last Bob Seger System album marked a return to a powerful rock with excellent guitars and great vocal parts on Lucifer, Teachin' Blues and River Deep, Mountain High. All three albums were produced by Seger and Punch Andrews, the former HideOut label owner, who went on to work with Seger on all of his subsequent output.

Bob Seger then disbanded his group and went to spend a year at Michigan University. He would return to the music scene at the end of 1971.

In 1970 British pop singer James Royal covered Noah. In the nineties Lucifer was covered by Jeff Tarlton on his Sinner EP.

Compilation appearances include: Lookin' Back on Best of Hideout Records (CD), Michigan Nuggets (CD) and Michigan Brand Nuggets (2-LP); and 2+2 on The Seventh Son (LP). (SR)

Brand New Morning is an excellent solo album in which Seger plays all the instrumental parts (piano and acoustic guitars). A very intimate atmosphere and an interesting production, totally different from his previous or subsequent work, it hasn't been reissued.

After Brand New Morning Seger joined Teegarden and Van Winkle and recorded Smokin O.P.'s with them and Mike Bruce on the new Palladium label managed by Punch Andrews.

Smokin O.P.'s (for "Smoking Other Person's Cigarettes", the cover art representing a cigarette pack) is a really good blues and rock album, with covers of Tim Hardin, Bo Diddley and Steve Stills. There's also a new recording of Heavy Music, the Bob Seger and The Last Heard song.

In 1974, Seger formed the Silver Bullet Band with Drew Abbott (ex-Third Power), and went on to sell millions of singles and albums of classic and well structured U.S. rock. These are, however, totally outside the scope of this book. (SR/EW/MW)

Seompi is on a very short list of Texas bands that successfully embraced the emerging heavy rock sound at the turn of the decade, using it (as did Mariani and, to a lesser degree, Josefus) to create provocative original music.

Created by Williams in 1969 as a power trio with no guitarist, it was this unusual line-up that recorded the first single on Blackstar. When both the single and the dual-bass guitar line-up were met with public indifference, Williams wisely ended the experiment and brought in Watkins on guitar. It was this more traditional quartet line-up that recorded all the music heard on the two full-length collections listed above, which are recommended. Both contain several of the 45 sides, and are fleshed out with period rehearsal tapes of varying quality.

Fans of dark hard-rock should investigate this band's music.

Williams had earlier been with The Headstones and their retrospective CD 24 Hours (Everyday) also includes the four tracks on Seompi's two Blackstar label singles.

Released on the same label as Zerfas, Dan Modlin/Dave Scott and Primevil, Sequoiah was a trio playing six and 12-string acoustic and electric guitars, bass and percussion. Their music is mainly rural folk-rock and their material includes Trail Of Tears, Now She's Gone, I Can't Make It Any Better and The Sun Shines For You. Their album was housed in a cover depicting the head of an Indian chief covered with eagle's feathers. (SR)

ALBUM: 1(A) THE EARLY BIRD CAFE (Capitol SKAO-207) 1969

45: Early Bird Cafe/I'm A Man (Capitol P-2493) 1970

From San Francisco, The Serfs were a quite popular live act on the Bay Area scene between 1968 and 1969. Produced by Tom Wilson, their album is an interesting blend of psych-blues with some jazz influences. The best moments are the covers (Miles Davis' All Blue, Spencer Davis Group's I'm A Man and Dylan's Like A Rolling Stone), as their original compositions tend to use too much brass.

Their leader, Mike Finnegan, had previously released a single on Parkway. He would later work with Dave Mason, became a session man and also released several albums, alone, with Dudek and Kruger or with Jerry Wood.

Larry Faucette played conga on Hendrix's Electric Ladyland, while Lane Tietgen would become a songwriter, notably for Kindred. (SR) was also available on vinyl. A second album was also recorded but not released until 1998 Green Morning ( ). This was subsequently issued on CD (RD Records RD 001) 2001.

San Francisco-based band The Serpent Power was led by poet David Meltzer. He formed the band with his wife Tina in 1966. Ed Denton (then manager of Country Joe And The Fish) recommended them to Vanguard after hearing their first gig, a benefit for the Telegraph Group Neighborhood Centre on 27th November 1966. Stenson and Ellis had earlier played with The Grass Roots. The album is notable for some tasty mellow guitar work on tracks such as Gently Gently and Open House, whilst Tina's beautiful vocals are to the fore on Flying Away, a beautiful mellow song. However, the group is probably best remembered for the album's closing track Endless Tunnel, an ambitious amalgam of Western and Eastern musical styles on which J-P Pickens guests. Now a mini collectors' item this album is recommended.

A second album, Green Morning, was recorded for Capitol but shelved until its release in 1998.

After the demise of The Serpent Power, the Meltzer's made a further album, Poet Song, which is also worth obtaining.

Bob Cuff later joined the band Mystery Trend. Moscoso later played for The Cleveland Wrecking Co. and eventually became a carpenter in Marin County.

Jean-Paul Pickens, who was one of San Francisco's legendary 'Diggers', and his friend Gene Estribou released an unusual and rare folk album, Intensifications (MEA Records) circa 1966.

Up & Down has been compiled on The Vanguard Folk Album (CD) and on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD plus book). (VJ/SR/CF)

45: Stop Girl/One By One (Ideal 1168) 1967

This is a fabulous single from a Norvelt, Pennsylvania band that evidently really dug the Blues Magoos' style. One By One is a great cover of one of the Magoos' better-known ditties but it's Stop Girl that's the winner being an astounding pounding poppy fuzzer.

Compilation appearances include: Stop Girl on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 6 (LP & CD) and Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 5 (LP & CD); and One By One on Wyld Sydes Volume Six (CD). (MW)

Jamboree/It's Not Easy To Forget (Red Bird 10-080) 1966

These New Yorkers put out two very collectable singles that now command high asking prices. Why? Well, these are garagy R&B/soul belters in the style so beloved by "Northern Soul" collectors. Jamboree in particular is an incredible stomper that it's absolutely impossible to sit still to.

THE SERPENT POWER

THE SERPENT POWER - Self Titled LP.

Another reason for their desirability is that around the end of 1966 the band relocated to Miami, where they were joined by Adams and Ferguson (formerly of Kentucky outfit Mersey Beats U.S.A.). In 1968-9 they returned north after changing their name to The New Rhythm and Blues Quintet (NRBQ). (MW/JLh)

Ain't Gonna Eat Out My Heart Anymore (Modern 1035) 1967

A mid-sixties punk band from Mobile, Alabama 17th Avenue Exits managed to get their sole fuzzed-out single released by an independent Los Angeles label better known for blues and R&B. Both sides have reappeared on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 9 - The Nightclub (LP & CD) and the Nuggets From The Golden State: Scarey Business (CD); the latter Big Beat compilation unearths garage-punk nuggets on the Modern, Titan and Downey labels. 45: One Eyed Witch/Shake (Prophonics 2027) 1967

A rare single by a Flint, Michigan band, which continues to elude compilers and therefore commands high prices. Recorded at Prophonics Studios in Mount Morris, the top side appears to be an original by H. Goodwald and is backed by a cover of the Sam Cooke hit. I don't believe it has been booted but there appear to be at least three label colour variations (two different greens and one white with green) so perhaps it did well locally and required multiple pressings? ALBUM: 1(A) SUNRISE (Fantasy Worlds Unlimited) 1976 R3

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (w/insert) (Project Aquarius PA 001) 1994 in a limited numbered edition of 275.

The tracks that comprised this Virginia album date from 1970 thru' to 1976. It varies from very soft female-vocal 'folk-psych' to melodic keyboard dominated proggy-rock with flowing guitar. There's nothing heavy at all about this quartet. File in the 'hippie-rock' genre because of its gently drifting feel and odes to nature (The Snail and Robin), not necessarily as a put-down.

Their album was recorded as a project for an electronic music course at Virginia Commonwealth University. A second album called Dreams was recorded but not released. This was a more progressive effort.

The band soldiered on until the early eighties, playing their farewell gig at a college for the deaf! (MW/VJ/JSo)

45: People Grow On You/
The Day Before Love (Gama 45-676) 1968

NB: shown as by "The 7th Seal".

The quintet, attending college in Bridgewater, Virginia was previously known as The English Muffins. Their album, a limited edition of 400, is taken from tapes for an unreleased Justice album recorded in Winston-Salem, North Carolina in 1967. Whilst many on the Justice label suffer from a dearth of originals and a similar selection of cover material, several originals are included here, which occupy minor-mood introspective garage-ballad territory. Well I Know is a fine example and their reworking of It's My Pride, from The English Muffins' repertoire, is very Zombiesque in the vocal arrangements. Proud Reflections is a moody jangler. The dark horse and arguably the best track is Make Your Bed, a low-key folk-punker that ends surprisingly in a crescendo of drums and feedback.

The 7th
Seal
Reflections

THE 7th SEAL - Reflections LP.

Of the covers, Till The End Of The Day and Mister You're A Better Man Than I are above-par with searing lead guitar. Soulful aspirations are aired in Midnight Hour and the Rascals' Come On Up, whereas blues reign in the near five-minute finale I've Got A Mind To Give Up Livin'.

Numerous photos and an insert with the band's history complete a welcome release, certainly one of the most interesting and rewarding from the Justice stable.

By April 1968 and the Gama single, Schroeder was the sole survivor of the album line-up. Organist Bob Altic had been an early member of The English Muffins; he was replaced soon after the single by Richard Price. People Grow On You is great psych with whispering vox at the beginning and end (sans music) and nice guitar work. The flip, composed by Steve Hale, is a ballad - adequate but nothing exceptional. (MW/FU/BHr)

Although the term Seward's Ice Box is associated with Alaska, this band was from Youngstown, Ohio. Their summer 1968 release demonstrates great taste by featuring a pair of decidedly uncommercial covers, of Ultimate Spinach and Country Joe & The Fish. According to George Gell's excellent buckeyebeat site, they also covered Iron Butterfly, which proved useful on Phil Kramer's CV- in the mid-seventies he turned up in the reformed Butterfly and did an excellent vocal impression of Doug Ingle on Scorching Beauty's High On A Mountain Top. A popular Memphis, Tennessee pop group who were formed in 1966 by brothers Shadden and Preston Williams. Their debut single in October 1966 featured a cover of a Marsha Sharp song and it started to do well in The South. Then teen-crooner Bobby Vee did a near carbon-copy of their version and ended up with a million-seller hit, Ain't Life Unfair? Two more singles were released but didn't do so well. After the third, the band expanded with the arrival of Bryant and Singleton from The Funny Company. Then Shadden suddenly quit the band one night at a show following a religious experience and the band was forced to soldier on without him. Some months later they added a horn section, changed their name to Piccadilly Circus and issued two brassy pop singles on Trump. For much more on this band and the Memphis sixties scene, pick up Ron Hall's book 'Playing For A Piece Of The Door' (Shangri-La Projects, 2001, ISBN 0-9668575-1-8).

The band's best moment from our viewpoint is All I Want Is You. It can be found on the book's companion compilation A History Of Garage And Frat Bands In Memphis (CD) and had previously appeared on The Garage Zone Vol. 3 (LP) and The Garage Zone Box Set (4-LP + 7"). (MW/RHI)

This West Texas group changed their name five times in the course of as many records. They started out on their first single as K.C. Grand And The Shades. By the time of the follow-up - the 'A' side was a punky ballad, the flip an instrumental - they'd become Mack Tubb And The Shades. Their next incarnation as The Shades produced a credible punk-soul song Ginger Bread Man. This attracted the attention of International Artists who released their next two efforts under slightly different names. The first of these - a psych/pop single - is usually considered their finest moment. The band then underwent a more drastic name change to Sweet Briar.

45s:	It'll Be Too Late/Goin' To The Moon	(JRP 002) 1966
	Cinnamon Snowflake/But Not Today	(JRP 003) 1966

The Shadow Casters hailed from Aurora, Illinois. Cinnamon Snowflake is a laid-back folk-rocker, whilst both It'll Be Too Late and Goin' To The Moon are rather primitive and lightweight affairs.

Compilation appearances include: Cinnamon Snowflake on Psychotic Moose And The Soul Searchers (LP); and It'll Be Too Late on Garage Zone, Vol. 2 (LP) and The Garage Zone Box Set (4-LP). (VJ/MW)

45s:	Come Live With Me/ One By One	(Tomorrow's Productions TP 0001) 1968

NB: released in the U.K. (Roulette RO 504) 1969.

Late sixties New York freak-attack one might think from the tracks featured on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 3 (CD) (Shadow Mann and You Gotta Be Me). However, the single shows the other side - insipid orchestrated studio cash-in pop. Both sides were written by Art Wayne and arranged by Paul Harris.

Shadow Mann is actually Shadow Morton, Phil Spector's only real rival, who produced The Shangri-Las amongst others. The album is a more than uneven affair but it has its moments. (VJ/MW/SR)

45:	If You Love Me/The Big Mess	(Woodrich 18507/8) 1967

This is another sought-after garage single on the Huntsville, Alabama label, which manufactured small quantity pressings for the bands to distribute themselves. Thankfully both sides have been featured on The Cicadelic 60s 7 (CD). See also The Hi-Boys, Poor Souls, Rocks, Shandells Inc. and Wombats. (MW)

45s:	Follow Me/Heart Of Wood	(Fleetwood 4553) 1966
	I'm Beggin' You/Summertime	(DME 200,964/5) 1966

From Woburn and Revere, Massachusetts this band took their name from the U.K. Shadows, of whom lead guitarist Bill Trainor was (and still is) a big fan. The first single was never officially issued but some copies were pressed as a few are known to exist in collections. However, the band was never able to get any copies and they ended up suing Fleetwood Recording.

The band were also sponsored by Vox instruments and toured with the movie 'How To Stuff A Wild Bikini' in the summer of 1965. The following October, they became the first instrumental group to perform at 'The Boston Music Hall'

Bill Trainor had to join the service before the second record was recorded which accounts for the lightweight sound. After he returned from service the band lasted for a few more years, recording several demos of cool late sixties pop-rock. The early line-up also made many unreleased recordings of rock instrumental standards.

Compilation appearances have included: Heart Of Wood and I'm Beggin' You on New England Teen Scene (CD); Heart Of Wood and Follow Me on New England Teen Scene, Vol. 1 (LP); and I'm Beggin' You on New England Teen Scene, Vol. 2 (LP) and Today Is Just Tomorrow's Yesterday 1 (CD). These four French releases have picture sleeves with photographs of the group.

This garage band was formed in 1964 by Warren Rodgers, Norm Gotsch and Wayne Pursell, who went to Prospect High School in Mt. Prospect, Illinois. They took their name after the UK act The Shadows, adding the "Knight" reference from their high school mascot and recruited Jim Sohns. Strongly influenced by the Brit-Invasion sounds, they even started a teen-club The Cellar, named in honour of The Cavern Club.

The original line-up was discovered playing a showcase concert at the Cellar Club in Chicago's Arlington Heights which was being staged to attract talent spotters from record companies. Bill Traut and George Badonsky of Dunwich Records bit the bait and the band was signed up and went on to give this hitherto obscure label its major national success.

Before the release of their debut single, however, Wayne Pursell was replaced by Joe Kelley (ex-The Vectors) in September 1965, and in December, Norm Gotsch was also replaced by Jerry McGeorge.

Their restrained version of Van Morrison's classic song with Them, Gloria, was chosen for their debut single because it was the band's showstopper. It made No. 10 in the charts, giving them their only Top 20 hit. Tom Schiffour's machine-gun drumming over the final choruses perhaps gave it a distinctive edge. By contrast the flip, Dark Side was a haunting melodic piece, in contrast to the bands other material... it turns out that this track was written by Wayne Pursell, but copyrighted in Warren Roger and Jim Sohns names, after Wayne had left the band. Shortly after the single's release, Warren Rogers and Jerry McGeorge swapped bass/lead guitar roles.

The Shadows Of Knight's debut album, recorded during March/April 1966, was flush with cover versions of classics like I Got My Mojo Working, Hoochie Coochie Man and Oh Yeah. The album climbed to No. 46 in the U.S. Album Charts and provided their second single, Oh Yeah, a Bo Diddley cover. The Shadows Of Knight's version climbed to a tremendous climax of blasting fuzz guitars and just made it to the lower reaches of the U.S. Top 40. Their third single, Bad Little Woman, a reinterpretation of a very obscure British R&B single by The Wheels was another guitar extravaganza and coupled with its rather weird-sounding flip side Gospel Zone, which was dominated by wildly over echoed percussion, some regard this as their finest hour. In commercial terms, however, it was less successful peaking at No. 91.

BACK DOOR MEN
The Shadows of Knight

THE SHADOWS OF KNIGHT - Back Door Men LP.

The band's second album, Back Door Men was a mixture of cover versions and originals. It provided more examples of their Bo Diddley-inspired sound and of Joe Kelley's superb guitar work. However, the band were now beset again by personnel problems with Dave Wolinski, (of The Males), who'd played keyboards on some tracks on the second album joining to replace Warren Rogers, who was kicked out of the band after a gig and subsequently drafted into the U.S. Army. This line-up cut a raw version of I Got My Mojo Working in December 1966, which was later included on the 1971 compilation Early Chicago (LP). Two more singles were recorded; Willie Jean and Someone Like Me, but neither enjoyed any commercial success. Indeed the last one didn't feature the group at all, as the band had disbanded in July 1967, but was the work of Jim Sohns and a group of session musicians. Of the departing members, Wolinski and Schiffour formed Bangor Flying Circus and Jerry McGeorge joined H.P. Lovecraft. This concluded their first musical phase during which they played punkish and R&B numbers.

Next, Jim Sohns (who'd had the band's name trademarked) put together an entirely new line-up (D) which recorded the album for Super K and lasted through until mid-1970. The album showcases the tensions that existed between Super K's commercial pop methodology and the band's garage instincts. The resulting mix of sophisticated bubblegum and raucous garage moments is worth a listen. During this 'bubblegum' phase they enjoyed another minor hit with the Kasenetz-Katz produced Shake, which was also very big regionally. When they fell apart Sohns got together line-up (E) which played heavy metal music. Indeed Sohns kept the band together gigging on the local circuit with various personnel for most of the seventies. With the dawning of the 'punk' era of the late seventies came a new interest in mid-sixties garage bands of the first 'punk' era. Passport were keen to sign them in 1977, but only if they reverted back to their sixties image and style, which they refused to do.

Vocalist Jim Sohns was arrested in 1980, although he only served a three-year sentence for drug charges. In the years that followed, The Shadows of Knight enjoyed something of a comeback as several labels reissued their material. Sohns got a new line-up together that toured with The Romantics and Cheap Trick. In 2008 they toured as part of the 'Psychedelic Shack' tour with a reformed Nazz, Vince Martell and on occasions Henry Gross. They have also released two albums of new material: A Knight To Remember in 2007 and Rock 'n' Roll Survivors in 2008.

The Sundazed Raw 'N' Alive At The Cellar Club 1966 is an amazing slab of raw R&B and shows why this band is so revered, but there are several other retrospectives and their material is well worth investigating.

Of the best known line-up, Joe Kelley departed to form his own blues band, which also included Tom Schiffour; Jerry McGeorge joined H.P. Lovecraft and Dave Wolinski firstly went on to the Bangor Flying Circus and later Rufus. He has also worked with Quincy Jones and Michael Jackson. Wayne Pursell started a band called "The" which later became The Regiment.

45:	Search Your Soul/My Girl	(Sol 201) 1969

A Boston-based band whose superb Search Your Soul, originally released on the Sol label in the fall of '69, was written and sung by Brian Chase. It's a superb garage disc with lots of fine guitar, fuzz and echo. The single was produced by Ray Fournier, who was also responsible for engineering much of the music for the Cambridge-based Polaris label.

The original name of the band was "The Shadows" - but fearing a lawsuit from the better known British act, was soon changed. John "Shorty" Hill: - "The band had been together for about five years when Search Your Soul was recorded (we stayed together through high school, and then a bit beyond). We broke up shortly after that. Brian, John Lowell and I then formed Lord Timothy, and as such we played together throughout northern New England for several more years. Brian and John also later played together in Owl".

"After Lord Timothy I played the New England club scene with various rock bands - American Stone, Sugarbear and The Full Moon Travelling Band. In 1976 I formed Shorty Hill and The Longhaulers, which built quite a following playing small combo swing music. I'm still actively playing guitar - now with A Little On The Side."

Search Your Soul can also be heard on New England Teen Scene, Vol. 3 (LP) and An Overdose Of Heavy Psych (CD). (MW/VJ//BE/JH)

45: I Wonder Why/It Was Me (Sonic 202) 1973

This outfit came from Humboldt, Iowa. They evolved out of a band called Lazy River. This album is one of only three rock albums issued on the IGL/Sonic labels, which were based in Milford, Iowa. Only 300 copies were released, making it a very rare album. Musically, it has that early seventies progressive feel (although some collectors describe it as a Neil Young type rural-rock/folk). The music is pleasant guitar folk with organ and some psychedelic influences on tracks like Long Road To Ole' Miss. The strongest tracks are Granite Feast, Chameleon (I Love You) and Beyond Eternity. Steve Fox wrote or co-wrote all the material on the album.

They also issued a pre-album single on Sonic. Just 1,000 copies were pressed.

The prolific reissue label, Gear Fab later reissued the album on CD with bonus tracks, as well as a vinyl version. At the time of the reissue the liners reveal that Steve Fox was working as an electronics technician in State Center, Iowa and also publishing analysis of social issues. Jon Porter was an insurance agent in Boulder City, Nevada and a representative in the Nevada State Legislature. Randy Berka was a genetic researcher in Davis, California and Dan Dodgen owned a retail store in Fort Dodge, Iowa. Both Dodgen and Berka were still playing music.

This group had no relationship to another "Shadrack" who recorded an eponymous album (GRT 8024) in 1977, this was a country/folk trio with female vocals.

Granite Feast has been compiled on Gear Fab's Psychedelic Sampler (CD). (VJ/SR)

Dennis Dupree From Danville/
You Don't Know Like I Know (It's A Gass 6831) 1968

The Shady Daze was formed in the summer of 1966, out of the remnants of the Travel-Aires (Gore and Owen) and the Silhouettes (Drziewicki, Jordan and Rupp). Kurt Gore had earlier played in the Roustabouts in 1965, prior to joining the Travel-Aires with Gregg Owen in 1965-66.

Best known for their original fuzz punker I'll Make You Pay (co-written by Drziewicki, Jordan and Rupp), the 'Daze was more adept at playing the Top 40 fare of the day, citing the Young Rascals as particular favourites. In fact, it was a 'Rascals cover Love Is A Beautiful Thing that comprised the band's first single, backed with I'll Make You Pay. Though the latter is now rightly considered a classic of the garage punk era, Love Is A Beautiful Thing did manage to chart in '67 in such locales as Green Bay, Wisconsin and St. Joseph, Michigan. During this time, The Shady Daze was regularly booked at the Blue Village in Westmont, Illinois - a club (owned by the band's manager, Robert Chappelow) that advertised itself as "The Home Of The Shady Daze".

Kurt Gore: - "We (The Shady Daze) were friends with other contemporary Chicago groups including Saturdays Children, The Cryan' Shames, The Mauds and The Shadows of Knight. In fact, for a while The Cryan' Shames also rehearsed at The Blue Village and taught us how to play their hit It Could Be We're In Love."

During its three year existence, The Shady Daze played alongside the Music Explosion, Buffalo Springfield and The Doors, among others. They also appeared on the Chicago TV programs "Kiddie A-Go-Go" and "Swinging Majority", where the band lip-synched I'll Make You Pay live on-air. Before disbanding in 1969, the group released their second and final single on the It's A Gass label (also owned by Chappelow), Dennis Dupree From Danville backed with You Don't Know Like I Know.

Kurt Gore, Bill Jordan, Gregg Owen, Glen Rupp and Greg Biela all went on to play in later line-ups of The American Breed. Kurt Gore also played with Bonnie Kolac in 1970.

Sundazed has released an EP containing both of the band's singles and I'll Make You Pay has been compiled on the Mindrocker, Vol. 2 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 6: Chicago 1 (CD) and 2131 South Michigan Avenue (2-CD). Dennis Dupree is a cover of a Cryan' Shames ditty. (MDo/MW/KGe)

45: My Pal Foot Foot/Things I Wonder (Fleetwood FL 4584) 1969

NB: shown as by The Shags.

From Fremont, New Hampshire and completely uncommercial, The Shaggs are quite unlike any other group. Their father, Austin Wiggin, rented time in a recording studio so the girls could sing their songs and paid for the pressing of 1,000 copies of their debut album, but only about 100 survived. These were sold locally or given to friends and relatives.

The instrumental backing on their album is fractured, the guitars sound out of tune, the harmonies warped and the lyrics innocent and childlike. However, it's precisely the amateurishness of their records that give them their curiosity value. Musically, they are so bad as to be novelty items, which is probably why their album was so sought-after by collectors prior to its reissue.

After recording their album, The Shaggs continued to gig at Fremont town hall dances, adding younger sister Rachel on bass; they also played at nursing homes, hospitals and county fairs. In 1973, the dances were cancelled by local administrators, who cited fighting, drug use, and scuff marks on the floor of the town hall as their reasons. At the age of 28, Helen Wiggin married Henry Bickford, who she'd met at the Saturday night dances. Afraid to tell her father, she lived at home for three months. When the truth came out, Austin went after Henry with a shotgun (never used) and kicked Helen out of The Shaggs. In 1975, Austin reinstated Helen and took The Shaggs back into the studio, where they recorded the tunes that made up their second album, Shaggs' Own Thing, which was eventually released in 1982. It included Betty's Painful Memories and cover versions by The Carpenters and The Pipkins, and is considered a technically better album than their debut. In 1975, aged 47, Austin Wiggin died of a massive heart attack.

THE SHAGGS
Philosophy of The World

THE SHAGGS - Philosophy Of The World LP.

The Shaggs disbanded after their father died, married, started families and gave up music. Rare copies of Philosophy Of The World were later discovered and circulated among collectors. Boston radio station WBCN-FM played some cuts from the album and Frank Zappa got to hear them and told 'Playboy' they were "better than the Beatles - even today," and he named Philosophy of the World as his third favourite album of all time. In 1980, Terry Adams, keyboardist for the rock band NRBQ, arranged for Philosophy of the World to be reissued on his band's Red Rooster label, a subsidiary of Rounder Records; two years later, Red Rooster issued Shaggs' Own Thing. In 1988, the albums were combined and released on CD as The Shaggs. The band's guitarists reunited on stage and played four Shaggs songs at NRBQ's 30th anniversary concert in 1999. The following year the band's life story was optioned for a film. In 2001 Animal World Recordings released a Shaggs tribute album Better Than The Beatles: A Tribute Album To The Shaggs. Then, in 2003, Joy Gregory created the award-winning stage play 'The Shaggs: Philosophy of the World' based on the group's life and music. So it's quite a story from obscurity to fame!

A live version of the previously unreleased My Pal Foot Foot has subsequently resurfaced on Only In America (CD). (VJ/Shaggs website)

	Hummin'/I Who Have Nothing	(Power P-103) 1967
	Mean Woman Blues/She Makes Me Happy	(Capitol 2511) 1969

From Miami, Florida this band apparently spelt Shaggs with two "g's" after drummer Gregg Shaw's first name. In 1967, they had a personnel swaparound with Kollektion and, by 1968, no original members were left.

Their third single on Power adopted the sound favoured by those infamous Long Island-sound outfits. Hummin' bridges the gap twixt the strident tones and electricity of The Blues Magoos and the blue-eyed soul of The Young Rascals - and comes off well. The flip is a 'power ballad' in Vanilla Fudge style.

There's an interesting story behind the Capitol single.... The Miami Shaggs spent much of 1966 touring Michigan and became very popular in Detroit, where they played alongside many of the Hideout-type bands. This explains why their second single came out on the Palmer label. They returned to Florida where they would cut their final single on Power in late 1967. Meanwhile their manager Ray Skop had elected to stay in Detroit. He assembled a completely new Shaggs from local musicians and would eventually secure a deal with Capitol.

Mean Woman Blues has been described as Roy Orbison fronting a garage band. The flip is highly-rated, described by Mike Markesich as "killer power pop/garage".

Skop was a former teacher at Southwest Miami Senior High School and also the manager of The Modds.

Ring Around The Rosie can also be found on From The New World (LP) and Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box). (JLh/MW/JBn)

ALBUM: 1(A) WINK (MCM 6311) 1967 R3

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Resurrection CX 1295) 1984. (1) reissued on CD (Radioactive RRCD079) 2004.

Despite the year this album could have come from '65-'66. One of those mega-rare releases that serious collectors will kill for, it fits into the 'prep-rock' niche, though this is not yet another Phillips Academy outfit but a five-piece from the campus of Notre Dame University, South Bend, Indiana. The liner notes tell us that it was recorded on 14th March 1967 at the International Recording Studio in one 20-hour session. "Engineers Perry Johnson and Verner Ruualds amazed. Probably recording history". 'Fraid not chaps but a nice try!! 10 predictable covers and two originals in a soft melodic folk-rock style - no fuzz 'n' farfisa ravers here - though they do get more frantic on My Generation and Let's Spend The Night Together. Other covers include Them, Hendrix (a bizarre version of Hey Joe), The Byrds and Beau Brummels.

Probably successful businessmen, professionals or brain surgeons now(*), the quintet may curl up with embarrassment when reminded of this platter but they'll surely scour the attic for lost copies when they hear what collectors will pay for an original! And, with this entry, they've a place in history too.

NB: (*) Geoff Gillette is thought to subsequently have had a career as a producer/recording engineer. (MW/JSs)

	Stop And Listen/Melissa	(Capitol 5995) 1967

NB: α shown as by The Shags. There's also a compilation CD, Shag (Gear Fab Records GF-216) 2005 that compiles their previously unreleased recordings of this era.

From Milwaukee, Wisconsin this band was originally known as The Shags. On 30th December 1965, they appeared at the Milwaukee Auditorium amongst a dozen local outfits for the 'Milwaukee Sentinel Rock'n'Roll Revue'. Captured on the lo-fi compilation album of that name (Century 23214, 1966) is their version of the Stones' Get Off Of My Cloud. Their Stop And Listen was an above average punk song with a catchy guitar riff and lyrics that were indicative of the times:-

"Everybody's goin'
Everybody's tripping,
Everybody tells you what you've been missing."
(From Stop And Listen)

They moved to San Francisco in 1968 and settled on a ranch in Nicasio, California. They built a studio there and gigged at top venues of the era like The Fillmore West, the Matrix and Family Dog. They also travelled to Los Angeles, headlining at The Whisky A Go Go on one occasion. They often performed with dancers under strobe lighting. Essentially most of their music in this era as captured on the Gear Fab compilation is prog-rock with unusual time signatures and prominent percussion, including congas. All seven tracks are originals and Gypsies In The Forest is top of the pile. The material was recorded at Pacific High Recording Studio in San Francisco. The songs were to be used as a demo for a major record deal, but they didn't get the right offer.

Compilation appearances have included: Stop And Listen on Boulders, Vol. 1 (LP), Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 10 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 5 (CD), Pebbles Box (5-LP), Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), Acid Dreams Epitaph (CD), Trash Box (5-CD) and Great Pebbles (CD); and Cause I Love You and Dance Woman (as Shags) on Psychedelic States: Wisconsin (CD). 	Breathe In My Ear/Easy Street	(Kayden 408) 1967
	As Long As I Have You/Tell Me	(Cameo 470) 1967

The Shags was formed in late 1963 by Tommy Violante with a few high school friends: Carl Augusto, Rich Ventura, and Jeff Cannata. This initial line-up never played professionally, although The Shags quickly began to gig including an appearance at Frankie's Restaurant in Orange at a wedding, with Tommy, Carl, Jeff, and Mike Goodwin on bass.

In '64 they were known as The Deltons and absorbed Beatles influences. By '65 they had reverted to The Shags moniker and over the next couple of years had a number of hits locally in New Haven, Connecticut. These included Wait And See (1965), By My Side, (1966) and I Call Your Name (1966). Though most of their material is pop-beat, Breathe In My Ear is a tougher punker with some ear-splitting guitar and pounding keyboards.

In 1967, Tommy Violante and Carl Augusto formed The Pulse, along with members of The Bram Rigg Set.

Today Violante still performs with the "Key West Trio", a Jimmy Buffett cover band that also does Beach Boys and a few fifties and sixties covers, doing gigs mainly in the Northeast area.

Compilation coverage to date has included: Hide Away on Mindrocker, Vol. 3 (LP); Don't Press Your Luck on New England Teen Scene, Vol. 1 (LP) and New England Teen Scene (CD); Hey Little Girl on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 6: The Biker (LP & CD) and Don't Press Your Luck (2-LP only not on the CD); Tell Me on Realities In Life (LP); Wait And See on Bad Vibrations, Vol. 3 (LP) and Trip In Tyme Volume 3 (CD); It Hurts Me Bad on Quagmire Volume 3 (CD); Breathe In My Ear on Fuzz Flaykes & Shakes, Vol. 1 (LP & CD); Breathe In My Ear, Tell Me and As Long As I Have You on Best Of Kayden & Merven Records (CD); and Don't Press Your Luck, Hide Away, Come Back To Me, Wave Radio Jingle, Specter's Radio Ad and Make A Record With The Shags all appear on Don't Press Your Luck (2-LP & CD). 45:	Louis Louis/Summertime News	(Concert 1-78-65) 1965

New Ulm in southern Minnesota was home to the makers of this raw garage single, the top side being one of several covers of The Kingsmens' legendary song, this time with a slightly altered title. The flip side was actually a cover of Eddie Cochran's Summertime Blues but the Concert label, which was one guy working out of a basement, managed to misspell it as Summertime News. The Kingsmen's song was misspelt too! Eventually Bruce Melzer left to join the Navy and was replaced by Jim Hughes. They soldiered on for about a year until John Volinkaty moved up to Minneapolis at which point John Ginkel became drummer in another New Ulm band, The Depressions. Tom Ginkel became a school teacher in 1970 and formed a weekend band called Clover, who went on to record a single and an album.

You'll also find Louis Louis on Mondo Frat Dance Bash A Go Go (CD) and When The Time Run Out (LP & CD). (VJ)

NB: α and β reissued as a picture sleeve EP on clear wax and with insert (CMP Records CMEP 9901) 1999.

This was a sextet from Peoria, Illinois. Both singles came with picture sleeves which are very pricey now. The band's music was in tune with their image - clean-cut harmony beat ballads with a romantic air .... no rebellious stances here.

Talk To A Sidewalk is on Every Groovy Day (LP), incorrectly billed as Talk To A Stranger. (MW)

45:	The World Is Upside Down/The Special Ones	(RFT 310) 1966

From north-eastern Massachusetts, this outfit originally formed as The Dimensions in 1964 later changing name to The Cryin' Shames, but when the similarly-named Chicago band got big they dropped the Cryin' from their name becoming simply The Shames. Their single was a pretty standard garage grunge.

Compilation appearances include: My World Is Upside Down and Special Ones on Back From The Grave, Vol. 6 (LP); The World Is Upside Down on Chosen Few, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD); and Special Ones on The Chosen Few, Vol. 1 (LP). (VJ)

NB: α The flip side was an instrumental by The Swuft Wulf.

This Huntington, Alabama band's rare single came out on Woody Richardson's gospel/country label and was probably recorded in Nashville. Just Cry, with squeaky-thin fuzz sound and Psychotic Reaction style break, can also be heard on Basementsville! U.S.A. (LP). Both sides are aired on The Cicadelic '60s - Vol. 7 (CD), which notes that the label left the distribution to the artists and only pressed up small quantities (about 500). The CD features two other garage bands that cropped up on this label - The Rocks and The Shadows. Shandells, Inc. recorded a third single, Smile On Me, Baby/Can't Find A Job, but it was never released.

Other compilation appearances include: Say What I Mean and Just Cry on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 8 (CD); and Say What I Mean on Wyld Sydes Volume 3 (CD). (MW/MM)

	β	Gypsy/Try A Little Tenderness	(La Salle 25) 1969

NB: α shown as by Shan Dels. β shown as by Ellen and The Shandels.

A Long Island, New York band from the communities of Levittown and Wantagh, they specialised in subdued beat-pop and garagy ballads with a unique twist. Instead of a lead guitar they employed a Cordovox, a small keyboard-like organ, whose accordion-like strains enhances the moodiness and infuses a Gallic flavour.

Produced by New York City impresario Carl Edelson (also responsible for release by The Lemon Sandwich and The Taboos), they would release several interesting singles over a few years, culminating in a 1969 recording where they backed a female singer called Ellen on a faithful rock rendition of the Moody Blues' Gypsy.

No Way Out is a harmonious mid-tempo charmer; Treat Me Like A Man is coy bouncy pop; Please Stay is a minor-mood garage ballad with a nod to the Zombies' school of wistfulness.

Compilation appearances include: Shades Of Blue on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 5: Nobody To Love (LP & CD); and Please Stay on Shutdown '66 (LP) and Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 1 (CD). (MW/MM)

NB: α also released in France shown as by "Kenny Shane" (Vogue Int'l 80024). β also shown as by "Kenny Shane".

This is believed to be a Los Angeles artist. More digging turned up the songwriters, Kenneth Ancell and Angelo Spezze. They were related and had moved to L.A. from Colorado in the sixties, where they put out loads of records under assumed names - Johnny Angel (& The Halos), Mason Potter, The Exciting Sparklers, Tippy Larkin, Kenny Ancel, and Aldo Hubbins (whose release also came out as by Johnny Shane). Kenny Shane was another one, combining the Christian and surname of those latter alter-egos.

Both sides of the Brent single appear uncredited on the sixties sampler album Music For The Dance Crowd (Time S-310), which features tracks from several Brent singles; it was also released as part of a 3-LP box-set. Both sides can also be heard on Mindrocker, Vol. 13 (LP); and Don't Turn Me Off is also the title cut to Don't Turn Me Off (LP). (VJ/MW)

	Some Things A Man's Gotta Do/ Walking In The Sunshine	(Dunhill D-4242) 1970

This Los Angeles-based act fused rock with reggae and Latin rhythms, sounding occasionally a bit like Santana. Their A&M album was produced by Jerry Riopelle and relied heavily on well-known covers. The line-up hadn't changed when they switched to Dunhill but, judging by the Steve Barri-produced single, they'd moved back into mainstream pop-rock territory, with brass backing and overwrought soulful vocals in the style of Three Dog Night. Their second single was produced by Jerry Riopelle. Their cover of Donovan's Sunshine Superman was released in July 1969. The follow-up single has been seen described as boogie-rock. Their song The Time Has Come can be found on the Dunhill 1970 catalogue sampler Undersound/Uppersoul (LP).

Leader Tommy Reynolds was later in Hamilton, Joe Frank & Reynolds. Barile would later play with the Ventures. (SR/MW)

Although Ananda Shankar came from India, this album was recorded in L.A. and the involvement of several respected L.A. rock/session musicians justifies its inclusion here - apart from the musical content, which should appeal to sitar-lovers and fans of East-West fusions. Notable cohorts include: Drake Levin formerly of Paul Revere and The Raiders, Brotherhood and Friendsound; Mark Tulin of The Electric Prunes; seasoned sessioneers Mike Botts (later in Bread) and Jerry Scheff (numerous Curt Boettcher-related groups including Ballroom, Millennium and Goldenrod). The Associate Producer is James Lowe - possibly THE James (Jim) Lowe who went into studio engineering and production work after leaving the Electric Prunes.

As to the music - all are instrumentals apart from Raghupati and the Stones' Jumpin' Jack Flash. The only other rock cover is the Doors' Light My Fire and these are the most Western and least interesting - the sitar merely meanders along the vocal melody line. Shankar states on the album notes that only Sagar (the Ocean), a beautiful soothing piece, is played in classical style - the sitar is otherwise used as "a medium of expression". The tracks composed with Lewinson are the strongest. Oriental curlicues over a subtle Western backing (Latin American in the case of Mamata) that flow easily, coming across as neither tacky nor exploitative - a bridge between the classical sitar music of Ravi Shankar and Western 'rock with sitar' albums, e.g. the Folkswingers and Lord Sitar. Levinson's occasional keyboard and electronic effects create a unique blend which works surprisingly well. Highlights are: the delicate melancholy of Snow Flower, which can be tasted on Journey To A Higher Key: The Best Of Sitar Psychedelia, Vol. 1 (LP); the aforementioned Sagar, and Metamorphosis, where a Zodiac Cosmic Sounds style evolves into a swirling raga freakout.

Two other tracks have been compiled. Renunciation and Cyrus are on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers Vol. 4 (CD) and Vol. 5 (CD) respectively. Both add flute to the mix and the latter a cooing female vocal with the melody and feel of a French sixties film soundtrack. Neither are on this album, despite what the compilation liner notes state, so where are they from?

Some rate his 1975 album very highly too and think it's better than the Reprise one. It features swirling percussion, organ, guitar, tablas, moog and sitar.

He released numerous other albums in the late seventies and eighties, many of them are now available on CD.

Shankar passed away in March 1999 of heart failure. (MW/VJ)

They released several high quality singles with excellent vocals and resounding, often fuzz, guitar work. A Fool For Your Lies, a Mersey-influenced folk-rocker, can also be heard on Highs In The Mid Sixties, Vol. 15 (LP) and Gravel Volume 3 (CD). An earlier version is exhumed on Wyld Sydes Volume Seven (CD). Dare I Weep, Dare I Mourn, later resurfaced on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 4 (LP); Desert Maiden appears on the 30 Seconds Before The Calico Wall (CD); and Rock-A-Boo can also be found on Die Today (CD). By now the influence of the psychedelic era was evident in their music and this was probably their finest moment. Well worth a listen. (VJ/MW/GM)

An early country-rock outfit from Hutchinson, Minnesota that operated between 1969-1975. Mike Shaw had been in a local outfit The Defiants. Terry Shaw had been in Country Ramblers. This Side/That Side was mostly mellow acoustic folk covers. Mike Shaw and Jim Allen were later in a duo and when Allen quit that Mike Shaw formed his own Mike Shaw Band but none of these outfits recorded. (VJ)

This CD compiles the previously unreleased recordings by this California garage band from the 1966-70 era. The compilation features a whole gamut of different styles, both 'softer' items and more typical garage-rock. Both sides of their rare single are included, as well as recordings by their earlier incarnation as The Hairem. It is certainly worth a listen. (VJ)

Fool Minus A Heart is rather lightweight British Invasion-beat sounds. From Holland in Michigan, they had no connection to the Sheffields on Ssexx who hailed from Des Moines, Iowa and were rather soulful. John Dunn wrote most of their songs.

Compilation appearances include: Do You Still Love Me on Realities In Life (LP) and 2131 South Michigan Avenue (2-CD); Fool Minus A Heart on Best Of Michigan Rock Groups, Vol. 1 (cassette); and Nothing I Can Do on Quagmire Volume 8 (CD) and *Scream Loud!!! This band appears to have been Missouri-based. The picture sleeve notes mention that Shepard was originally from Kansas City and that Kippenberger previously played bass violin with the St. Louis Symphony (40+ years on he's still active on the St. Louis scene). By the way, Red Shepard was a stage name - his real name was William Hersey. He also had a spell in Seatrain and performed in the Hollywood version of the musical 'Hair'. He was quoted in "Easyriders" magazine circa 1970 as also being a sometime member of Salvation, along with Joe Tate.

She's A Grabber, a punky garage number, can also be found on Victims Of Circumstances, Vol. 1 (LP), Garage Zone, Vol. 2 (LP) and The Garage Zone Box Set (LP). (VJ/RMh/MW)

CD: 1 LIVE 1968 - 1969 (Collectables COL-CD-0589) 1994

45s: If I Could See/I Know You Cried (Nowsound 1001) 1968
No Deposit No Return/Ride Baby Ride (Smash 2252) 1969

The band was formed in 1965 by a bunch of high school pals playing for fun. They played a lot in the Houston area and by 1966 their line-up had stabilised to 'A' above, but a little later Dave Franklin joined from local group, The Upper Level. On a gig at the Safari-A-Go-Go in Baytown they met The Runaways' manager Jack Sims, who became their manager too. Early in 1968 they cut their first single at the ACA studios in Houston. 500 copies were pressed. Both songs were written by Mike Claxton and, after he'd finished recording them, he and Sims added the explosion at the end of the flip side from a sound effects album they found in the studio. In particular I Know You Cried was a rip roaring psychedelic number.

Like many of their compatriots they had a number of run-ins with southern rednecks. For a while they rented a house in Houston, inherited from Fever Tree, and once played an all night jam with The Doors when they were in Houston for a show. While they were playing a show in early '69 a talent scout for Mercury spotted them and they went to Los Angeles in May that year to record a second single. It didn't make much impression and it may have been a tax write-off for Smash. When two of the band joined the revived Fever Tree early in 1970, the rest called it a day.

They also recorded a couple of other cuts which have resurfaced on compilations, including Bless Me Woman, a slow number with haunting vocals, and a different version of Ride Baby Ride.

Three of the band's original members apparently still play together and Voxx did have plans to release an album of their material, but check out the release by Collectables instead for that.

Compilation appearances include: Ganada on '69 Love-In (CD); Bless Me Woman, I Know You Cried, I'll Be Gone and Ride Baby Ride (unissued version) on Acid Visions - The Complete Collection Vol. 1 (3-CD); Bless Me Woman and I Know You Cried on Acid Visions, Vol. 2 (LP); I Know You Cried on Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 1 (LP & CD) and Flashback, Vol. 1 (LP); and I'll Be Gone (live) and Ride Baby Ride (live) on There Goes The Neighborhood, Vol. 1 (CD). She's (?)

45: Ah Gee!! Maurie/The Fool (International Artists 104) 1966

The sorry inane pop of Ah Gee!! Maurie on this single contrasts starkly with the garagy flip The Fool where teeny feelings are expressed in a convincingly innocent manner. This track maybe super lightweight, but is gratifying anyway.

You can also find The Fool on Girls In The Garage, Vol. 2 (CD) and Girls In The Garage, Vol. 7 (LP). (MK)

The Shieks (?)

The punk ballad, You Let Me Down, on 1989's 'unreleased Michigan' compilation Thee Unheard Of (LP), is not what it appears to be. It turns out that a gullible compiler was duped by some fraud who manufactured false acetate discs which were actually recordings copied from real singles by obscure bands; this track is actually by the Oncomers, whilst another example is I Can Hear The Raindrops by "The Aces" - actually I Can Hear Raindrops by The Noblemen 4. The Shillings hailed from Allentown, Pennsylvania. Laugh is a melodic and plaintive punk ballad with ringing guitars.

A cover of the Beach Boys' Barbara Ann also made it onto a Fontana acetate. Children & Flowers was a cover of The Critters track and Just For You, Baby was a Mann-Weil cover; the remaining songs were originals written by Jennings and/or Ross.

Drummer Ned Earley left to join local rivals The Limits.

A Los Angeles studio group and the house-band for TV's 'Shindig' show, with an interesting repertoire mixing rock 'n' roll with country music. The roots of the group go back to the Palomino Club, a country music hotspot in North Hollywood that had first opened in 1949, and by 1960 featured Gene Davis, a country and rockabilly performer heading the house band. Throughout the early sixties the Gene Davis band had a steady flow of members including drummers Mel Taylor (later with The Ventures), Jan Curtis Skugstadt, Archie Francis, guitarists Jimmy Snyder, Jerry Inman, Bobby Durham, Glen Campbell and even James Burton who although not a member used to sit in informally when not touring with Rick Nelson. Other members included piano players Clyde Griffin, Leon Russell and Glen D. Hardin (ex-Crickets), bassists Norm Raleigh, Delaney Bramlett and the mainstay from 1960 to 1969, pedal steel guitarist and later bandleader Red Rhodes.

By late 1964 Jack Good had organised his new show 'Shindig' and Leon Russell was chosen to lead the group for the show which included James Burton, drummer Jim Gordon and Delaney Bramlett on bass.

Originally known as The Shindiggers, by 1965 The Shindogs had quickly evolved into the main line-up of Glen D. Hardin (piano), Delaney Bramlett (guitar, vocals, bass), James Burton (lead guitar), Joey Cooper (guitar, vocals) and Chuck Blackwell, an old Oklahoma band-mate of Leon Russell's on drums. Leon Russell led the show's orchestra and would sometimes take a spot with The Shindogs to sing and play piano. The Shindogs line-up was also augmented by members of the other Shindig band, the Ray Pohlman Band which included guitarist Jerry Cole (ex-Champs) and Larry Knechtel on bass. While horn players like Jim Horn were called into the studio group when the need arose, others like Glen Campbell and Billy Preston became semi-regulars on the show. Both Bramlett and Russell had solo singles issued in 1965.

When 'Shindig' was cancelled in late 1965, the last show was aired in January 1966 and the group subsequently split. Most members went on to greater things - Leon Russell to Asylum Choir and a solo career; Cooper and Preston to Mad Dogs, both had solo releases; Delaney Bramlett briefly returned to the Palomino Club with Red Rhodes Detours in 1966 into 1967, married Bonnie, and is best remembered as half of Delaney & Bonnie. The original version of their group, Friends, included J.J. Cale on lead guitar in 1967.

While Chuck Blackwell joined the Taj Mahal Band (1966-1970), both Cooper and Blackwell played with Russell's tour band in the seventies. The highly-regarded guitarist James Burton who'd recorded with Dale Hawkins in the fifties, and throughout the sixties and seventies backed Ricky Nelson, now backed Gram Parsons and Delaney & Bonnie before a long stint in Elvis Presley's show band.

Whether all the famed Shindogs played on the sessions is debatable; indeed the final single may well have been a studio group attempt to cash in on the group's fading fame.

The first single comprises bright'n' breezy Invasion pop, where The Beatles meet The Searchers. The second Russell-produced single is also good harmony-beat. The final single as The Pebbles was produced by Brian Ross (of Music Machine, Friendly Torpedoes etc.). This drops the Invasion influences and turns to US garage sounds for Don't Come Running To Me, a slick fuzz-popper. Who Do You Think You Are has been compiled on Ain't It Hard (CD). Produced by Gary Usher (Sagittarius, Byrds), this is an ambitious folk-rock concept album housed in a gatefold sleeve. It's dreamy and melodic. All the tracks are co-written by Steve Melshenker and Steve Cowan. The music is nothing special but songs like The Ship and The Calm had interesting lyrics, strong melodies and some pretty Crosby Stills and Nash-styled vocal harmonies. The band was largely a regional act from Urbana with a following at the University of Illinois. (SR/SCu/VJ)

Founded in July 1967 by classically-trained violinist Spencer Perskin, Shiva's Headband has proved to be one of Texas' most durable outfits. Earlier, in 1966, Perskin had spent some time in San Francisco where he had briefly played in a band which included folkie Penny Nichols. He returned to Austin to form Shiva's Headband much influenced by his experiences in San Francisco. Their debut single sold well locally and is now a collectors' item. Their follow-up attracted wider attention and that year they relocated to San Francisco and signed for Capitol. They hated San Francisco but remained there to record Take Me To The Mountains, a fine album which included new versions of their first two singles. Perskin's violin is prominent throughout the first album, particularly on the beautiful Song For Peace and standout track Kaleidoscoptic. During their spell in California they played a few gigs at the Avalon. They were also the resident band at the New Orleans House in Berkeley for a while. It was during this time that Spencer Perskin played on Mother Earth's debut album Living With The Animals and also turned down the opportunity of joining the band. Shawn Siegel had similarly refused a spot in The Thingies prior to joining Shiva's Headband in 1968.

SHIVA'S HEADBAND - Country Boy 7" Picture Sleeve.

Having made little money from their Capitol deal, the band returned to Texas. As only 1,000 copies of their second album Coming To A Head were pressed on the small Armadillo label, it has become a rare collectors' item. Different versions of two of the album's tracks, Country Boy/Such A Joy were issued as a single in a picture sleeve. They spent a while in Las Vegas in a vain attempt to set up a string of music clubs before returning to Texas to issue a single Don't Blame Me/Extension, which appeared in another Jim Franklin picture sleeve. Sadly, this appears to have concluded their long relationship with Franklin, who provided the band with their distinctive armadillo imagery.

In 1978, the band issued Psychedelic Yesterday, by far their hardest-rocking album. This is the only Shiva's Headband album with up-front electric guitar and it also finds the band in rare form vocally. This album has also become very difficult to locate in recent years.

Their 1984 album In The Primo Of Life saw the band moving into jazzy and even reggae territory. This album garnered them considerable local accolades and in 1986 they were chosen "Band Of The Year" in a local magazine poll. The band continues to perform to this day.

Compilation appearances include: the excellent Song For Peace on The Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 1 (LP); and Kaleidescoptic (single version) on Texas Flashback (The Best Of) (CD), Texas Flashback, Vol. 3 (LP & CD) and Flashback, Vol. 3 (LP). (VJ/CF)

ALBUM: 1(B) SAN FRANCISCO'S SHIVER (Rockadelic 39) 2000

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Shadoks Music 023) 2001.

Based in San Francisco, this group recorded some tapes in 1972, which were finally released by Rockadelic in 2000. Five long jamming guitar cuts with screaming vocals on Fixer and Bone Shaker and an amazing track called Alpha Man, 15 minutes of flowing West Coast guitar leads combined with heavy rock riffs.

The CD reissue contains four bonus cuts and a liner where Don Peck recounts the band's history.... His first real band was in Dallas in 1967 - The Hungry Freaks who adopted a heavy "badass" image and covered the likes of The Animals, Them, Stones and 13th Floor Elevators. When they split, he joined the black R&B combo Les Watson and The Panthers who recorded on Ike Turner's Vesuvius label.

He'd been flitting back and forth between Dallas and San Francisco, where his sister lived and, in 1969, he decided to settle there. At the end of the year Shiver came together and over the next three or so years became a popular attraction, particularly with the biker fraternities.

Vocalist Saluga was known for his short fuse and wasn't averse to using the metal arm appendage that gave him his nickname. As a result he was fired numerous times, whereupon Frank Twist would take up vocal duties. During their lifespan they also went under the names Pacific Thrust, Kid Courage and Terry Saluga's Riff Raff. (SR/MW)

NB: α shown as by Brian & Dave Tomorrow People.

In 1963, Dave Kalman from Rockdale, Maryland was heavily into The Beach Boys, Jan & Dean, etc. The following year he met Dave Buckman, a displaced Baltimorean who'd just returned from California. The two immediately hit it off and began to create a sound that would develop into both The Shoremen and Brian & Dave "Tomorrow People". Buckman's smooth voice and gift for harmony provided a unique styling and a competitive sound and amazingly the duo cut nearly 100 songs over a five-year period at David C. Smith's Marmon Avenue garage studio.

Prior to the first release Dave Kalman began using the pen name of Brian Allan as an artist, writer and arranger. All of his label credits through that period carried the Brian Allan moniker. Dave Buckman too shortened his name by using his middle name for his surname. He became David Mark. They began calling themselves The Shoremen, a name suggested by WCAO disc jockey, Les Alexander.

Their first release, Look Into Her Eyes, met with modest success in the Baltimore/Washington area and was selected as a "Hometown Sound" on WCAO. The group followed this with a seasonal song The Wonder Of Christmas, which unfortunately was released too late into the holiday season to have any impact. Their final Shoremen release Dance, USA! again had modest local airplay, but was highly-regarded by the group's growing fan base. Dance USA! was an interesting combination of the Liverpool sound and surf music.

Around early 1967, Brian and Dave started creating more philosophic and folk-rock oriented material and changed their name to Brian & Dave "Tomorrow's People". They played many coffee houses in town, including the Peabody Beer and Book Stube, UMBC's "Collage," as well as numerous local TV appearances on Johnny Dark's TV Show, a regular spot on New Wind Blowin' and the Kerby Scott Show. They also auditioned for the Mike Douglas Show in Philadelphia. The only recording released under this name was Time Of The Year on the Bomar label, which got considerable airplay in the Baltimore area, but was only a modest success.

As a band, The Shoremen included line-up 'A' for the vast majority of Brian and Dave's music, except for the recording of Dance, USA! where Chris West played drums and Neil Ulman played bass.

A little known accomplishment of Brian and Dave was their writing of Catonsville Community College's Alma Mater by Dave Kalman and the demo production of the song sung by Dave Buckman.

Today, Dave Buckman is a psychologist in Tallahassee, Florida where he still enjoys playing guitar. Dave Kalman is a consultant, photographer and continues as a very active songwriter with much material in Nashville and associated publishing houses. Dave's song Can't We Start Over Again by the O'Roark Brothers was a pick hit in Billboard, Cashbox and Record World magazines in 1983 and has earned national and international radio play.

You'll also find She's Bad on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 2: You Treated Me Bad (LP & CD) and Yeah Yeah Yeah (CD). (MW/MM/JV/DK)

45: On My Own/Marching Off To War (Colpar 54-1005) 1970

From Sandston, Virginia this band evolved out of the Hustlers, whose members included, at various stages, ex-Reactors(*) Steve Hicks and ex-Outlaws Butch Owens alongside core members Velpo Robertson, Gray McCalley and Ben Luck. The latter then left to join the Barracudas (of A Plane View album) fame.

Their rare album can best be described as heavy psychedelic blues, at its purest on Suicide Blues. There's plenty of good guitar work throughout, Wastin' Time, Just Don't Care, Till We Reach The Sun and Hobo Love Song all have their share, whilst Ellen is a slow bluesy ballad. The album lacks sufficient originality to make it special but if this musical genre is where you're at you shouldn't be disappointed.

For the band's detailed history, check out the the Gear Fab or Akarma reissues. Bomb can also be heard on Gear Fab's Psychedelic Sampler (CD).

45: River Of Hope (mono/stereo) (promo) (Prophesy 55004) c1971

This group of young California musicians evolved out of Ash and were all aged between 17 and 21 at the time of their album. They were discovered by Delaney Bramlett (from Delaney and Bonnie) who arranged for a recording deal with Prophesy and for his DelBon company to produce the album. With Jim Gordon (the keyboard/sax player, not the drummer of Derek and The Dominos) at the controls, the result was a powerful mix of heavy/prog-rock with lots of guitar/organ interplay and good vocals. Ben Benay (ex-Goldenrod) and the sax-player Jerry Jumonville provided some support. All their material was penned by the group members, with the help of J. Loppnow on two tracks and R. Lawson on one. Three cuts (Number Two, Against The Wall and Feelin' Bad) are over five minutes long and, with the opening Bad Road, are among the better moments.

The album appears to have sunk without a trace, but in hindsight deserves to be rediscovered.

Buzzie Buchanan later reappeared in the late seventies as a studio musician, working with Commander Cody and Juice Newton. (SR)

	α	Just Can't Quit/She Don't Need No Other	(King 6331) 1970

NB: α shown as by Miami.

The Shy Guys came from Sanford, Florida. Black Lightening Light is a pretty devastating piece of mindblowin' psychedelia and the flip is a haunting laid-back ballad. Both sides are recommended listening.

Wayne Ceynowa recalls: "Black Lightening Light, was for the most part, a group collaboration. It came together one stormy Florida evening while the band was rehearsing in the back of a Sanford music store, Music Unlimited (M-U). The song was actually titled Black Lightning Light, but those in charge of the M-U label design changed the song title's spelling. This was not discovered until after the pressing. The "B" side, Goodbye To You, was written by me. Unfortunately, I didn't get credit due to another similar label layout error".

"Both songs were recorded along with two further tracks in Nashville, Tennessee in one evening during the summer of 1968. They were used as demos to present to record labels in hope of securing a contract and the band members were between the ages of 15-17 at the time. The M-U label was our own and the single was the label's one and only release. The record number being made up."

"The band members did continue through our remaining high school years. We changed keyboardist a couple of times, finally settling on Teofilo Bautista."

"In late July, or early August 1970, we landed a contract with King Records (James Brown's label) and recorded 13 songs for an album. The company insisted on changing our name to Miami (because we were from Florida) and a single was released (Just Can't Quit/She Don't Need No Other). The single was mentioned in Billboard magazine. I was even told we charted the Top 100. Unfortunately, the album was never released and the band eventually disbanded in early 1971."

"In late 1971, myself, together with our drummer and bass player, reformed and have continued playing music (clubs, parties, etc.) to this day. We just can't seem to get it out of our systems!"

Compilation appearances include: Black Lightening Light on Sixties Archive, Vol. 4 (CD), Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), Acid Dreams Testament (CD), World Of Acid (LP) and Psychedelic States - Florida Vol. 2 (CD); and Black Lightening Light and Goodbye To You on Florida Punk Groups From The Sixties (LP). This was an entirely different outfit that came from the Detroit suburb of Oak Park, Michigan. They played together for about three years, between '65 to '67, and opened for The Dave Clark Five and Sam The Sham & The Pharaohs in Detroit in 1966. We Gotta Go was enough of a local hit to encourage DJ Scott Regan to get them to re-record the track with different lyrics as Burger Song, as a kind of promotion for his show. Without You is a strong competent garage-style offering, the flip is a Byrds' song.

45:	Where Is Love?/My Girl	(Cori 31011) 1967

Originally known as The Bostonians (or possibly New Bostonians), the band changed names to The Shyres because of the local, but more famous Improper Bostonians. Billie Cox remembers: "Joseph Healy started the band with his cousin Bobby. I joined the band as a bassist and songwriter/arranger and wrote Where Is Love. The flip side, My Girl was an original by Joe Healy. The band didn't last too long after this; we did some Catholic Youth Organisation gigs and then went our separate ways. I haven't seen these folks since then but I think only I stayed in the biz, mostly doing theatre work as a composer, sound designer and director".

The band was mostly located in a suburb of Boston, Massachusetts called Allston (a small area; it's sometimes thought of as a part of Brighton). The recording was made in Framingham, another town near Boston, where the Cori label was based. Incidentally, Cori also issued some collectable singles by the likes of The Balladeers, Royals, Mauve, Sole Survivors and C.C. and The Chasers.

This demo pressing by a New York outfit was for an intended Elektra release that never happened, although with its classy, late sixties baroque pop/folk style, it could have been an album of some significance. As it was just 100 copies of the demo were pressed so the CD reissue is welcome. Sidetrack was notable for having no guitars on many of their tracks, but blended oddball but accessible pop with far out experimentation and a distinctive keyboard sound that utilised various combinations of piano, organ, harpsichord and harmonium. The album is crisply produced and the musicianship, notable for the up-front bass playing, is professional. The material veers towards the eclectic rather than the predictable, and is usually of interest.

Apparently Sidewalk Skipper Band came from the Milwaukee area although they recorded in Chicago. Their material is mainly flowery harmony-pop with forays into psychedelia. Their debut and most memorable single, Strawberry Tuesday kicks off with strong fuzz'n'effects then saunters towards dreamy Association territory; the baroque flavoured flip should appeal to fans of Anglophile toytown pop-psych.

The Siegel-Schwall Band
THE SIEGEL-SCHWALL BAND / SHAKE!

THE SIEGEL-SCHWALL BAND - Self Titled/Shake! CD.

This was Chicago's "other" white blues group of the sixties. It was also one of the longest lasting white blues bands.

Seigel and Schwall were both students at Roosevelt University. Siegel was studying saxophone music and Schwall was studying guitar. Rollow Radford had previously played with Martha Reeves and Vandellas and Sun Ra. They were the house band at Pepper's Lounge on Chicago's South Side, but later took over the Butterfield Blues Band's residency at Big John's in Old Town, when the later started touring. The Siegel-Schwall emphasised a kind of neo-psychedelic improvisation on blues themes that has not aged as well as the Butterfield Blues Band.

Samuel Charters signed them to Vanguard in 1965 and produced most of their Vanguard albums, which are considered to be their best output. Recorded in New York, their second album, Say Siegel Schwall is quite consistent, with its long I.S.P.I. Blues (Illinois State Psychiatric Institution). They don't seem to have recorded any singles on Vanguard at all. In 1969, they were the first blues band to perform with a symphony when they preformed 'Three Pieces for Blues Band and Orchestra' with the San Francisco Symphony. After four albums for Vanguard they switched to a local Chicago label Wooden Nickel. They split up after releasing R.I.P. Siegel/Schwall in 1974.

Siegel and Schwall kept on recording during the seventies and Corky Siegel and his harmonica also guested on many blues albums. Siegel formed the Happy Year Band with Sam Lay in 1975 and was later in Chamber Blues with a string quartet.

Siegel Schwall Band reformed in 1987 and released a live reunion album The Siegel-Schwall Reunion Concert (Alligator) in 1988. They released a second album Flash Forward (Alligator) 2005 that made the Album Chart's Top 15. The discography above details the compilations of their sixties and seventies recordings. (SR/VJ)

The Sights and Sounds (TX)

Previously known as Carrols Mood with one single, this late sixties psychedelic outfit came from Texas and released a single which we don't have details of. However Texas Punk, Vol. 3 (LP) and Acid Visions - Complete Collection, Vol. 2 (3-CD) include four previously unreleased cuts by the band:- Mystical Bells, Plastic People, a cover of The Buckingham's hit, Kind Of A Drag and of The Supremes' classic You Keep Me Hangin' On. Their four unreleased tracks are also featured on Collectables' History Of Texas, Vol. 3 and 4 CDs; and You Keep Me Hangin' On has also re-emerged Acid Visions Vol. 6 (CD) (Spalax). (VJ/MW)

Silent Cheer (MA)

ALBUM:	1	LEARNING INSIPID SEAL (w/insert)	(MG-202.115) 1969 R2

From Northfield, Massachusetts here's a Mount Hermon school-related garage lounge album with lots of fuzz guitar and some horns. It consists of two self-penned numbers (including the title track) and the rest is cover versions. The album culminates in a Beatles medley. (VJ)

ALBUM:	1(A)	SMOOTH AS RAW SILK	(ABC ABCS-694) 1969

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Synton KM6235) 2006.

A hard organ/guitar quartet from Cleveland, Ohio produced and arranged by Bill Szymczyk. The album has become a very minor collectable and contains several good tracks: Foreign Thing, Skitzo Blues, Walk In My Mind and Scottish Thing which is one of the few psychedelic tracks to end with bagpipes!

The songs were written by the group members and Bill Szymczyk, except a cover of Tim Rose's Long Haired Boy which was "dedicated to groupies everywhere" and Custody written by Steve Karliski and Larry Kolber. Harry Palmer of Ford Theater played guitar and percussion on some tracks and is also credited for production work.

Silk was previously The Tree Stumps, a much respected band on the Cleveland, Ohio teen scene. Michael Gee later changed his name to Michael Stanley. He then formed the Michael Stanley Band, who were popular, especially in the Ohio/Pennsylvania area, during the seventies and eighties.

Skitzo Blues has resurfaced on White Lace & Strange Volume 2 (CD); and you'll also find Not A Whole Lot I Can Do on Realistic Patterns 2: Wednesday Morning Dew (CD). (SR/VJ/RP/EJ/MW)

An excellent garage-psych double-sider, recorded on a Los Angeles label by a band from Salt Lake City, Utah. Their personnel was revealed on Sundazed's Garage Beat '66 5 (CD). Check it out! Great fuzz guitar on Flashback, but the flip may be the stronger song.

Compilation appearances have included: Hometown on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 (2-LP) and Turds On A Bum Ride Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD); Flashback on Garage Beat '66 5 (CD); and Hometown and Flashback on The Garage Zone, Vol. 1 (LP), The Garage Zone Box Set (4-LP) and The Human Expression And Other Psychedelic Groups - Your Mind Works In Reverse (CD). Judee Sill (CA)

ALBUMS:	1	JUDEE SILL	(Asylum SD-5050) 1971 SC

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Four MWB 120) 2004. (1) reissued on CD (Water Music 158) 2005. (2) reissued on vinyl (w/booklet) (Four MWB 121) 2004. (2) reissued on CD (Water Music 159) 2005. There's also a 2-CD set Abracadabra: The Asylum Years (Rhino 8122 79534 2) 2007 that consists of her two albums expanded by outtakes, live performances and previously unissued tracks.

Judee Sill was born in Oakland, California on 7 October 1944 to a middle class family of English-Irish stock from the American South. Her father owned a bar, and imported and sold rare animals. When Sill was eight her father died of pneumonia and then her older brother was killed in a car crash shortly after taking control of the family business. When Sill's alcoholic mother, Oneta, moved to southern California, and met and married Tom and Jerry animator Ken Muse, who was also an alcoholic, Judee rebelled and fell in first with the wrong crowd at high school. She then befriended an older man - only problem was he was an armed bank robber. Together they held up gas stations and liquor stores, and he ended up in jail and she got nine months in a girls' reform school where she learnt to play the church organ. In 1963 Sill enrolled at San Fernando Valley Junior College, and majored in art, but after driving across the states with a couple of friends she dropped out. After her mother died of cancer in winter of 1965 she met and later married keyboardist Bob Harris who introduced her to heroin. She struggled to make ends meet and went on the game for a while. Late in 1966, Bob Harris introduced her to John Beck of L.A. group The Leaves. Beck persuaded The Leaves to record Dead Time Bummer

JUDEE SILL - Self Titled LP.

Blues, which she had written while awaiting trial. Eventually she secured a recording contract with Asylum. With John Beck and Jim Pons handling production, she recorded her debut album and a single Jesus Was A Cross Maker. The single was her finest moment, but the album was some way above the average singer/songwriter album.

Heart Food, her second album recorded in 1973 was another fine album with the same distinctive blend of country, gospel and classical influences and the same intense imagery in her lyrics as her debut. The closing track, The Donor, is an extraordinary requiem of a song that utilises the liturgical mantra Kyrie Eleison in a web-like, multi-tracked chorus. She was dropped by Asylum because of a remark she made in a radio interview. She was then left in pain following a car crash but because of her criminal record doctors would not prescribe her opiates, so she began scoring on the streets again. On 23 November 1979, Judee Sill was found dead at her house in the unglamorous North Hollywood area where she'd spent most of her life. Her death was attributed to acute cocaine and codeine intoxication.

Her reputation has been enhanced in recent years through the reissue of her two albums. Rhino has done an excellent job with Abracadabra: The Asylum Years, the 2-CD set of her two Asylum albums along with outtakes and several fantastic live performances plus some previously unreleased recordings. Judee Sill features 10 additional tracks, including The Pearl and The Phoenix which were left off the album to make way for the late addition recording of a new song, Jesus Was A Cross Maker. A demo version of this one was also included. The remaining seven tracks were recorded live at Boston Music Hall on 3rd October 1971. Heart Food is expanded with the previously unreleased out-take, The Desperado and eight solo demos for the album itself. NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (No label YZ-890) 199? in a pressing of 300 with a newly-designed cover.

This is the best album in the series of obscure items issued in the plain (generic) covers emblazoned with "Advance Reviewer Copy - Confidential" during the early - mid seventies. Thought to be the fruits of a local Milwaukee, Wisconsin group, it's a strong effort with heavy guitar on about half of the cuts, garagy edge and strange mastering (a tape splice on the title track was done so badly, it sounds like a skip!). Tail Dragger is a loud, bluesy riffer that has universal appeal. The Garden (2-LP) (Bully FULP006) 2006 or CD (Bully FUCD006) 2006 compiles previously unreleased material from 1968/69.

45s:	Oscillations/Whirly Bird	(Kapp 923) 1968
	Confusion/You And I	(Kapp 956) 1968

Simeon grew up in New Orleans, worked as a painter and then ended up in Connecticut in the mid-sixties playing in a band called The Random Concept. He then joined a five-piece covers band based in New York's East Village called The Overland Stage Electric Band, which gradually dwindled to two (Simeon and Danny) as a result of the other members' dislike of Simeon's increasing preoccupation with electronic sounds. The pair immediately changed their name to Silver Apples after a W.B. Yeats poem they liked. Simeon kept adding to his collection of electronic paraphernalia - dubbed the "simeon" - until it included over a dozen oscillators, six of them being tuned to bass-notes, which were played by his feet (as only six notes were available, this accounts for the monotony of the bass lines).

Their first gig was in front of 30,000 people at an all-day concert in Central Park along with the Mothers of Invention, The Fugs, Steve Miller Band and others. The resultant glowing press-notices ("...absolutely mind shattering music...") helped land them a recording contract with Kapp Records.

They were one of the very first groups along with The United States Of America and Fifty Foot Hose to experiment with electronic music. The result was two interesting, but totally uncommercial albums. The music sounds partly drug-induced and is often discordant. In many ways it is possibly more acceptable now, in the wake of artists like Ultravox and Orchestral Manoeuvres In The Dark, than it was in 1968. Whilst their music was undoubtedly innovative, their lyrics were sometimes irritatingly repetitive. Both albums are worth hearing, however, with the second probably the stronger of the two. The intro to the second's opening track You And I successfully recreates the sound of an airplane taking off.

In July 1969 New York Mayor John Lindsay invited Silver Apples to perform in Central Park as Apollo 11 landed on the moon and again they received acclaim in 'Rolling Stone', but Kapp did little to promote them. They recorded a third album in New York but no album deal was forthcoming and their equipment was impounded due to debts. Their final act was to compose and play live music for a live theatre production, 'Cockstrong'. They split in near poverty in summer 1970 - a tragic fate for such a pioneering act.

An obviously influential band, they were the subject of a tribute album by contemporary experimental psychedelic acts, A Tribute To in 1997. Simeon "reformed" the band when he learned of the renewed interest in their sixties work, recording a single, two albums, Beacon (1997) and Decatur (1998), as well as performing a few gigs. At one gig on 14th Sept 1997 in London, a various artists CD sampler was given away to the audience, which includes a Silver Apples track.

More recently The Garden - available as a 2-LP set or a CD containing material dating from 1968/69 has surfaced. Recorded in the Record Plant studios in New York, the tapes languished at the time as no label came forward to sign them. Dan Taylor unearthed these tracks and coupled them with seven new compositions, previously unreleased alternative versions and unfinished demos which Simeon finished off. Highlights include an alternative version of Mad Man Blues and The Lady And The Clown, which was written for the soundtrack of an Italian film but remained unissued until The Garden. This was in fact their third unreleased album.

The reunion was aborted when Simeon Coxe broke his neck in a car accident after a gig in 1999. Dan Taylor tragically suffered a fatal heart attack in March 2005 in New York.

The reformed line-up has Follow Me Into The Forest compiled on Timemazine #1 (CD), which came free with the fanzine and Purple Egg can be heard on Psychedelica Volume One (CD). (VJ/LP)

45:	I've Got Time/Who Needs Tomorrow	(Bang B-557) 1968

Produced by Chris Huston of the UK's Undertakers, this pop single is by a New York quartet featuring guitarist-writer Charly Cazalet. He had been in a band called The Outsiders from 1964 and in 1966 was invited to join the Left Banke. He turned them down, although he maintained contact with them and eventually joined the reformed band when they recorded the Voices Calling album in the late seventies. He formed The Silver Byke in 1967 instead; they lasted until 1970 but this was their sole release. Who Needs Tomorrow has resurfaced on a CD compilation of the same name.

Silver Fleet (UK)

45:	Come On Plane/Look Out World	(UNI 55271) 1971

This band's Look Out World typified the wave of protest sounds in 1965-66 in America. The vocalist growls about the threats to his freedom - his girl that's left him and an unsympathetic world. Musically, the recording predates the influence of psychedelics, comprising raucous vocals superimposed upon a 'my baby left me' guitar moan. It was much later covered by The Margin Of Insanity on their EP.

What's so strange about this single however is that it was recorded in the UK in 1970 by several future members of 10cc. They were hired by American Bubblegum impresarios Jerry Kasenetz and Jeffrey Katz to churn out hits, and some of their work appeared on American singles shown as by Crazy Elephant, Ohio Express, Silver Fleet and others.

Look Out World has been compiled on Pebbles, Vol. 7 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 10 (CD), Pebbles, Vol. 3 (ESD) (CD) and Shadows Falling (CD). (VJ/MW)

NB: α on first pressing, They've Found Me is misspelt Theyze....

Short-lived San Francisco-based outfit Silver Metre's album was partly recorded in London. Stephens had previously been with Blue Cheer and two musicians were British: Pete Sears was a session musician and Waller had come from The Jeff Beck Group. The album is basically heavy rock with splatterings of psychedelia. It included three Elton John/Bernie Taupin compositions: Country Comfort, Now They've Found Me and Sixty Years On.

Leigh Stephens also had a solo career and in 1972 would form Pilot with Waller. Pete Sears would later play with Rod Stewart but also with Stoneground and Jefferson Starship. He also played with John Cipollina and Hot Tuna.

National General was one of the many Buddah group subsidiary labels. (VJ/SR)

Simmons relocated to Los Angeles after splitting The Easy Chair and Zappa put him to work. Two albums were issued together with sequenced catalogue numbers in 1969; both sound today like collections of unfinished Zappa studio demos. The second was partly produced by Zappa (using the pseudonym La Marr Bruister) and he plays a few lead solos on it. While Simmons was obviously a very talented player, these uneven albums do not serve his legend well. Despite being amongst the rarest records issued on the Straight label they are still only in the R1 category. (CF)

NB: α shown as by The Matadors. β shown as by Tony, Vic, and Manuel.

Originally known as The Matadors, this Los Angeles trio were classmates of Jan Berry and would work with him on Jan & Dean releases. Berry returned the favour by producing their three Colpix singles, which were mainly doo-wop and male vocal teener/pop. A stint at the original Gazarri's club in 1964 led to a switch to Reprise for a single and album and a new name of Tony, Vic, And Manuel. Their next regular gig, throughout 1965, was as house band on the Hollywood A Go-Go syndicated TV show, appearing in most episodes performing covers of the current hits.

During 1965 they changed their billing and style again and, as The Sinners, released a pair of strong singles on Mercury, aided by Nick Venet and Mike Curb. These include a couple of decent beat-punkers - You Don't Love Me, a DC5-stomper with fuzz, and Goin' Out Of My Mind, which is notable for catchy riffs and keening guitar. Such promise merited an album and one was in the pipeline but never made it past the acetate stage. The cuts were all covers, done in a tough beat-style:- Mystic Woman, I've Had It, I'm A Man, You're The One, It's Not Unusal, Ya Done Me Wrong, I Go Crazy, That's My Little Suzy, Here Comes The Night, Suzie Q, Don't Let Me Be Misunderstood, and Concrete And Clay.

Tony Minichiello hooked up with Davie Allan in 1966 to form The Visitors, released Theme From The Wild Angels/Is It Them Or Me (Tower 268), and another in 1967 as Tony & The Visitors - Saturday's Son/Nite Owl (Sidewalk 915). (MW/JRe/BC)

	All My Lonely Waiting/Big Boss Man	(Venett 108) 1966

Formed in 1965 in southern California around Pasadena, they gigged around L.A. and Las Vegas. The album was recorded live at P.J.'s in Hollywood, famous as the venue for the Standells' debut album. Unsurprisingly there are further comparisons - this is definitely not psych but 'big-beat' club sounds. With covers of Midnight Hour, Big Boss Man, Good Loving and Stand By Me, you get the gist? The originals, penned by Bill Eidson, fall mainly into the beat-ballad category with the notable exception of You Said To Me - a catchy uptempo beat - folk-rocker. Dealers who describe this as garage or psych should be fed into the nearest CD player!

The band was still going a decade or more later. Their cover of the Stones' Jumpin' Jack Flash, featured on Kicks & Chicks (LP), is from their 1978 album Live At P.J.'s Vol. 3 (West One 028). (MW)

NB: α shown as by Sir Douglas; (b) instrumental recorded by Don Goldie with Sir Douglas Quintet; β shown as by Him, recorded by Sahm with members of the Quintet and Houston guitarist Joey Long. χ shown as by The Devons. The 'B' side is an instrumental featuring Joey Long. δ a Doug Sahm solo effort shown as by Wayne Douglas; ε the 'A' side was from the Movie 'Cisco Pike'. ϕ also released in France with a picture sleeve. γ also released with picture sleeve in Germany and Belgium. Non-LP until its inclusion in Rough Edges. There's also a rare French EP: She's About A Mover/We'll Take Our Last Walk Tonight/The Tracker/Blue Norther with a picture sleeve (London REU 10171).

Doug Sahm was born on 6th November 1941 in San Antonio, Texas. After some solo recordings in his youth, he formed The Sir Douglas Quintet in 1964 when he met producer Huey P. Meaux. Their first single, Sugar Bee, flopped but the follow-up, She's About A Mover, which was an attempt to imitate the British beat groups of the era and featured an insistent organ riff from Augie Meyer, reached No. 13 in the U.S. Charts in the summer of 1965. It later peaked at No. 15 in the UK. It remained their most successful song and had a raw harshness that was typically Texan.

The Rains Came gave the band a minor U.S. hit in the spring of 1966 but the novelty of the band soon wore off and their debut album, The Best Of The Sir Douglas Quintet (which was not in fact a 'best of') attracted little interest when it was released. By 1966 Sahm had gotten into the drug scene and after getting busted in Texas he broke up the band (line-up 'A') and moved to San Francisco. The Honky Blues album was recorded by line-up 'B' with the help of session musicians as The Sir Douglas Quintet + 2, although the following year he reformed the original Quintet with a modified line-up ('C') and got the band a new recording deal with Mercury's Smash label. In the spring of 1969 they enjoyed a Top 30 hit with Mendocino and an album of the same name was issued too. (Mendocino is a picturesque northern California coastal town). Raw and unsophisticated it included some strong songs in addition to the title track, most notably At The Crossroads, which was later covered by Mott The Hoople. The album helped establish the band as an important part of the San Francisco Sound and they also had a good reputation as a 'live' band. Dynamite Woman, which peaked at No. 82 in the autumn of 1969, was their final U.S. hit and with their fourth and fifth albums largely unnoticed, Sahm broke up the band in late 1972. By then he'd formed his own band which included several Sir Douglas Quintet personnel. The Sir Douglas Quintet also played and recorded without Sahm using the name El Quintet between January 1971 and August 1972. They recorded two albums for United Artists (Future Tense and El Quintet 2), although the second was never formally released.

THE SIR DOUGLAS QUINTET - Is Back CD.

Among the members of the Quintet, Augie Meyers created the Texas Re-cord label for his own solo records during the seventies, Jim Stallings was also known as J.J. Light and Wayne Talbert was also recording under his name. Harvey Kagan joined Dewey Martin and Medicine Ball.

In 1970, Doug Sahm produced the album of Louie and The Lovers. It's also worth mentioning that, during the seventies, Doug Sahm tried constantly to help Roky Erickson, by producing his demos, recording his songs (You're Gonna Miss Me is on Border Wave) and playing live with him (some tapes surfaced on The Reunion Of The Cosmic Brothers with Freddie Fender (Crazy Cajun, CC-LP-1013) 1980.

At the start of the eighties Sahm reformed the Sir Douglas Quintet with John Perez and Augie Meyer from the original line-up and two newcomers Alvin Crow and Speedy Sparks (line-up 'D'). They released an album called Border Wave on Takoma in 1981 and at least five other albums of Sir Douglas Quintet material were released on Takoma during the eighties.

Doug Sahm died of a heart attack in Taos, New Mexico in November 1999.

She's About A Mover has been compiled on Nuggets Box (4-CD), Texas Music, Vol. 3 (CD), Wild Thing (2-LP) and 21 KILT Goldens, Vol. 2 (LP).

In 2000 Sundazed trawled Sir Douglas Quintet's Crazy Cajun/Tribe period, 1964-1966. First off is a reissue of The Best Of The Sir Douglas Quintet album with two bonus tracks (Bacon Fat and Blue Norther). Its companion is The Sir Douglas Quintet Is Back! which gathers together various single sides (on Pacemaker and Tribe plus their cover of Wine, Wine, Wine as "The Devons") with outtakes from the 1965-6 Pasadena Sounds sessions. 		I Don't Want Her To Cry/Always	(Tower 220) 1966

NB: α shown as by Sir Raleigh & The Cupons.

Based in Seattle, Washington Sir Raleigh was also known as Sir Walter Raleigh and as Dewey Martin, but he was actually Canadian-born Walter Milton Dwayne Midkiff. Together with line-up 'A' (known as the Cupons) he recorded a string of singles and his finest moment is usually considered to be his version of the Steve Venet/Tommy Boyce composition Tomorrow's Gonna Be Another Day. This sort of grungy pre-punk typified the Northwest in this era and this particular recording predated The Monkees' version by over a year. The flip Whitcomb Street was an instrumental - perhaps it was a tribute to influential Northwest pop/rock figure Ian Whitcomb.

Lyall Smith had previous been in The Stingrays (from Olympia, Washington).

Dewey Martin went on to Buffalo Springfield. "Sneaky" Pete Kleinow was later with the Flying Burrito Bros. and did session work through the seventies.

The Dewey Martin album is listed here because it is a 12-track retrospective of Martin's pre-Buffalo Springfield releases as Sir Walter Raleigh and Sir Raleigh & The Cupons, although you'd never guess it from the poor sleeve notes. It gathers all the SWR and SR&C 45 sides except Whitcomb Street and there are four other cuts - I Don't Have To Worry About You, It Took A Long Time, I'll Understand, Things We Said Today - presumably unreleased Jerden material from that period (1964-66).

Compilation appearances include: Tomorrow's Gonna Be Another Day on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 - Flash And Crash (LP & CD), Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 (CD), The Hitmakers (LP) and Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 14 (LP); Things We Said Today and Tomorrow's Gonna Be Another Day on The Hitmakers (LP); and White Cliffs Of Dover on The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 1 (LP). 45s:	Come Back Again/We're Gonna Love	(Soma 1454) 1965
	Not The Spirit Of India/ One Last Chance	(Nauseating Butterfly 2207) 1966

This Indianapolis band developed a large local following - indeed they once opened for The Byrds at the Indianapolis Coliseum in July 1966. Their stage shows were wild! We're Gonna Love is a real grungy garage number with lots of fuzz. One Last Chance is a slow melodic folk-rock ballad, whilst Not The Spirit Of India is an Eastern-style piece of psychedelia.

The band had evolved out of an outfit called The Pickups back in 1963 and Ron Matelic and John Medvescek later went on to Anonymous.

Compilation coverage has included: We're Gonna Love on Back From The Grave, Vol. 3 (LP), Back From The Grave, Vol. 2 (CD), The Big Hits Of Mid-America (2-CD) and Soma Records Story, Vol. 1 (LP); One Last Chance on Hoosier Hotshots (LP); Not The Spirit Of India on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 15: Apple-Glass Cyndrome (LP & CD); and Come Back Again on The Soma Records Story, Vol. 2 (LP). The Sirs formed in 1965 at Roosevelt High School, Portland, Oregon. They got a contract with Amreco Records as a prize for coming second in a Portland teenfair band battle. Dan Gordon, who owned the label became their manager. Off In A Daydream got a lot of local airplay in Portland but the follow-up was less successful. Then, at the suggestion of Bobby Holden (Don and The Goodtimes), they changed their name to Atlantis, recording one single under this name before they dissolved in 1970/71. Most members still live in the Portland area.

Compilation appearances include: Help Me on Let's Dig 'Em Up, # 3 (LP), Bad Vibrations, Vol. 3 (LP) and Trip In Tyme Volume 3 (CD); and Off In A Daydream and Help Me on Storm In The Garage (3-CD box). (VJ)

CD: 1 IN RETROSPECT 1969-'70 (Arf! Arf! AA-074) 1998

45s: Inspiration In My Head/In Retrospect (Scepter 12289) 1970
Fields/Freedom (Scepter 12324) 1971

Jerry Dobb and Scott Julian formed the Marc 5 in 1966 in Colonia, New Jersey. Later known as the Sonix, they decided to change musical direction in 1968 and new personnel were secured to form Six Feet Under. The first drummer didn't last long, his seat being taken by Hector Torres. By 1970, seeking a recording contract, another shake-up resulted in the exit of Torres and the acquisition of a young female vocalist to strengthen that department.

The CD retrospective comprises 19 tracks - eight studio, five home recordings plus live and radio spots. It showcases the width of the band's hippie-acid-psych repertoire, sounding like Ill Wind one minute and Iron Butterfly the next. This excellent and welcome release comes with a fascinating history and track-by-track breakdown from Jerry Dobbs. And as Jerry points out, ironically it was only ousted drummer Torres who found real success and fame. After returning home to Sayerville, he'd bounce back after teaming up with a promising youngster called Jon Bon Jovi...

Six Feet Under Theme, an unreleased '68 effort, resurfaced on 30 Seconds Before The Calico Wall (LP & CD) and their unreleased cover of Iron Butterfly's In-A-Gadda-Da-Vida on Beyond The Calico Wall (CD). Their first single occupies similar territory - heavy acid-rock with hippie undertones. A previously unreleased version of In Retrospect has been compiled on The Arf! Arf! (El Cheapo) Sampler (2-CD). (MW)

The Birdman Of Alkatrash (All-American 373) 1967

NB: α shown as by The Sixpence, 'B' side title is a mis-spelling of HEY Joe. β is a second press of χ with Fortune Teller replacing (Gotta Get The) First Plane Home. δ 'A' side also has a 'p' missing from 'Peppermints'.

From Glendale, California this band is best known for being the early incarnation of the Strawberry Alarm Clock, arguably one of the most famous, colourful, and doubtless the most commercially successful U.S. flower-power psychedelic-pop band.

Some band members were earlier in a sixties surf outfit called the Irridescents who released a single back in 1963. The adaptable and durable Ed King would find success again in the seventies with Lynyrd Skynyrd. Incense... vocalist Gregg Munford was a member of label-mates Indescribably Delicious, leading to speculations ever since as to their identity, which have finally been clarified with another Akarma reissue - see the Indescribably Delicious entry.

Thee Sixpence's line-up was pretty fluid - Ed King joined after the first single. Following Heart Full Of Rain the group recorded Incense And Peppermints, but before it was released, their name was changed by management to the Strawberry Alarm Clock. The group played Santa Barbara quite a bit, leading to speculation that they were based there, this was not so, all were from Glendale except Freeman.

Step By Step gathers together all their All-American singles above and adds one bonus track, The World's On Fire, an awesome rambling garage-psych workout from Strawberry Alarm Clock's debut album. Indeed this album is essential listening for garage, psych and Strawberry Alarm Clock fans and is unreservedly recommended. It bristles with raw fuzzy garage and psych gems which, with the obvious exception of Incense And Peppermints, barely hint at the subsequent transformation into Strawberry Alarm Clock and their wider-appealing kaftans-and-beads psychedelic pop. Covers include faithfully raucous versions of Love's Can't Explain and My Flash On You and the oft-visited Hey Joe and Fortune Teller. Heart Full Of Rain was later covered by label-mates Big Brother (featuring Ernie Joseph).

Many of their tracks had previously been compiled. For example, In The Building, with its hypnotic drum fill, on Psychedelic Disaster Whirl (LP) and Filling The Gap (4-LP box); Long Days Care on Diggin' For Gold (LP); My Flash On You on Psychedelic Unknowns Vol. 1 (EP), Boulders Punk (EP box), I Was A Teenage Caveman (LP) and Sixties Rebellion: Love Covers (CD); Fortune Teller on Psychedelic Unknowns Vol. 4 (LP); and Heart Full Of Rain on Filling The Gap (4-LP box) and Diggin' For Gold Volume 10 (LP). CD: 1 SUMMER GIRL: THE COMPLETE RECORDINGS (Now Sounds CR NOW 9) 2009

45s:	α	I'll Be Good/I Didn't Start Living	(Geer 5267) 1965
	β	Good To You/Your Girl Too	(Matrix 9 5268) 1965
		Summer Girl/She Lied	(Kidd 1335) 1966

NB: α some copies came with I'll Be Good crossed out and replaced with Good To You - the same track as on β.

Also known as the Six Pents, the nucleus of this Texas group: Rock Romano, Mike Cemo, Paul Guillet and John Bonno had previously played together in a high school R'n'R band. Most of their singles were recorded at Andrus studios in Houston and in particular, She Lied, has some fine vocals, and a Beatles/Invasion influence.

The band later signed a contract with Bobby Shad of Mainstream Records, and became The Sixpentz. When they then discovered the similarly named Sixpence they opted for the more distinctive The Fun And Games Commission.

Sam Irwin later formed Phoenix and now plays in Duck Soup out of Austin Texas. Rock Romano went on to form Doctor Rockit and the Sisters of Mercy. He and the Sisters split and he continued to front Doctor Rockit. He also played guitar and bass with The Sheetrockers and even played bass with Duck Soup for a while. He now has a recording studio in Houston. Carson Graham played drums for several other groups and Paul Guillet retired from the professional music scene.

Summer Girl: The Complete Recordings is a 18-track collection of sixties Texas summer pop, which is OK but not great.

Compilation appearances have included: She Lied on Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 2 (LP & CD), Flashback, Vol. 2 (LP), Houston Post - Nowsounds Groove-In (LP), Acid Visions - The Complete Collection Vol. 1 (3-CD) and Texas Flashback (The Best Of) (CD); and Your Girl Too on Destination Frantic Volume 2 (CD). Led by S.J. Serio, S.J. and The Crossroads had earlier recorded two songs Funny Woman/London Girl which remained unreleased until their inclusion on Texas Punk, 1966: Vol. 10 (LP), they formed in early 1966 in Beaumont. The entire original band were students at Kelley High School and only Sam Giglio, who joined a little later in June 1966, had any musical training.

Late in the summer of 1966 the band entered the studio to record The Darkest Hour-Part 1 and Night Time (later to be released as the group's fifth single). The Darkest Hour-Part 2 was an instrumental version recorded at the same time to fill up some remaining tape and studio time. The Darkest Hour (Part 1)/(Part 2) was released and made the local Beaumont charts in September 1966.

The band also played live at many school and civic dances. Their material was largely British. Most of their gigs were confined to southeast Texas and centred on Port Arthur and Orange as well as Beaumont. An influential DJ, Al Caldwell, who worked for KAYC, a local Top 40 radio station in Beaumont, helped arrange their second single. It climbed to No. 4 in the local charts.

Their third effort, a frantic raver, Breakdown/The Cryin' Man did not meet with the same success and a little later their competent version of Night Time, recorded in their first studio session, was issued backed by The Darkest Hour (Part 2).

In late 1967, Messina left the band to be replaced by Gary Mouton. Philip Battaglia was drafted and similarly replaced by Glen Moyer. Then, early in 1968 when Mike Daleo quit W.C. Langton, a second drummer, joined. They disintegrated after one final competent upbeat single.

Glen Moyer: - "By that time our repertoire had turned more to blue-eyed soul - lots of Sam and Dave and my favourite, Archie Bell and The Drells' Tighten Up. (I remember the first song I learned with the guys - while practicing in the Serio's garage on Major Drive in Beaumont - was BS&T's You've Made Me So Very Happy.) With the advent of two drummers, SJ sometimes moved down front to share lead vocals with Gary Mouton."

"Prior to joining the Crossroads I was playing with another Beaumont garage band called The Past Tymes(*). As school chums since elementary school, Gary was familiar with me and the band and thus approached me about replacing Battaglia. I had grown up as a kid in the neighbourhood where SJ & Johnny's Dad, Sal, operated his grocery store and trailer park, and where he opened the original SalMar record store, so I had hung around the band almost from the beginning."

"In fact, the band only broke up when SJ left, also facing service with the armed forces. At that point, his little brother Johnny Serio and I joined another band with its roots in Kelly High School called The Kidds. That incarnation of the Kidds didn't last long as Johnny soon joined the coast guard to avoid going to Vietnam and that group split."

Compilation appearances have included: Ooh Poo Pah Doo and The Darkest Hour on Acid Visions - The Complete Collection Vol. 1 (3-CD); the previously unreleased Funny Woman and London Girl on Acid Visions - Complete Collection, Vol. 3 (3-CD) and Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 5 (CD); Get Out Off My Life Woman on Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 2 (LP & CD) and Flashback, Vol. 2 (LP); The Darkest Hour, Night Time, Ooh Poo Pah Doo, The Darkest Hour - Part 2, Breakdown, Get Out Of My Life Woman, Play Your Game, Funny Woman and London Girl on Texas Punk, Vol. 10 - With S.J. And The Crossroads! (LP); Ooh Poo Pah Doo on Flashback, Vol. 6 (LP); The Darkest Hour on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 5 (LP) and Garage Beat '66 7 (CD); and Ooh Poo Pah Doo and Darkest Hour on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 17 (LP).

Bartlesville, in northeast Oklahoma, was home to this band that played a raw guitar-driven pop/punk hybrid with considerable commercial potential. Primarily based around a group of brothers named Shevill (?) they were signed to Kampus by Rodney Lay, the leader and founder of Rodney and The Blazers.

This band also seems to have recorded an acetate at Audio House in Topeka, Kansas. We know it included versions of Time Won't Let Me, Something's Wrong With My Baby, Higher And Higher, Is It Somehting She's Got, Pledge Of Love and Thin Soul.

Fortunately some of their finer moments have been captured on posthumous compilations:- Certain Kind Of Girl on Let's Dig 'Em Up # 3 (LP) and Let's Dig 'Em Up # 1 (CD); Apple Candy on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. II (LP); Bit O' Honey on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. IV (LP); Ride Child on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 4 (LP & CD); For My Own on Shutdown '66 (LP); I Told Her Goodbye on Tymes Gone By (LP); and Turn It On on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 8 (LP) and Fuzz Flakes & Shakes (LP & CD). NB: α shown as by the Unbelievables.

Originally a Milwaukee rock'n'roll combo called The Bonnevilles, they got the British Invasion bug and adopted the name and hairstyle of Skunks. Their debut single was recorded during a brief period in California but was released as by the Unbelievables, possibly because they caught the whiff of other Skunks around at the same time (one such had a single in 1965 - Youthquake/A Girl Like You, on Mercury).

The album is a patchwork of disparate styles - from pop covers and crooners to folk-rockers (the Byrds-like I Need No One). They do venture into garage and psych territory so the highlights, from our viewpoint, are a cover of Jefferson Airplane's Somebody To Love (with psychedelic guitar work), When I Need Her (good punk-psych) and The Journey (chiming folk-rock tinged with psychedelia).

Small Town Girl also appeared on a 1968 compilation EP W-RIT (W-Rit Radio 1340) alongside fellow Wisconsin acts Tony's Tygers and The Robbs.

Larry Ostricki went on to form the Larry Lynne Band.

A detailed history of the band can be found in the book 'Do You Hear That Beat' by Gary Myers (Hummingbird, 1994, ISBN 0-9643073-9-1).

Retrospective compilation appearances include: Don't Ask Why on The Quill Records Story (CD) and Acid Dreams Volume Three (LP); Listen To The News Today on Boulders, Vol. 9 (LP); The Journey on Echoes In Time Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Echoes In Time, Vol. 1 (LP); I Need No One on Byrds Won't Fly Today (LP); and Small Town Girl on W'r-It (EP).

Formed by Douglas Fieger, Michigan's Sky was one of many groups deeply influenced by the Rolling Stones. They managed to work with Jimmy Miller, the Stones producer, who got them the support of several Stones stalwarts: Jim Price and Bobby Keys on horns, Ian Stewart on piano, PP Arnold and Doris Troy on background vocals. Both albums were recorded in the UK. Lacking strong material (they wrote all their songs), the group disbanded when their second album flopped. In the UK their releases were credited to U.S. Sky.

Fieger went on to The Sunset Bombers and later would form The Knack, of My Sharona fame. (SR/MW)

45: I'm Not A Fool/I Know What's Up (Dynovoice 224) 1966
Weather Forecast/Air-O Plane Ride (Ascot 2237) 1967

Sky was a high school band formed by guitarist Doug Savides in Massapequa on Long Island, New York, which is probably better known in more recent times as hometown of The Stray Cats.

It's good, slick sixties pop by a teenage band rather than garage. The vocal arrangements are accomplished - more like the Four Seasons than The Beatles - which is probably due to arranger Peter Antell, who had started out in The Chants. Nonetheless I'm Not A Fool is a decent up-tempo number with ringing guitars. (MW/SR)

CD:	1(A)	AMAZING GRACE	(Gear Fab GF-191) 2002

This jazz-rock outfit from Chicago, Illinois emerged from the ashes of Mountain Bus. There is quite a lot of freeform jamming on this album. Ann Linquist's gorgeous vocals are a highpoint and there's plenty of piano and sax. The opener Okooch Farewell commences with some early rock & roll piano, but much of the album is a combination of loose rock and soul. There are traces of blues on Out Of Hand, as well as R&B, and certainly jazz, particularly during some of the extended cosmic jams. Señorita has some festive Latin rhythms and Playboy After Dark veers towards country. Overall, the album exudes a good-time vibe. (VJ)

The Skymonters (?)

ALBUM:	1	WITH HAMID HAMILTON CAMP	(Elektra EKS-5073) 1973

A forgotten folk-rock group, their album was recorded with Hamilton Camp and copies very rarely turn up for sale. It's genial but bland singer/songwriter pop that suffers from relatively weak songwriting and consequently lacks any killer tracks. Tracks like Long River and Shadows On The Wall are quite folky; others like Gypsy have a strong country-rock flavour with nice harmony vocals. Kings is brassy with orchestration and the final Steal Away is quite a good story-song. Patrick Sky is a folk singer, songwriter and guitarist. The albums of interest here are the ones released in the sixties and early seventies. His later albums are outside the scope of this book, as the Adelphi album is a failed attempt at recording "funny" offensive songs and the Leviathan album is a traditional folk effort.

His most famous song, Many A Mile, was notably covered by John Kay (Steppenwolf) and by Buffy Sainte-Marie, who invited him to play on several of her albums and has been compiled on The Vanguard Folk Rock Album (CD). (SR)

This outfit sounds uncannily like The Beatles. The album must be one of the most blatant (and best) Beatle imitations around from the Let It Be period. It's full of variety and every track's a fine example of their versatility. It was recorded at Sigma Sound Studios in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Essra Mohawk gets a thanks and may contribute some background vocals. Richard Billay wrote all the songs and they are well worth hearing. The single cuts are from the album.

NB: (1) also issued on CD (Gear Fab GF-205) 2003.

From Lewiston, Idaho Sleepy John formed in December 1969 (line-up 'A'). This retrospective pieces together previously unreleased recordings by this hard-rock band. The album features lots of fuzz guitar, Hammond organ and frenetic drumming and it's certainly worth hearing. Only 600 copies were pressed. The limited edition album features eight tracks preserved from two 1970 sessions (in the basement of Jim Bartlett's house in Lewiston in April 1970 and later that summer in the Sleepy John house in Spokane with John 'Bosco' Jackson on bass) which were engineered by their friend Paul Speer (of Stone Garden).

The CD features 15 tracks from the same sessions and liners recounting the band's history. At the time of the release the liners report that Dave Lee owned his own travel business and played with a group called Kidd Sister. Frank Trowbridge ran a guitar repair business and taught guitar. Jim owned a business in the Portland, Oregon area. Tom Williams was working as a technical consultant for various architectural and furniture manufacturers in the Seattle area and still playing when time allowed and the opportunity arose. (VJ)

Originally from Los Angeles but based in New York initially, Sloan was undoubtedly a talented songwriter. He was just 15 when he recorded his first single as Flip Sloan. The following year he issued another as Phil Sloan and he also belonged to an outfit called The Storytellers whose When Two People single for Ramark was later picked up by Dimension.

In 1963, he moved to L.A., teamed up with Steve Barri (real name Steve Lipkin) and began a successful songwriting partnership. The first group they wrote for was Round Robin and their second effort Kick That Little Foot Sally Ann made No. 61 in the U.S. Charts. Among the better known people they wrote for were Jan and Dean, Bruce (Johnston) and Terry (Melcher) and Sloan later wrote the classic protest song Eve Of Destruction for Barry McGuire. They also released their own recordings under pseudonyms like Philip and Steven, The Trash Cleaners, Willie and The Wheels and The Imaginations. Then, when Lou Adler formed Dunhill Records in 1965, they wrote much of the early folk-rock material for the label. Sloan also embarked on a solo career which was less successful in commercial terms than one might have expected. Only Sins Of A Family sold well climbing to No. 87 in the U.S. and No. 37 in UK, but his first two solo albums, which were full of protest songs with hooks and simple acoustic backing, were well received. He also sang lead vocals on the first three Grassroots' singles which he wrote with Steve Barri. His final single in 1968 was full of echoes and sitars - rather interesting but after this he returned to New York. He was never as influential thereafter and his later albums were disappointing but he was a very significant member of the sixties folk-rock boom both as a performer and songwriter. 1968's Measure Of Pleasure was a not entirely convincing attempt to move away from his folk-rock roots.

Here's Where I Belong compiles 27 tracks from the 1965-67 era when Sloan was at the crest of his folk-rock career. The collection showcases the quality of his writing and the professionalism of the musicianship. There are also good collections of his material on Rhino and One Way.

His finest moment commercially Sins Of A Family is captured on Nuggets, Vol. 10: Folk Rock (LP); and Halloween Mary has been picked up on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book). (VJ/SR)

45: Makin' Love/You Mean Everything To Me (PS) (Impression IMP 104) 1965

The Sloths was a mid-sixties punk combo from Los Angeles. Makin' Love is a really raunchy and primitive recording which sounds rather similar to I Want Candy. Makin' Love currently sits at No. 3 on the G45 chart (of rarest, most-wanted US Garage 45s). Apparently just ONE copy of the single with the picture sleeve has found its way into a collector's hands and the single itself is pretty darn rare, so commands a large fortune. Makin' Love was covered by label-mates The Dirty Shames.

NB: α shown as by Sly.

Born in Dallas in 1944, Sylvester "Sly" Stewart began singing gospel in his local church. In the fifties, the Stewart family moved to San Francisco and Sylvester and his younger brother Fred learned solfeggio and trumpet in a local college. They formed their first groups and Sly was also a DJ. Another DJ, Tom Donahue recruited him to work for his new label and he soon became an engineer and producer for Autumn Records, working with the Mojo Men, Bobby Freeman, the Beau Brummels and the Great Society.

In 1966, Stewart changed his name to Sly Stone and formed the Stoners with his brother and a trumpeter, Cynthia Robinson. The Stoners soon became Sly And The Family Stone, with the adjunction of Greg Errico on drums, Jerry Martini on sax, Larry Graham (another expatriate Texan) on bass, and finally Rosemary "Rosie" Stewart, his younger sister on keyboards.

Sly and The Family Stone started gigging around San Francisco and their mix of soul and psychedelic rock immediately won them a local following. After a debut single for a local label, they signed to Epic and their first album was released in October 1967. Its sales were not very high but Dance To The Music was issued as a single and soon charted. After this first commercial success, the Family Stone kept on recording well-received albums, still mixing dancing rock and soul tracks with psychedelic sounds (especially on the guitars and distorted keyboards) and intelligent lyrics. Sly wrote about civil rights, groupies, counter-culture movements and the riots, always with punch and good humour. His unusual band (a sexually and racially integrated group of multi-instrumentalists) provided perfect backing with inventive rhythms.

Sly And The Family Stone appeared at Woodstock (Dance To The Music and I Want To Take You Higher were included on the records and movie) and were an important part of the San Francisco sound, often playing live and one of the very few groups to attract both white and black fans. Most of the other record labels tried to launch their own psychedelic soul groups (ABC had Bagatelle, United Artists - War and Kent - Pacific Gas and Electric for instance) but few were able to reach the commercial and artistic success of the Family Stone.

1969's Stand! was a fine album of danceable funk with messages about social inclusion Don't Call Me Nigger, Whitey, the deceptively simple Everyday People and their classic I Want To Take You Higher which so successfully aroused the Woodstock audience.

In 1970, Rose Stone recorded a good single on Atlantic as Little Sister, You're The One, Pt 1/2 1971, which was produced by Sly Stone. Unfortunately, drug problems hit the group in 1971 and Sly began cancelling shows, sometimes at the very last minute, or even forgetting to be on stage.

There's A Riot Goin' On was largely recorded by Sly Stone alone. Greg Errico and Larry Graham left in 1972, to be replaced by Andy Newmark and Rusty Allen and their subsequent records are not as good. 1974's Fresh was more upbeat and proved to be his last decent album as 1974's Small Talk was disappointing.

In 1974, Sly Stone went bankrupt and began doing sessions to get some money (he can be found on records by Elvin Bishop, New Riders Of The Purple Sage and even REO Speedwagon). He also tried unsuccessfully to get rid of his drug addiction.

In 1976 he assembled a new Family Stone for Heard Y'a Missed Me, Well I'm Back, but the album made little impact. He tried to make a comeback in 1979 with Back On The Right Track and in 1984 finally managed to get on top of his drug problem. After the Family Stone, Larry Graham went solo and formed Graham Central Station with Freddie Stone. He tried to carry on in the same direction but his records are not as inventive and dropped most of the psychedelic aspects.

Greg Errico joined Santana in 1971, did sessions and worked with Bill Kreutzmann and Mickey Hart from the Grateful Dead on several of their drum recordings. Jerry Martini and Andy Newmark both became session men.

The Woodstock Experience gives another airing to their Woodstock set and their rendition of I Want To Take You Higher as many of you will recall is one of the most memorable moments of the Woodstock film.

ALBUM: 1(A) THE SMACK (Audio House no 14468) 1968 R4

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Smack TS 9104) 199?.

This short-lived four-piece was born at the yearly six-week "Midwestern Band and Art" camp in Lawrence, Kansas. In July 1967, hundreds of teenagers attended this event. Many of them were into folk-rock as well as classical music. In July 1968, many of the same teenagers who'd attended the 1967 camp attended the 1968 camp too. Smack was formed at the 1968 camp and since there were less than five of the six weeks to go after their formation they practised cover versions, mostly of Cream and Jimi Hendrix songs. They played dances and gigs at the camp and their fellow students got together a sign-up list for those who wanted a Smack album for posterity. So, a few days after the camp they went into a local studio and recorded nine cuts - four Hendrix covers: Purple Haze, Fire, Manic Depression and Foxey Lady (their spelling!); three Cream covers: Sunshine Of Your Love, I'm So Glad and Swlabr, a re-hash of The Kinks' Set Me Free and Buffalo Springfield's For What It's Worth. The vocals were then dubbed over the music. The studio struck a deal with RCA to have 100-150 albums pressed. They were sent to the students who signed the purchase sheet - hence the rarity. Worth a spin? Definitely, a few wrong notes were hit, the vocals are flat in places and some of the songs a bit slow, but some of the Hendrix covers, particularly the finale (and their tour de force) Foxey Lady, are great. Given the rarity of the original release, the reissue is particularly welcome and will have taken copies into a few more homes.

This West Coast band from Los Angeles' sound was characterised by Gayle McCormick's great voice. She was from St. Louis originally. Both their albums were produced by Steve Barri. Most of the songs on their first album were cover versions and they are also well remembered for their version of The Weight in the Soundtrack to Easy Rider. Almost all of the material on Minus - Plus was written by well known sessionman Alan Parker and their keyboardist Larry Moss. Baby It's You got to No 5 in the U.S. Charts and Take A Look Around and What Am I Gonna Do were both minor hits peaking at No's 43 and 73 respectively. Gayle McCormick later went solo. Alan Parker, who'd previously been in Summerhill, later fronted his own band.

ALBUM: 1	THE VISIT FROM (2-LP)	(Kent KST-551) 1970	R2

NB: (1) some copies issued with colour poster, which significantly increases the value of the LP (R2/R3). (1) reissued on CD (Virgo CD1518) 1996. (1) reissued on vinyl as a 3-LP box set Stop For A Visit Down Electric Avenue (RD Records RD 6) 1999. The box set also contains an LP of selections from his unreleased Stop (1971) and Electric Avenue (1972) albums. Along with the three discs, the box set includes a reprint of "The Visit" poster, and a band history along with several photos.

Here's another significant collectable from the California rock scene that will interest readers. Not really a solo album at all, as Smith is backed by eight very capable musicians. Much of the music is instrumental, achieving a mystical and 'psychedelic' atmosphere, although there are a few more mainstream tracks and some nice bluesy guitar work in places. This interesting album is a must for fans of psychedelia. The original pressing (especially with the psychedelic poster) has skyrocketed in value in recent years; as such, the recent reissue is most welcome. It includes a bonus disc of material recorded by Smith from the early seventies.

Prior to the Kent album, Bob was with Silverskin, and before that, Lid (not to be confused with The Lyd), who recorded an album in 1968 which remains unissued.

Don Preston was a member of Frank Zappa's Mothers Of Invention and Daryl Dragon was with The Dragons. Daryl worked on various projects with his brothers Doug and Dennis (Farm, A Sea For Yourself, et. al.)

before finding fame and fortune as the 'Captain' in Captain and Tennille. Bob Smith continues performing locally in Florida and has finished a new recording, The Visit - Destiny 2000 From Bob Smith which he will make available on his own Southern Rose label. (VJ/CF/BSh)

Recording on Richie Havens' label, Kathy Smith is a good female psychedelic-influenced folk-rock singer with a very rich and varied backing, including guitar, violin, flute, sitar and tabla. Her albums were recorded with excellent musicians, notably Colin Walcott (Oregon), Jeremy Steig and Warren Bernhardt (both ex-Jeremy and The Satyrs), Artie Traum, Monte Dunn, Jim Fielder (Blood, Sweat and Tears) and Bill LaVorgna. Her first album features unusual orchestration and her powerful vocals. Her second album is similar in style and every bit as good.

In the eighties, Kathy Smith became friends with comedian John Belushi and is rumoured to be the last person to have seen him alive. (SR)

2(B)	NEW VIBRATIONS: A QUEST IN FOLK ROCK	(Light LS-5561) 1971

Tedd Smith was a conceptual folk-rock singer and pianist with Christian overtones. His first album contains flower-pop (Circles), powerful psychedelic tracks (Smash And Grab World), rock (Jump For Joy), classical-tinged tracks with woodwinds and strings (Games, A Little Understanding), the long Running Man with piano jamming and even some poetry readings. The title track is the album's magnum opus, an unclassifiable mix of harrowing spoken word and almost avant-garde instrumental passages. Except for the female singer, the group backing Tedd Smith is not credited.

SMITH - A Group Called Smith LP.

The second album was recorded with The Young People and is more pop-oriented, although it contains some good rock tracks, like Life Is Why, Love And Understanding and Searching. Tedd Smith was pianist for the televangelist Billy Graham for more than 50 years commencing in 1947! The Visit
VIRGO
from Bob Smith

BOB SMITH - The Visit From... CD.

Led by John Orvis, who composed all their material, their music can best be described as "psychedelic boogie", epitomised by the 19-minute M.C. Boogie on the first album and nine-minute Greased Lightnin on the second. In evidence is loads of energy, jiving vocals, good guitar solos and powerful organ parts. The second album was produced by Jimmie Haskell, one of the best producers/arrangers operating in the California studios in the sixties. Beyer remained in California to play for Smith and Canned Heat and was then in fellow Texan Gary Myrick's band. Phil Parker went on to play with the bluesman Shakey Jake Harris.
